BY LAURENCE BURD.

Next Friday the city council's special traction subcommittee and a seven man board representing the surface and elevated lines will hold a meeting. They will attempt to agree on a program for a franchise under which a unified modern transportation system can be established in Chicago.

Meetings with a like purpose have been held for 13 years.

The Friday conferees will have a vast amount of statistical data and technical information before them. This information has been gathered over the period of more than 13 years—since the first unit of the surface lines went into receivership.

Vast Sums Spent for Plans.

The 13 year discussion has cost a great deal of money. Figures compiled by THE TRIBUNE in a survey of court receivership records, and printed here for the first time, show that the traction companies [all are now in receivership or bankruptcy] have spent more than $2,625,000 since 1926 in receivership costs and plans for reorganization.

In print the records of the receiverships and bankruptcy make 18 volumes with 16,000 pages. Thousands of dollars are paid annually by the companies to court reporters.

Over the same stretch of years the city has used $3,945,000 from its traction fund to build up unification plans and to pay costs of litigation growing out of the effort. Included are some of the costs of planning the downtown subways, but nothing for their construction. The theory is that these tubes should become a part of the united transit system.

What Money Could Have Bought.

The combined ci... companies' spending on receiverships and unification plans in the last 13 years is $6,570,000 or so far. It is estimated that when the receiverships are finally wound up, a few more millions must be paid by the companies to persons who have been involved in the long legal battles.

Altho the companies' planning and receivership expense is only about one-third of 1 per cent of their total spending under court orders, it cannot be regarded as a negligible sum. Added to what the city has spent on planning traction changes the $6,570,000 would have bought 410 modern street cars like those used in Madison street, or 262 up-to-date elevated cars, such as were never seen in Chicago. It is as much as the elevated lines derive from fares in six months; it is more than bus line revenues for a year.

Now Operated as Unit.

In contrast, the bond and debenture holders of the elevated lines, with $65,000,000 of paper, have received neither interest nor principal since 1932. Surface lines bondholders, except those with first mortgage security, have had nothing since 1927. Stockholders have received no dividends. Altogether about 50,000 security holders are affected by the failure to get the lines unified and earning money.

Originally there were four surface line companies. All are now operated as a unit under control of the federal court receivership. The largest, the Chicago Railways company [north and west side lines] went into receivership on Dec. 15, 1926.

The other three companies [legally known as Chicago City Railway et al.] control the south side lines, and have been in receivership since July 7, 1930. The elevated lines were in receivership from 1932 until 1937, and have since been operated in bankruptcy.

The Individual Costs.

Following is a tabulation of the individual companies' payments for reorganization plans and receivership expense:

Chicago Railways [13 years]	$1,508,915
Elevated Lines [receivership]	353,284
Elevated Lines [bankruptcy]	215,554
Total	$2,625,217

Sharing in this were receivers, their attorneys, court appointees working on the case, and special counsel consulted on reorganization.

The federal court still has under advisement claims for a total of $262,856, requested by trustees of elevated lines' bonds, and by their attorneys,

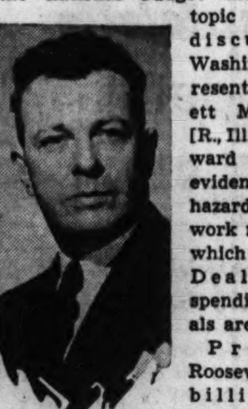
BARES SLIPSHOD WAY OF SETTING UP U. S. BUDGET

Rep. Dirksen Assails Guesswork Tactics.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—With the national budget the foremost topic of political discussion in Washington, Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] came forward today with evidence of haphazard and guesswork methods by which the New Deal's huge spending proposals are drafted.



Rep. E. M. Dirksen. [Tribune Studio Photo.]

President Roosevelt's 8⅝ billion dollar budget for the 1941 fiscal year has been attacked by Republicans as excessive by as much as 1¼ billions. Dirksen, a member of the house appropriations committee, revealed testimony given at a closed committee hearing on the manner in which the President and his aids arrive at estimates more than double the amount which it cost to run the government 10 years ago.

Questioning Budget Director Harold D. Smith and members of his staff, Dirksen learned that the budget is made up in the following manner:

1. The government departments and agencies make up their estimates of appropriations for the next fiscal year and submit them to the budget bureau. These estimates represent what the department or agency feels it would like to have. Such estimates regularly are higher than for the preceding year.

2. The estimates are turned over to one or two staff members of the budget bureau for examination. Little or no field investigation is made, the officials admitted to Dirksen, who commented that the bureau by its own admission could not know whether the billions of dollars expended in the field by the PWA, WPA, Farm Tenancy, Soil Conservation, Indian Affairs, Reclamation, Home Owners Loan corporation, and other agencies had been administered efficiently.

3. Hearings are then held at which the agency and department heads testify respecting the estimates. These hearings will run from two to five weeks. The same procedure is employed by the appropriations committees of house and senate.

4. The estimates are then considered by a group or committee in the budget bureau and recommendations are made.

5. These recommendations are submitted to the President, who spends a few sessions, ranging in length from one-half to two hours, with the budget director. With the President's approval the estimates are then set up and transmitted to congress.

Bureau Loses Its Halo.

"Members of congress always have regarded the budget bureau as a kind of sacrosanct holy of holies, enshrouded in mystery, whose estimates of appropriations are nothing short of inspired," Dirksen commented. "After questioning the budget director and his staff, it occurs to me that congress knows as much if not more about the whole subject of appropriations and expenditures.

"It was indeed refreshing to learn that often the matter of a cut in an estimate is left to the department or agency which is affected. I say refreshing because it has been the experience of congress that the departments, when forced to make cuts, usually will cut the items which are indispensable and which they know congress will restore.

"Certainly there should be an investigation of the field operations of government which involve huge expenditure. In this connection the suggestion of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi for a supercommittee in congress to investigate the budget estimates and the need for taxes is valuable. It should bring about a recasting of the present procedure."

Aurora Marks Twelfth Night at 11th Hour

Twelfth Night was celebrated prematurely—at about the 11th hour—in Aurora yesterday. As a consequence, some thousands of townspeople, and Mayor Harry B. Warner in particular, were disappointed. But some of the town's small boys had a lot of fun.

A year ago the Aurora Kiwanis club decided that there should be a special observance of Twelfth Night. On the Christian calendar Twelfth Night is celebrated on the eve of the Feast of Epiphany, which always falls on Jan. 6, twelve days after Christmas, and signifies the coming of the Magi to Jesus in Bethlehem.

Nary a Drop of Ale.

For reasons of civic propriety, that part of the rite having to do with the consumption of large quantities of nut brown ale was discarded. But, at the first illumination, a year ago, everybody saw a mighty nice bonfire.

This year a pyre of heroic proportions awaited the torch of Mayor Warner. City trucks collected 5,000 Christmas trees and heaped them in a pile 52 feet high at View street and Garfield avenue.

The grand illumination was set for 7:30 p. m. yesterday. But in midafternoon a red glare suddenly incarnadined the sky. It was like the first blush, some classicist remarked, of Aurora herself.

Oops! There She Goes!

"There she goes!"

And, with a crackle at first, and then a mounting roar, she went.

"Gee whiz!" said one, more adequate expressions failing.

"Now we have our bonfire," remarked the small philosopher beside him, "and we can go to the double feature tonight too."

OWN A BATHTUB? USE TELEPHONE? AND HOW MUCH FOR SPINACH?

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6 (AP).—Have you a bathtub or shower in your home, and who uses it?

How much did you make last year and what rent do you pay?

How far along in school did you get?

Have you a telephone?

How much spinach did you raise last year, and how much, if anything, were you paid for it?

Thus will 120,000 census takers query whoever answers the door at 40,000,000 farm and city dwellings next April.

Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins today made public some of the questions thru which the census bureau expects to gather the most complete data ever assembled about 132,000,000 persons, their homes and their farms.

The housing survey is a new one. It lists 31 queries, dealing with type, age, and condition of the structure, facilities, ownership, rental and mortgages.

MANHATTAN WILD LIFE HAS NOTHING ON THE BRONX'S!

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Frank Hoyt, who has been trapping for fur bearing animals in the wilds of The Bronx was arraigned today before Magistrate Peter Abeles.

Surprised and indignant at his arrest on a charge of trapping animals in Pelham Bay park without a permit, Hoyt exclaimed:

"Why, I've been trapping in The Bronx for years. I used to go to Canada, but the Hudson's Bay company has cleaned out that section of fur bearing animals. So I stick to The Bronx and I have picked up a nice living there, trapping mink and weasels. What's more, Bronx mink is of higher grade than that of Canada. I get from $10 to $12 a skin."

Joseph Priani, 2634 North Ashland avenue, yesterday piled newspapers around the frozen water pipes in his flat and struck a match. The pipes thawed, all right; and the whole flat got warm in a jiffy. Firemen estimated damage to the flat at $250.

Labor Goons Slug Butcher; Nab Suspects

In the midst of the search for the labor goon murderers of a north side garage owner State's Attorney Courtney police last night arrested two officials of another union after the brutal slugging of a butcher shop employé.

The victim of the newest outrage by labor sluggers is Louis Mikolajczyk, father of six children. His sole offense, according to Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's investigators, was doing a little extra work in an effort to obtain food for his large family.

Victim in Hospital.

Mikolajczyk, who is 51 years old and lives at 3036 Cullerton street, was taken to County hospital with severe head injuries. Last night he was returned to his home.

Under arrest are Joseph Kovky, 36 years old, 1845 West 23d place, and Henry Hlavacek, 47, of 1533 South Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, business agents for Local 638 of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor.

The attack on Mikolajczyk occurred yesterday afternoon in John's Meat Market, 3708 West 26th street. His assailant, Capt. Gilbert said, was Kovky.

Obtains Withdrawal Card.

Police said Mikolajczyk was an old member of the meat cutters' union, but lost his job recently and went on WPA. He obtained a withdrawal card from the union, which exempted him from dues. To augment his WPA wages, he did cleanup, or porter work in the back room of John's Meat Market. In return he was given meat, but no cash.

At 2:30 p. m. yesterday, Kovky and Hlavacek confronted Mikolajczyk in the back room of the market. Without ado, Capt. Gilbert said, Kovky drew a gun, cursed Mikolajczyk, and kicked him in the stomach. Then he allegedly punched him, knocking him to the floor. Then the two men left.

Search for Kovky and Hlavacek was started, and they surrendered to police at 5 p. m. They denied attacking Mikolajczyk.

'Lake of Death' in Finland; It's a Weird Scene

BY MARTIN MARTELIUS.

ON THE SUOMUSSALMI FRONT, Finland, Jan. 6.—After traveling by motor car and sledge for several days and being under machine gun fire from Russian planes, I reached Lake Kianta yesterday morning. It was on the ice of this lake that Finnish bombing planes, coöperating with machine gunners on skis, trapped and destroyed a division of Russian troops on Dec. 29 and 30.

The temperature was 20 degrees below zero Fahrenheit when I arrived and the snow on the hills and lake shores partly covered thousands of Russians slain in the battle. The terrible spectacle on the "Lake of Death" makes the battle at Salla, 150 miles north of here, where another Russian force was annihilated, seem idyllic in comparison.

Bodies in Grotesque Positions.

Here are the last remains of the Russian 163d division, which was at least 15,000 strong. These soldiers were wiped out by Finnish bombs, grenades, and bullets from machine guns and rifles. The bodies are in as hideous and queer positions as were those of the persons who died under volcanic ashes at Pompeii.

One dead soldier rests on his knees, his left hand across his forehead where two bullets had penetrated. Another lies doubled up after having been shot in the stomach.

The Russians, after a week of fighting, had taken positions on Lake Kianta prepared to meet expected attacks from the shores. Worn out by ceaseless fighting day and night in the gloomy woods where Finnish ski patrols darted in and out to harass them, the Russians were not given a chance to eat, rest, sleep, or even light a fire.

Russians Flee in Panic.

The Russian companies assembled on the ice were panic stricken when Finnish bombs dropped suddenly upon them from the skies. They ran wildly in disorder toward the banks of the lake, where camouflaged Finnish machine gunners mowed them down.

As I walked thru the dark woods lining the lake the Finnish officer accompanying me drew his pistol and aimed it upward. He then lowered the weapon. Looking up, I saw a Russian soldier who had frozen to death as he desperately clung to the branch of a tree.

From the east came the occasional chatter of machine guns. The officer explained that the Finns are chasing the last remnants of the defeated division.

A Close Shave.

"We may meet Russian stragglers here any minute," he said.

Suddenly he shouted, "Get down quick!"

We fell behind two big trees. From there we saw two shadows near by. The soldiers had seen us and were aiming their rifles at us. The officer shouted a few words in Finnish. The soldiers were Finns on skis. They laughed when they reached us, but warned us to go no farther eastward

On our way back we passed Lake Kianta in the gray dusk. I am sure I will dream of the hideous bodies sculptured there by the arctic cold. They remind me of the ashen mummies of Herculaneum.

CALLS RUMANIA READY TO FIGHT FOR BESSARABIA

Let Balkans Alone, Italy Tells Reds.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 6.—King Carol of Rumania today threw down the gauntlet to Russia. He declared that Rumania will resist with all its armed force any attempt by Russia to seize the former Russian province of Bessarabia from Rumania.

King Carol.

"Bessarabia's past, under the Voevods [Rumanian princes], guarantees that this land is, was, and forever shall be governed by Rumania," he said in a speech at Chisinau, Bessarabia's capital. The city is 12 miles from the Russian border.

This was the latest in a significant series of speeches made along Rumania's border recently by the king and political leaders. The occasion for today's speech was the church festival of Epiphany.

Christmas Speech Recalled.

Bessarabia was ceded to Russia in 1812 when the territory that now is Rumania was a vassal state of Turkey. Bessarabia returned to Rumania in 1918 during the Russian revolution, when the people decided they could not have existed. An independent state but must choose between Rumania and bolshevism. Russia never has recognized its loss of the province.

On Christmas day King Carol addressed the garrison at Oradia Mara, formerly Nagy Varad, the strongest Hungarian city in Rumania. In that speech he said that Rumania would not yield any of its postwar gains to anybody. That was for the benefit of Hungary, which has been agitating for the return of at least a part of what it lost after the world war. To Rumania the Hungarians lost Transylvania.

That same day Premier Georges Tatarescu made a similar speech at Cetatea Alba, one of Bessarabia's most Russian towns, and other ministers spoke in the same vein in other disputed districts. On New Year's day King Carol made a speech along the same lines at Constanta, near the Bulgarian frontier.

Called Gesture to Russia.

Today, which is one of the Orthodox church's biggest occasions of the year, the king abandoned the custom of blessing waters in the capital. He celebrated the ceremony instead in Bessarabia's capital as a gesture to Russia that Rumania is confident of its own strength and fears nobody.

Rumania has poured money into Bessarabia since the war in the west began. Heavy winter weather has prevented recent work, but more troops have been sent into the region during the last month. It was said only recently that the Rumanians probably would retreat from Bessarabia without fighting if the Russians attacked. Since Finland's successful resistance against the Red army, however, the Rumanians declare that they will fight to the end.

Leaders of the large Russian, German, and Ukrainian minorities living in the region joined today in speeches of welcome for the king. They promised that their respective groups would fight to the last drop of blood against any invaders.

"The enemy cannot endure where there is unity," the king told them.

Mussolini Warns Russia.

VENICE, Italy, Jan. 6 (AP).—Italy today advised Hungary to try for a peaceful settlement with Rumania of its claim to Transylvania, Italian sources said, because of the danger of a Russian invasion of the Balkans.

1. Italy intends only to keep communism from spreading in southeastern Europe. So long as the Russians remain within their frontiers Italy will leave them alone, but if an invasion of the Balkans or Hungary takes place, Italy will oppose them.

2. Italy intends to respect the territories and national rights of the Balkan and Danubian countries. For better protectior against the danger of war, Italy wants these countries to face and settle accounts frankly in a show of conciliation.

Ciano was reported to have told Csaky that the only possible solution of Hungary's demand upon Rumania for Transylvania—which was part of the old Austrian-Hungarian empire before the world war—rests with both countries acknowledging realities in a spirit of good will.

These realities, in the Italian view, are Poland's dismemberment as a result of resistance to peaceful revision of treaties and the fact that while Russia might press Rumania for the province of Bessarabia, which was Russian before the world war, the soviet also is on the frontier of Hungary since the invasion of Poland.

Complete Identity of Views.

In the past Fascist spokesmen have indicated that Italy would support fully any move by Hungary to regain Transylvania.

Ciano said the conferences with Csaky showed a complete identity of views on problems concerning defense of order and peace in Europe.

Budapest dispatches reported that Italian and Bulgarian representatives would attend a meeting of the Balkan entente, comprising Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Greece, and Turkey, at Belgrade on Feb. 2.

Ciano is believed to have reaffirmed Italy's opposition to the formation of a new Balkan bloc, pointing out that it preferred to retain freedom of action, particularly since territorial disputes between the various countries would prevent a sound workable union of Balkan nations at this time.

BRITISH DETAIN MANHATTTAN ON VOYAGE TO ITALY

New York, Jan. 6 [Special].—British contraband authorities detained the United States liner Manhattan today when she arrived at Gibraltar on her first voyage to Mediterranean ports.

Dispatches to the owners of the ship, one of the largest American passenger vessels, did not reveal whether the British authorities seized mail on the Manhattan as they have on other American vessels, which has been protested by Cordell Hull, secretary of state.

The Manhattan left New York on Dec. 28 en route to Genoa and Naples with 128 passengers. She was taken off the Cobh-Southampton-Cherbourg run after the adoption of the law banning American ships from war zones. British officials said everything will be done to expedite the ships' passage.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the British contraband authorities at Gibraltar have released the American export freighter Executive, seized on Dec. 21. The Executive left here on Dec. 7 for Mediterranean ports.

SWISS GET RATION CARDS FOR TWO MONTHS OF FOOD

BERNE, Switzerland, Jan. 6 (AP).—Rationing cards for a two months' food supply were issued today. The government urged the populace to take the full amount at once to prepare for any eventuality. Citizens swarmed to heavily stocked stores.

Many in landlocked Switzerland fear an offensive on the western front this spring will disrupt communications. The government urged employers to help their employés buy the two months' food reserves by making advances on salaries.

Charity organizations were asked to buy stocks for the poor.

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP).—Heinrich Gebhardt, 22 years old, was beheaded today as a spy for an undisclosed foreign intelligence service. He was the first person beheaded in Germany for espionage this year. In 1939 41 persons were executed.

King Carol of Rumania asserted yesterday that his country will fight if soviet Russia attempts to take Bessarabia, which went to Rumania in the world war settlement. At the same time Premier Mussolini advised that Hungary try for a peaceful settlement of its claim to Transylvania, a portion of the old Austro-Hungarian empire which also was given to Rumania after the world war.

GERMAN WOMEN COMPLAIN ABOUT POTATO SCARCITY

Discover It's Difficult to Buy Lard, Too.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—Today, for the first time, Berlin's housekeepers had to go hunting for potatoes. Previously potatoes were the most reliable standby, because housewives could buy as many of them as they wanted to round off the family menu if appetites were bigger than the rations allotted by the government.

In markets in the center of town women staged minor demonstrations. Some soldiers home on leave complained that they could not have a good time unless they got as many potatoes as their appetites required. Authorities explained that the shortage of potatoes was due to cold and traffic difficulties and that it was only temporary.

Cut Down on Lard.

In butcher stores housewives complained that they could not get as much lard as their ration cards indicated. When they were lucky they received bacon instead, but the German housewife is not accustomed to using it. She finds it not as rich in fat as her beloved lard.

Saloonkeepers in the poorer districts have been warned they must not sell more than two glasses of schnapps to each customer. Higher class restaurants which still have English beer and whisky have been forbidden to sell any of these drinks. They had to list them and place them under lock. The sale of French liqueurs, champagne, and wine still is allowed, but the supply is diminishing.

Authorities are continuing feverish negotiations with the Russians, hoping to increase the deliveries of Russian goods. Karl Ritter, chief of the German economic delegation to Russia, has returned to Berlin from Moscow to seek new instructions.

Transportation a Problem.

Ritter is expected to report to Fuehrer Hitler. The question of transportation is proving even more difficult than Germans expected. They also complain that the fodder they received from Russia was not of a satisfactory quality.

Russians insist on quicker deliveries of finished goods from Germany. Alexander Schvarzev, Russian ambassador to Berlin, had a long conference today with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, economic master of Germany. The Russians are thinking of sending a special commission to Berlin to accelerate the exchange of goods between the two countries.

400,000 FAMILIES IN GERMANY TO BE SENT TO POLAND

Nazis Plan Vast Shakeup of Population.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan 6. — Four hundred thousand families in Germany, and especially in the western part of the country, are being prepared for resettlement in the conquered area of Poland.

Many families, the German authorities contend, are living on farms too small for their requirements. They must, therefore, accept the government's advice to move eastward into districts which the Nazis describe as the wastes of Poland.

These families are in addition to the 808,000 Germans being returned and settled in Polish territory from the Baltic states and the Italian Tyrol, and to those from the area of Poland now held by Russia.

The entire resettlement scheme is being carried out in accordance with a planned economy. It is directed by what is known as a board of planned space, which is controled by a commissar for strengthening German nationality. This is one of the titles of Henrich Himmler, chief of all police forces in Germany. He will see to it that the families being resettled will remain loyal to the state even if the lands picked for them by the state planners prove disappointing to them.

Four years ago the latter ordered Germany's 43 universities to carry out research on settlement problems. Geologists, economists, engineers, chemists, architects, health experts, and other specialists, including road builders and farming experts, prepared for the nation-wide reshuffle.

War Makes Task Easier.

In wartime, when expressions of discontent fall automatically into the category of resistance to government, which may mean prison or worse, the newly conquered provinces available for settlers make it easier for the planners to carry out their task.

German officials, when asked what will happen to the Polish populations in the territories when the new German settlers take over their homes, shops, and land, reply that the Poles will move to a district that is to remain as a residuary of the former free Poland under German control and not incorporated as a German province. The German officials declare that, since these Polish lands border directly on German land, everything will be done to insure their prosperity and the well-being of the population.

The planners are confident that the transportation of all these Germans to their new homes will meet no difficulty.

That transportation problems are difficult for Germany after only four months of war can be seen, however, in the distribution of coal. With the conquest of Upper Silesia, following that of the Czech coal regions, Germany today has the greatest coal resources of all countries except the United States.

The Germans say that they plan to increase the output of the Upper Silesian mines to deliver coal to the Baltic states, which formerly received English coal, but which Germany is now supplying.

Despite this wealth of coal at Germany's disposal and the claim of the Nazis to superior economic methods, however, Berlin is suffering from a coal shortage. Berlin is only a few hours from the Upper Silesian and the Czecho-Slovakian mines.

On Christmas day Hitler troopers were ordered to help distribute coal to the population but many houses remained without heat. Despite the intense cold, a big hotel near the tourist center of Friedrichstrasse turns off the heat at midnight to save coal. The homes of a number of diplomats, who usually fare well, have been without heat for 10 days.

Mothers can be seen begging coal from coal dealers because their children are ill. I saw a woman beam with joy when a dealer sold her 10 small bricks of coal, which she carried home in triumph in her market basket. It meant that she could heat one room for almost 24 hours.

Nazi officials say that the lack of coal is merely a matter of transportation and that when the soldiers on leave have returned to the front more coal can be shifted to the German capital.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

CONTRAST YANK TRADITION WITH FLIGHT OF SPEE

Battle to the Finish Is U.S. Navy's Principle.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Members of the house and senate naval affairs committees, which are considering the record peacetime budget for the navy asked by President Roosevelt, are studying confidential reports on the Graf Spee battle.

The German pocket battleship was engaged on Dec. 13 by three British cruisers, and after fighting a running battle all day off the Uruguayan coast ran for shelter into the harbor of Montevideo. A few days later the Spee was scuttled by the crew.

The reports were presented to the committee members to give graphic support to the navy's contention that superior training, a fighting tradition and the best of personnel will win in even encounters and prevail against odds.

The navy is firm also in the belief that a vessel must be fought as long as it is capable of damaging an enemy. This follows the early traditions of the navy and the words of John Paul Jones, who said, "I have not yet begun to fight," when called upon to surrender. It also follows the tradition of Capt. James A. Lawrence whose last words were "Don't give up the ship" as he lay dying from wounds.

The American navy is not as secretive about its building program and ship designs as are other powers. The naval high command is confident that the best of personnel and training, together with a fighting spirit makes every American vessel a match for comparable or even larger vessels in any other navy in the world.

Flight is an approved course in American tactics when a warship is undamaged and faces overwhelming odds under the old axiom that it is better to live and fight another day. Once joined in battle and damaged, however, a ship should fight to the end, American officers hold. Flight from a weaker enemy is held to be inexcusable.

Two Schools of Thought.

On this ground there exist two schools of thought in the capital regarding the suicide of Capt. Hans Langsdorff of the late Admiral Graf Spee. One is that he shot himself in admission that he had been outmaneuvered and defeated by a weaker foe, taking his life to wipe out the stain of flight.

The other is that he acted in protest against orders from Adolf Hitler to scuttle the man of war when he would have preferred to go out against the enemy to reopen the battle and triumph or go down with his ship.

American naval officers were not surprised by the fate of the Graf Spee, as it had been expected that the raider would go to the bottom sooner or later, but they were amazed that it was defeated by weaker opposition.

British Outwit Graf Spee.

They also conceded that the raider should have fled from battle, if it could, because its mission was to raid commerce and not battle enemy men of war. Once in battle and damaged, however, it should have continued the fight to her last shot, the Americans contend.

The British outwitted the Graf Spee, drawing the ship into battle by using the French freighter, Formose, as a decoy. As the German vessel set out toward the merchantman, a rich prize for a raider with an empty larder because it was well stocked with foodstuffs, the British heavy cruiser Exeter dashed up, led the Graf Spee away from its prey, and radioed the light cruisers Ajax and Achilles to come to the scene.

Spee's Armament Heavier.

The Graf Spee was a vessel of 10,000 tons. It had a speed of 24 knots and carried a crew of 926 men. It was armed with six 11-inch guns, eight 5.9-inch guns, and eight torpedo tubes, and carried two planes.

This was in contrast with the armament of its three smaller opponents. The Exeter has a displacement of 9,390 tons, a speed of 32 knots, and a crew of 600. Its armament consists of six 8-inch guns, four 4.4-inch guns, six torpedo tubes, and two planes.

The cruisers Achilles and Ajax are of the same size. They have a displacement of 7,030 tons each, a speed of 32½ knots, and each carries a crew of 550. Each ship is armed with eight 6-inch guns, four 4.4-inch guns, eight torpedo tubes, and one plane.

British Utilize Speed.

The 11 inch guns of the Spee were capable of hurling three or four 670 pound armor piercing or high explosive shells a minute, with an initial shell velocity of 2,800 feet per second. The Exeter's 8 inch guns fired six rounds of armor piercing or high explosive shells each minute with a muzzle velocity of 3,150 feet per second.

The six inch guns of the Ajax and Achilles fired 10 rounds per minute of 100 pound projectiles with a muzzle velocity of 3,000 feet per second. The 5.9 inch guns on the Spee fired projectiles of approximately the same size and at the same muzzle velocity.

The Graf Spee had superiority over the three vessels in every department except speed. The British used their speed, which gave superior maneuverability, in carrying out their mission, which was to put the Graf Spee out of commission even tho all three went to the bottom in the attempt.

Seventh Salvo Makes Hit.

The Exeter went into battle about 6 o'clock in the morning, zigzagging and laying down smoke. The Graf Spee opened fire at 25,000 yards, reaching for range. The German gunners missed four salvos from the 11 inch gun turrets, the fifth scored a hit, but did little damage and the sixth missed again. The seventh scored a staggering hit.

The Exeter came on doggedly and did not fire until within range. The Ajax and Achilles came up on the Spee's quarter. The three cruisers maneuvered to fix their target against the horizon, screened their movements by smoke and hammered away with their lighter guns, but straighter shooting gunners as the battle moved southward along the Uruguayan coast toward Montevideo.

The senate and house naval committee members were given reasons for the poor German gunnery. First, the vessel rocked alarmingly after each salvo, being too light for the 11 inch guns. Second, it was faced with three enemies and was forced to divide the fire of its two turrets, which lessened effectiveness. Third, it was powered with Diesel engines.

Engines Cause Vibration.

At the speed with which the Graf Spee was running southward the Diesel engines produced an enormous amount of vibration, which would make sighting thru range finders and sighters a virtual impossibility. Cross wires cannot be held on a target when vibration is great, committee members were told.

The Graf Spee was hampered in maneuvering, by confession of its captain, because of the fear that the light cruisers would dart in and use torpedoes. The cautious German conduct of the vessel—at one time Capt. Langsdorff took the helm himself—enabled the lighter vessels to take advantage of the sun, and in the closing minutes of the battle to put the Spee against the light of the setting sun.

The German ship was further hampered by the fact that its planes were damaged so that they could not be launched into the air. The German captain delayed in sending his planes up until it was too late. The British had the advantage of plane observation and smoke screens.

The Graf Spee was handicapped tremendously by the fact that its 11 inch guns were in two turrets against three enemies. It failed to get the most out of its 5.9 inch guns, however, which were but slightly inferior to the 6 inch guns of the light cruisers.

At Montevideo after the battle, the German captain said that, if there had been only two cruisers, he could have destroyed them, but three he could not face. Critics here told committee members he should have been able to destroy all three had he not been outmaneuvered and outbraved.

Where he fled from action, Commodore Henry Harwood of the Exeter stayed in the fight even tho he was able to fire but one of his 8 inch guns, and that by hand.

Much was made of the fact htat the fire control room on the Graf Spee was put out of commission, throwing the ship into darkness, rendering ammunition hoisting machinery useless and making it impossible to fire the guns from a central station.

Probably Had 1,200 Rounds.

On the Exeter, Commodore Harwood used a human chain to relay orders when his telephone system was knocked out.

The Graf Spee, in the opinion of experts, should have continued the battle with 5.9 inch guns against the 6 inch guns of the light cruisers late in the battle, when the Exeter was all but out of commission.

Some experts believe the vessel ran out of ammunition for the 11 inch guns in the 14 hour running battle. It is probable that it carried 1,200 rounds of such ammunition—200 for each gun.

According to the latest information received here, the flight can be ascribed only to defeatism and not to lack of ammunition or unseaworthiness of the Graf Spee.

As he raced toward Montevideo Capt. Langsdorff must have been aware that the Graf Spee faced internment, while the British ships could go to their base at the Falkland Islands for repairs.

On the basis of this knowledge, and having failed in his mission to evade enemy warships, it is the firm conviction of navy men that he should have stayed in the combat to the end. An American commander would have done so, members of the house and senate naval affairs committee were told.

Unity's Sister a Miami Waitress

Mum on Mystery Illness

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP).—Jessica Freeman Mitford Romilly, whose sister has been described as the perfect "Nordic Beauty" by Adolf Hitler, lives in Miami and works in a bar and restaurant in which her husband, Esmond Romilly, owns an interest.

But Jessica says she knows nothing about why her sister—Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford—was brought home to England this week with a mysterious injury.

Jessica and her husband were married in 1937 after they met upon his return from helping the Loyalist cause in Spain. The marriage met with the disfavor of her father, Lord Redesdale, and the couple came to the United States.

Romilly talked to reporters—about almost anything except his now famous sister-in-law's illness—but Jessica kept silent.

He said they had kept only occasional contact with English relatives.

Lord Lothian Returns to Washington by Plane

Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, left for Washington by plane at 11 a. m. yesterday after a two day visit in Chicago. He was accompanied by Leander McCormick-Goodhart, honorary commercial attaché at the British embassy. Lord Lothian came to Chicago principally to speak Thursday night before the Council on Foreign Relations.

CHAUFFEUR DIES IN CRASH.

THE AMERICAN FLEET IS READY TO FIGHT, SAYS RETIRING CHIEF

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP).—The United States fleet was turned over to a tall Texan today with the words of its retiring chief: "This fleet is ready to fight." Admiral James Otis Richardson relieved Admiral Claude Charles Bloch as commander in chief.

"Two years ago, on the same quarterdeck," said Admiral Bloch just before he ordered his flag hauled down, "I said to you officers and men that our only excuse for being was to be ready to fight. It is my firm conviction that this fleet is ready to fight, and for that condition, full credit is given to the officers and men of the fleet who have worked so hard and so intelligently during our two years of service together.

"With world affairs in their present state of chaos, even greater effort is, and will be, necessary to keep us in that condition of readiness which the people of the United States have a right to expect."

The shift in command was the usual two year change.

RUSSIANS LOSE 22 PLANES IN RAIDS ON FINNISH CITIES

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 6 (AP).—Twenty-two Russian warplanes, and possibly 24, have been shot down in the last two days by Finland's air defenses, military circles asserted tonight.

An army communique officially accounted for eight Russian planes destroyed yesterday at Mikkeli, a railroad town about 135 miles northwest of the Karelian isthmus frontier. Mikkeli was one of several cities and towns attacked from the air.

Unofficial sources reported that eight planes were shot down today at Utti, 90 miles south of Mikkeli on an east-west railway line.

Antiaircraft batteries at Savio, northwest of Lake Ladoga, were reported to have destroyed six planes.

Two other Red army raiders were believed to have been shot down during attacks in north and central Finland, the communique stated.

[The Russian communique last night said ten Finnish planes had been brought down in air combat.]

Several Civilians Killed.

The Russians inflicted considerable damage at Mikkeli before being driven off. Several civilians, including women and children, were reported killed.

In fighting on land the high command reported the destruction of two enemy tanks and the capture of eleven others along with large quantities of supplies left behind by retreating Red army forces in the center of the eastern front. Intense cold hampered operations on land and at sea.

The bulk of the tanks and booty captured was reported northeast of Suomussalmi, in the region of Juntusranta, a short distance from the Russian frontier.

Repulse Karelian Attacks.

On the Karelian isthmus, the high command said two minor infantry thrusts toward the Mannerheim line were repulsed. The Red army coupled these attacks with intensified artillery barrages between the Gulf of Finland and Muolaanjarvi.

Russia's attempt at a blitzkreig [lightning war] after a 38 day trial against Finland, a country of 3,800,000 inhabitants, has netted it about 5,000 square miles, or about one forty-eighth of the 240,000 square miles it apparently set out to capture. Finnish leaders say they gave up voluntarily most of the Finnish territory now occupied by the Red army.

The Finns insist there is little military significance to the continued soviet air raids which since the beginning of the war have killed about 300 civilians and caused material damage to about 60 cities and towns. The Finns assert they have shot down more than 150 Russian planes.

Finns Still Hold Lines.

Today the Finns still hold defense lines on the Karelian isthmus to which they withdrew in the early days of the war. The Russians, with seven divisions massed there, apparently had hoped to break thru quickly by sheer weight.

The western end of this Finnish line is the coastal battery at Koivisto, south of Viipuri on the Gulf of Finland, which, despite almost daily shelling, has pounded away at both land and sea units of the Russian war machine. Many Finnish troops at Koivisto have been decorated for heroism in the face of great odds.

From Koivisto the Finnish lines run east-northeast, south of the small village of Summa, south of Muolaa then northeast past Lake Suvanto to Taipale on Lake Ladoga, where there has been particularly bitter fighting along the eastern end of the Taipale river.

The Finns offered only slight resistance while withdrawing to these positions during the first two weeks of the war. While the Russians have made some advances in the center of the line they always have been beaten back, and the Mannerheim line is intact.

The Russians made other major land gains north of Lake Ladoga, where soviet troops fought hard in an attempt to maneuver behind the isthmus defenses. The present Finnish front here extends from Kitela on Lake Ladoga north to Loimola, thence northeast to Suojarvi.

In sending troops into Finland at several points along the eastern frontier the Russian general staff apparently was modeling its campaign on Germany's drive against Poland without taking into consideration the peculiar nature of Finland's terrain and its severe winter.

The Finns say that today the snow is drifting over the shapes of more than 400 soviet tanks on various battlefields of the little republic. The Russians have been driven back on all fronts from Suojarvi to the arctic ocean.

Reds Claim 10 Planes Downed.

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (AP).—Ten Finnish planes were brought down in air combat today, the Russian army communique said, but other activity in the Finnish war was limited to clashes of patrols. The text of the communique:

"Jan. 6, nothing of importance took place at the front. On the Ukhta front there were clashes of patrols. In the Repola and Petrozavodsk directions there were activities of scouts and rifle and machinegun firing. On the Karelian isthmus there were activities of scouts and artillery fire. Soviet aviation made a number of successful raids on enemy reserves and military objectives. Ten enemy airplanes were brought down in air combat."

Two Finnish Fronts

Most definite information received recently concerning the locations of battle lines in two areas of the soviet Russian-Finnish war is contained in a dispatch printed today. In both maps the Finnish territory occupied by the Russians is lined diagonally.

Swedish Colonel, Expert on Tank Strategy, to Help Finns

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 6 (AP).—Gen. Ernst Linder, commander in chief of the Swedish volunteer expeditionary force in Finland, departed for the front today with the latest recruits. With him was Col. Carl Gustaf Ehrensvaerd, outstanding tank force strategist. He resigned his Swedish commission. Ninety thousand persons worked despite the Epiphany holiday and contributed their earnings, about $250,000, to the Finnish cause.

of thousands of packages of coffee being mailed to Finland by Americans, many of them of Finnish descent.

In his interview, Niukkanen jokingly told this correspondent that the Finns could not fight without coffee, and suggested that if Americans wanted to please their relatives here they should mail them a pound of coffee occasionally.

A high official of the Finnish postal service said today that coffee, in addition to Christmas packages, was continuing to pour in with every arrival of mail from the United States.

"Finland will be happy if Americans continue to send us coffee and sugar," he added. "Coffee is the most popular beverage in Finland. Our cows will continue to supply cream."

JAPS AND CHINESE BOTH PUT FORTH VICTORY CLAIMS

HONGKONG, Jan. 6 (AP).—Despite a Chinese victory parade at Chungking, the results of a week's heavy fighting were left in doubt today by conflicting Chinese and Japanese claims. The celebration in the temporary Chinese capital last night was based on reports that a Japanese advance in Kwangtung province of South China had been stopped.

Canton and Nanning, key cities of two war fronts.

Altho official Chinese quarters remained reticent about details, the semiofficial press said Chinese artillery and air force had led attacks routing a Japanese column north of Canton. Japanese, however, said Chinese forces had been swept from an area extending 100 miles north and northeast of Canton, while Japanese troops had crossed the North river and captured Tsingyun, 60 miles to the northwest.

Similar contradictions were reported from Kwangsi province, where Japanese asserted an unsuccessful attempt to recapture Nanning, the provincial capital, cost nearly 30,000 Chinese lives. The Chinese, however, said they were digging up 12 field guns and six antitank guns which, they declared, the Japanese had buried about 25 miles north of Nanning when forced to retreat hastily. They acknowledged Nanning itself still is held by Japanese.

Two German Freighters Sail from Brazil Ports

RIO GRANDE DO SUL, Brazil, Jan. 6 (AP).—The 6,062 ton German freighter Rio Grande, which the sunken pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was reported to have planned to escort home, departed tonight loaded with grain. Another German freighter, the 4,118 ton Bahia, sailed from Bahia, Brazil.

PURSE THIEF ROBS SHOP.

A young man entered the interior decorating shop at 2042 Lincoln Park West yesterday and selected a picture. While Miss Maxine McRee, owner of the shop, was wrapping it in a back room, the man took $75 from her purse, $15 from another purse in the shop, and fled.

America Bankrupted Britain, Lord Beaverbrook Charges

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Lord Beaverbrook, London newspaper publisher, asserted today the United States forced Great Britain off the gold standard in 1931.

He also declared that when this country dropped the gold standard British citizens who held American bonds were forced to accept paper dollars, worth 40 per cent less than the gold guaranteed, when the bonds were redeemed.

Beaverbrook made the statements in a 3,000 word article published in the London Daily Express and cabled the article to his representative in New York, who made it public.

Seeks to 'Modify Criticism.'

The article was Beaverbrook's version of the history of the war debt controversy between Britain and the United States. In it he said he hoped his views would "modify criticism" of Great Britain in this country. Beaverbrook, Canadian born, served in Lloyd George's war cabinet in the nonportfolio office of chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster and later as minister of information.

The publisher said Stanley Baldwin had defied Prime Minister Bonar Law in making an "impossible" agreement to pay America gold in 1923, when Baldwin was chancellor of the exchequer.

Bonar Law had told Baldwin, Beaverbrook wrote, that "a settlement must depend upon some other method than the transfer of money."

Beaverbrook said "it has often been represented that I was the only opponent of the settlement at that time," and added that this was false, for others, including Winston Churchill, now first lord of the admiralty, had also opposed the plan.

He quoted President Wilson, General Pershing, and eight war time American legislators as having "encouraged" Britain to think the war debts would be canceled, and that the money was less a loan than a contribution made in lieu of the immediate sending of American troops to Britain's assistance.

'Bankruptcy, Not Repudiation.'

"In the end, Britain was compelled to abandon the gold standard," Beaverbrook wrote. "There was no gold left. The debt, of course, was not repudiated. But there was a failure to pay, due simply to the bankruptcy of the British treasury and the disappearance of the gold. It was bankruptcy, not repudiation.

"Britain and the United States had a joint responsibility for depleting the British treasury. The United States knew the debtor's condition, and yet exacted payment of the debt.

"In the end, debtor and creditor shared the responsibility for emptying the British till. There were left the goods on Britain's shelves. The creditor did not take these. He did not want them."

POLES WILL DEVELOP OWN COMPLETE ARMY, INCLUDING AIR FORCE

PARIS, Jan. 6.—The Franco-Polish military agreement signed on Thursday by Premier Edouard Daladier and Premier Wladislas Sikorski will enable the Poles to develop a complete small army equipped with up to date weapons, it gecame known today.

The Poles now have two divisions of infantry in training in Britain. Artillery and motorized units will be formed and a special air force, which will be equally divided between British and French air bases, will be organized. The Polish army will not be a foreign legion but an independent group.

France and England will furnish the money.

FINNISH RELIEF FUND IS SWELLED $1,800; NOW $69,500

Subscriptions of $500 each were acknowledged from the William Wrigley Jr. company and Arthur Andersen yesterday by Philip R. Clarke, chairman of the Chicago campaign to raise $100,000 for Finnish relief. Arthur Andersen & Co., accountants, previously donated $500. Among other contributions were: Link Belt company, $300; Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Grigsby, $200, and $100 each from Albert Meyer, Ditto, Inc., and Katherine E. Barrett. Yesterday's contributions of $1,800 raised the total amount collected to $69,500. Finnish relief headquarters are at 208 South La Salle street.

ESTONIAN SHIP REPORTED SUNK BY WARPLANE

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Reuters news agency [British] quoted the Tallinn, Estonia, radio tonight as saying that an unnamed Estonian steamer had been bombed and sunk by a belligerent warplane in the North sea, 25 miles off the Norwegian coast.

The crew was machinegunned while taking to the boats, it was said, and two were wounded. All were reported rescued by a Swedish steamer.

The fishing trawler Adrian was towed into port after being in a collision with a brig in the North sea.

WAR MINISTER'S OUSTER SHAKES UNITY OF BRITISH

'Full Story' Is Demanded from Chamberlain.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—Dismissal of hard-driving Leslie Hore-Belisha as war secretary today shook the national unity behind Neville Chamberlain's wartime premiership.

From all parties came demands that Chamberlain "tell all" about the departure from his war cabinet of one of his most vigorous and popular ministers and why he did not at the same time rid his government of some so-called "dead wood."

"If it is shown that Mr. Hore-Belisha was thrown overboard to satisfy a clique of generals who disliked him on social grounds or because he was pressing the pace of democracy in the army too strongly, then public resentment will be wide, deep and lasting."

A Chance to Reply.

In the cabinet shakeup, Oliver Stanley succeeded Hore-Belisha and Stanley's portfolio as president of the board of trade went to a newcomer, Sir Andrew Rae Duncan. The only other change found Lord MacMillan replaced as minister of information by another newcomer, Sir John Reith.

The parliamentary recess spared the 70 year old prime minister from immediate attacks in the house of commons, but he will have a chance to answer his critics in a Mansion House speech Tuesday night when he will start a series of ministerial addresses to stir the war spirit of the people.

Must Face Parliament.

Should Chamberlain then ignore the controversy, which surpassed the heat of those created by the peacetime resignations of Anthony Eden as foreign secretary and Alfred Duff Cooper as first lord of the admiralty, he could wait until parliament reconvenes Jan. 16 to explain the ouster of Hore-Belisha.

Demands for a full explanation of the war minister's dismissal were foreshadowed in parliament by both opposition party members and conservatives. Hore-Belisha, a national liberal, then will be on the back bench and will have the chance to tell why he quit. But there were some doubts whether he would do this.

He sent a message to his constituents today that "whatever task may fall to me, I shall perform with vigor, but I have no thought at the present moment but that of winning the war."

He noted pointedly that the army now is "a democratic organization" which "will acquit itself with valor and distinction if and when the occasion comes."

Press Is Critical.

British newspapers were almost as one in criticizing Chamberlain and displayed prominently German press comment that there was sharp dissension within the British government's ranks. The press gave a lukewarm reception to Stanley.

The conservative Yorkshire Post said "the public will feel there are those who could have been better spared than Mr. Hore-Belisha in the testing days that lie ahead."

The Times hinted that reconstruction of the government might not yet be complete in saying:

"It cannot be too often repeated that his [Chamberlain's] task would be enormously lightened if the temporary retirement of this or that minister were looked upon as a natural and sensible repercussion of these strenuous times."

The political correspondent of the Evening News asserted he understood Hore-Belisha's resignation was the outcome of criticism from British general headquarters in France and from inside the war office.

Peace Hopes Blasted: Germany.

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP).—Authorized German sources said today that yesterday's changes in the British cabinet indicated that if any hopes for an early peace existed, even the faintest, these have been blasted. They said that the shakeup was to be regarded as evidence of a sharpening of the European conflict.

The dismissal of Leslie Hore-Belisha as war secretary merely means, these commentators asserted, that "one more war inciter" henceforth will be active behind the scenes instead of on the stage. German opinion considers his successor, Oliver Stanley, a man "from the same camp of violently anti-German war mongers."

These sources said that to Germans Stanley embodies the British "encirclement policy" in every field, including the economic as well as military.

Sir John Reith, new minister of information, is remembered in Berlin as an anti-Fascist. The commentators said that as head of the British Broadcasting corporation he permitted anti-Fascist propaganda to go out on the air regularly.

Romeo's Honeymoon

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—George [Romeo] Lowther and his bride of a day, Eileen [Juliet] Herrick, returned late today from New Hampshire, but the expected attempt at reconciliation with the girl's parents still was something for the future.

They flew from North Conway, N. H., where they were married yesterday after an aerial elopement.

Friends said they planned to spend the early part of the evening at a friend's home, but their further plans were unknown.

Mrs. Walter Herrick, the girl's mother, said she had not heard from her daughter.

HAIG DIARIES NOT TO BE PUBLISHED UNTIL WAR ENDS

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The diaries of the late Field Marshal Earl Haig containing secrets of the world war will not be published until after the conclusion of the present war, and even then large sections will be withheld, it was learned today. Earl Haig put a 20 year ban on the publication of the documents, consisting of 800,000 words in 32 volumes, which have been locked up in a steel cabinet at the British museum. The 20 year period expired on Jan. 1, but the trustees of the Haig diaries have decided to postpone publication on the ground it would be inadvisable during the present war.

The diaries include a secret memorandum which may never be made public. They were written by Earl Haig's headquarters staff and contain the reasons for every major decision the early made in the last war.

BRITISH BOMBER FALLS; THREE OF ITS CREW KILLED

English Traveler Sunk by Mine; Six Saved.

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP).—A British bombing plane crashed today near Ventnor, on the Isle of Wight, off the south coast of England, and three of its four occupants were killed.

The royal air force was reported authoritatively to have carried out reconnaissance flights over northwestern Germany last night, in addition to the security patrols maintained over German seaplane bases in the vicinity of the Frisian islands.

British fighter planes pursued today what were believed to be German reconnaissance aircraft over the Shetland Islands, northeast of Scotland, but the British Press association later reported the alarm was false.

The sinking of a British trawler by a mine was disclosed when six survivors rescued by a sister ship were landed at an east coast port. The trawler was reported to be the Eta, but no vessel of that name is listed in Lloyd's register.

Germans Predict West Front Calm.

BERLIN, Jan. 6 (AP).—DNB, German official news agency, advised Germans today they could expect quiet along the entire western front in the near future.

It gave this advice in explaining the brevity of today's high command communique, which said, "no special events."

DNB said that up to now the conflict has been most active between the Rhine and Moselle rivers, but that there, too, stagnancy would be observed.

French Take Prisoners.

Paris, Jan. 6 (AP).—French patrols took several prisoners today on the western front, the general staff's communique tonight stated. The communique follows:

"During the day our patrols encountered the enemy at various points of the front and brought back several prisoners."

This morning's communique said customary patrol and artillery activity took place last night.

SUES IN TRAFFIC DEATH.

Dixon, Ill., Jan. 6 [Special].—Suit for $10,000 damages was filed in Lee county Circuit court here today by Mrs. Charlene Drummond against Harry and Elsie Gleim, as the result of a highway accident in which the plaintiff's husband, Verl O. Drummond, was killed on Sept. 12 last year.

2 Men Shot from Ambush in Philippine Sugar Strike

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 6 (AP).—Two railroad workers were shot from ambush tonight in an outbreak of violence growing out of a strike of 5,000 sugar workers in Pampanga province. The men were wounded by shotguns as they hauled sugar to a mill. The workers demand wage increases, recognition of their union, and removal of Gov. Sotero Baluyot, whom they call an instrument of the capitalists.

FLEET AND ARMY MASS FOR WAR GAME ON PACIFIC

Landing Operations Will Be Carried Out.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 6 [Special].—American armed forces of all descriptions were assembling this week-end along the Pacific coast for the greatest army-navy war games in the nation's peacetime history.

Camp Ord, the 15,000 acre military reservation located 100 miles south of here, was being prepared as defense headquarters. Between 10,000 and 15,000 troops will clash in an attack from the sea.

Permanent concrete foundations have been set at Camp Ord and 1,700 tents have been raised. Long, low mess halls, canteens, headquarters, and other buildings are ready. More than 1,000 WPA workers and a company from the 30th infantry performed the ground work.

Fleet Will Escort Troops.

Sometime between Jan. 15 and 22 and somewhere between San Francisco and Santa Barbara six troop ships, escorted south from Seattle by the main American fleet, will land thousands of soldiers and marines with field artillery for a lightning war across the Monterey peninsula. It will be pointed toward conquest of the heart of California's richest agricultural area.

National Guard artillery, tank and antiaircraft units from thruout California will supplement regular army defense forces. Both army and navy air forces will participate when completely motorized and streamlined battalions war for possession of the key military entrance from the sea between Salinas and Monterey.

Overlooks Rich Area.

Camp Ord is situated on the west bluff of the Salinas river overlooking the nation's richest area of concentrated farming, where agricultural land sells for more than $1,000 an acre and rents at prices up to $75 an acre a year. To the west the camp commands a view of much of the reservation, which contains some nearly impenetrable land and which extends virtually to the coastline.

Territory between the reservation's west boundary and the beach has been rented by the government for marching troops and exploding shells.

Regular army forces and National Guard auxiliaries will be under the command of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Sweeney during the eight day war. After the games defense forces will go thru intensive training in the region between Salinas and San Luis Obispo.

They're Parents Now

PLANT DELAYED; NEW ZEALAND SHORT OF STEEL

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Jan. 6.—New Zealand must wait some time before the $25,000,000 government steel plant at Onekaka begins production, D. G. Sullivan, minister of industries, said today.

The plant, which was being constructed under British advisement, was expected to contribute to empire war needs in 1941, but the British were unable to continue construction, Sullivan reported, until their own war supplies were assured.

Local industry is halting for lack of steel products and the government's home building program is suffering delays. This was due to inability of the steelmakers to complete deliveries, not to the government's foreign trade restriction policy, Sullivan asserted. He added that the situation had determined the administration to push development of the Onekaka plant, which will exploit the ore deposits in that region, as soon as possible.

CALL JAPANESE CABINET TO ACT ON CHINA RULE

TOKIO, Jan. 6 (AP).—A special cabinet session has been called for Monday to pass on plans for a Japanese sponsored régime in occupied areas of China. Approval was considered assured after unanimous acceptance by the China affairs bureau, which includes five key ministers.

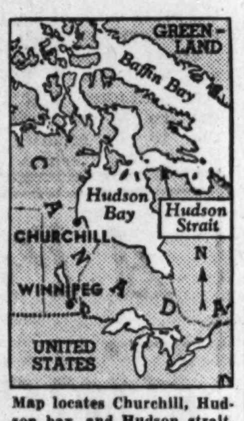
The plans were worked out by Japanese military leaders in consultation with Wang Ching-wei, former premier of China, who is coöperating with the Japanese and is expected to head the régime.

HUDSON BAY MAY PROVE CANADA'S SAFEST SEA GATE

Can Be Kept Open Most of Year, Says Scientist.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 6.—The war at sea and a timely report by Dr. Alexander D. Bajkov, Russian scientist at Churchill, Man., on Hudson bay, will, it is believed, popularize the Hudson bay shipping route.



Map locates Churchill, Hudson bay, and Hudson strait.

Many grain men are convinced the northern route from Canada will prove the safest if the war is of long duration. With Dr. Bajkov's declaration that the port can be kept open almost the year around, grain men are hoping the bay route will get its first real break. Plans are under way for a campaign to put these views before the public.

Ice Barrier Is Narrow.

Dr. Bajkov, a graduate of the University of Czecho-Slovakia and a prominent hydrologist and biologist, has made an extensive study of the Hudson bay district from his private research station at Churchill.

The report by Dr. Bajkov states that only one-half to three miles of ice at the mouth of Churchill harbor would have to be kept open to facilitate continuous shipping thru the northern passage.

Churchill Ice Main Factor.

"Hudson bay and Hudson strait never freeze in winter," Dr. Bajkov's report adds. "The ice from Fox channel, considered in some quarters the chief menace to the extension of the Hudson bay route, is not a determining factor.

"The local ice condition at Churchill determines the closing date. The open water during the severest part of winter is only one-half to three miles from Churchill, and I can see the possibility of navigation for nearly all the year."

Army Revamps Coast Defense Artillery; Guns to Be on Wheels

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—The coast artillery, which is charged with holding off an invader should the enemy break thru or destroy the navy, is being put on wheels.

Under reorganization already begun, and plans about to be put into operation, this branch of the army is to undergo as radical an overhauling as the cavalry units which have been mechanized.

In the past the coast artillery was regarded thruout the service as a lazy man's job. Detachments lolled about the large 14 and 16 inch guns at continental and overseas fixed fortifications.

Rarely were the pieces fired. Many of them are located in positions no longer regarded as strategically important. Coast artillerymen did little more than janitor service about the weapons.

Few Thousand in Service.

The service dwindled to a few thousand officers and men. It suffered more during the period the army was cut to the bone than other branches of the service. The entire system of fixed fortifications called for only 35,000 men at full war strength.

With the adoption of the rearmament program, however, the coast defense picture was changed.

The army high command decided to mechanize coast defenses. The most efficient coastal defense, it was determined, would come from the developments of swift units capable of moving rapidly to any danger zone.

The development of fixed defenses was abandoned and the army concentrated on plans for 8, 10, and 14 inch railroad artillery to proceed jointly with the mechanization of field artillery. At the same time the coast artillery was given charge of antiaircraft artillery, also highly mobile.

Emphasis was placed on the acquisition of antiaircraft weapons, with the result that almost no rail artillery has been acquired. Under the coming record peacetime arms program, the coast artillery is looking forward to the acquisition of these weapons and the formation of new units.

In connection with its reorganization, the coast artillery plans to turn over the conduct of its fixed fortifications in the event of war to the National Guard. Toward this end Guardsmen have received and will continue to receive increased instruction in the operation and care of coastal weapons.

Seek Antiaircraft Guns.

In time it is hoped that Guard units will be able to get full complements of antiaircraft weapons so they can take over the conduct of fixed antiaircraft batteries at strategic centers.

The plan will release regular troops for more arduous campaigning and give the army efficient coast protectors in the Guardsmen who, for the most part, have had more mathematical training than their regular brethren and with practice can master the weapons and instruments which would be placed in their charge.

HEALTH A LIVELY TOPIC, TRIBUNE COLUMN SHOWS

Readers of THE TRIBUNE expressed a greater interest in health problems last year than ever before since the daily health column, "How to Keep Well," was first published 29 years ago in the interest of public service.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter

The health department of this newspaper, during the 12 months of 1939, received 83,066 letters, commenting on published articles, seeking advice, or voicing gratitude for information. This was an increase of 3,222 letters over 1938, the previous high year. It also was nearly double the number of inquiries received in 1934, when Dr. Irving S. Cutter became editor of the column.

Such an increase is attributed by Dr. Cutter to an individual's natural curiosity. People are eager to learn more about themselves, he believes.

"When I was asked to take over the column upon the retirement of its first editor, Dr. W. A. Evans," Dr. Cutter said, "I looked on it as a tremendous educational opportunity. Ignorance is responsible for so much of our trouble. The more a man knows about his body, the better care he will take of it."

A total of 382,496 letters has been received by the department since Dr. Cutter became editor. In 1934, 42,577 letters were received; in 1935, 49,816; in 1936, 50,162; in 1937, 77,031, and in 1938, 79,844.

The advice contained in Dr. Cutter's column comes from his experience as a national authority in the field of medicine and medical education. He has been dean of the Northwestern university medical school since 1925 and medical director of Passavant hospital since 1928.

Each day he dictates a column of advice on one or more problems of individual or communal health.

Answers Printed in Column.

In addition, answers to a few of the many letters are printed in the column. All letters accompanied by a stamped envelope also receive a longer and more personal response, usually accompanied by one of the 300 leaflets Dr. Cutter has prepared.

These are sent free. They cover a wide variety of subjects, ranging from alcoholism, thru diabetes, leucemia, neuralgia, nightmares, to pellagra, snoring, tuberculosis, and zinc ionization [hay fever]. Each month the number of subjects is increased.

Many physicians write for further information on subjects Dr. Cutter discusses. School teachers write that they often clip the column for use in classroom work.

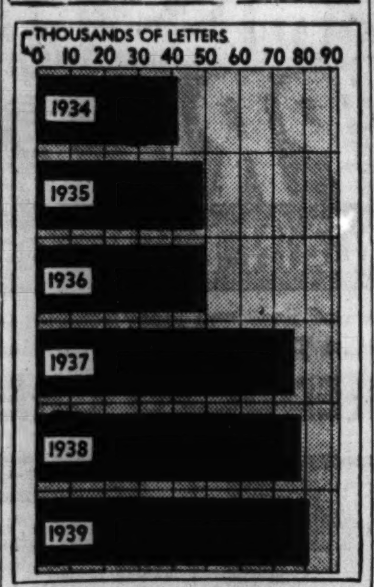
Women Frequent Writers.

Most of the letters come from women and children. These, Dr. Cutter believes, seem to have more time for writing than do men. They often ask for specific advice or for the name of a recommended physician.

Dr. Cutter never makes a specific diagnosis by mail, always urging the writer to consult a skilled, competent physician. On occasion he also will submit a list of several recognized specialists to be consulted in addition to the patient's physician.

A collection of Dr. Cutter's daily columns also is published under the title "How to Keep Well." Last year 11,576 copies of this were sold at 25 cents each.

Health Mail Rises



Showing an increase each year, letters received by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, health editor of The Tribune, have increased from more than 40,000 in 1934 to more than 80,000 in 1939.

Meat Bacilli Blamed for Manteno Illnesses

State health department tests showed yesterday that infected ham caused gastro-intestinal illness in 104 patients and employés at the Manteno State hospital last week. Dr. Walter H. Baer, acting managing officer of the institution, said the tests showed salmonella organisms, one of the most common bacilli in meat, were in the ham.

It's Cash on Barrel Head or No Beer in Coatsburg

Coatsburg, Ill., Jan. 6 (AP).—It was a hot day last July when Albert Dittmer halted his lawnmower and asked his employer, Ed Schuhardt, to get him a bottle of beer. Schuhardt, a tavern owner, complied, and merely nodded when Dittmer told him to take the price from his wages. Albert Shanholtzer, mayor of Coatsburg, then revoked Schuhardt's tavern license for selling liquor on credit. The state liquor commission upheld Shanholtzer's action, and yesterday the mayor had an affirmative ruling from Circuit Judge A. Clay Williams.

LANDSCAPE YOUR CRAGS

By CALEB

"IT'S SOMETHING to think about in one's dark hours," said the man on my right, "that practically everything of worth to the race has come out of adversity. To be sure, there have been exceptions. But most of our famous Presidents, educators, scientists, inventors, poets, actors, philosophers, statesmen, generals, engineers, explorers, financiers—have been poor in their beginnings, physically handicapped, or confronted with some sort of major obstacle."

"Which reminds me," said the man on my left, "of a statement attributed to Dr. Fosdick, who called his hearers' attention to the ugly rocks and boulders that are integral parts of Central Park. 'We know they can't be removed,' said he, in substance. 'There they are, fixed and eternal. But,' he added, 'I want you to notice how beautifully they're landscaped.'"

The basic thought these men expressed is a verity of all experience. Its peculiarly valuable application is to each individual's encounters with "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune." It reminds us again that Napoleon was under-statured, Steinmetz deformed, Byron and Scott lame for life, Darwin and Stevenson semi-invalids, Pope a hunchback, Carlyle and Voltaire dyspeptics, Milton blind, Beethoven deaf . . . yet that they, and thousands like them, persisted toward accomplishment, and attained it, notwithstanding.

For none of us is life a smoothly level plain; a park, sweetly ordered and symmetrical. Each human existence has its tough terrain, strewn with disagreeably projecting boulders. But the crags, with care and patience and courage, can be landscaped; the ugly liabilities of wrong environment, burdensome responsibility, bodily defects, or passing vicissitude, can be constructively faced—and many times turned into eventual assets.

The character landscaping required to master Life on its difficult terms, however, is not the work of hours, days or weeks. It is a lifework—and to it the whole personality must be earnestly and undiscouragedly dedicated. Moments come when the crags look insurmountable, and the task of beautifying them impossible. Then is when the shining example of these "others who have done it" becomes a reminder that where the will persists a way is always open. . . .

Frequently our own organization has discovered this same incentive—in the spirit with which its founder tackled, undeterred, the "crags of adversity" plentifully strewn in his path, and adapted them to a landscape of success all the more interesting for their rugged presence.

GARAGE MURDER 11 DAYS OLD, AND STILL NO CLEWS

New Link Found Between Association and Union.

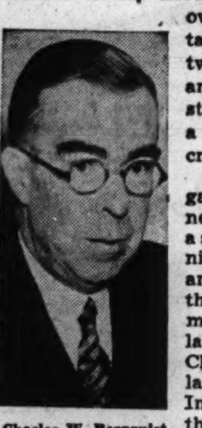
Murder Background

THE CRIME—Marinus Hvid, a garage owner, was beaten fatally by labor sluggers 11 days ago. No clew to the identity of the slayers has been found.

THE RECORD — Hvid's murder was the 32d labor slaying in Chicago in the last nine years. There has been a conviction in only one case.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Today is the eleventh day since Marinus Hvid, north side garage owner, was brutally beaten by two labor goons, and investigators still are without a solution of the crime.



Charles W. Bergquist of commerce chamber.

Hvid never regained consciousness after he was assaulted the night of Dec. 27, and his death three days later marked the 32d labor slaying in Chicago in the last nine years. In only one of these cases has there been a conviction. The present inquiry, being carried on jointly by State's Attorney Courtney's office and Town Hall police, has failed so far to produce a single clew to the identity of the slayers.

Union Aids Requestioned.

Yesterday's developments were:

1. William Bibby, business agent, and Edward Gale, secretary, of the Auto Livery Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers, and Garage Helpers' union, which had been picketing Hvid's garage at 3514 North Halsted street, were questioned again by Capt. Patrick O'Connell at the Town Hall station. Both gave alibis for the night of the slugging.

2. Further evidence of a working agreement between the union and the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, a garage owners' association from which Hvid was expelled, was given to Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford.

3. The Illinois Chamber of Commerce joined the antiracketeering campaign which the All-Chicago council of the Chicago Association of Commerce initiated Thursday at a meeting of business, civic, and religious leaders.

Slugging Records Exposed.

Bibby and Gale, the union officials, both declared they were playing cards with members of their families on the night of Dec. 27. Police records have disclosed that the two were involved in the slugging of two Oak Park florists in June, 1935. The victims had refused to join the Florist Drivers' union, which is affiliated with the garage helpers' union in the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. Bibby was fined $100 for assault and disorderly conduct and the assault case against Gale was nol prossed.

"There was nothing to that—nothing at all," Bibby said airily.

"I'm getting tired of being referred to as a labor goon," said Gale. "My children are being teased about it in the neighborhood."

Accused in Garage Fight.

In the Hvid investigation Bibby has been accused of striking John Leykauf, a mechanic who leased space in Hvid's garage, in a quarrel over a second hand car parked in front of the place. Leykauf has refused to sign a complaint against the union agent.

Details of an instance of a tieup between the union and Affiliated Garages was given Prosecutor Crawford by a garage owner who refused to let his name be used. He said he quit the association last April because its dues were too high and his business was bad.

He said that in October a man whom he believed to be Bibby called on him and told him he was not paying the union scale and was in arrears in remitting union dues collected from his employés under the checkoff system. His employés were called out on strike and pickets appeared outside his garage.

Pays Up and Strike Ends.

He said he went to Emil Mermall, executive director of the association. Mermall telephoned to the union and soon two men, whom the garage owner believed to be Gale and Edward Reilly, the union president, came to Mermall's office. The garage owner agreed to pay the union scale and the dues arrears to the union and to the association. He then joined the association and the strike was called off.

Charles W. Bergquist, chairman of the labor relations committee of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, issued a statement pledging the chamber's support in the fight to curb labor terrorism.

Racket Peril Cited.

"If this concerted action is successful," said Bergquist, "and we are confident it will be, Marinus Hvid, whose murder gave the initial impetus to the movement, shall not have died in vain.

"The first prerequisite of just and mutually beneficial employé-employer relations must be confidence in the sincerity and integrity of both parties. Racketeering on either side strikes a death blow at the very foundations of such a relationship."

The city leaders who met last Thursday decided to appoint two committees from their numbers. One committee will frame resolutions expressing the position of law abiding citizens in the drive on terrorism and the second will confer with law enforcement authorities and labor officials.

HISTORY OF THE CRIME

In a search for clews that may have been overlooked, Capt. O'Connell yesterday reviewed all of the facts in the slaying of Hvid.

Hvid was 55 years old. He was born in Denmark and came to this country in 1903. He had been in the garage business for 17 years and had operated the garage at 3514 North Halsted street for the last five years. He lived at 438 Briar place with his wife, Dagmar, and four children. He was a sturdy, courageous man whose only interests in life were his family and his business.

At 11 p. m. Dec. 27 Milton Cohen of 655 Buckingham place, who kept his car in Hvid's garage, drove up and tooted his horn. He said he was going home and, as was customary, Hvid got into the car, planning to drive it back to the garage after taking Cohen home.

Two Others at Scene.

Others on the scene at the time were Jack Parks, a colored attendant in Hvid's garage, and Frank Dougherty, one of the union pickets. Dougherty was in an automobile across from the garage and declared he was asleep at the time and did not see Hvid and Cohen leave. Parks said he was in the rear of the garage and did not notice his employer's departure.

Cohen drove south on Halsted street to Buckingham place, then east on Buckingham to his home—a distance of about four blocks. He said he did not see any car following them. Both men stepped from the car in front of Cohen's home. It was then about 11:10 p. m.

Cohen reached the entrance of his home. Then, hearing a disturbance behind him, he turned and saw two men beating Hvid with a club or a baseball bat—favorite goon weapons. Hvid was fighting back with his fists. Cohen ran to his home on the second floor and shouted to his wife to call police.

Sees Flight of Goons.

From his window he saw Hvid stretched on the ground and the two men driving east on Buckingham place. They were in a black sedan, which had no license plates. Cohen said it was too dark for him to see what the men looked like or what they were wearing.

A police squad arrived a few minutes later and took Hvid to the John B. Murphy hospital. His jaw, skull, and vertebrae had been fractured.

The next day—Dec. 28—detectives from State's Attorney Courtney's office raided the offices of the garage helpers' union, which is an American Federation of Labor affiliate, at 220 South Ashland avenue, and the offices of Affiliated Garages, 134 North La Salle street. Reilly, the union president, was taken into custody for questioning and the union records were seized.

Also questioned were Mermall, executive director of the association, Miss Mary Mack, a clerk, and Ben Chase, a solicitor. Prosecutor Crawford learned that the Affiliated Garages has between 350 and 400 members and that its income exceeds $2,000 a month.

Union Told of Expulsion.

Mrs. Hvid said her husband joined the association in 1938 but withdrew last March because he was told he would have to pay a $75 fine or order one of his customers to return to a garage the customer formerly patronized. Mermall and Miss Mack said that the union was notified of the expulsion. Then began the picketing of Hvid's garage.

It was discovered later that the customer in question was Cohen. He had kept his car in Hvid's garage for several years until early in 1938, when he moved it to the Belmont garage, 3157 Broadway. In July, 1938, he returned it to Hvid's place. Shortly afterward the management of the Belmont garage was taken over by Mrs. Flora Enzweiler. She is the wife of William P. Enzweiler, treasurer of Affiliated Garages.

Hvid died in the hospital early on the morning of Dec. 30. At the inquest later that day Mrs. Hvid told of threats against her husband's life after his expulsion from the garage owners' organization.

Death Threat Revealed.

"I was called on the telephone about that time," she said, "and the caller told me: 'We're going to get your husband and kill him unless he settles with the union.' I told my husband about it and he told police. But he wasn't afraid. He told me they wouldn't dare to do anything to him. I got other calls saying the union was going to run him out of business."

Another witness at the inquest was Charles Gilliam, colored. When he was penniless last spring Hvid gave him a job, paying him $14 a week. Gilliam had signed an affidavit saying he did not wish to join the union, but last fall, the night before his testimony was to be used in Hvid's suit to restrain the union picketing, Gilliam did join. The union gave him $5 a day to picket the garage. Later Hvid offered Gilliam his job back at full union scale of $20.50 a week, but Gilliam refused.

Thomas J. They will leave today for a honeymoon in the West Indies. Lynch lives at 1131 Green Bay road, Glencoe. His bride's home is in Oblong, Crawford county.

UNION PRESIDENT DODGES LAWYER SLAYING INQUEST

John Martin, president of the Scrap Iron and Junk Handlers' union, was unwilling to attend the inquest yesterday into the death of Attorney Leon R. Cooke, whom Martin shot the night of Dec. 8. Cooke died Friday night in the Mount Sinai hospital.

"Mr. Martin, for obvious reasons, will not be here this morning," Attorney George Crane advised Deputy Coroner Pasquale Venetucci and Supervising Captain John Stege. "I'll surrender him next week."

"Are you deliberately keeping a witness from attending this hearing?" the deputy coroner asked.

"No," Crane responded. "He is under bond now on a charge of assault with intent to kill. If I surrendered him today he might have to spend Saturday and Sunday in jail. He'll be at your service next week."

Martin said he shot Cooke, the founder of the union, in self defense. His statements were supported by his stenographer, Mrs. Gladys Walsh. She was ready to testify yesterday, but the inquest was put over to next Wednesday.

for services prior to the bankruptcy action. Attorneys for the elevated lines have on file additional requests, made last month, for $12,897. If these are allowed the $2,625,000 will become $2,900,762.

Chicago Railways Company.

	Total.	Av. per year.
1932-36	442,344	88,469
1937-39	213,164	71,055
Total	$1,508,915

Guy A. Richardson, president of the surface lines, and Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, are the Chicago Railways receivers. Richardson was sole receiver from February, 1933, to April, 1934, when Cummings was made a co-receiver.

The 1937-'39 costs include payments made by the Chicago Railways to Walter A. Shaw, traction expert working on reorganization at the order of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, and to his staff. Shaw and staff have been paid $220,000 in two years. Shaw's salary is $30,000 a year. Accounting, legal and engineering assistance has cost $160,000. Of the total Chicago Railways paid $105,600.

The City Railways et al.

Receivers for the City Railways et al are Harvey B. Fleming, president of the companies, and Edward E. Brown, president of the First National bank. Fleming was appointed in November, 1933, and Brown in April, 1934. The City Railways receivership costs:

	Total.	Average per year.
1932-'36	259,500	51,900
1937-'39	167,964	55,988

The 1937-'38 total includes $70,400 for Shaw and staff.

Col. A. A. Sprague was one of the original elevated receivers. He was made sole trustee when the properties went into bankruptcy. The elevated receivership and reorganization costs:

	Total.	Av. per yr.
1932-'36, inc	$347,284	$69,457
1937-'39	221,554	73,851

The elevated lines paid for the Shaw staff $44,000 out of the 1937-'39 allowances.

All the above totals are actually only payments on account, and no one knows what the windup payments will be. Conservative guesses run into the millions.

A unification ordinance was passed and approved by referendum in 1930, but nothing came of it largely because of financing difficulties during the depression.

Annual payments by the city for planning were:

1929	196,749	1936	201,786
1930	578,972	1937	279,723
1931	1,085,667	1938	440,015
1933	165,376	Total	$3,944,886

The expenditures came from the traction fund. They covered the spending of the city's traction bureau, the committee on local transportation and its counsel and engineering staff. Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and traction, is paid $20,000 a year; William H. Sexton, special traction attorney, $22,500; Maj. R. F. Kelker Jr., traction adviser, $18,000, and Peter J. Boesen, Harrington's assistant, $8,400.

In the traction fund, an aggregate of moneys paid in by the transportation companies, is $57,000,000. The total paid in was $74,000,000, but $7,000,000 has been spent in plans since 1907 and $10,000,000 has been withdrawn to build subways. Of the remaining $57,000,000, about $10,000,000 is frozen in city tax warrants.

A Carver of Shoes

Holland, Mich., Jan. 6 [Special].—Two hundred thousand wooden shoes—enough to deplete a sizable forest—have been made by the skilful hands of Albertus Klinge, Holland's noted "klompen" maker.

Klinge, now 82 years old, is one of the best known members of his unique craft in the United States. For 70 years he has been making wooden shoes in this country and in the Netherlands.

His workmanship provides one of the most important parts of the colorful old world costumes worn here by Hollanders during their famous annual tulip festivals. Visitors long remember the clackety-clack of wooden shoes on the sidewalks of this interesting Dutch community.

Klinge uses the same methods in manufacturing his shoes as was employed centuries ago. They are made entirely by hand, with sharp knives being used to gouge out the inside and fashion the exterior.

Illinois to Supervise Parole of California Ex-Financier

T. P. Sullivan, superintendent of supervision of parolees, said yesterday that his office has agreed to supervise the parole of Gilbert Beesemyer, former Los Angeles, Cal., financier. Beesemyer is being paroled to Chicago under the reciprocal arrangements between the states. Sullivan said he will arrive here late this week, with a job awaiting him. Beesemyer was freed recently after serving more than eight years for embezzling $8,000,000 from the Guaranty Building and Loan company of Hollywood and affiliated companies.

IMPOUNDS MONEY FOUND IN O'HARE SAFE DEPOSIT BOX

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday impounded $25,000 which was found recently in a National Safety Deposit company box and which is claimed by trustees for the estate of Edward J. O'Hare, slain front man for the Capone gang.

Judge Igoe ordered Hoyt King, clerk of the court, not to deposit the money in a bank, but to keep it in a vault so the same bills will remain in evidence. The money has several claimants, and the serial numbers may play an important part in determining ownership, according to Homer J. Livingston, attorney for the safety deposit company.

Among the claimants are John Walter Quinn, former Boston, Mass., broker, and Edmund L. Dolan, former Boston city treasurer. Dolan is now serving a contempt jail sentence in Boston. The box was rented by Quinn "in care of E. J. O'Hare."

A JUDGE CALLS WIFE TROUBLE NO BAR TO BEING A GOOD CITIZEN

Marcio Saraiva de Moraes, 918 Lakeside place, a Brazilian, had a worried few minutes yesterday. All the others in a naturalization class of 100 were sworn in as citizens before Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

William E. Lemke, an immigration inspector, opposed De Moraes' application. Lemke said De Moraes was "not well disposed toward the good order of the United States" because Mrs. De Moraes divorced him on the ground of cruelty last June 30.

"Swear in Mr. De Moraes as a citizen," Judge Barnes ordered. "Lots of men can't get along with their wives, but that certainly has no bearing on their good character."

RANKIN WINS AIR RACE BY FLYING 234 MILES HOUR

Takes Sportsmen's Event in Miniature 'Liner.'

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6. — Test Pilot Homer C. Rankin from the Beech Aircraft factory today breezed into Miami 4 hours 37 minutes 50 seconds out of St. Louis, Mo., to win the feature sportsman pilots' race of the All-American air maneuvers. Rankin, with Designer Walter Beech as passenger, flew his twin-engined Beechcraft over the 1,084 mile course at 234.097 miles an hour, winning $3,000.

Homer C. Rankin.

The ship is a miniature airliner intended for the private owner who desires twin-motored reliability with great speed. The motors are Pratt & Whitney Wasp Juniors of 450 horse power each for take-off. Rankin said his indicated air speed was 210 miles an hour and that his higher average was due to tailwinds that helped him along nearly 25 miles an hour. They trip was nonstop.

Second Place Winner.

Second place and $2,000 went to Russell Holderman in another twin-motored airliner, a Lockheed 12, also with Wasp Jr. motors. Flying from New York City, Holderman covered 1,168 miles at an average speed of 208.561 miles an hour.

William Cason in a single-engined Beechcraft biplane, also with Wasp Jr. motor, was third with an average of 194.507 miles an hour for 1,143 miles from Houston, Tex. He took down $1,500 prize money.

Fourth, fifth, and sixth places went to Pilots Anthony J. Ming, Bruce Gimbel, and Donald L. Provost. Ming flew from St. Louis and the others from Houston. Other finishers were Arlene Davis of Cleveland, O.; George Pomeroy of Dayton, O., and Raymond G. Lloyd of Terre Haute, Ind.

Winners Brave 4 Below.

Rankin and Beech said it was 4 below zero at St. Louis airport when they got away this morning, and temperatures remained below zero until they reached southern Georgia.

While the sportmen's race is an exceptional test of high-powered commercial aircraft, it meant little to the 10,000 persons at Miami airport. The planes arrived at widely separated intervals, zoomed once across the field and then landed.

Spectators were more interested in the closed course races held during the day and in the exhibitions of stunting given by Beverly Howard of Charleston, S. C., and by Leonard R. Peterson of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Howard, flying a Cub with a 55 horse power Lenape motor, did outside loops, inverted climbing turns, and figure eights, and finally landed with propeller stopped in an inverted glide. He rolled over to an upright position 20 feet off the ground and made a downwind one-wheel landing until the ship finally lost all its speed and settled on its two wheels and tailskids.

Precision Exhibition.

Peterson's exhibition in a clipped-wing monocupe with 145 horse power Warner motor was at higher speeds and consisted also of prolonged inverted maneuvering and outside loops. His was an exhibition of real precision flying.

Kenneth Olson of Racine, Wis., won the Dominican trophy race for sportsman flyers by covering 25 miles around a closed course at 170.335 miles an hour in his clipped-wing monocoupe. Heine Bender of Toledo, O., was second at 167.529 miles, and Russell Hay of Pittsburgh, Pa., third at 158 miles an hour.

Flying Olson's ship, Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., later won the Green trophy race for professional pilots at 173 miles an hour over the same closed course. Peterson in his stunt ship was second at 170.69 miles and Clare Bunch, president of the Monocoupe corporation at St. Louis, was third in another of the clipped-wing coupes.

Gadgets to Solve Airplane Stalls

This simple little gadget, to which man is pointing with pencil, is a 3 cent device designed to eliminate danger to airplanes of deadly stalls. It is a metal cylinder with a diameter half that of an ordinary pencil, which is sliced lengthwise and attached to the leading edge of the wing. Richard W. Palmer of the Vultee Aircraft, Inc., Downey, Cal., developed it. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

New York, Jan. 6. — Richard W. Palmer, who designed the racing planes of Howard Hughes, millionaire sportsman, last night made public the results of extensive tests of a simple gadget which, he said, eliminates the danger accompanying the deadly stall of airplane wings.

The gadget is merely a metal cylinder sliced lengthwise, about a foot long and with a diameter only half that of an ordinary lead pencil.

Fastened to the leading edge of a wing, Palmer says, it effectively controls the spread of a stall over the top of a wing to the controls and thus prevents accidental spins.

Palmer, vice president in charge of engineering of Vultee Aircraft, Inc., of Downey, Cal., an affiliate of the Aviation Manufacturing corporation, discovered that the device controling the origin and spread of stalls, maintains lateral control of a plane indefinitely.

Pet Dog and Canary Die in Fire from Yule Tree

Two family pets, a fox terrier and a canary, were smothered yesterday when a Christmas tree ignited while it was being dismantled and set fire to the home of Raymond Morrisson, 7120 Ingleside avenue. A defective socket apparently caused the fire, according to Chief Charles Burke of the 19th battalion. The fire caused damage estimated at approximately $700.

STATE SALES TAX UPHELD; LIKENED TO COLONIAL LAW

Judge Ralph J. Dady in the Lake county Circuit court in Waukegan yesterday upheld the constitutionality of the Illinois retailers' occupational tax, commonly called the sales tax, after hearing it likened by Attorney Charles H. Borden of Chicago to "legislation that led to the rebellion of the 13 colonies against Great Britain."

Borden, representing Charles Pierce, who was sued for $327 in sales tax on receipts of a tavern he formerly owned at 1714 22d street, North Chicago, charged that the procedure in fixing the amount of due sales tax deprived a retailer of the right of appealing his cause to a jury. At present a retailer may protest the tax claim thru a writ of certiorari to the Circuit court. If he does not take this action, the state obtains a judgment against him for the amount, plus 25 per cent penalty, from the Circuit court.

Judge Dady upheld Frank M. Pfiefer, assistant attorney general, who contended that the sales tax represented special statutory legislation adopted since the state constitution went into effect, and therefore was not subject to the jury trial provision in the constitution. Pierce was allowed time to determine whether he will take the case to the Appellate court.

'POOR' GEORGIA DEMOCRATS BALK AT $25 BANQUET

Will Boycott Jackson Day Feast to Dine for $1.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 6 [Special].—A rebellion in the ranks of Georgia Democrats on the eve of the big Jackson day dinner here Monday night has caused two rival Jackson day dinners to be arranged by party leaders in nearby cities.

W. T. Anderson. [A. P. Photo.]

At the same hour that guests sit down to the $25 a plate feast here, supposedly to cement party friendship, the rebel Democrats will begin eating their $1 a plate dinners at Macon and Griffin.

The bolters termed the costly Atlanta affair a banquet for aristocrats of the party. They say their own modest dinners are for poor, but honest Democrats.

Call for True Democrats.

"Our dinners will be anti-no-one and pro-no-one," announced the leaders of the rebellious factions, W. T. Anderson, publisher of the Telegram and News at Macon, and Millwee Owens, editor of the Augusta Herald.

"This will be an opportunity," they added, "for those Democrats who vote the party ticket because they believe in the principals of the party to get together and meet each other."

The split in the state party's ranks flared into the open when Publisher Anderson declared he would stay away from the Atlanta dinner to "save what I can of the Democratic party," and Editor Owens wrote Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution and chairman of the Georgia Jackson day dinner, that he was "afraid" to attend the dinner.

Charges Communists Rule.

"I tremble in my boots," Owens said, "to think what might happen at the party feast if a good Democrat were moved to speak his mind."

Chairman Howell and other party leaders declined to comment on the action of the insurgents.

"Communists are manipulating the Democratic party to a Graf Spee fate," Publisher Anderson charged, "and judging from the experiences of the past, liberty of thought and expression won't be worth a tinker's dam if you are out of step with this commune.

"This New Deal party and its official personnel intends to pick the delegation and let Georgia Democrats take it and like it."

ELEVATOR UNION WINS. PAY BOOST IN NEW CONTRACT

Officials of the Elevator Operators' and Starters' union, local 66, announced yesterday that they had signed a new contract, calling for a 10 per cent pay raise and a week's vacation each year, with the Chicago Residential Hotel association. About 1,000 operators, working in 200 buildings, are affected.

It was reported that provisions for an eight hour day and time and a half pay for overtime, as in the old contract, were included in the new one. Matt Taylor, president of the union, signed for his organization and Fred Winston, president, for the association.

Motor Scooter Operators Warned to Have Licenses

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE, PH. D.

VII.

Dr. Crane has devised this scientific method of rating husbands. Below are questions for a woman to ask herself and then answer about her husband. Each question has a maximum score—indicated in parenthesis. However, any number of points less than the maximum may be noted:

DEMERITS.		MERITS.
1. Too superstitious. Believes in luck, fortune telling, etc. [6 points.]		1. Uses good English with a minimum of slang. [6 points.]
2. Accepts defeat too easily. Lacks persistency and spunk. [30 points.]		2. Doesn't chronically ask wife what she pays for things. [6 points.]
3. Too possessive. Doesn't want wife to take interest in outside activities, as women's clubs, P. T.-A., etc. [6 points]		3. Frequently compliments wife about her looks, cooking, housekeeping or care of the children. [30 points.]
4. A chronic ailer or patent medicine addict. [6 points.]		4. Surprises wife occasionally with candy, flowers, gifts, etc. [6 points]
5. Hangs ties or clothes on doorknobs. [6 points.]		5. Carries adequate insurance. [30 points.]
6. Tactless and blunt. Doesn't make friends easily. Gets on people's nerves. [30 points.]		6. Likes a wide range of foods. Not a finicky eater. [6 points.]
7. A chronic buck passer. Always blames others for his own mistakes. [6 points.]		7. Gives wife an ample allowance or turns pay check over to her. [30 points.]
8. Calls "Where is . . . ?" without first hunting for the object. [6 points.]		8. Tries to keep wife equipped with modern labor saving devices. [30 points.]
9. Stubborn. Rarely admits his errors and seldom apologizes. [30 points.]		9. A fast and efficient worker—not a puttering sort. [6 points.]
10. Writes on tablecloth with his pencil. [6 points.]		10. Is a careful automobile driver. [6 points.]

Now subtract total demerits from total merits and interpret score as follows: 0 to 27, very poor [failure]; 28 to 43, poor; 44 to 61, average; 62 to 80, superior; 81 and up, very superior.

A TRAINED EAR FINDS WEAKNESS IN THE RAILROAD

If William E. Brandt's ears hadn't been what they are and if he hadn't always been a person who believed what he heard, all might not have been well on the North Western railroad Friday night.

Mr. Brandt, a clerk at the Pullman company, and his wife were eating about 6:30 p. m. in their hame at 1725 Bryn Mawr avenue. Nearby is the North Western's right of way, so near that Brandt can name and time all trains. Suddenly, as a train rumbled by last night, Brandt heard a strange pounding. To his trained ears that meant a broken rail.

He investigated and found that a piece of rail was broken on the express track, the track used by the "400," due to pass at 9:20 p. m., and other fast trains. If broken enough to derail a train, it would have set off a warning signal, but this was only a small break, just enough to weaken the track. Brandt called the railroad.

"In half an hour," he said yesterday, deprecating his own part in it, "they had men out there."

DIES OF INJURIES AFTER CAR HITS STALLED TRUCK

Killed Cranking Machine in Lake Forest.

Thomas F. Duffy, 23 years old, 911 North Waukegan road, Deerfield, died yesterday in the Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, of injuries suffered Thursday night in an unusual accident.

Returning from repairing a radio, Duffy stalled his truck in front of 1200 North Waukegan road, Lake Forest. Duffy got out to crank it. He was in front of his truck when it was struck in the rear by the automobile of Andrew Jensen, 190 North Waukegan road, Lake Forest, a gardener. Jensen said the tail light of the truck was not lighted.

Coroner's Jury Acts.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad was urged yesterday by a coroner's jury to place a watchman on duty at the 144th street crossing in Dolton where a young woman and her escort were killed Friday night. Their coupé was struck by the Dixie Mail, a fast passenger train, at the crossing which contains 12 tracks.

Termed an Accident.

The coroner's jury termed the two deaths accidental, but recommended the hiring of a watchman. According to police, there was a watchman on duty there until three years ago. In the last 10 years there have been only two minor accidents, involving only property damage, at the crossing, which is guarded now only by wooden cross-board warning signs.

Erwin Eschner, 26 years old, 6257 Byron street, was killed early today in a crash of three automobiles at Laramie and Belmont avenues. He was returning from a party with Jack Foy, 25, of 3500 North Damen avenue, when he drove into the car of Benjamin Serone, 48, of 6338 Newport avenue. Serone's machine was shunted into that of John Baggol, 312 North 1st avenue, Maywood. Foy suffered a knee injury. Serone's wife, Rose, 46, had five ribs and her collar bone fractured. She is in St. Anne's hospital. Serone and Baggol escaped injury.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 23 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 15 were killed in Chicago where 359 have been injured in the same period.

A YOUNG, POLITE WOMAN WALKS AWAY WITH $40

A pretty young woman called at the Sun Finance company office at 5602 Ridge avenue yesterday. She was very polite when a clerk asked her to wait a minute. And when Louis J. DuRocher, a co-owner of the company, inquired if he could help her she nodded prettily.

The next moment, still smiling, and quite politely, she drew a pistol from her purse. She demanded the company's money, but only that which was insured. "I don't want you to lose because I am robbing you," she explained. DuRocher argued that anything she took would be a loss.

DEADLOCK HOLDS IN NEGOTIATIONS FOR JANITOR PACT

Negotiations between the Flat Janitors' union and representatives of building owners over a new working agreement were still deadlocked yesterday after a fourth meeting of the two groups.

"If negotiations are not concluded satisfactorily the union insists it will call a strike," said Paul Caspers, chairman of the labor relations committee of the Chicago Real Estate board. "The deadlock is mainly over our demand for a five year contract. Property owners simply must stabilize their operating costs."

RELEASE WOMAN DRIVER OF DEATH CAR IN $100 BOND

Mrs. Joy Morrison, 6543 Cottage Grove avenue, named as the driver of the car in which Joseph Carville died of bullet wounds last April 1, was freed in $100 bond yesterday on a technical charge of disorderly conduct.

She is to appear in Felony court Jan. 18. James Redden, 4200 Emerald avenue, charged with slaying Carville and wounding Mrs. Alice Janssen, with whom Carville had been living, is to be arraigned on the same day. Redden is at liberty in $25,000 bond. Mrs. Morrison was arrested Friday night at 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue. She refused to make any statement.

Carville, a minor hoodlum, was shot in a tavern, since closed, at 674 West 63d street. The Janssen woman, who was found seriously wounded beside Carville's body in the car, said she, too, had been shot in the tavern. She named Redden as the gunman and said Mrs. Morrison, a cook in the place, had driven the car away and parked it. A feud among thieves was blamed for the shooting.

STARTLING NEW DEVELOPMENT in Motor Fuels

...Two new gasolines to give you an EXTRA MARGIN OF PERFORMANCE at no increase in price...

NEW SUPER-SHELL

An Advanced Motor Fuel For Exceptional Performance

There's an exciting new experience waiting for you at your neighborhood Shell station—a NEW Super-Shell gasoline with stepped-up performance you can FEEL without using your imagination.

Give this NEW Super-Shell the toughest tests you can think of. Notice how quickly it starts on the coldest mornings. Notice the surging power as you shift from first—to second—to third. Notice the increased anti-knock on the steepest hill you can find. Notice the reserve energy responding to the touch of your foot as you pass other cars.

MOST OF ALL—notice how EVERY quality of the NEW Super-Shell has been improved to increase your savings on Stop-and-Go.

You're right! It DOES cost more to make this NEW gasoline—but it costs you no more to buy it!

This spectacular advance made by the same talent ...the same company that

FIRST SPONSORED ANTI-KNOCK RESEARCH...Under the sponsorship of Shell, Harry Ricardo discovered principles that made modern high-compression engines possible. His experiments in flame propagation and action of aromatic hydro-carbons led to development of Shell's "BALANCING PROCESS" in refining.

●

FIRST TO RE-FORM GASOLINE...Many of the great advances in gasoline refining have come from Shell laboratories. In these laboratories are more than 1000 skilled scientists—who search tirelessly and unceasingly for new and better ways to make new and better petroleum products at ever lower cost.

●

AND NOW* SHELL'S BALANCING PROCESS SAVES YOU MORE MONEY ON STOP-AND-GO... Basis of both the new Super-Shell and the new Shell Premium is the "BALANCING PROCESS." This means that no one essential quality is emphasized at the sacrifice of another. Thus—when you start—shift gears—accelerate—or travel steadily every drop of motor fuel is completely usable.

Both Super-Shell and Shell Premium are refined by this process.

Because you get full value from every drop—because it responds instantly to all driving conditions—you reduce gasoline waste. You save on Stop-and-Go.

NEW SHELL PREMIUM

The Finest Gasoline Ever to Bear the Shell Name

New Shell Premium comes straight from the same scientific research that produced the first 100 octane gasoline—the gasoline used in today's racing planes.

If your car has an anti-knock requirement far above the average—you will appreciate the utmost in performance of New Shell Premium.

Still more costly to make, the New Shell Premium gives you EVEN WIDER MARGIN of performance at slight additional cost.

TEST A TANKFUL TODAY—YOU BE THE JUDGE

RAPS GUESSWORK AS BASIS OF HUGE BUDGET DEMANDS

Dirksen Tells Haphazard Approach to Figures.

vamping of present budget and appropriation procedure, Dirksen declared.

"For years, Representative Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] has contended —and I share that contention—that the appropriations committees of congress should be staffed with a number of expert accountants who can go into the departments and dig out the information that is necessary for an intelligent handling of budgetary matters," he said. "As it is, members of the committee must cross-examine department and agency heads as best they can and develop the facts relating to expenditures and the conduct of public affairs.

"Now it is disclosed that the budget bureau is no better staffed than congress to develop this information. I am satisfied that a change of procedure and a more thoro investigation of the budget system and method of contriving estimates would result in such savings as would make unnecessary the additional taxes proposed by the President."

Storm in Congress Unabated.

The congressional debate over the budget and Mr. Roosevelt's proposal that $460,000,000 be raised in new taxes for national defense continued at fever heat.

Senator Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, visited the President at the White House and said afterward that the chief executive had indorsed his proposal to create a special senate and house budget committee to examine government expenditures and proposed tax increases.

"The President believes, as I believe, that coöperation between the spending and revenue raising committees of the two houses is a step in the right direction," said Harrison. "It will achieve teamwork in carrying out suggestions for retrenchment and an approach to a balanced budget within a reasonable time."

Harrison has proposed that a 24 man committee be selected from the 110 members of the house appropriations and ways and means committees and the senate finance and appropriations committees. He said he agrees with Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee that this special committee could complete its study of the budget and new taxes within 60 days and report its findings.

Nature of Tax in Doubt.

No administration spokesman has hinted at the nature of the new taxes to be imposed. In his budget message the President merely expressed the hope that congress would follow "the accepted principle of good taxation by taxing according to the ability to pay and will avoid taxes which decrease consumer buying power." This, in the minds of most congressmen, is a large order.

Both Republicans and Democrats joined in admitting that they do not see how any new sources can be tapped for the $460,000,000 requested by Mr. Roosevelt. The nation already is overburdened with taxes caused by government spending, they asserted.

There will be no haste by congress in drafting a tax bill, it was apparent. Chairman Doughton announced that extension of the reciprocal trade agreement act will be placed ahead of all legislation coming before his committee. Tax bills must be initiated in the Doughton committee.

Await Income Tax Returns.

Ways and means committee Democrats indicated that no committee action may be expected until the March 15 income tax returns give a better idea of the revenue situation.

Last fall a subcommittee of the committee started a broad study, participated in by the treasury department, with the idea of having a tax bill ready at the beginning of the session. It was not the intention of this subcommittee to draft a bill raising additional revenue, but to continue the program of removing business deterrents.

There is strong opposition in the house to Senator Harrison's proposal. Influential Democrats said the idea is impractical because appropriation bills will start reaching the floor next week. The tentative program is to clear away the 14 appropriation measures which make up the 8⅓ billion dollar total at the rate of one a week. This would find the house thru with appropriations in April.

Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.] also termed the Harrison plan impractical after he had conferred with President Roosevelt over luncheon in the White House. He remarked, however, that the study might well be considered in the future.

Where Water Guardians Battle Ice

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Eugene Winterstein (holding envelope) assists Thomas Ward, supervisor of cribs, from tugboat Fred A. Britten to Dunne crib's landing. Ward makes three trips each week to all city cribs with supplies.

CITY WATER CRIB KEEPERS LISTEN FOR LION'S ROAR

The keepers of the six water intake cribs in Lake Michigan are listening for the lion's roar these days.

If you think it's any circus, you are mistaken, for the lion's roar in this case refers to ice which clogs the intake ports of the steel cylinders that carry the water into the tunnels far below the lake's bottom.

This threat to the city's water supply of 750 million gallons a day occurs during rising temperatures immediately after cold spells. A spongy mass, known as anchor or ground ice, forms on the bottom of the lake, and this quickly reduces a 5 by 7 foot port to a small hole. The water rushing thru this constricted opening sounds like a lion's roar.

Twenty-five years ago the late Lawrence Nelson, keeper of the Harrison crib, swore he saw a sea lion in the circular pool surrounding the steel cylinder. No lions have been seen lately.

But, Edward F. Warner, present keeper of the crib, will assure you, the roar is the signal for him and his crew of four to go to work with dynamite opening up the ports. Constant watch is kept to prevent the ice from collecting. All is not bliss in the cribs in summer either. Then moss may form on the port screens [not used in winter].

Except for these occasions when the duties of keeping a steady flow of water into the city water mains becomes burdensome, the life of the 25 workers on the Harrison, Dever, Wilson avenue, Four-mile, 68th street, and Dunne cribs is a pleasant one.

The cribs may look barren from the shore two or three miles away, but actually they are little Gibralters guarding the ends of the water tunnels, and have clean, comfortable living quarters two and three stories above the lake. They are kept well stocked with food by Thomas Ward, the city water department's keeper of cribs, who makes three trips a week in the tugboat Fred A. Britten.

NATION TO STAY AT PEACE, SAYS SENATOR TAFT

People Won't Stand for War, Ohioan Asserts.

The United States will not become involved in Europe's war—at least not before the coming national election, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio assured members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday. Senator Taft was interviewed on a radio program by Mrs. William T. Bruckner, president. After the broadcast Senator Taft and Mrs. Taft answered questions put by club members.

"The American people have made it clear that they want to stay out of the European conflict," Senator Taft said. "I don't believe there is any one in Washington today who thinks we could be drawn into the war prior to the 1940 election."

In reply to a question as to whether there might be danger of becoming involved after the 1940 campaign Senator Taft, who is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said that the prevailing opinion over the country appears to be that America will not enter the war at all.

Dwells On New Deal Friction.

"Certainly public opinion would have to change greatly," Senator Taft said, "before there is any peril of America being drawn in. No man would dare to suggest participation with sentiment the way it is today."

During the broadcast Senator Taft dwelt on the conflict, the friction, and the inconsistencies of burocratic government in Washington which he had discussed here on Friday. The New Deal burocracy, he said, was leading America in the direction of the totalitarian state with the attendant destruction of rights and liberties. The American people, he said, ultimately will revolt against this oppression.

In reply to questions as to the merit of the federal government's health program and federal aid to education Senator Taft said:

"I do not favor federal aid to education. That is primarily a local problem. Citizens want to control it locally. The federal government gets involved in too many matters the constitution never intended it to."

Favors Medical Aid for Needy.

The federal health program, Senator Taft said, he viewed in a somewhat different light.

"In principle," he said, "I will go along with the federal government in providing medical aid for the poor and needy." He added that he did not favor the Wagner federal aid medical bill, as set up, because it might open the door to socialized medicine.

Senator and Mrs. Taft returned to Cincinnati last night.

ROOSEVELT COST 58 PCT. AS MUCH AS IN 144 YEARS

New York, Jan. 6 [Special].—Government expenditures under President Roosevelt at the end of his eight years tenure in office in January, 1941, will have been 58½ per cent the total spent by all his predecessors in the 144 years of their administrations.

This was revealed today in a table published by the Sun under a Washington date line. It showed that the total expenditures by the 29 Presidents that preceded Mr. Roosevelt amounted to $112,203,367,065 against Mr. Roosevelt's total of $65,628,526,692.

In addition the table disclosed that the President received in taxes in these depression years 44 per cent as much as all his predecessors together collected and that he has almost exactly doubled the national debt. The table shows that at the end of the Hoover administration in 1933 the national debt was $22,538,672,164. At the end of President Roosevelt's second term the figure will be $44,938,577,622.

The figures given up until 1939 show the receipts, expenditures, and deficits certified by the treasury department to congress. Figures for 1940 and 1941 are the estimates presented to congress by the President in his budget message last Thursday.

GRAFT AND HOW TO END IT.

An audit of Kansas City's expenditures for public works during the Pendergast régime has revealed a good many evidences of skulduggery. The auditors think that the payments were often excessive and that at least some of the contractors were chosen by favoritism.

There is nothing particularly startling in all this. The story is an old one and it is being repeated every day, with modifications of detail, in a thousand governments in this country, not excepting the government of the United States. Graft and waste are normal in American political life; honesty and efficiency are abnormal.

It does not follow that dishonest and incompetent government is inevitable. On the contrary. Graft is preventable, but not in any of the ways which the so-called good citizens generally adopt. They have relied upon the criminal law to punish malfeasants and especially upon tinkering with the forms of government in the hope of improving it. Neither method has accomplished much. Kansas City had a city manager government when Pendergast was at the height of his power, and still has one. There is no form of government which is corruption proof.

Practically speaking, there is only one way to achieve honesty and competence in administration and that is to place scrupulous men in office. As long as the ordinary citizen who says he wants such men elected refuses to take any part in the political organization of his precinct and his ward there will be no marked improvement in our political standards because men of the desired type will seldom be nominated.

Nominations to political office are made by political parties and with the fewest exceptions by the regular organizations within those parties. Today our political parties are controled for the most part by persons who expect favors of one kind or another from government in return for the time they spend in political activity. These favors may take the form of jobs with no work attached, contracts at fancy figures, or something else of the sort; but whatever form they take they inevitably impose waste and inefficiency upon government. That is the kind of government we have, not so much because office holders are inherently wicked men as because the great majority of citizens who presumably ask no favors of government and want none take no really important part in the selection of office holders.

If these citizens have little influence over the choice of candidates the fault is entirely their own. A political party is not an exclusive club. Practically speaking, any citizen can join a precinct or a ward organization, and if his neighbors of like mind will join it too they can control its action. They can then wield an influence at least proportionate to their numbers in the choice of organization candidates. If they use their strength intelligently they can bring about a marked improvement in the quality of office holders and therefore of government.

There is a widespread belief that the citizen has discharged his full duty to the community when he goes to the polls on primary and election days. This is nonsense, and costly nonsense. Political activity, if confined to the voting booth, is largely wasted. The citizen who wants honest government must take his place in a political party, pay dues to it, and thereby exert what influence he can upon it to place the proper type of man in nomination. If he and his neighbors won't do that they can't get to first base. They will remain amateurs in a professional league.

Let no one deceive himself by thinking that the "good citizens" can easily gain control of a political party to the point where they can nominate desirable candidates. It was that false assumption which gave us the direct primary, the consequence of which was not an improvement but a degradation of quality in our office holders. The task of political organization requires a large expenditure of time, some money, and a vast amount of tedious detail work for which few men have any taste and still fewer have any talent. But onerous as it is, partisan organization is the only means of achieving good government in a democracy. All the other expedients are quackery.

Democratic government will not work well if the great majority of citizens who profess to be interested in the results of politics refuse to participate in politics. That is axiomatic. If you don't belong to your ward organization you have no license to complain of the quality of the city administration or the personnel of the Municipal court. It's your own fault.

One other practical consideration deserves mention. The citizen who, today, wants to improve government in Chicago or almost any of the other metropolitan cities will be wasting his time in the Democratic organization, where the beneficiaries of wasteful government are strongly intrenched. The bright opportunity lies in the Republican ranks. The old leaders are gone; many are dead, and most of the rest are discredited. The pickings have been too poor to attract or hold the professional jobseekers and the rest of the grafters, big and little. Accordingly, relatively little effort is required to gain influence in the Republican organization. The opportunity is there if the good citizens want to seize it.

TWO QUART BOTTLES.

Private initiative has had little opportunity to exercise its talents recently in the Chicago milk industry. If the milk distributors are not engaged in taking orders from Henry Wallace and his deputy baby starvers, they are busy with their attorneys outlining their defense to the indictment Thurman Arnold got against them for doing the things Henry is now telling them to do without Henry's permission.

When paper milk bottles appeared, offering a prospect of reduced distribution costs, the board of health kept them out of Chicago. When the baby got too restless for the board to hold longer it was passed to the corporation counsel, who juggled it for some weeks before passing it on to the city council. The aldermen still have the child under a blanket.

The men who are trying to earn a return on the money invested in the milk business might under the circumstances be pardoned if they gave up and confined their activities to seeking lower prices on quantity purchases of red ink. Instead, they have worked out a scheme to give their customers lower prices on quantity purchases of milk.

There is nothing revolutionary about their new scheme. Before Secretary Wallace began preaching the gospel of scarcity it was accepted practice. A business with high overhead costs and narrow profits sought to spread the overhead by selling more units of its product at a lower price.

Chicago families who can use two quarts of milk at a single delivery can now buy their milk at the same price per quart that they were paying before Secretary Wallace started his price fixing scheme. If they can use a gallon they get it at an even lower price. Those who can use only a quart must still pay the two cent premium that has been added under price control.

Comparatively few families, unfortunately, will be benefited by the new plan, since its operation is confined to three small areas on the outskirts of the city. It is to be hoped that the distributors make the plan city-wide as soon as possible. The two quart and gallon bottles are not enough of themselves to pull the Chicago milk business out of the doldrums into which it has fallen as a result of archaic distribution practices and political interference, but they are a step in the right direction, the first such step the industry has taken in many years.

THE PROBLEM OF AID TO FINLAND.

Nazi spokesmen say that if the British send the Finns no more important aid than some museum pieces from the Tower of London, Germany will not be concerned. The scornful reference is to the report that the British are sending Finland some airplanes not regarded as good enough for the British air service because of obsolescence. The Nazi authorities also said that if France sent any Alpine units trained for just such as the winter operations in Finland Germany would be forced to take an active part in the Russian-Finnish war.

The British and French have indicated that they would like to give more than their sympathy and more than medical aid and civilian relief to the Finns, but they have not broken with Russia as yet and have no disclosed plans for anything like military assistance on even a small scale. If Finland offered a new front on which there could be a chance of success, even against the combination of the Nazis and the soviets, France and Great Britain might be willing to try out this adventure. It would seem that the military probabilities are all against it, and the undertaking might mean quick disaster to the Finns who are so valiantly defending themselves against the communists. They might not be able to hold out long against the forces Germany could throw on them. It is Finland's misfortune that an attempt to send aid might only hasten the ruin of the country, putting all of Scandinavia in great peril.

Such an attack could not be popular in Germany. It is hardly imaginable that a population in which communism has been hunted down for years and hatred of communist practices preached as a gospel could approve the overrunning of a small neighboring country by the Reds who would owe their success to German arms. The German people wouldn't say anything about it and they would do as they were told. Herr Goebbels would decorate the deed, but it surely isn't anything that Hitler and his Nazi associates would like to precipitate, nor would it be a war for which the German army would have a natural stomach.

A CHANNEL TUNNEL?
[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

At least a flicker of life has been breathed into old plans for a tunnel connecting France and England as a result of the new European war. The allied supreme war council is understood to have discussed the project at a recent meeting, cable dispatches say.

A tunnel between England and the continent was actually begun around 1875. Shafts about a mile and a half long still exist at Dover and Calais. The project was disrupted, however, by the agitation of British isolationists. Several powerful periodicals contended that such a tunnel would make continentals out of Englishmen, and would expose England to invasion at any time. The British war office was aroused against the plan by the army commander, the duke of Cambridge, who also was a cousin of Queen Victoria. A commission weighed the plan and reported that, if such a tunnel was built, it would be necessary for Britain to maintain a large garrison at the English entrance to the shaft, and it might even be necessary for the nation to adopt conscription for the sake of eternal preparedness against invasion. A talking point for opponents of the tunnel was the fact that not long after it was originally proposed back in Napoleon's time, France and England went to war with each other.

During the world war the Dover-Calais tunnel reportedly came up for discussion again, but was rejected on the ground that it was too costly and ambitious an undertaking to be prosecuted during the course of a war. The same objection still holds true today, but circumstances are such as might warrant the project. The tunnel would cost about $300,000,000. But if it shortened the war by even 10 days it would pay for itself, since the allied daily war expense is estimated at $30,000,000. And it might be one way for the allies to occupy themselves profitably during a war stalemate.

HUNT SPIES IN HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM [Correspondence of the Associated Press].—Piet Janssen, the Netherlands' man-in-the-street, puffs at his big pipe a bit nervously these days. He is growing acutely spy conscious.

There have been three big spy stories in the Netherlands since the war began. There is much talk about spies, and some persons say the country is swarming with them. But it is difficult to say if this is true, since no genuine spy goes about heralding his business.

At any rate, the Netherlands could be a perfect espionage base. It affords easy access to all the belligerent powers; foreigners may come and go almost at will; there is plenty of night life in Amsterdam, the Hague, and Rotterdam where clever spies may mix with army officers, government officials, well informed business men, and with other spies.

In cafés and cabarets one sees gentlemen—and ladies—who give the impression of being mysterious foreigners. But the spies are not all foreigners.

An Amsterdam newspaper the other day displayed the following headline: "Espionage—Great Sensation in the Hague." The story concerned the arrest of two government officials and caused a sensation thruout the country.

Even before this the government had foreseen that there might be secret agents within official circles. Many government officials have posted signs in their offices warning that "walls have ears."

The government proclaimed martial law in certain defense areas to keep spies from getting information about the defense preparations, especially the water line of defense.

Access to these regions has not been closed, but no one may enter with a camera, neither foreigner nor Dutchman. However, after some agents of the foreign office had toured some defense sectors incognito recently, they complained the army was too lax in applying the antispy regulations.

The government's latest steps have been regulation of cable and telephone messages and a ban on the exportation of maps and charts. No messages may be sent in code and all telephone conversations must be conducted in Dutch, German, English or French.

* *

The most important spy story since the war started was that involving the two Dutch officials, one of whom, G. W. F. Van Hoeven, held a high post in the ministry of social affairs. Both he and his wife were arrested. Also arrested were W. J. B. Buve, an official in the ministry of economics, and a German named Sturm.

They were charged with suspicion of giving information to an unnamed foreign country, and officially were said to be in sympathy with "the ideology of a neighboring power." Van Hoeven was known to have made frequent trips to Germany to study the youth problem.

These were alleged to have given information concerning the movement and cargoes of Dutch ships and reports on the Netherlands-British economic talks in London. The Amsterdam newspaper De Telegraaf said this information had led to the sinking of a Dutch ship—presumably the 5,133 ton tanker Sliedrecht, only Dutch ship torpedoed up to that time.

The arrests followed an unusual piece of detective work. The authorities somehow obtained photographs which had been made of documents from the ministry of economics. One photograph showed a carpet design on the margin. The design matched a carpet in the house of Van Hoeven. That information led to the rest of the evidence.

But the spy story which gained most attention outside the country was the Venloo incident.

Near the border town of Venloo on the night of Nov. 9, the day after the Munich beer hall bombing from which Adolf Hitler escaped by minutes, two automobiles approached the frontier simultaneously, one from the Dutch side, the other from the German.

A group of Germans, with submachine guns and rifles, rushed onto the Dutch side, engaged in a scuffle and fired numerous shots. The occupants of the Dutch car were carried across the border.

Later it was learned the Netherlands automobile was occupied by two Englishmen and two Netherlanders. The Englishmen were Capt. Payne Best, ex-army officer who had represented a British firm in the Hague since the world war, and Capt. Richard Henry Stevens, connected with the British passport control office in the Hague and who had been aiding German refugees. The Dutchmen were Lieut. R. Klop of the Netherlands intelligence service, and J. Lemmens, a garage owner who had acted as chauffeur.

Germany charged the Englishmen were chiefs of Britain's western European intelligence service, that the Hague was headquarters for a nest of British spies, and that the intelligence service had helped plot the attempt on Hitler's life.

The Germans said they had duped the British into thinking they were in contact with German revolutionaries and even had been given special radio sets used by the British secret service agents for dispatching to London information they obtained. Actually, the Germans said, German secret police used the radio equipment. This contact, they asserted, was kept up even after the abduction of the two alleged British agents.

On the other hand, the Netherlands said the Britons had identified themselves as being in charge of negotiations with Germans to investigate the possibilities of peace efforts. The Netherlands intelligence officer, it was said, "had orders from a superior officer to be present in the interest of Dutch neutrality."

The Netherlands protested at an alleged violation of its territory and seizure of its citizens. Germany did not admit there was a violation of Dutch territory.

What happened in the shooting fray has not been cleared up. The German statements did not mention any one being killed or wounded. Netherlands sources reported Klop was killed and Stevens wounded.

* *

Another story is that of the Netherlands youth arrested while attempting to take a large bundle of Dutch uniforms—military, railway, police, and gendarme—across the frontier into Germany.

Authorities, suspecting a smuggling ring was slipping Dutch uniforms into the reich to make it easier for spies to enter, raided scores of Amsterdam and Rotterdam houses, seeking to locate the ring's headquarters.

No other arrests were made, but police still are working on the case. The authorities were not satisfied with the youth's story that he lived in the Netherlands but went into Germany daily to work. He said he had driven a German to Amsterdam the previous day, and that the German may have forgotten the bundle.

The youth's father was a member of the provincial government in that area and belonged to the Dutch national socialist party.

These incidents have made Piet Janssen suspicious of everybody. Of course, foreigners are suspicious of each other.

For example, while sitting in a café a few nights ago, an American correspondent was surprised when one of two English speaking gentlemen nearby admonished him in a whisper, "Be careful what you say. Information spreads fast here."

At first the newspaper man thought he was joking. Then he saw that the other man was serious and probably believed him to be a spy. Later it occurred to the correspondent that his neighbor had been a rather mysterious character himself.

WINTER HEALTH SUGGESTIONS.

THERE is something invigorating about cold air, especially if it is dry. We remark "What a snappy morning" and a feeling of exhilaration comes when we step outside and fill the lungs with a quart or two of pure atmosphere.

Other than the fact that far too many live in veritable hothouses during the winter season—most of us feel better than when the torrid days of summer are upon us. But there are certain concessions to climate that may be made with benefit. In the first place, the skin is likely to be drier than normal. When this happens, chapping may be noted. Subsequently, signs of irritation accompanied by itching or even cracking may appear.

The remedy, of course, is to employ nonirritating soaps and warm [not hot or cold] water. All excess lather should be removed thoroly, and the cuticle dried and then covered with a mild, bland ointment. Excess oily material may be wiped away with soft paper tissue.

Most of us take too little exercise. We forget that our muscles are made for use and, in consequence, they become flabby. Furthermore, the effect of confinement upon the nerves is depressing. There is no better neutralizer of pent up emotions than activity. In other words, that stale feeling flees after a brisk walk in the open air.

Do we eat too much or should we take more nourishment for its heat value? An overfilled alimentary tract is likely to result in poor circulation with dull and dismal thoughts. We fail to burn up our edibles and thus overtax our organs of elimination. But we need a fair amount to supply energy and there is a well established balance between what the body requires and what it receives. Children come into the house as hungry as bears after an hour or two of good hard play. They want food and plenty of it, but with some of us the most attractive array of dishes may find appetite inadequate to meet the situation.

It is just because we are more indolent—more house bound. This is where setting up exercises—morning and evening—will serve well. Ten or fifteen minutes twice daily will reactivate the heart and stir up metabolism. If walking out-of-doors can be indulged in, all the better—care being taken that the extremities shall not suffer from chilling.

What about clothing? Years ago in certain districts it was customary to sew up the youngsters in red flannel for the winter. Evidently our great-grandparents were hardy folk for they survived so many handicaps and unhygienic customs. We have learned that heavy underwear is essential only in low temperatures where long exposure is necessary. Light undergarments are preferable for indoor workers. The reason is that with living quarters at approximately 70 degrees Fahrenheit, underclothing that prevents the evaporation of moisture from the epidermis—the ready access of air—keeps us too hot. The weakening effect of such a procedure is well known. Today we use cloaks, overcoats, overshoes, and sweaters that button snugly around the throat to protect us when exposed to inclement conditions. But all such apparel must be readily removable when we enter rooms which are held at ordinary levels.

We must not forget that the system can be trained to adapt itself to a fair range of cold and heat. But this is far truer of those who are in the younger decades than with the oldsters. The latter group will require more wraps before venturing out. The important thing is not to "go soft." This means that every one should be out in the open a portion of every day.

Attention to diet? Yes! Because we all get less sunshine we must not forget the importance of vegetables, fruits, and milk. Our young people particularly must have cod liver oil and many a dainty appetite will be brought up to par with a few added vitamins.

We can guard against colds by proper humidification of the home. Whether clammy feet indicate poor circulation or not, they must be kept warm. A cold head in the sleeping room will prove just as much of a menace. It is neither indecent nor unsightly to use a nightcap or to wear bedsocks.

NERVOUS HEART.

H. M. writes:
1. What is a nervous heart?
2. Is it serious?
3. Is it curable?

REPLY.
1. An irritable heart—one that responds readily to nervous stimuli. Hence worry, fear, emotion, etc., may change the rate and regularity with which it beats.
2. No.
3. Yes. Controling the underlying emotional factors is all that is necessary.

THEY ARE NOT THE SAME.

C. S. writes: What is Marie's ataxia? Is it the same as locomotor ataxia?

REPLY.
Locomotor ataxia follows syphilis of the nervous system. Marie's ataxia is a loss of the power of muscular coördination. It is due to a disturbance in the cerebellum and is hereditary.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO
[From Tribune Files.]

Jan. 7, 1915.
[163d day of the world war; 129th day of present war.]

ROME—Pope Benedict XV. telegraphed an appeal to the rulers of Austria and Germany urging the release of Cardinal Mercier, archbishop of Malines, Belgium. He was taken into custody by the German military after he instructed Belgians not to obey occupational forces.

BERLIN—Exports from the Berlin district to the United States during 1914 were $160,000,000, compared with $200,000,000 in 1913.

PARIS—The western front became quieter following advances by allied troops at four points—northwest of Reims, in the forests of La Grurie and Le Pretre, and in the ravine of Courte Chaussee.

CHICAGO—Bakers planned to increase the price of bread from 5 cents a loaf as a result of wheat soaring to a record of $1.37 a bushel, in the wake of unprecedented exports of grain to Europe.

THE VOICE OF THE FARMER.

Sullivan, Ill., Dec. 27.—Our organized groups of lawyers, educators, labor, politicians, and farmers are generally thinking of getting benefits for the few.

The Republican party would have us believe that they are seeking more light upon various subjects; that they will be able to serve the public and humanity better than the Democrats are now doing. The Republican congress folks met with the farmers in Springfield Dec. 15 and 16, where they made the public believe they were getting farmers' opinions about the present farm bill. The press was well represented, and I must say The Tribune men seemed to be the most learned and active, publishing the nearest to the facts of what took place, yet they failed to show how political this meeting really was. In fact, it seemed to me that each individual congressman was most concerned about what the organized minority would do for them personally. Many good thinking farmers were present who failed to express their opinion, thinking it would be a waste of time and energy. Then, again, farmers are not educated or trained to talk and, having no stooges and secretaries to prepare their talks, they know they would be at a great disadvantage.

My personal opinion, no doubt due to the fact that farming is my business, is that agriculture as a whole must have at least a livable condition if our nation is to go forward or survive. But the present farm program is little above a racket. It has made no effort to benefit the farmers as a whole, but centered attention upon grain, cotton, and a few of the minority groups of commodities that represent less than 30 per cent of the farmer's income. But these commodities are where the organized gang and the great necessary vote is. In the beginning men like Smith and Wallace said they could only start with these commodities and would soon cover the entire field. In the several years that they have been operating little or no efforts have been made to include cattle, sheep, vegetables, dairy products, and poultry, which represent about 50 per cent of the farmer's income. But even if they could include all these things, just who and how could they be financed? So the whole program seems cockeyed to me.

Any industry or profession that tries to build a program of progress that does not consider the rest of the people and the effect it will have upon them is indeed a selfish lot.

The weakest spot in the present farm program is the matter of who is the executive. In Illinois the farm bureau and the agricultural college seem to be the voice under the direction from Wallace and his Washington gang. All of them give the impression that first they must take care of the executives, giving the farmers only the crumbs that fall from their table. The farmer who in past generations has practiced a soil fertility program does not even share in the crumbs. Which naturally gives one the conclusion that soil conservation mentioned in the program is mere bunk. They pay best those who have in past years mined their own soil away and are willing to take dictation from the bosses.

But has not all this farm bunk happened because the press has failed to get men on the job who could not only write about the industry but could see facts? THE TRIBUNE had a man in Springfield at the farm meeting who impressed me very much with his ability and hustle. He was a rather dark complexioned fellow, medium in size, and with a splendid personality. He acted as if he might be trained as a first class farm writer. Of course my observation might be false, as I did not get acquainted with him personally. And that often makes quite a difference. In the 33 years that I have been farming I have met many people who tried writing farm stuff, but less than half a dozen, in my opinion, have been competent and interested in their subject.

It is remarkable the important place publicity will have in the making of a new agriculture. Perhaps no people are so hungry for social contact and publicity as bucolic people. These two things rate even above money with the great majority. That is why they are so easily controled and satisfied.

VICTIM OF A ROBBERY.

Lisle, Ill., Dec. 26.—My sister's home at 5118 South Emerald avenue, Chicago, has been broken into. All clothes, rugs, the stove, bedding, and plumbing fixtures have been taken, as well as the doors of the garage. My sister is known to all her neighbors. Her husband fought in the last world war. She is sick in a sanitarium and I was getting her home ready for her return Christmas. Report has been made to the police, but they have recovered nothing.

Would the one who took my sister's things be so mean as not to bring them back? Has my brother-in-law fought for your rights only to be robbed and have his home wrecked by vandals? Please return those things and leave my sister's home alone. It is all she has to come home to. Because you've taken her belongings I was unable to bring her back for Christmas but I hope you will return them so I can have her home soon.

LIFE IN THE BIG CITY.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 30.—Bound for home Friday, Dec. 29, at 6 p. m., I walked up the stairs of the Randolph and Wells elevated station carrying a 20 pound parcel of groceries.

I tossed a quarter to the "L" cashier. At the same time a man back of me yelled "two" and pushed past me, disappearing in the crowd on the waiting platform.

The cashier offered me a nickel in change which I emphatically refused, protesting that I did not say "two" and did not know the man who used the free entrance ruse.

The cashier became indignant. I felt I was suspected of dishonesty and a threat of arrest placed me in a mood to refuse to budge without receiving my proper change. I wish to place other "L" patrons on guard against the embarrassment and loss of time involved.

FROM A BIRD BANDER.

Blue Island, Ill., Jan. 2.—So Beverly Hills is where all our blue jays have gone. A number of Chicago nature lovers have taken a Christmas bird census, but everywhere they have gone there were no blue jays. Trips were taken to Waukegan dunes, Indiana dunes, Pilcher park, Joliet; Morton arboretum, and a few forest preserves, but no blue jays were found.

The blue jays were banded by United States government bird banders, of which I am one. Many of my birds have been found dead in Beverly Hills.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Dec. 27 [Friend of the People].—1. Recently I saw an article in which it was explained that certain aliens could become citizens of the United States and would like some information on this particular law, enacted Aug. 7, 1939. I entered this country illegally in 1923. Can one, under the present law, become a citizen?

2. Where can one get a compilation of the law enacted concerning aliens?

3. Can one's wife, who entered legally, become a citizen?

4. Are all aliens who enter illegally subject to deportation? S. S.

1. Pursuant to the provisions of the act of March 2, 1929, as amended Aug. 7, 1939, aliens who entered the United States prior to July 1, 1924, and who have since resided therein, and in whose case there is no record of legal admission, may apply for registry. If this application is granted, a certificate of registry, establishing a date of entry, is issued. The applicant may thereupon proceed toward naturalization.

2. Copies of Immigration Laws and Regulations may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., the price of which is 20 cents [do not send stamps]. It is believed, however, that you will be able to obtain all necessary information in connection with registry from the district director of immigration and naturalization, New Postoffice building, Chicago.

3. Yes, provided qualified for citizenship.

4. No. Much depends upon the time when he entered the United States, whether he has since resided in this country, and whether deportable under causes other than illegal entry.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

Chicago, Dec. 27 [Friend of the People].—I am foreign born, but in 1914 I married a man who is an American citizen and have lived here ever since. Am I to understand that under the law in effect prior to 1922 I became an American citizen when I married, or what further procedure do you advise?

L. W.

If the inquirer's husband was a citizen at the time she married him or if he was naturalized subsequent to the marriage but before September 22, 1922, she became a citizen thereby, under the laws then in effect. If he was naturalized after September 21, 1922, she did not become a citizen, as under an act of congress approved September 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women on and after the latter date is independent of that of their husbands. She may in that event, however, apply for final papers without a declaration of intention [first paper.]

BURST OF SPEED MARKS NEW YEAR FOR REPUBLICANS

Several Camps Show Early Campaign Activity.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The first week-end of the new year found Republican preprimary activities in Illinois taking on real speed. There were significant press releases from several camps.

Dwight H. Green, candidate for the governorship, announced that he will hold a formal opening of new headquarters in the La Salle hotel next Tuesday afternoon. That is his 43d birthday and the double celebration will be observed with a reception from 2 to 6.

Otis F. Glenn, candidate for United States senator, made public extracts from a campaign pamphlet he proposes to circulate widely. It was entitled "Fear Continues the Depression."

Claim Three More Counties.

A third announcement was that three more Republican county organizations had indorsed Wayland Brooks for senator and Richard J. Lyons for governor, a substantial advance in the merger of the forces behind those two candidates that is expected to lead them eventually to unite for the campaign.

The three counties named were McHenry, Kankakee, and Kendall, in all of which action was taken at meetings held during the week. The Kendall county meeting, held in the courthouse at Yorkville, included the full membership of the Republican county central committee and the county board of supervisors, all Republican county officers, all the township road commissioners, and a number of other political leaders.

The meeting unanimously authorized Dr. F. C. Henninger, chairman of the county committee, to start campaign activities immediately in support of the two favorites.

Leaders from 7 Counties.

At the meeting of the Kankakee county central committee there were Republican leaders present from seven counties. H. Victor McBroom, chairman of the Kankakee body, presided, and the visitors included six other chairmen, as follows: Charles A. O'Connor, Kane; James E. Hill, La Salle; Ralph Harper, Grundy; George Townsend, Iroquois; C. Frank Daly, McHenry; and Edward F. Moore, Cook.

Other leaders present were State Senator Louis E. Beckman of Kankakee, State Representative George B. Allen of Braceville, State Representative Harry L. Topping of Kankakee, County Judge C. D. Henry of Kankakee county, Circuit Judge Luther B. Bratton and State's Attorney S. J. Holderman of Grundy county.

Green's Statement.

"I entered the race for governor at the request of thousands of voters who pleaded that new leadership be established and our state government be taken out of the hands of machine politics and given back to the people.

"I feel, having accepted a mandate from so many people to make the race, that I owe it to them to give every ounce of energy and every minute of my time to the effort to break the grip of the present political machine and establish a new program of progress which the people of Illinois are asking and to which they are entitled."

America Lags, Says Glenn.

In his pamphlet the Glenn announcement said the former senator intends to point out that among 22 great nations of the world, America ranks 21st in progress toward recovery from the depression.

"That the New Deal philosophy is ineffectual and unsound," continued the text, "is established by these facts:

"This depression has continued longer than any other depression since the establishment of our government.

"Every important industrial nation in the world, with the exception of France, has gone forward faster and further toward recovery than has the United States."

Taking up his theme—fear—Glenn said that business men are afraid to take chances for reasonable profit because the returns have been decreased by federal, state, and local taxes. Business confidence must be restored, he said, to encourage expansion and new enterprises.

DENEEN MEETS IN CAPITAL WITH OLD FOLLOWERS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6 [Special].—Former Senator Charles S. Deneen, a power in Illinois politics when the G. O. P. ruled the statehouse, today predicted a return of the Republican party to power in Illinois if the party's candidates are men of character and ability.

"We can win if we get a good ticket that inspires confidence," Deneen said.

Apparently promoting a revival of the old time Deneen Republican organization, Deneen conferred for six hours here with a group of Republicans, most of whom were office holders when he was a senator.

The conference followed a luncheon given for the former senator and Illinois governor by Walter Provine of Taylorville, former federal attorney for the southern district of Illinois, and Harold Baker of East St. Louis, former eastern district federal attorney.

Praises Taft's Speech.

Deneen insisted little was said at the conference about individual candidates for state and national offices, and refused to tell his attitude regarding various candidates. It was reported, however, that sentiment at the meeting favored a downstate man for the governorship nomination.

The former senator denied reports that he was lining up a slate of delegates favoring Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the presidential nomination at the Republican national convention. He did praise Taft's address made yesterday in Chicago, in which the Ohioan offered a five point program for balancing the federal budget.

To Meet in Chicago.

Deneen denied that today's gathering was an attempt to revive the old political group's power, but admitted: "Ultimately we may band together."

It was reported that the group may decide on a course to follow in the primary campaign after a meeting to be held Tuesday at the Morrison hotel in Chicago.

Among those at the luncheon were: Roy O. West, former secretary of the interior; George E. Q. Johnson, former federal attorney at Chicago; James P. Dillie, former assistant federal attorney at Springfield; Frank K. Lemon, former federal attorney at Springfield; Charles Cushing, Ross C. Adams, George E. Baker, Ernest H. Smiley, Ralph F. Leseman, Douglas H. Reed, Arthur R. Clark, and O. G. Addleman.

SCAN LABOR ROW FOR A CLEW IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Aberdeen, Wash., Jan. 6 (AP).—Police today pressed their search for clews which might solve the slaying last night of Mrs. Dick Law, 24 years old, wife of a union official. The body was found in the living room of the Law home by Mrs. Law's mother. Mrs. Law's skull had been fractured.

Acting Chief of Police Robert Schmidt said a witness reported a fight between two women and a man on a downtown street shortly before 7 o'clock last night and said one of the women was described as similar in size and appearance to Mrs. Law. Authorities theorized the victim may have been killed away from the house and her body brought back.

Schmidt was considering the possibility that the killing resulted from labor troubles. Law, executive board member of the International Woodworkers' association, a C. I. O. union, was active in denouncing a mob which wrecked a Finnish workers' hall here shortly after Russia's invasion of Finland.

HELP WANTED: JURORS TO HEAR GAMBLING CASES

Jobs for 8,100 Opened by Bookie Trials.

EMPLOYMENT NOTE: There is work in sight for 8,100 jurors in the branch of the Municipal court to which Judge J. M. Braude is assigned. And future prospects are bright, too.

Judge J. M. Braude, who presides in the court where jury trials are available for persons arrested in the daily raids on horse betting parlors, said yesterday his court is threatened with an exhaustion of jury panels. The supply is not sufficient to meet the demand, he said.

A verdict of not guilty in a race handbook case was returned before Judge Braude Friday. The foreman of the jury said he and his fellow jurors thought it foolish to prosecute handbook operators, because "people want to bet on races and they'll keep right on doing it."

"What effect will this verdict have on future prosecutions?" Judge Braude was asked yesterday.

"There are 300 requests for jury trials pending in my court. The trial just ended was the first since I came to this court. We used up 27 veniremen on it, not one of whom will be acceptable for the next or later cases.

"Each side in a trial is allowed six peremptory challenges. That is, defense and state lawyers each can reject six of the men and women for reasons they need not explain. A few are also excused because for one reason or another they do not appear competent to give both sides a fair trial.

27 Veniremen a Case.

"It is obvious that in the next trials the state won't take any of the twelve who served on this jury and voted not guilty. It is obvious that the persons excused for cause or by peremptory challenge will not be acceptable for the next trial. So we will use about 27 new ones in each case. And we have 300 cases on hand, and more coming over every day. That means, of course, at least 8,100 veniremen, of whom 3,600 will be jurors.

"It took two days to try this case. There is other business to be transacted, also, so we can only try two of these so-called gambling cases a week.

"I asked the state's attorney's office to make a stipulation with the defense attorneys, Lawrence Dowd and Isadore Goldstein, so that we could try 50 cases at a time. The evidence is the same in nearly all of them. Policemen made bets on horse races and then obtained warrants for the arrest of the man who took the bet and his employers. The legality of the arrests is not questioned.

State Declines to Coöperate.

"By an agreement the verdict of one case could apply to all. But the state's attorney's office would not agree."

Judge Jay A. Schiller, who spent last month in the Racket court, to which the arrested handbook owners and their employés are taken first, said it is time for the authorities to agree on some sane and sensible plan of dealing with horse race betting. The gamblers, when arraigned before him, refused to take a bench trial. When they asked for trial by jury their cases were transfered to the jury court, where Judge Braude presides.

BRAKEMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

Edward H. Jackman, 45 years old, of Montepelier, O., a brakeman, was killed yesterday when he stepped off the fender of a Wabash freight locomotive into the path of another freight train in the Chicago belt line tracks at 81st street and Stewart avenue.

Camera vs. Memory

Jerry Mangano, 22 years old, and Italo Begani, 16, will go on trial tomorrow before Judge John Sbarbaro of the Criminal court, on a charge of murdering Park Policeman Harry Francois. A third defendant, Joseph Russano, 18, will be tried separately.

Blair Varnes, assistant state's attorney who will prosecute the case, said last night that he will demand the death penalty, particularly for Mangano, who confessed the slaying. Francois was killed Nov. 20 when he frustrated a robbery.

It was learned yesterday that the artistic talent of Trooper Walter La Hayne of the Indiana state police helped involve Mangano in an Indiana murder. Last Aug. 18, Anthony Michaud was killed by bandits in Berne, Ind. Mrs. Jake Schindler, who saw the murder, described the slayer in a manner which enabled LaHayne to draw a composite picture. This picture represented a good likeness of the killer, Mrs. Schindler said. Recently she saw a picture of Mangano in THE TRIBUNE and identified it as that of Michaud's slayer. Later she identified Mangano.

ELGIN COPS DOLL UP IN HIGH TONED 2 TONE UNIFORMS

The Elgin police have begun 1940 as the cynosure of all feminine eyes. They are wearing their new two-tone uniforms, navy blue coats and French blue trousers.

The uniforms are similar to those worn by the Pennsylvania state police. Elgin is one of the first mid-western municipalities to adopt the two-tone effect, according to B. B. Splithoff, chairman of the board of police and fire commissioners.

The Elgin police force also has five new men, while the fire department has six.

G-MEN TO OPEN POLICE TRAINING SCHOOL TUESDAY

Eight special agents of the federal bureau of investigation will open training schools Tuesday for policemen of five Chicagoland towns. The agents, under the direction of William S. Devereaux, special agent in charge of the Chicago office, will give 12 weekly lectures in scientific crime detection.

William S. Devereaux.

Elgin policemen will meet for classes in their station room 8 to 11 a. m. Tuesday. Two classes will be held the same day in the Joliet station, from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. On Wednesday the Winnetka force will attend school from 3 to 5 p. m. in the New Trier Township High school. In the evening, from 7 to 10 p. m., Lake Forest and North Chicago policemen will attend class in the Lake Forest public library

Devereaux said that any local police department can arrange for such instruction free of charge by communicating with F. B. I. headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Newark Mayor, Six Others Acquitted in Graft Case

Newark, N. J., Jan. 6 [Special.]—Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein and six codefendants were found not guilty tonight of a charge of conspiring to defraud the city of Newark in a series of meadow land purchases. The jury returned its verdict after slightly less than nine hours of deliberation. The verdict brought to a close almost three years of investigation and court proceedings. The trial lasted 12 weeks.

3 More Seized in Wilmette Gambling Raid Pay Fines

So he's flying down to Rio after all . . . .

JAMES W. ALLEN

After three years as an airline pilot between Chicago and New York, James W. Allen decided to take a vacation. His idea was to get a plane and take an extended trip to places he'd never seen before.

Following his graduation from Cornell in 1934, Allen had done a great deal of traveling. As a pilot with the army air service, he had flown over much of the United States. As a flyer for the U. S. Forest service and as an airline pilot, he had seen a lot more of it.

But he had never seen South America. He hankered to see the Aztec pyramids at Oaxaca from the air, and the harbor at Rio de Janeiro where mountains step into the sea, with a suburb on every ledge.

Last June he mentioned the idea to his brother-in-law, Dr. Charles K. Sibley, head of the science department at the John Burroughs school, St. Louis. Dr. Sibley thought it over and agreed to go. The date for the take-off was set for January 1, 1940, from Chicago.

So Allen bought a six-place Ryan B5 monoplane powered with a 330 h.p. Wright Whirlwind engine. He found a machine shop and started it on a complete overhaul. Next he wrote to twenty-seven airports in South America and Mexico, arranging for supplies and accommodations. Permits and passports had to be obtained from Washington. Everything was pretty well set when Dr. Sibley, much to his disappointment, found that he wouldn't be able to go.

Allen, however, still wanted to make the trip. It seemed to him that there must be lots of people who would jump at the chance of such a trip, so on October 14 and 15 he ran the following three-line want ad in the Chicago Tribune:

FLYING South America Jan. 1. priv. plane; take 4, 5; shr. exp.; pilot has army and airline exp. Lt. Allen. HYDE PARK 7577.

The ad pulled 40 inquiries. As a result, on January 1, the following party took off from the Lockport airport: Mrs. Doris Wallace, photographer, 126 E. Delaware Pl., Chicago; Miss Frieda Zylstra, 5308 Kenwood Ave., Chicago, who will photograph the trip; Miss June Sprau, 1 Stonegate Road, Lake Forest, Ill.; Mrs. Fred R. Allen (Mr. Allen's mother); Seward Bowers, an attorney of 320 Britian Ave., Benton Harbor, Michigan, and James Allen.

As it now stands, the trip will cover 8,000 air miles and will take two months, all told. One of the group has been appointed treasurer and will make all financial arrangements. The terminus will be Rio de Janeiro, where the party will disband and the plane will be sold. Allen and Bowers will then find guides and go hunting.

All of which is just another illustration of what you can do with Tribune want ads.

HIS EYE FOR AN EYE PUTS SOME TEETH IN LAW

Dr. George Elgin's professional attitude never deserted him during the excitement of a prolonged robbery seven months ago. That is why the bandits were under arrest yesterday.

Last June 10 two gunmen walked into Dr. Elgin's optometry office at 922 West 59th street. They took $462 and jewelry valued at $600 from Dr. Elgin, his assistant and two patients. Then the bandits forced him to drive them in his new car to his home at 8931 South Bell avenue. There he was compelled to open a safe which yielded a $1,200 ring belonging to Mrs. Elgin. The bandits then fled in his car.

But even while the gun was prodded against him the optometrist unconsciously examined the eyes of his terrorists. He observed that the left eye of one was scarred.

He remarked on this later to two of his patients—John L. Sullivan, chief of detectives, and John Prendergast, chief of the uniformed police. Detectives Joseph Logsdon and Timothy O'Connor took up the search for the robbers.

They found the doctor's car abandoned at 64th street and Kenwood avenue. A list of parolees was obtained. The names were narrowed to those living in the neighborhood where the car was found. Then prison records were consulted to learn which ex-convict had a scar on his left eye.

Find Suspect in Jail.

The parolee answering this description was found in the county jail. He is Dale Huber, 5548 Ingleside avenue. Huber is awaiting trial on charges of robbing a lunch stand and a cab driver. Pictures of Huber and several of his friends were shown to Dr. Elgin and the other victims of the robbery. They identified Huber and Wendell Bell, 34, of 6417 Kenwood avenue. Bell was arrested and yesterday both men were identified in person as the gunmen.

Huber was sentenced to Joliet prison in October, 1932, on four charges of robbery; he was paroled Oct. 17, 1936. Bell's record goes back to 1933, when he served two months in the Bridewell for petty larceny. In 1934 he was found not guilty of robbery, but later that year was sentenced to Joliet prison on a similar charge. He was paroled May 19, 1937.

"I knew they'd be caught," Dr. Elgin said. "I could never forget that eye."

AWARD CONTRACT FOR ST. CHARLES FENCE 13 FT. HIGH

Within 60 days a high metal fence will be completed around main buildings and lodges at the St. Charles School for Boys, from which 74 inmates escaped during 1939. A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare, yesterday announced awarding of a contract to the Cyclone Fence company of Waukegan and said the fence would be completed within that time.

The contract price of $22,611 calls for 9,204 feet of fence 13 feet high, with concrete post foundations. There will be four 20 foot road gates and one 18 foot railroad gate.

An appropriation of $26,000 for the fence was made by the legislature last May 20. Bowen did not agree to carry out the legislature's order, on the ground that the fence was unnecessary, until 13 inmates escaped in a gang several months ago.

SUFFOCATES IN BED AT 96.

Andrew Mallek, 96 years old, was suffocated by smoke yesterday as he lay in bed in the home at 5425 Fairmont avenue, Downers Grove, where he lived alone. Police said a cigar or cigaret apparently had set fire to the bedclothes.

INQUEST DELAYED IN TRUNK MURDER BY "SON-IN-LAW"

An inquest into the trunk murder of Mrs. Nellie Sharp was continued yesterday so that police can corroborate the confession of Samuel De Lao that he beat her to death with a hammer. The body of Mrs. Sharp, who was 65 years old, was found Friday morning in a trunk in an alley behind 3539 South Wells street.

De Lao, 49, and the common law husband of Mrs. Sharp's daughter, Celota, confessed that he killed the elderly woman because she nagged him about his unemployment. The dead woman worked as a maid in the Belmont hotel and had been the sole support of her daughter and De Lao since he lost his WPA job last summer.

Lieut. Otto Erlanson of the homocide squad asked the coroner for time to have a chemical analysis made of bloodstains found in Mrs. Sharp's flat at 207 West 25th place. The hearing was continued to next Thursday.

KIDNAPED IN CAR AND ROBBED.

Three bandits kidnaped Gus Arenson, manager of a restaurant and tavern at 1055 Fulton street, yesterday as he was about to enter his parked automobile at George and Randolph streets. They took $300, then released Arenson a mile and a half away.

WHAT POPULAR ORCHESTRA LEADERS DO THESE PUZZLE PICTURES REPRESENT?

YOU know the names of the popular orchestra leaders whose music is heard by millions on the radio daily—whose recordings are played in homes thruout the nation—whose dance music is heard in hotels and countless other gathering places.

The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000 in Cash Prizes to the persons who submit the best answers to this series—now appearing each weekday in the Chicago Daily Tribune.

This offer is open to every man, woman and child. There are no subscriptions to solicit—nothing to do but amuse yourself. There are 430 Cash Prizes. You may win as much as $1,000! And it costs you nothing. Why not try your skill?

★ ★ ★ THE RULES ★ ★ ★

WHO MAY ENTER? This offer is open free to men, women, boys and girls everywhere — except employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. No person may submit more than one entry.

WHAT TO DO? Each weekday a puzzle picture representing the name of a popular orchestra leader will be printed in the Daily Tribune until 42 have appeared. Solve the puzzle pictures and write the names in the space provided, or on a facsimile. Hold all answers until you have the complete set of 42. Do not send them in separately. It is not necessary to solve ALL correctly to win. Prizes will be paid for entries ranking highest.

WHERE TO SEND? Mail your entry by First Class Mail to "Rhythm Kings," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. A ballot will be printed with Puzzle Picture No. 42. Each contestant must vote for the orchestra he or she likes best and state the reason for such choice in 25 words or less. Contestants may use the printed ballot or a facsimile. Ballots will be considered only if two or more persons submit equally correct solutions to the puzzle pictures; in which event, judgment will be based on sincerity and originality. Entries must be in by midnight, February 24, 1940.

JUDGMENT: Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree that the judges' decisions will be final. 430 cash awards totaling $5,000 will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete sets of puzzle pictures. Elaborate entries will receive no more consideration than simple ones. In case of ties duplicate awards will be paid.

INFANT MUSICAL INDUSTRY GROWS TO MAN'S ESTATE

Rebirth Traced to Steady Work of Educators.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Something is happening to music. That is, as an industry. It seems to be undergoing a renascence.

Eight years ago the music industry was so moribund that, in the words of one of its executives, "Nine counts had been sounded, and it was tottering on the tenth." Yet now—the music makers are afraid to talk too much of it. The pretty bubble might pop.

Aside from the stampede to music stores that you may have noticed during the Christmas season, the lines of people waiting at the phonograph record counters, the beautiful little pianos and the shiny, brass instruments being sold, there are other concrete illustrations of a new trend.

The Changing Trend.

1. In 1909, when at least one player piano was rattling away in each block of homes, 365,000 pianos were sold in the United States. This is more than half as many as were sold in the entire decade of the '30's. Yet with 106,000 sold in 1939, excluding heavy December sales, the piano industry thinks maybe a boom is near.

2. In 1928, when radio still was struggling to emerge from its embryo stage of crystal sets, the phonograph was the principal music maker of America. That year alone 110 million phonograph records were sold, almost half as many as were sold in all the '30s. Then came the apparent death of phonographs; record sales dropped to 10 million in 1932. But in 1939, again excluding the phenomenal Christmas sales, 50 million were sold, and before five years have passed, the industry expects to surpass its 1928 peak.

3. Few industries experienced so low an ebb during the depression as the combination radio and phonograph, first available in 1928. Less than 25,000 were sold in 1932. Yet in 1939 [again no December], 400,000 were sold at an average cost of $75, a $30,000,000 business.

Many Reasons for Rebirth.

Many explanations have been advanced for this rebirth of musical interest, but L. G. LeMair, president of Lyon & Healy, pioneer Chicago music house, offers one dating back 25 years, when a handful of music teachers met in Iowa to try and work out a coördination of musical education in the public schools.

This group developed into the Music Educators' association. Its goal was teaching music as a necessary part of cultural education. It sponsored active participation thru bands and orchestras and passive education in musical appreciation. From it developed one field that has known little unemployment: that of music supervisors, 35,000 of whom now are in the public schools of the United States.

"A love for music is an inherent part of the human being," Mr. LeMair says, "but sometimes it is repressed. These educators are developing it—and we are beginning to feel the effects."

The Mechanical Vogue.

For those unable to create their own music, he explained, there must be mechanical music. Thus, the vogue in 1909 of the player piano, which was superseded in 1912-14 by the phonograph, it, in turn, being superseded in 1929 by the radio. The first combination radio-phonographs were too expensive, he believes, to be popular. Now, like pianos, they have been taken out of the luxury class.

"Music is such an integral part of the educational system now," he says, "that it is no more a luxury item than any other item used in the educational field."

Nevertheless, education or no education, the most popular phonograph recording at present, which outsells everything else, is not a Tschaikowsky symphony [altho his 5th leads in the classical field], or a Bach concerto, but Orrin Tucker's swing, "Oh, Johnnie, Oh!"

Seven Held in Joy Ride Crime Spree

Steal from 35 Autos

Five young men and two girls who spent six days in an automobile, robbing parked cars and trading in the loot to keep going on a joy ride which took them as far north as Manitowoc, Wis., pleaded guilty to larceny yesterday before Police Magistrate William H. Johnson in Wheaton. They admitted stealing from 35 or more cars since they started out from Elgin New Year's eve. They were held for sentence this week.

River Forest police captured six of the group Friday night when their car was stopped on suspicion. In it were Mrs. Margaret Porterfield, 22 years old; Helen Taylor, 19; Robert Morey, 19, who served a term in Vandalia state farm for petty larceny; Ray Johnson, 21; Edward Sankey, 20, and Maurice Jeannette, 17, all of Elgin. Richard Heath, 19, who had left the party to return to his wife and child, was arrested later in Elgin.

Sheriff Elmer Hoffman of Du Page county had one complaint against the seven. The other thefts occurred outside Chicago and Milwaukee. The group traded the loot to service station attendants for gasoline and to roadside food stands for hamburgers and coffee, sleeping in the parked car nights.

WEDS, THEN GIVES UP AS SUSPECT IN FOILED HOLDUP

New Castle, Ind., Jan. 6 (AP).—Leo Reno of New Castle, a suspect in an unsuccessful attempt to hold up a Harrisburg, Ill., drug store, surrendered to police today on a robbery warrant shortly after he and Miss Catherine Todd, 20 years old, of Harrisburg, were married here.

Both were held but Police Sergeant Fred Brown said no charge had been placed against the girl. Two other New Castle men are sought as accomplices in the holdup, Brown said.

The two and Reno were named by Clayton Wills, 24 years old, of New Castle, who died of bullet wounds Thursday in a Benton, Ill., hospital, as participants in the attempted holdup, according to Sheriff Tom Gram of Harrisburg. Wills' body has been returned here for burial.

SCALDING FATAL TO BABY.

Peru, Ill., Jan. 6 (AP).—Stephen J. Deichmueller, 5 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Deichmueller, died today from scalds suffered when a boiling coffee pot fell from a stove into a baby buggy in which the child was sleeping.

Hodes Drafts Ordinance for Traffic Tickets on Cars

At the request of Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman subcommittee on safety of the city council traffic committee, Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes yesterday drafted an ordinance to permit police to serve traffic summonses by placing them on automobiles. Hodes informed Lindell the proposal was contrary to previous opinions of the city legal department.

A HOLDUP GANG SEIZES $8,742 IN TWO ROBBERIES

Two bold daylight robberies yesterday which netted a total of $8,742 were attributed by the police to the same gang of four masked gunmen. They first entered a currency exchange at 644 Washington boulevard, just after a money truck had delivered $8,200. Edward Segebrecht, the manager; Miss Ruth Schaffner, 162 East Ohio street, the bookkeeper, and a male customer were forced to lie on the floor while the thieves scooped the money out of the open safe.

A short while later they appeared at the A. & A. Blue Flame Burning Oil company at 1323 Altgeld street, just as company drivers were turning in their day's receipts. The thieves herded Walter Jacobsen, vice president, and four drivers into an office, ordered two women employés to lie on the floor, picked up $542 and escaped in an automobile.

FIND BODY OF BABY GIRL.

Willow Springs county highway police yesterday sought the mother of a week old baby girl whose body was found early in the day in a prairie at 121st street and 73d court, Palos Heights.

Senator Would Let a Court Oust Judges.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6 [Special].—The state legislature was asked today to enact a five point program to effect judiciary reform.

The measures were drafted by Senator Thomas C. Desmond [R.], who had announced his intention of proposing such a measure after the acquittal by the senate of Judge George Martin of Brooklyn, whose removal had been recommended by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman. Senator Desmond's measures would:

1. Authorize the Court of Appeals, after a hearing, to remove judges now removable by the state senate.

2. Disqualify judges or judicial candidates who allow judgments against them to remain unsatisfied or who have been adjudicated bankrupt.

3. Create councils on judicial character and fitness to pass on qualifications of judicial candidates.

4. Provide for competitive civil service examinations, prior to appointment, in New York City of city magistrates and justices of the Special Sessions and Domestic Relations courts.

5. Establish a legal discipline commission to curb unethical lawyers.

"The new alternative Court of Appeals method of removing judges provided for in this bill would not repeal the present constitutional method for removal of judges upon recommendation of the governor and a two-thirds vote of the senate," Senator Desmond said.

Court Method's Advantages.

"Removal by the Court of Appeals has the great advantages of being relatively inexpensive; of enabling a judge to be tried by a court which is familiar with questions relating to judicial conduct, and of assuring a trial free from politics," he added.

"The recent long drawn out senate trial of Judge Martin, with its expenses totaling more than $100,000, illustrates the exorbitant costs and other defects of legislative trials. Adoption of the Court of Appeals method would provide just trials with great savings.

Control Over Lawyers.

"The legal discipline bill would create a five member commission, appointed by the Court of Appeals, to investigate the character and fitness of lawyers and to discipline those guilty of professional misconduct.

"Such an agency would reduce miscarriage of justice, lessen expense, and cleanse the legal profession of 'ambulance chasers'."

SLASH IN BUDGET MAY COST JOBS OF CITY WORKERS

Bureau Mergers Studied to Cut Costs.

The proposed $2,000,000 reduction in the city's 1940 operating budget, which will be considered Wednesday by the city council, will mean that many city employés may lose their jobs, Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], finance committee chairman, said yesterday.

The reduction is necessary because the city failed to realize $2,000,000 in anticipated revenue for 1940 from the $3,136,914 which Cook county owes the city for municipal court costs. The tentative budget, which was submitted to the council on Dec. 21, contained this $2,000,000 as a revenue item.

Negotiations for a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan against the county's debt apparently have broken down, however, and the county board has appropriated only $640,000 as a 1940 payment on the debt. The debt, which has been accumulating since 1931, was fixed in judgments the city obtained against the county for the court costs.

New Equipment Sought.

The city is considering spending $500,000 for new alley cleaning equipment during the year and providing an additional $400,000 for improved garbage disposal. The difference between this new outlay of $900,000 and the county's payment of $640,000 would be made up by economies in city bureaus.

"Mayor Kelly demanded the utmost economy in making the budget," Arvey said. "He wanted it to be the lowest possible amount consistent with the proper functions of government."

The tentative budget was $58,078,392. Contemplated reductions for 1940 would bring it to approximately $56,000,000, or below the $57,805,248 budget for 1939. A public hearing on the budget will be held tomorrow morning in the council chambers.

Bureau Mergers Studied.

Ald. Arvey said that the reductions will be effected by reducing budgetary requests of department heads and by refusing to appropriate funds for jobs now vacant.

"In addition," he said, "the finance committee staff still is studying several methods of consolidating some city departments and bureaus to create economy and efficiency. Such changes will affect many city workers."

"Will any people be let out?" Arvey was asked.

"I don't see how that can be avoided," he replied.

It is understood that one of the consolidation plans is a proposal to shift some of the work of the board of local improvements to the new department of superhighways and subways.

Sewer Department Planned.

Another change being considered is the establishment of a department of sewers and sanitation which would have sole charge of sewer construction and repairs and street and alley cleaning. That work now is done by the department of public works.

The board of education met yesterday to consider the 1940 school budget and voted to establish a school textbook bindery for the repair of old books. It was explained that the bindery, estimated to cost $15,000 a year, will replace a Work Projects administration book binding project which has been under way for three years.

SENTENCE CHILD BRIDE, 10; MOTHER AND HUSBAND, 21

Athens, O., Jan. 6 (AP).—The four day marriage of a girl of 10 to a 21 year old coal miner wound up in a courtroom tonight when the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Schall, and the bride's mother, Mrs. Lydia Hudnall, were sentenced on delinquency charges.

The marriage Tuesday was revealed when Donald Hudnall swore to warrants against his wife, the child, and the husband. Sheriff Charles Bayless said the mother told a marriage license clerk her daughter, Mary Alice Limberg, was 16.

"Yes, I knew the girl was young, but I didn't seen anything wrong with her getting married," the mother said. "She's almost as big as I am. Schall is a good worker and will take care of her."

The young couple stood mute while Juvenile Judge Francis White sentenced Mary Alice to an indefinite term in the Girl's Industrial school at Delaware, and Schall to a year in jail. Mrs. Hudnall sobbed while she was sentenced to a year in the women's reformatory at Marysville. Judge White said the marriage will be annulled.

New York, Jan. 6 [Special].—A woman sat on the bench of the court of special sessions here today for the first time since that court was established in 1744.

Magistrate Anna M. Kross engaged in some banter with Chief Justice William R. Bayes as she took a special two weeks' assignment to help clear the crowded general sessions calendar in Brooklyn. Justice Bayes, confiding that his one objection is that judges can't smoke when on the bench, drew from Mrs. Kross the retort: "Well, I'd like to knit." They then agreed they saw no objections to Chief Magistrate Henry Curran's assignment of a woman when asked to lend the special sessions court a hand.

UNION MEMBERS TELL HOW CHIEFS THREATEN THEM

Revelations Unfolded in Court Suit.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 6 [Special].—District court witnesses during the last week told of threatened violence, attempted shakedowns, and high handed methods in the conduct of the General Drivers' union, local No. 544.

Myles Dunne.

The occasion for this new chapter in the stormy history of the union, two of whose officers have been slain in the last three years, is the trial of a suit brought by five former members demanding an accounting of union funds. Begun eleven months ago, the suit went to trial this week after numerous delays.

Robert Fischer, a plaintiff, testified that when he demanded an accounting of union funds, he was threatened by Myles Dunne, a union officer and one of three brothers often involved in Minneapolis labor troubles. Fischer testified: "Dunne told me that if I asked again for an accounting my wife would find me in a gutter."

Another plaintiff, John Asplund, testified he had been out of work almost all of the time since he joined in the suit against the union. A defense objection prevented John D. Ryan from describing how his truck was wrecked shortly after the suit was started. Edward Corbett, a union driver since the 1934 coal strike, said the union prevented him from driving his own truck on a job in which he was engaged under contract and forced him to hire a union driver.

Federal Judge's Nephew Dies of Self-Inflicted Wounds

William F. Brice, 40 years old, an advertising salesman, who slashed his wrists with a razor blade Friday in his room at the Alcazar hotel, 3000 Washington boulevard, died yesterday in county hospital. He told police that he came here in November from his home in San Antonio, Tex., and had been lonely and despondent since then. His uncle, Charles R. Brice, is a federal judge at Roswell, N. M. Brice was unmarried.

BOY, 12, AIDS TWO ROBBERS.

Two robbers, who had a boy about 12 years old as a confederate, took $50 yesterday in a holdup of John Caporale's dry goods store at 1453 Taylor street.

SEEK LEGISLATIVE CURB ON JOBLESS INSURANCE BODY

Lund Cites Lack of State Control Over 1,760.

The legislature should take steps to gain a measure of control over the new unemployment compensation division of the state department of labor, Representative Arnold L. Lund said yesterday. As it stands now, the legislature, the governor, and the judiciary have no power regarding the 1,760 employés of the bureau, he said.

Under the present system the state director of labor, Martin P. Durkin, represents the state in preparing a budget for the division. After conferences betwee. Durkin and local federal officials, the budget is submitted to the social security board in Washington, where it is approved. Then Illinois is credited with the amount allotted for administrative expense—about $4,000,000 a year.

Seeks Voice for Assembly.

"There is no reason why the general assembly could not study these budgets when in session and make appropriations for the amount needed," said Lund, a Republican from Riverside. "That is the practice in some states.

"Altho the appropriation would be from state funds, the state later would be reimbursed by the federal government. At least the legislature would have something to say about how many employés were to be hired.

"Another practice used in some states is to have a legislative committee from both houses work in conjunction with the director of labor, making possible a report which can be helpful to the general assembly.

"No time should be lost by the Illinois legislature in adopting one of the two methods. At present Mr. Durkin is the sole boss of the 1,760 employés. In accordance with federal law, all are under civil service and need not pay 2 per cent of their salaries to the Illinoisans organization for Gov. Horner's 1940 campaign."

Employers Pay Upkeep.

Illinois employers pay for the upkeep of the division, and for the benefits to "insured" jobless persons which began July 1, 1939. The total pay roll tax amounts to about $89,000,000 a year. Of the 3 per cent paid on salaries, 2.7 per cent goes for benefits. The remaining 23 per cent goes for administration—of which the state gets about one-half.

"Let us not overlook what is possible for us to do to keep a guiding hand on the expenditure of these millions paid by private employers," Lund said. "The centralization of power has already been put thru, but the legislature still can act to get itself a vantage point from which to watch what is being done with the money."

MOTHER BURNED IN HOME FIRE.

Belvidere, Ill., Jan. 6 [Special].—Mrs. Verna Burnell, 30 years old, was burned critically last night when she ran into her blazing farm home, five miles wet of here, to rescue her son, James, 5, who was later carried from the burning structure by his father. The brick residence with nearly all furnishings was burned to the ground with a loss of $5,000.

PEOPLES GAS CO. ASKS REHEARING ON RATE BOOST

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company yesterday filed a petition with the Illinois Supreme court in Springfield asking a rehearing on the court's ruling of last Dec. 12. This ruling held that an increase in gas rates which has been in effect for 22 months for more than 800,000 domestic consumers is invalid.

The ruling last month was in the nature of a review on the Supreme court's original decision of last February, in which the rate increase was denied. The new hearing will concern the evidence in the case. In its new petition, the utility charged that the court disregarded questions of fact presented in the Cook county Circuit court and favored findings of the Illinois Commerce commission.

The company put the new rates in effect last Feb. 4. Since then it has collected an additional $5,600,000 under them. Minimum domestic monthly rates were raised from 60 to 90 cents, and 32 cents was added to all other domestic bills.

Per couple $5.00 Single $3.00

It was 20 years ago when Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, supported by a group of Chicago's leading citizens began his crusade against the prevailing high costs of adequate medical care. Though confined to a highly specialized department of medicine this first adventure was tremendously successful. During the 12 years it was under his personal direction it became the largest medical organization of its kind . . . attracting the attention of outstanding health authorities throughout the world. Tens of thousands of afflicted persons were cared for at the lowest medical fees ever offered. The widespread public acceptance of this effort encouraged him to explore its possibilities in all fields of medicine and surgery. This led to the organization of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE, which was opened to the public in January, 1933. Its success in many respects has been even more remarkable. It has been hailed by a friendly press and an enthusiastic public as an important step toward the solution of the problem of the high cost of medical care. For seven years now, without benefit of charity, philanthropy or tax support it has gone forward steadily. Increasing thousands of men, women and children have come for various services during the past year. An increasing number of physicians in private practice also have sent many additional patients for low cost X-ray studies, medical laboratory tests and diagnostic services.

Because of these practical demonstrations of confidence and support, the facilities of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE will be available to greater numbers of people than ever before, and they will receive progressively better services. New equipment is being added constantly . . . and the large number of patients attended annually provide the medical staff and associated physicians with increasing knowledge and experience that is of inestimable value to those whom they serve. To support this great pool of medical knowledge there is one of the finest X-ray departments in the middle west, a complete and highly efficient medical laboratory and other scientific equipment. This combination of all medical services under one roof makes it possible to render complete medical care not only more efficiently but at low cost. Inspection is cordially invited.

Timely Medical Attention Protects Your Health

SILVER SKATES ENTRIES TO CLOSE AT MIDNIGHT

OPENING RACES WILL BE HELD ON SATURDAY

155 to Compete for Altgeld Park.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This is the last opportunity to enter the Silver Skates Derbies which will be held next Saturday and Sunday in Garfield park. All entries must be mailed before midnight tonight. The list of contestants now being compiled for the eight Derbies sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will determine eligibility for the races even if it becomes necessary to postpone them as was done last year.

Gen. John V. Clinnin.

Hundreds of entries have been received in the last few days, many directors of parks and playgrounds having waited until the end of the week because of preliminary tryout races Thursday qualifying races were conducted in Altgeld park, where a group of 155 skaters in the boys' Derbies has been assembled by Allan Carpenter, park supervisor. Peter Miller, president of the Illinois Skating association, also is employed at this park. Miller, who was named Olympic skating coach for the races scheduled in Germany this winter, which were canceled because of the war, also coaches the Catholic Youth Organization skaters.

Skaters Must Be Amateurs.

There are no restrictions on competition in Silver Skates except that all skaters must be amateurs and that those who are 16 years old or over must register with the Illinois Skating association. This membership is valid for a year and permits competition in all meets sanctioned by the association. Registration may be made on the day of the preliminaries. Former champions are not permitted to compete again in the age class on which their titles were won.

Skaters will have had nearly two weeks in which to train for this year's Derbies. The qualifying distance for the preliminaries is half the distance to be skated in the title events. Preliminaries in four Derbies will be held on Saturday afternoon. These are the boys' midget, juvenile, and junior Derbies, and the girls' junior Derby. All other preliminaries and the eight title events will be held Sunday afternoon. The qualifying distance and championship distance for each age class follow:

Derby—	Preliminary.	Final.
Boys' midget	110 yds.	220 yds.
Boys' juvenile	220 yds.	440 yds.
Boys' junior	440 yds.	½ mile
Boys' intermediate	½ mile	1 mile
Men's senior	1 mile	2 miles
Girls' junior	220 yds.	440 yds.
Girls' intermediate	440 yds.	½ mile
Girls' senior	½ mile	1 mile

Austin Club Enters 43.

Among the other teams are the Austin Skating association, composed of Austin High school skaters and including several graduates; the Latko Skating club, and the Elgin, Ill., Skating association. George A. O'Connell Jr. has entered 43 skaters for the Austin club. There is no geographical limitation and generally contestants come from many midwestern states. Iowa has been represented several times. Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin furnish nearly all the contestants, however. This year Don Burson, 2216 Northland avenue, Lakewood, O., has registered for the boys' juvenile Derby.

Roland W. Walbaum, coach of the Elgin squad, is confident that major prizes will be won by his club. "Last year," he wrote in submitting the team entry, "the best we could do

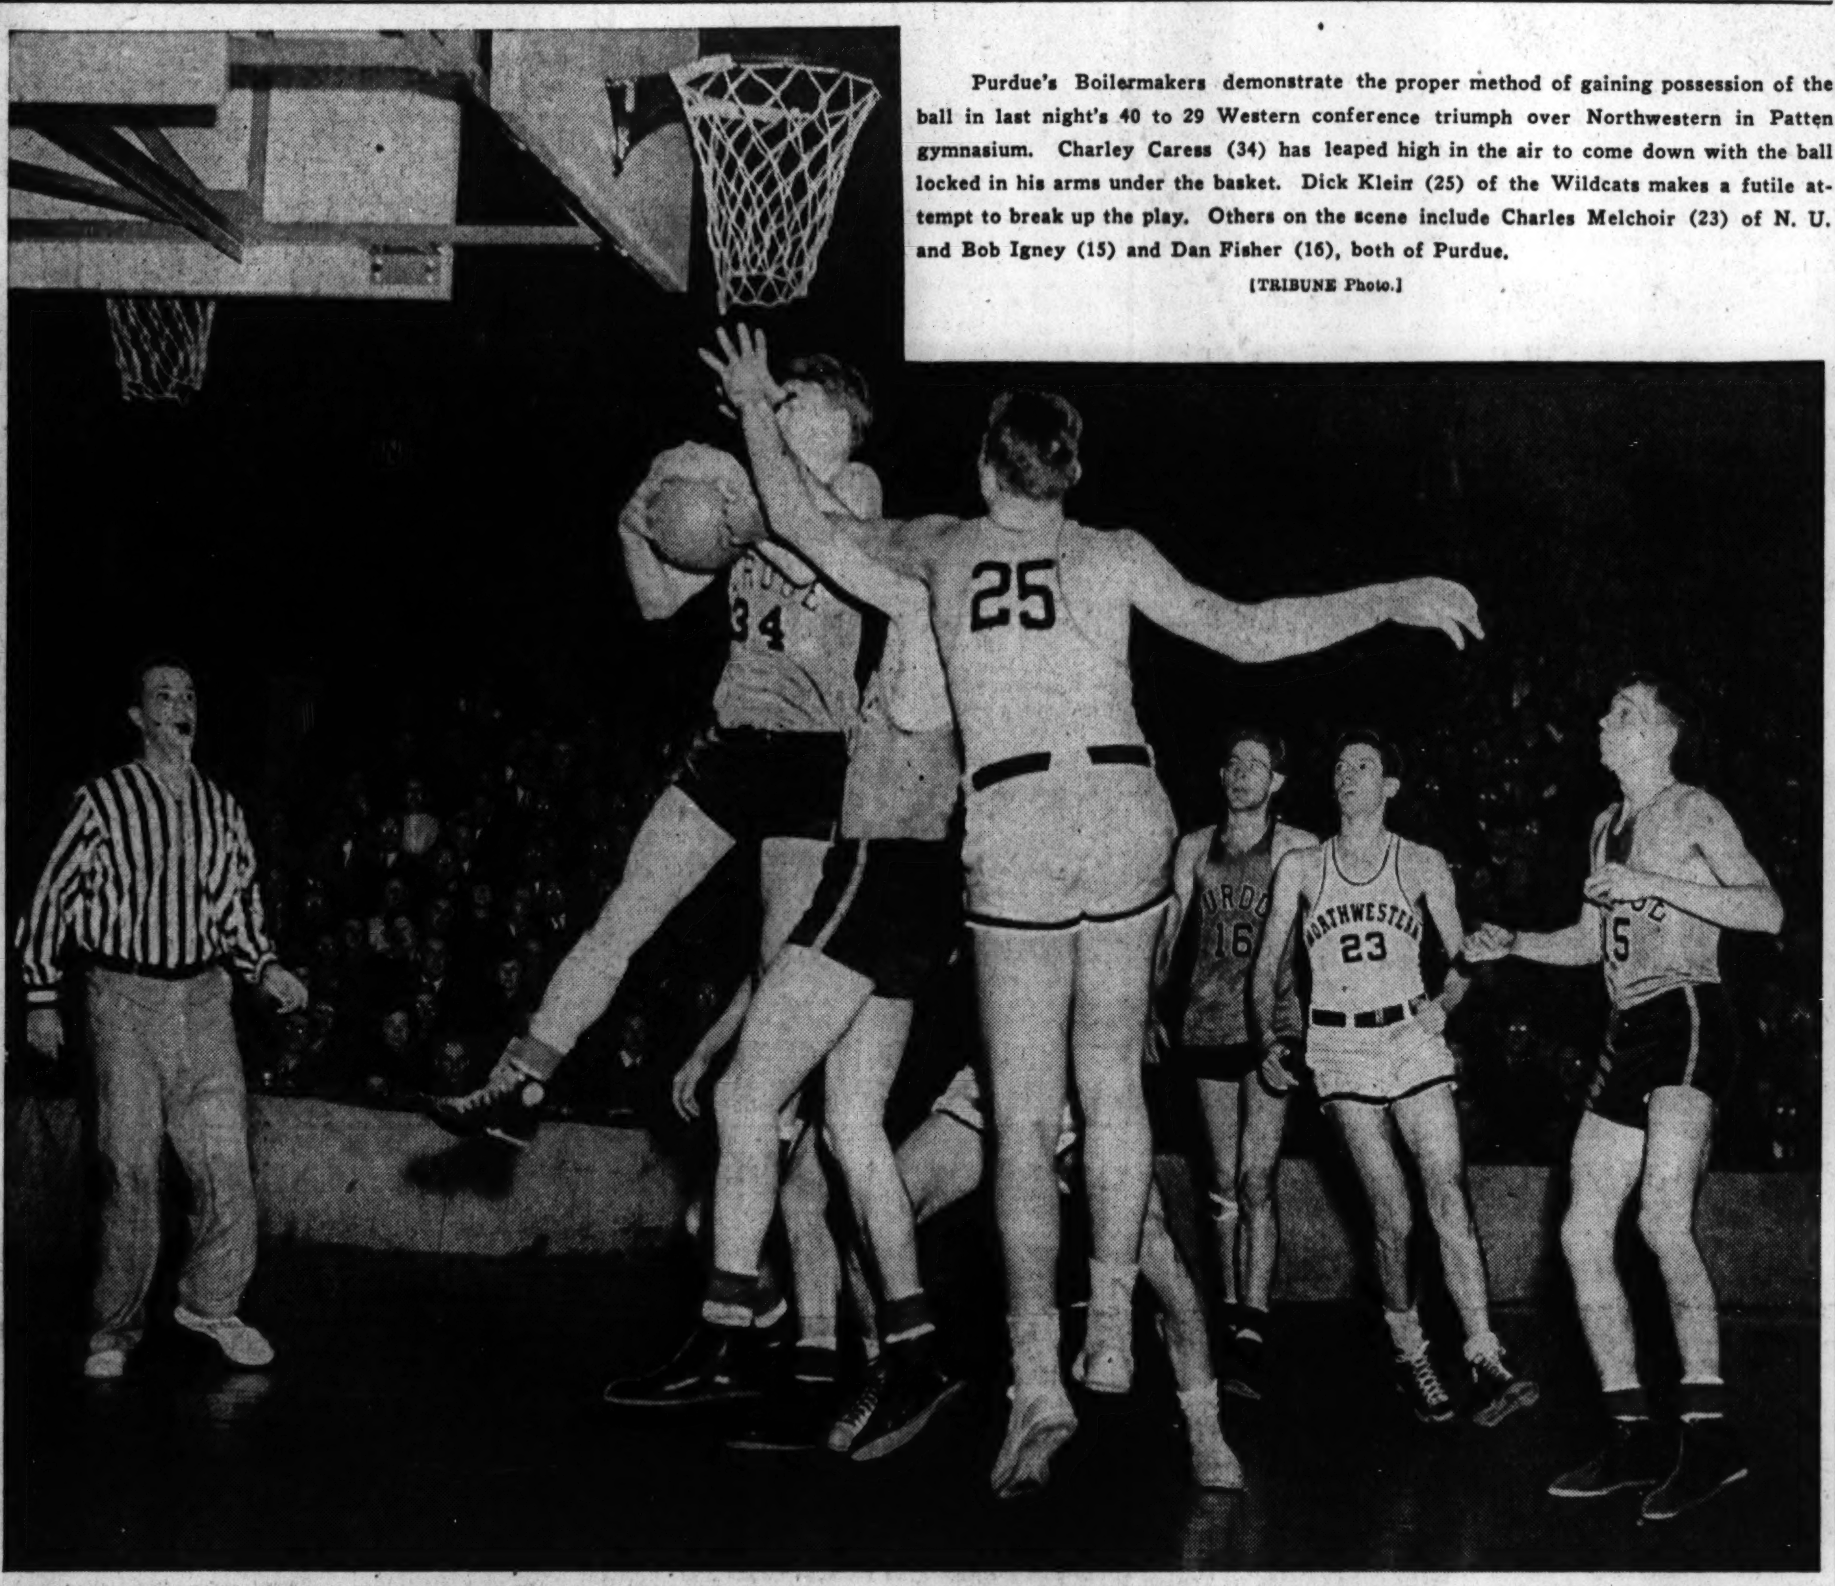
BOILERMAKERS PROVE IT PAYS TO FOLLOW THAT BALL



Purdue's Boilermakers demonstrate the proper method of gaining possession of the ball in last night's 40 to 29 Western conference triumph over Northwestern in Patten gymnasium. Charley Caress (34) has leaped high in the air to come down with the ball locked in his arms under the basket. Dick Klein (25) of the Wildcats makes a futile attempt to break up the play. Others on the scene include Charles Melchoir (23) of N. U. and Bob Igney (15) and Dan Fisher (16), both of Purdue.

Filly Wins $10,000 Stake at Santa Anita

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP).—Neil S. McCarthy's Kentucky bred filly, Augury, romped home ahead in a field of 14 to capture the $10,000 added Santa Maria stakes at Santa Anita today. With Lloyd Knapp in the saddle, Augury found the sloppy going to her liking and covered the six furlongs in 1:14 2-5. Camp Verde was second and Liberty Franc third.

Bought for $1,000.

It was Augury's sixth victory in her last seven starts. All her campaigning has been done in California. She was a $1,000 bargain in the Saratoga yearling sales of 1938.

Coupled with Certainty, which finished fourth, and Big Ben, a temperamental campaigner, Augury paid $5.40, $3.20, and $2.40; Camp Verde, $5.20 and $3.60, and Liberty Franc, $3.40.

Turns on Speed to Win.

Heading Camp Verde as the field turned into the stretch, Augury stayed in the middle of the track and turned on a burst of speed to win by two and one-half lengths. Liberty Franc, overcoming trouble at the start and around the far turn, finished fast and almost caught the tiring Camp Verde.

Augury's victory was worth $9,950 to McCarthy and he picked up another $500 on Certainty.

U.S.G.A. ELECTS PIERCE PRESIDENT; OUTLINES DRIVE FOR NEW MEMBERS

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Harold W. Pierce of Boston, who today was elected president of the United States Golf association, outlined as his first official act the U. S. G. A.'s plan to seek increased membership in 1940. At the moment, Pierce pointed out at the annual meeting, only 822 of the country's 2,400 odd golf clubs are members of the association.

"We believe this is due chiefly to an erroneous feeling that the U. S. G. A. is interested more in its eastern representation than in its membership as a whole," Pierce said, "and to a lack of understanding of what we are doing and trying to do." To relieve this situation the U. S. G. A. shortly will send out a pamphlet outlining its policies and program. Copies will go to nonmember clubs.

Needs Additional Revenue.

Behind this campaign for greater membership also is a need for additional revenue. With the exception of Executive Secretary Joe Dey, U. S. G. A. officers receive no salary. But revenue is needed to carry on the work of the greens section, which last year cost $27,000, and the New York office, which needed $24,000 for its 1939 operations.

Pierce was elected unanimously, to succeed Archie M. Reid of New York, president for two years. The only other new officer chosen was Morton G. Bogue of New York, vice president. The following were reëlected: Vice president, George W. Blossom Jr., Chicago; secretary, Frank M. Hardt, Haverford, Pa.; treasurer, Jess W. Sweetser, New York; counsel, Charles W. Littlefield, Montclair, N. J.

The question of amateurism again came in for a good deal of attention, with the U. S. G. A. urging players to avoid "competitions sponsored by people who have no connection with organized golf" and which "apparently have, for their underlying purpose, commercial publicity."

Warns Equipment Makers.

Pierce added a warning to equipment manufacturers who seek to induce amateurs to use their clubs and balls to "stop being Santa Claus and give the kids a break."

"If the manufacturers don't stop this practice," he said, "the U. S. G. A. has the power to stop them."

The meeting approved executive committee decisions to keep the trial stymie rule in effect for another year; make it illegal for players to test the consistency of greens by drawing their putters along the surface, and to make visiting foreign golfers, with rare exceptions, play in sectional qualifying rounds for the open and amateur championships. In the past they have been qualified automatically, but it was felt there was too high a premium on places for domestic players to permit continuation of this practice.

NATIONAL OPEN—June 6-8 at Canterbury Golf club, Warrensville, O.; entries close May 14; sectional qualifying rounds May 27.

NATIONAL AMATEUR — Sept. 9-14 at Winged Foot Golf club, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; entries close Aug. 13; sectional qualifying rounds Aug. 27.

NATIONAL WOMEN'S—Sept. 23-28 at Del Monte [Cal.] Golf and Country club; entries close Sept. 6.

WALKER CUP MATCH — Scheduled for Aug. 30-31 at Town and Country club, St. Paul.

Invitation to play the Walker Cup match has been extended to the Royal and Ancient Golf club of St. Andrew's, golf's ruling body in Great Britain, but that group to date neither has accepted nor declined. There is little likelihood the match will be played.

YANKEES MAKE LOU GEHRIG AN ALL-TIME YANKEE

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The New York Yankees paid another tribute today to Lou Gehrig, the great first baseman who was forced to retire last season because of a form of infantile paralysis.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the world champions, announced that Gehrig would not be given an unconditional release, but instead his name would be placed on the voluntarily retired list.

Furthermore, Barrow said Gehrig's uniform number—four—never will be allotted to any other Yanke player and that his locker over by the window in a corner of the clubhouse will not be used by any other player. Gehrig's name will remain on the door and it will always be available for his personal use.

Heafner's 139 Leads Field in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP). — Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., moved into the lead at the halfway point of the annual $5,000 Los Angeles open tournament today as heavy fairways threw back the attack of the nation's leading professional and amateur golfers.

Heafner toured the rain soaked Los Angeles Country club course in 68, two under par, and turned in a card of 71—68—139 for the first two rounds of the tournament. Heafner, who tied the course record of 64 last week, was one of four players able to break par today.

Harrison and Hogan Tie.

Crowding Heafer with 140s were E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., and Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y. Hogan had a 69 this afternoon to add to his 71 and Harrison a 72 to go with his first round 68.

Hero of yesterday's first round, Amateur Wilford Wehrle of Chicago, had a bad first nine, but came back with a 34 and took a 74 for a 141 total.

Scores of 156 or better qualified for tomorrow's 18 hole third round. Ninety-three qualified.

MICHIGAN SEES CHANCE TO PLAY 2 WITH OHIO STATE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 6 (AP).—Some of the boys began beating the drums today for a Michigan-Ohio State football double-header next fall with the extra game to fill in for the University of Chicago's absence.

There was no official comment on the proposition, an informal suggestion, but at least two Michigan coaching aids expressed approval. The precedent established by the Minnesota-Michigan home-and-home series in 1926 was emphasized.

The withdrawal of Chicago from football left Michigan and Ohio State, among others, each with an open date for 1940. So far Michigan athletic authorities have given no indication of what school they would like to schedule.

Crisler Asks Advice.

Before departing for the west coast, Fritz Crisler, head coach, was reported to have asked his assistants which team they would desire for an opponent on the Chicago date.

Scouts Bennie Oosterbaan and Wally Weber, the latter also head freshman coach, publicly nominated Ohio State today. The Buckeyes and Wolverines, traditional foes, always draw huge crowds both here and in Columbus. Next fall the Wolverines and Buckeyes close the season in Columbus.

Weber suggested that the Big Ten approve a second Michigan-Ohio State game here the week following, or a one-week-earlier start of the season with the Buckeyes playing here in the opener.

Favors Hard Schedule.

"I suggest," Weber said, "that we get special dispensation from Big Ten headquarters to meet the Buckeyes in Ann Arbor after we wind up the regular season with them in Columbus. Or let us start the season one week earlier than usual and meet the Buckeyes here a week before the opener with Michigan Stat."

Observers have interpreted from one of Coach Crisler's remarks that he would like to have a top-notch opponent for the Chicago date. Crisler said the 1939 schedule, in which Michigan was tripped up by Illinois and Minnesota after Wolverine fans had visualized a perfect season, had tended to induce letdowns.

PURPLE RALLY FAILS AS PURDUE WINS, 40-29; MICHIGAN TRIUMPHS

Wisconsin Defeats Chicago Five, 20 to 18.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern's basketball men lost their opening western conference game last night in Patten gymnasium to Purdue, 40 to 29. It was the Wildcats' first defeat of the season, and while the margin of 11 points adequately represented the Boilermakers' superior speed, it also attested phenomenal ability from the free throw line.

Six Boilermakers stepped up at various times and accounted for 14 points in 15 attempts. Dan Fisher failed once in the second half, but no doubt his error will be excused in view of the attack he led to bring victory after the Wildcats had overcome an 18 to 6 half time deficit.

Turn Away Fans.

Northwestern's 13 point rally to tie Purdue, 19 to 19, early in the second half, brought the capacity crowd of more than 6,000 to its feet. Hundreds were denied admission to the gymnasium and many others jammed the corners between the sections of bleachers.

Al Butherus opened the second period with a field goal. He and Chuck Melchoir, veterans from last season, were playing with Dick Klein, Ad Vance, and Bob Shepard. Shepard followed with a free throw on Fisher's foul. Then, Shepard continued with three field goals in succession, all at least 25 feet out from the board, and Northwestern trailed only 19 to 15.

In this time Klein missed two free throws, following the pattern which eventually gave the Wildcats a record of 12 failures in 17 attempts. But after Vance whipped in another goal, Klein batted in the tying field goal on his second try.

Deadlock Soon Broken.

The deadlock was brief. Elwood Yeager, on Melchoir's foul, scored a point. Bob Igney scored after a teammate intercepted a pass; Fisher added a point on Vance's foul and a field goal after Fred Beretta had hit from far out. This eight point surge left Northwestern trailing, 27 to 19, and altho Melchoir and Shepard scored to halve the lead with 10 minutes to play, it was the Wilcat's last serious threat. With another rally the Boilermakers raced to a 35 to 23 lead, insuring victory.

In addition to Fisher, Forrest Sprowl, and Igney, whose markmanship highlighted the game, Purdue's superior team speed and ball handling were factors that overwhelmed the Wildcats.

Purdue Too Speedy.

The aggressive Purdue defense, which frequently anticipated Northwestern passes and harassed Klein and Harman, in particular, was at its best in the first half. Although the Wildcats obviously were not on their target, they were upset most by inability to match Purdue speed. Don Kruker's two followup shots were the only Wildcat field goals in the half and nearly 14 minutes intervened between them. Lineups:

WISCONSIN, 20; CHICAGO, 18

A cautious Wisconsin basketball team defeated Chicago's Maroons, 20 to 18, in the opening game of the Big Ten season for both in the Midway fieldhouse before 4,000 last night. The Wisconsin victory was due largely to the alert play of Bob Schwartz, who scored 13 of his team's points on six baskets and a free throw.

Two minutes before the end of the game, Schwartz, a 6 foot 1½ inch veteran, stole the ball and raced the length of the floor pursued by Capt. Dick Lounsbury of the Maroons, who was unable to prevent the winning basket. The Chicago team, which had tied the score 30 seconds earlier on a free throw by Jim Charlton, sophomore guard, was unable to score after Schwartz's sixth basket.

Because of its zone defense, Chicago was helpless when the Badgers stalled. Altho the Maroons gradually decreased a six point edge Wisconsin held in the middle of the first half, they were able to take the lead only once, when Art Jorgenson dropped in a long field goal. Joe Stampf led the Maroons in scoring with 11 points.

Play in the first half was sluggish, with only one basket and no free throws registered in the first 10 minutes. The score at the half was Wisconsin, 11; Chicago, 9. Lineups:

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 6 [Special].—Indiana university withstood a terrific challenge by Illinois in the final five minutes to win the rivals' Western conference basketball opener tonight, 38 to 36, before 6,000. Each team went into the game undefeated in seven nonconference contests.

The Illini, playing without their high scoring captain, Bill Hapac, who is suffering from influenza, trailed at the end of the first half, 21 to 13. With less than a second to play, Colin Drish, Illinois forward, tried a long field goal that would have sent the battle into overtime.

Illinois outscored the Hoosiers from the field, 16 goals to 15, but Indiana capitalized on free throws to clear the first hurdle in its bid for the Big Ten title. Indiana scored 8 free throws out of 19 attempts, while Illinois made only 4 in 12 tries.

Paul [Curly] Armstrong of Fort Wayne, Indiana forward, paced the Hoosiers with 17 points scored on seven field and three free throws. Walter Evers, Illinois forward, not only led his team in scoring, with 12 points, but also turned in an outstanding floor game.

Indiana Never Headed.

Altho Indiana never was headed from Armstrong's opening field goal to the final thrill packed seconds, Illinois was ever a threat, tying the count, 8 to 8, midway in the first period, and closing the gap to two points early in the last half, Evers leading the rally. Indiana called time out, after which a free throw by Bill Menke and a field goal and free throw by Armstrong pulled Indiana ahead, 37 to 31.

Drish then connected from the foul line and O'Neill and Evers sank baskets, cutting Indiana's margin to 37 to 36. Armstrong made Indiana's final score on a free throw and then refused a second free throw, choosing to take possession of the ball out of bounds.

Illini Miss Twice.

After Marvin Huffman fouled Vic Wukovits the Illinois center likewise made a similar choice. When the ball was thrown back into play Henry Sachs attempted a long shot which fell short, and seconds later Drish missed his final volley from far out in the court.

Illinois was the fifth team which met its first defeat of the season at the hands of Indiana. Lineup:

MICHIGAN 40, OHIO STATE 35

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 6 [Special].—An aggressive Michigan basketball team defeated Ohio State, defending Big Ten champion, 40 to 35, in a conference opener tonight. The Wolverines, who had won six out of their seven preseason contests, set up a tight defense and uncovered a brilliant sharp-shooter as they overcame the Buckeyes' imposing height advantage to take and hold the lead after five minutes of play.

It was pint-sized Herb Brogan, Lansing, Mich., guard, who made good on a long shot attack and paced the winners with 13 points, coming thru whenever Ohio came close. He was followed in the scoring column by Capt. Jim Rae with 11 points, while Capt. Bob Lynch led the Ohio scorers with 9 points.

Ohio took advantage of Michigan fouls to gain a 5 to 1 advantage in the first few minutes but Charley Pink and Brogan pulled their team to the front and Michigan held it. Its lead at half time was 26 to 18.

The Buckeyes came to life late in the final period, however. With Michigan leading, 36 to 30, Bill Goss and Jack McLain accounted for two baskets and a foul shot to pull Ohio to within one point of the Wolverines. The threat died when Rae sank a

Indiana Policeman Wins by Inches.

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Don Lash, starting the 1940 indoor track campaign just as he opened the 1939 season, fought his way to a one-tenth second victory over Tommy Deckard in the invitation two mile race in the Columbus council, K. of C., games tonight in the 13th Regiment armory, Brooklyn.

Lash, in the lead for 11 of the 16 laps and never worse than fourth, drove into the tape inches ahead of his fellow Indianan in the fast flat floor time of 9 minutes 8.6 seconds. The Indiana state policeman had to overtake Deckard coming down the last backstretch, gained the lead going into the final turn, and held it down to the finish line.

MacMitchell Runs Third.

In third place, some six yards back, was Leslie MacMitchell, I. C. 4-A cross-country champion, who was running this distance for the first time. The New York university sophomore ran a nicely paced race as he finished ahead of Archie San Romani, Sugar bowl winner a week ago, and the veteran Joe McCluskey of Manchester, Conn.

Glenn Cunningham, winner at 800 meters a year ago, came back at 880 yards tonight with a fast finish in the last half-lap to defeat James Kehoe, Southern conference champion from the University of Maryland, in 1:56.1. The Kansas veteran came along on the inside down the back stretch, then moved to the outside rounding the turn to catch Curtis Giddings of the Grand Street Boys' association and then hold off Kehoe in the final few yards.

Jim Herbert Wins.

Jim Herbert, N. Y. U. Negro star, surprised in taking the 500 yard special. He won by five yards from John Quigley, Manhattan college freshman, with Quigley in turn holding a two yard advantage over last year's winner and record breaker at 500 meters, Wes Wallace of Fordham. The time of 58.6 seconds was only a second slower than the record for the distance.

Peacock Wins Sprints.

Eulace Peacock, former N. C. A. A. champion from Temple now running for the Shore A. C., Elberon, N. J., won the great American sprint series with two first places and a second. Peacock captured the 60 yard dash, in which Herbert Thompson, national indoor champion, pulled a tendon; took the 100 easily and was second in the 80.

Peacock won the sprint trophy with a low score of four points. Eddie O'Sullivan of the New York A. C. was second with eight points.

The 1,000 yard handicap was divided into two sections. W. Hewlett of St. John's, New York, running with a handicap of 32 yards, won the first section in 2 minutes 14.4 seconds, and Andrew Neiding of Manhattan, handicapped 10 yards, triumphed in the second section in 2 minutes 14.1 seconds.

ARTILLERY TRIO BEATS RAMBLERS, 16-14, FOR NO. 4

The 124th Field Artillery polo team of Lieutenants Don Rice, Bill Fergus and Russ Masmussen came from behind to defeat the Chicago Ramblers, 16 to 14, last night in the 124th armory.

The victory gave the undefeated artillery team a commanding lead in the senior division of the Metropolitan Polo league with four consecutive triumphs. It now holds a decision over each of the four other contenders.

Fergus Leads Scoring.

Lieut. Fergus led the scoring with eight goals, two of which came as the result of penalty shots. Gene Bauer of the Ramblers made seven goals.

The artillery trio trailed until near the end of the third period when Lieut. Fergus tied the count at 10 apiece with a backhand shot from midfield. Capt. Romeo Mura put the Ramblers ahead momentarily, but Lieut. Rice came back by tapping the ball in from in front of the goal. Lieut. Rice then gave the 124th the lead.

Bauer's seventh goal knotted the score at 14 all with two minutes to go. Then Lieut. Fergus drove in the deciding goal and added another on a free shot just before the bell.

Ireland Sets Record.

Maj. Leslie R. Ireland set a new scoring record for the season by driving in 10 goals to lead the Chicago Shamrocks to a 17 to 3 victory over the Meadowbrook Club of Milwaukee in the first game of the double header.

By winning, the Shamrocks, making their debut in Metropolitan Polo league play, joined the Ranchers of Hinsdale as the only undefeated team in the four to six goal division.

The Milwaukee trio, playing without Art Wangerin, went scoreless until midway in the third period, at which point the Shamrocks had rolled up a 12 to 0 lead. The defeat was the third in as many starts for Milwaukee.

SUTKA TO RISK WINNING STREAK WITH BARBARA

Pair Meet in 10 Round Bout Tomorrow.

Joe Sutka, Wyandotte, Mich., boxer, will place his winning streak of three straight knockouts at stake in a 10 round bout with Johnny Barbara which will head the first 1940 show in Marigold gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tomorrow. It will be Barbara's first appearance as a middleweight. He had trouble making the welterweight limit.

In his first professional fight against Karl Martin in the same arena March 1, 1937, Barbara weighed 147½ pounds, one-half more than the welter poundage. Barbara won the match on a three round technical knockout. In his last start against Tommy Pallatin, also in Marigold, last Oct. 16, Johnny scaled 152¾ pounds. Altho this weight was seven and one-half pounds more than that carried by Pallatin, Barbara lost an eight round decision.

As a result Barbara threatened to retire from the ring, but he changed his mind when told that making an unnatural weight might have been responsible for the setback.

Joey Spiegel, Milwaukee junior welterweight, who was defeated by Young Kid McCoy in five rounds on Nov. 6, will be given an opportunity to even the score with the Detroit fighter in a rematch, listed as a six round semi-final.

Matches of four rounds will bring together Marion Mosley and Andy Rapaski, Bobby Ryan and Ralph Guajardo.

Johnny Behr, Illinois Athletic club sports director, has received the entry of Tony Bausone for competition in the eighth annual amateur boxing tournament in the I. A. C. gymnasium Jan. 16, 17, and 24. Bausone, who will represent the Catholic Youth organization, is the second winner of a 1939 I. A. C. championship to register. Homer Williams, Savoy A. C. boxer, is the other. However, only Bausone will defend his title, returning as a bantamweight. Williams, who won the featherweight championship a year ago, is back seeking the lightweight title. Bausone, who is 17 years old, lives at 4345 Monroe street.

Only three of the other six champions of last year—Flyweight Al Noto, Lightweight Harry Sparrow, and Middleweight Hiner Thomas—are eligible to compete in the 1940 tournament. The remaining three of the championship group — Welterweight Jack Carter, Light Heavyweight Altus Allen, and Heavyweight Williams Snell—are now boxing professionally.

After he battles Tony Zale in Chicago Stadium Jan. 19 Middleweight Champion Al Hostak may meet Teddy Yarosz in Pittsburgh. Al also is considering an offer to box in St. Louis. . . . Everett Marshall, La Junta, Colo., heavyweight wrestler, will arrive Wednesday for a bout with Bronko Nagurski in the Coliseum on Jan. 17. Marshall and Nagurski originally were scheduled to meet in the old Wabash avenue arena last Dec. 15, but the encounter was canceled when Nagurski underwent an operation in Minneapolis. It will be their first meeting. Ruffy Silverstein, west side wrestler, also will appear on the Coliseum card, his opponent being Ray Steele. . . .

IRISH END LOSING STREAK; DEFEAT SYRACUSE, 33-29

Ellis got 10 points and Sobek scored 7 in the first half to give the Irish an 18 to 14 advantage.

Notre Dame nursed this lead up to the final 7 minutes when Chris Kouray, junior forward, gave Syracuse new life with 2 quick field goals. Then Thorne made a side shot and a follow up in quick succession to cut the Irish margin to 31 to 29. Sobek sank a field goal for the Irish just before the gun. Lineup:

SKATES FLASH AS PLAYGROUND STARS SETTLE SPEED TITLES

John Flickinger, the senior boys' mile winner, turned in a time of 3:13.8 in scoring his victory. He is an entrant in the Silver Skates Derbies sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. The Silver Skates Derbies will be held next Saturday and Sunday in Garfield park.

PREP FOOTBALL RULES UNDERGO MORE CHANGES

Options on Penalties Are Provided.

The national interscholastic football rules committee yesterday ended its annual meeting in the La Salle hotel by adopting two more rules changes for the 1940 season, running to five the total major revisions in the code made during the two-day session.

Leading to a long sought equitable adjustment of penalties as specified, the committee's representatives from 26 states completed their actions by obliterating one of the most noticeable blind spots of all football regulations, so that hereafter no team need to decline a penalty in order to avoid loss of ground.

This unprecedented move, not yet legislated for collegiate or professional football, covers fouls on rushing plays not preceded by a forward pass or a kick, and on rushes not from scrimmage—when possession has changed from one team to another.

Offended Team Gets Option.

Hereafter the offended team shall have the option to exercise the penalty from either the spot of the foul or where the ball is dead, except that if the foul is in advance of the gain, enforcement shall be from the spot where dead.

It was pointed out that often the offensive team is guilty of clipping or holding as far as 20 yards in advance of the point where the ball carrier is tackled, so that enforcement of a 15 yard penalty against the offenders from the spot of the foul actually would net them a gain of five yards. Due to yesterday's change, however, the defenders under this situation will have the privilege of enforcing the penalty from the spot the ball was declared dead. In reverse order, if the foul is committed 20 yards behind the ball carrier's advance, the defense would choose to assess from that portion of the field where the foul occurred.

Dead Ball Rule.

The only other change effected in yesterday's session served a double purpose, to save time previously wasted and to wipe out the possibility of injury on a play following an illegal shift that, due to this foul, would be nullified whatever the distance gained or lost. This was done by granting power to the referee to declare the ball dead immediately when he observes an illegal shift, rather than waiting until the play has been completed. Altho this will deprive the defense of a chance to recover a possible fumble or throw the runner for a loss, other advantages were believed to offset this objection. But the arguments pro and con were heated. The proposal passed by a vote of 14 to 11.

Three other changes were legislated Friday. Two of these wiped out a portion of baffling terminology, so that there no longer will be differentiation between a minor and a major incomplete pass. Necessity for using the term "major incompletion" was disposed of by classifying a pass which touches an ineligible receiver as a form of offensive pass interference; and by adopting consistent penalties for three types of pass incompletions in the defending team's end zone. Hereafter, under these three conditions, all penalties will be inflicted from the spot of the previous down, on first, second and third downs, so that a touchback cannot develop.

Alter Rule on Passes.

Fifth and last of the changes lifted previous restrictions against offense and defense, in that it permits advance of the ball by either team after two originally eligible receivers of the passing team have touched a forward pass before being touched by a defense player.

Three proposals made yesterday were killed and another tabled until the 1941 meeting. Seven were rejected Friday.

Held over until next year is the proposal to adopt a flat rule stating that a player cannot touch a loose ball after being out of bounds, including the situation where a player under the present rules goes out of bounds and comes back in to touch a forward pass.

Provide that an incomplete pass behind the defending team's goal line on fourth down is a touchback only if the ball had been placed in play from inside the 20 yard line.

Remove all limitations on the number of times a player may reënter a game.

If time for any quarter expires while the ball is dead, always allow one additional play.

On a forward pass play require all ineligible receivers to remain on the scrimmage line until the pass has been touched by a player of either team.

Penalize the kicking team 15 yards if it approaches within five yards of a player attempting to field a punt.

If a receiver makes a bona fide attempt to catch or recover a punt and fumbles it, declare the ball dead and award possession to the receiving team.

For illegal touching of a kicked ball give the receiving team the option of a 15 yard penalty from the spot of the previous down or loss of the ball at the spot of illegal touching.

Empower the referee to blow the ball dead immediately for any foul which occurs before the center's snap.

PIRATES RECEIVE CONTRACTS FROM NEW PITCHERS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 6 (AP).—The two pitchers obtained by the Pittsburgh baseball club in December trades with the Boston Bees became full fledged Pirates today, when President Bill Benswanger received the signed contracts of Danny MacFayden and John Lanning for the 1940 season.

MacFayden is wintering in Somerville, Mass., and Lanning in Asheville, N. C. Lanning, who started only six games for the Bees last year, said he was happy over getting a chance to be a regular starting pitcher. He has recovered from an attack of grippe and septic sore throat.

Mel Larson, 36 year old Henry playground speed skater, whose hair is turning gray, won the men's senior 440 yard dash from his teammate, Bernie Flickinger, by the reach of his gloved hand in the Chicago Bureau of Recreation meet held yesterday in the north lagoon of Lincoln park.

Despite Larson's efforts his playground finished second in the meet, which was won by Swift playground with 54 points. The Henry boys were second with 47 points, and Orr playground beat Cameron with 14 points for third place against the latter's 12.

In the senior events the Henry men were superior, but the Swift skaters made up for this in the midget 110 yard dash, which was won by Bud Betes. Frederick Thompson and Angelo Verze of Swift were second and third, respectively.

The senior Henry relay team so far outclassed opposition that the remainder of the field had nearly a lap to go after the Henry team won the event. Swift playground's intermediate four man team won the relay event in nearly the same fashion. Summaries:

VOTE TO ADMIT PROS TO COLLEGE OUTBOARD MEET

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The council of the Eastern Intercollegiate Outboard association voted today to admit professional drivers to the 1940 intercollegiate outboard meet.

Meeting at the National Motor Boat show, the college group decided to open the meet to all college and schoolboy racers, whether or not they have accepted cash prizes. Arthur Wullschleger Jr. of Cornell explained that many of the college group were ranked as pros because they had accepted money prizes to help defray expenses, adding that not even the best professional was able to make a profit on prize money won during the season.

Moore of Cincinnati Isn't Superstitious; 13th to Sign

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 6 (AP).—Lloyd [Whitey] Moore, pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, signed a one-year contract today after a brief conference with General Manager Warren C. Giles. Moore is the 13th player to sign for the coming season.

600 WILL SKATE IN STATE TITLE EVENTS TODAY

A fast track and an entry list of more than 600 makes a combination that may mean the shattering of records when the Illinois state skating titles are decided this afternoon in Glen Ellyn. Titles are at stake in 13 events. The first race is set for 1:30 p. m.

Among the speediest of the men in the meet is Leo Freisinger, winner of titles from coast to coast and holder of records in European competition. Fastest of Freisinger's rivals will be his friend, Vic Ronchetti, an excellent sprinter. The distance events appear likely to go to Bob Hackenbach of the Northwest Skating club.

Others Have Chance.

However, to become a champion a skater must score the most points in three title events. This gives at least six other racers a chance to win the state title. This half dozen includes George Spalten, Steve Gadus, Eddie Schroeder, Al Kucera, and Marshall Klemundt.

Women stars seeking honors will have to deal with three established skaters. This trio includes Genevieve Swierkos, Elaine Bogda, and Ann Vitaska. The latter displayed excellent form in meets last week-end by scoring victories in the Illinois Skating association event Sunday and the city meet New Year's day in Humboldt park.

The majority of spectators, however, will watch with interest the small Glen Ellyn star—Dave [Mouse] Roll. Called Mouse because he is so tiny and yet so fast, this little fellow whirls around the track the winner almost every time he starts. He will compete in the midget division.

Closed Affairs Listed.

The title events, held under the direction of Robert Starrett of Glen Ellyn, will be open to the following divisions: midget, junior, intermediate, and senior boys and girls. Besides the championship races there are events scheduled for classes AA, B, C, and novice, and a few Glen Ellyn township closed affairs.

Life Is Just a Bowl of Trouble for Mr. Hartnett, Boss of Cubs

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The pay is good and the hours are short but aside from this the portly, red faced fellow known as Gabby Hartnett has no reason to kick up his heels over prospects of a peaceful and successful 1940.

Gabby, in case you don't know it, is manager of the Cubs, a job that is the most precarious in baseball. Something always is happening to the Cubs. There's a new act—good or bad—every day.

The post has been a storm center ever since Joe McCarthy's quiet five year reign ended in 1930. Rogers Hornsby had his troubles as boss. His successor, Charley Grimm, struck a sugar mine, then found grief and dismissal. Hartnett, who followed Grimm, relocated the sugar vein, but not for long. Adversity set in and things began to pop. Gabby, if he hasn't already done so, might well pause to ask himself, "What next!"

Two Strikes on Gabby.

The season doesn't open for more than three months but Gabby already has had two strikes called on him. Last October, following his fourth place finish and defeat by the White Sox in the city series, his employer, P. K. Wrigley, spoke as if Hartnett's job wasn't worth a dime. Later the boss declared he wouldn't make a change, at least not until after the 1940 pennant race was under way. In other words, Gabby, to be safe, must get into first place on opening day and stay there.

Time Killers for Gabby.

That's another curse of the Cub managerial job. Every one thinks the Cubs must win every pennant the National league offers. Few stop to think that the Cubs aren't always put together of pennant material. Ordinary fans and experts started picking them as sure things way back in 1927, and 1940 probably will not be different. But they won only in 1929, 1932, 1935, and 1938 and in each of these seasons they had more in the way of ability than is in prospect for the immediate future.

Now that he has a signed 1940 contract, thus assuring him at least of the managerial portion of the salary if he is dismissed, and that the winter trading has been about completed, Hartnett may find time heavy on his hands between now and spring training. So merely in the interests of harmless amusement, the following are offered to Gabby as time killers:

1. If Hartnett is fired who'll get the job?

2. If Dizzy Dean pitches where will the Cubs finish?

3. If Dizzy Dean continues to give out health bulletins instead of pitching where will the Cubs finish?

4. If Clay Bryant, and Dizzy Dean as well, pitch where will the Cubs finish?

5. If Dizzy Dean doesn't pitch where will HE finish?

6. If neither Dizzy Dean nor Clay Bryant pitch where, and when, will Hartnett finish?

7. Will somebody steal Larry French's idea and call on Owner Wrigley to complain that Hartnett has him in the dog house? [French thought he was a tenant last season, but Gabby declared he never owned a dog house.]

8. Who, if anybody, will hit above .300?

9. Will Al Todd, now a Cub, be annoyed if Dean starts popping off? [Todd scored an easy decision over garrulous Dizzy in a brawl on a Texas league field in 1931.]

10. Will Dean be annoyed if he draws Todd for a battery mate?

Could Add to List.

If Hartnett felt so inclined he could easily add to the list, but he probably wouldn't care to have his questions published. However, he would appreciate answers, if accurate, to any of them. Perhaps Hartnett also would like to know if the newspaper men are going to continue to misquote him. He claims they did it last season, but thus far hasn't pointed out a specific case.

BELOIT WRESTLERS WIN.

18,200 TO SEE PACKERS AND PRO ALL-STARS MEET

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 6 [Special].—The Green Bay Packers, world professional football champions, and an All-Star team of the National Football league will clash in Gilmore stadium tomorrow in the second annual professional league postseason game before a capacity crowd of 18,200.

This game is the only one of its kind now permitted under National Football league rules. The New York Giants, 1938 league champions, won the first game last year from the league All-Stars by putting on a brilliant fourth quarter rally, 13 to 10, and then went on to keep their record clear in All-Star games by winning from the College All-Americans, 9 to 0, in the game sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., last August.

All Teams Represented.

The Packers' All-Star opponents were selected by a fan poll from the rosters of other league teams. Every team in the league, except the Packers, is represented by one, or more, of its top flight players on the squad.

Parker Hall, Cleveland's brilliant triple threat freshman; Andy Farkas, Washington's all-league half back; Ward Cuff, the New York Giants' talented blocker and place kicker, and Johnny Drake, Cleveland's battering full back, will be the All-Stars' starting back field.

Davey O'Brien of the Philadelphia Eagles will alternate with Hall. They are expected to match the Packers' brilliant passers, Arnie Herber and Cecil Isbell. Fred Vanzo, the Detroit Lions' rugged blocker; Ernie Pinckert, another top flight blocker from the Redskins; Pug Manders, Brooklyn's freshman star, and Frank Filchock, Washington's passing wizard, also are available for back field duty.

All-Stars Are Strong.

Perry Schwartz, Brooklyn's pass receiver, and Bill Smith of the Chicago Cardinals will be the starting ends. Jim Benton, Cleveland's high scoring wing man, and Joe Carter, veteran Philadelphia end, will be their alternates. Joe Stydahar, the Chicago Bears' giant all-league tackle, and Tony Blazine of the Cardinals have been named as the starting tackles, with Turk Edwards of Washington and Ray George and Jack Johnson of Detroit ready to relieve them.

George Musso, captain of the Bears, and Byron Gentry of Pittsburgh have been selected to start at the guard positions. Orville Tuttle of the Giants and Bruiser Kinard of Brooklyn will be their relief men. Capt. Mel Hein of the Giants will start at center. Ki Aldrich, Cardinal freshman star, is his alternate.

Engebretsen to Start.

The Packers' starting lineup, as announced by Coach E. L. Lambeau, is the same, with one exception, as it was when Green Bay trounced the Giants, 27 to 0, in Milwaukee Dec. 10 to win the league championship. Paul Engebretsen will start at left guard in place of Russ Letlow, who suffered a painful knee injury in the title game.

Don Hutson and Capt. Milt Gantenbein will be the starting ends; Buford Ray and Bill Lee, the tackles; Charles Goldenberg will be Engebretsen's guard mate, and Bud Svendsen will be at center. Larry Craig, quarter back; Andy Uram and Arnie Herbert, half backs, and Clark Hinkle, full back, will be the starting backs.

The Chicago Figure Skating club, which each year holds one of the most important ice shows in the country, will conduct its ninth annual carnival in its home, the Chicago Arena, on March 28, 29, 30, and 31. Leading figure skaters from the United States, Canada, and Europe will take part in the show.

Before the Figure Skating club's annual production gets under way, a one night carnival will be held in the Arena on March 2 by the Chicago Board of Trade post of the American Legion. Part of the proceeds will go to the post's winter relief service.

Harvard Crew Coach Unknown on Own Campus

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 6 (AP).—The men who coached Harvard crews to three straight victories over Yale and to the Grand Challenge cup at Henley, England, apparently aren't very well known on the Harvard campus.

Charles Noble of Seattle sent a Christmas card to Tom Bolles, varsity coach at Harvard, and Harvey Love, frosh coach.

The letter was returned this week, unopened.

Stamped on the envelope were the words:

"Unknown at Harvard university. Try alumni directory."

BRADLEY QUINT, GEO. WASHINGTON PLAY TOMORROW

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 6 [Special].—The Bradley Tech basketball team will seek to add another intersectional scalp to its string when it meets George Washington university in Washington, D. C., Monday night.

The Bradley team will be honored after the game at a reception given by the Bradley alumni club of Washington. The Braves are spending Saturday and Sunday in New York City and are scheduled for a day of sightseeing and a visit to congress on Tuesday.

After returning home, the Bradley team plunges into the thick of its schedule, meeting Wabash here Saturday, New Mexico A. and M. on Monday, and Duquesne, Pittsburgh city champions, on Wednesday.

COLD DAYS ARE HERE! IT'S TIME TO FEED BIRDS

BY BOB BECKER.

January in the north central states is practically a blank to the duck hunters, quail shooters, and others who like to use shotguns in hunting game. The seasons are closed and there is nothing to do but join the hot stove league and talk about the season that has just been concluded.

To the thousands of bird fans who enjoy the hobby of feeding the birds which stay in the north all winter, however, this is a banner month. It's the time when feeding stations are kept well stocked with various kinds of foods and such birds as the junco, chicadee, jay and cardinal come around to get their meals and entertain us with their dinnertime antics.

A Worthwhile Hobby.

Feeding the winter birds is a hobby for us stay-at-homes that not only is amusing, but worthwhile. It's a hobby that has grown in popularity by leaps and bounds. We recall that last winter when we asked readers to let us know how many species of birds they had at their feeding stations, we were surprised to receive letters from five midwestern states. Indiana and Iowa were heavily represented in this correspondence on winter birds and several readers reported that they had local clubs which were interested in the study and intensive feeding of the birds in their communities.

There are many ways to distribute food for song and game birds which winter with us. If you do not want to take the time and trouble to build a station near a window where you can watch the birds come and go, foods like bread crumbs, broken dog biscuits, pieces of apple, mixed grain, and sunflower seeds may be placed on the ground. Of course, snow is a problem in this system of winter feeding and one must keep the feeding spot clean during the winter. A simple shelf placed outside of a window of the home is a popular way of feeding the birds and one that gives the bird fan a chance to watch feathered visitors.

Tips in Tribune Handbook.

Midwestern bird fans who want to join in this amusing and helpful game of feeding the winter birds will find many practical tips on how to build simple food counters, which foods to feed different species of birds, and where to distribute grain for wild birds in THE TRIBUNE's handbook, "Birds and Birdhouses." This illustrated guide to bird study is sold by the Public Service office of THE TRIBUNE, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, for 32 cents by mail. There are a number of food counters which bird fans now use in the central states. Tips on how to make suet containers also are included in the book.

The Miami racing scene shifts overnight, with Hialeah taking over after Tropical Park closes its 17 day meeting on Tuesday. After Hialeah finishes its meeting, Tropical will reopen March 4 for a 33 day session.

More than 1,000 horses were quartered in the Hialeah stalls today as preparations were completed to swing open the gates of the racing establishment Joseph E. Widener built as a showplace.

Eleven Stakes Scheduled.

Twenty-eight sprinters, including two foreignbred horses, were nominated for the twelfth running of the $5,000 added inaugural handicap, the first of 11 stake races scheduled during the meeting.

The climactic event will be the $50,000 added Widener challenge cup March 2 in which Challedon, America's top horse in 1939, may race against several other handicap headliners. Other featured stakes are the $10,000 added McLennan Memorial on Feb. 17, and the $20,000 added Flamingo stakes for 3 year olds on Feb. 24.

Among the secondary stakes will be the $5,000 added Miami Beach handicap on Jan. 27 over Hialeah's turf course, an inner track which parallels the regular racing strip.

Imported Horses to Run.

The inaugural, for 3 year olds and up at six furlongs, drew a swift field that includes Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Ambrose Light, a French veteran which won many foreign stakes and was unplaced only eight times in six years of racing. The 7 year old chestnut horse ran last, however, in his first American start, a conditioning race at Tropical Park a few days ago.

Another highly regarded candidate is Gustav Ring's Lady Maryland. Trainer Jim Fitzsimmons will send the English bred Bosley to the post in the colors of William Woodward. Bosley won his first American start at Bowie, Md., last Nov. 16.

Hialeah, where 494,659 patrons wagered $21,786,411 last season, will use a new electric starting gate designed to insure straighter and faster getways. The device has V shaped swingout doors, forward and tail boards aft, with each stall completely enclosing the horse.

Outsiders Rout Easy Mon at Tropical Park

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP).—Three outsiders, driving to a blanket finish that had 10,000 spectators standing and shouting, accounted for the honors today in the 5½ furlong Hialeah handicap that featured the last Saturday at Tropical Park.

P. L. Kelley's Cardinalis barged over the line a winner by a half length over C. W. Pershall's Royal Blue, with Jacobsen and Hough's Foxy Maude another half length back in third place. Cardinalis earned the $1,000 winner's share of the purse and paid backers in the mutuels $31 for $2.

Don Meade returned to service astride Remarkable and set most of the early pace, but wound up ninth in the field of 12.

LIBERTY FLIGHT WINS.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 6.—W. F. Mannagh's Liberty Flight, a 5 year old gelding, won by four lengths at the Fair Grounds today over J. C. Ellis' Sweeping Tide, which had won five consecutive races. The winner's time was 1:13 2-5 for the six furlongs. He was never less than two lengths in front after the first quarter.

was a third, when Margaret Daly placed in the girls' junior division. Ronald Olson and Walter Rust are among the best of the country's juvenile skaters, Rust having won the silver skates in the midget class in 1938 and Olson being the leading juvenile scorer of the Illinois Skating association so far this season."

40 Major Prizes.

There are 40 major prizes, five for each Derby. Three of these are skates, silver for the winner, chromium for the runner-up, and bronze for the skater finishing third. The incentive for all youngsters, however, in addition to the bronze souvenir buttons, are the gold medals awarded to the winners of all preliminary races.

The contestants in the four Derbies competing next Saturday—boys' midget, juvenile, and junior and girls' junior—will report for their racing numbers between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. The first preliminary race will start at 2 o'clock. On Sunday the first of the preliminaries in the other classes will start at 1 o'clock. Racing numbers will be passed out in the Garfield park boathouse by the clerks between 10 a. m. and 12 noon. Following the completion of the preliminaries, semifinals will be held in those divisions in which they are required. Then will come the climax of the Derbies, the championship events.

The officials who will conduct the Derbies next Saturday and Sunday include several men who have been associated with the races since their inception in 1917. The list has been augmented from year to year with the result that the preliminaries and finals are conducted fairly and with an efficiency which has no equal.

Gen. Clinnin Is Referee.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, former chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, again will be referee of the meet. Earl W. Solem, former president of the Illinois Skating association, is chief of the judges.

Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the National A. A. U. boxing committee, chief of the starters, will be unable to officiate since he is in Arizona. Others will carry on for this year. J. J. Lipp, prominent Western conference official, long identified with The Tribune A. A., will head the group of timers. Nicholas Malloy and Harry Berz will head the groups of clerks who will assign the contestants to their preliminary races and see that they are sent to the starting line on time.

Dr. Edward H. Rategan, member of The Tribune staff of physicians which annually examines all contestants in the Golden Gloves boxing tournaments, will supervise physical examinations of the skaters and will be in charge of regulations safeguarding the boys and girls.

Kalteux Heads Announcers.

Fred Marquardt is chief scorer, Frank Kalteux will be chief of the announcers, and Roy McWhirter, winner of the Senior Silver Skates Derby in 1920, is chief of the inspectors of the races. Paul Staff will survey the courses.

FOXY MAUDE, under light weight, displayed a world of speed and held on well. EASY MON broke good but was crowded back a bit just after the start. He closed fast and should win soon. BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Bruins, still trying to gain a comfortable lead in the National Basketball league, tonight again find themselves in the precarious position of hanging onto first place in the western division of the league. Their opponents of the evening in the 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets, are the Sheboygan Redskins, now in second place in the division with seven victories and five defeats. The Bruins' lead is founded on five triumphs and three defeats.

Ken Suessens.

The Redskins are probably the best balanced team in the league from a scoring standpoint. Five of them have counted 48 or more points each, with Rube Lautenschlager, former Oshkosh Teachers' center, leading them with 68 points, collected on 27 baskets and 14 free throws.

Four Marquette Alumni.

Four of the Sheboygan players—Sparky Adams, Dave Quabius, Paul Sokody, and George Hesik—are Marquette university alumni. Adams, Sokody, and Hesik alternate at forwards, while Quabius shares the guard duty with Ken Suessens, cocaptain of the University of Iowa team last season. Otto Kolar, former west side star, and Suessens are the only non-Badgers on the visiting squad, while Eddie Oram, former U. S. C. guard, is the only member of the Bruins not a Chicagoan.

Until Frank Linsky, one time De Paul star, broke thru with 14 points in the Bruins' 37 to 30 victory over the Akron Goodyears last Wednesday night, the home team's offensive burden was carried solely by Center Mike Novak and Forward Wibs Kautz. Novak is fourth in league individual scoring with 85 points on 32 field goals and 21 free throws, while Kautz, with 24 baskets and 23 penalty tosses, has collected 71 points to rank seventh in the league.

Stephens Leads Scorers.

Ben Stephens, formerly of Iowa and now playing with the Akron Goodyears, is leading all individual scorers with 119 points. Of this total, only 54 points have been scored from the field, the remaining 65 having been delivered at the free throw line. The only other player in the league to approach Stephens in penalty pitching proficiency is Le Roy [Cowboy] Edwards of Oshkosh, late of the University of Kentucky, who has made good on 35 tries. Jack Ozburn of the Akron Firestones leads all field goal makers with 34, while Joe Jeannette of Detroit has had the greatest number of fouls called on him—35.

SWOPE ADVISES BETTER BREAK FOR RACE FANS

New York, Jan. 6 [Special].—Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the state racing commission, put himself on record yesterday as being strongly opposed to the efforts of the New York track owners to get 6 per cent of the take under the pari-mutuel enabling act now under consideration by the legislature.

In a statement replying to the published views of the owners, Swope said that in his opinion racing should not be made a get rich quick game for the benefit of either the track owners or the state, since it might eventually spell doom to the sport. He favored greater consideration for the public who support racing.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Toronto, 3; Montreal, 1.

The Montreal Canadiens, who started the National Hockey league grind with a victory streak of six games, including triumphs over the Boston Bruins and the record breaking Rangers on their foes' ice, come to Chicago to meet the Blackhawks tonight with a recent record just the reverse of their early season showing. In losing last night to the Maple Leafs the Montreal team brought its string of reverses to 11 in the last 12 starts.

The present discomfiture of the Canadiens was almost a foregone conclusion despite their early season showing and proves what many hockey experts contend, that the ideal hockey club should be made up of youngsters and veterans and that too many of the veterans should not be over the 28 year old mark. That age, according to the experts, marks the beginning of the down grade for most hockey players.

Six Above 32 Years.

The Canadiens' roster lists the names of six players, almost half the team, who are hockey veterans in all that the term implies. They are Cyclone Wentworth, Walter Buswell, Doug Young, Marty Barry, George Mantha, and Armand Mondou, who average better than 32 years of age. Five more—Rodrique Lorrain, Louis Trudell, Paul Haynes, Ray Getliffe, and Charles Sands—are close to the 27 year average. Only three—Claude Bourque, Red Goupille, and Toe Blake—can be called youngsters. The average age of the team is 30 years.

Because of the team's poor showing it is ready for a shakeup. Montreal has had a hockey club fighting for the Stanley cup since Lord Stanley first presented it back in 1893. It is a safe bet that there will be many new faces on the Canadiens' team before the end of the present grind.

Seek Third Straight.

A victory over the Canadiens tonight will run the Hawks' winning streak to three games and place them in an encouraged mood for this week's road jaunt, which will send them into a second straight game with the Canadiens in Montreal Tuesday and a battle Thursday in New York with the Rangers, who have not lost a game in their last 16 starts. The Rangers and the Blackhawks meet again in the Stadium next Sunday night.

The Hawks and Canadiens have met twice before this season. In the game in Montreal the Hawks succumbed, 8 to 2. It was the worst defeat dealt any team in the league this season. In the Chicago meeting the Hawks won, 3 to 2. Tonight's lineups:

TORONTO WINS, 3-1

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 6 (AP).—The Toronto Maple Leafs, after losing Gordon Drillon in the first period, beat the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 1, before 9,678 tonight, to go back into a first place tie in the National Hockey league. It was the Canadiens' ninth straight loss.

Drillon, the league's leading scorer, was lost to the Leafs for two weeks when he suffered a deep foot gash in a collision with Walter Buswell of the Canadiens.

It took the Leafs until the third period to score, but after Reg Hamilton counted at 4:25, goals came fast. Heron made it 2 to 0 at 14:23. Blake scored for the Canadiens less than three minutes later, and Metz added Toronto's final marker at 17:46. Lineups:

MISS COLEMAN 'RESTING EASY' AFTER OPERATION

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6 (AP).—Georgia Coleman, former Olympic diving champion, underwent an operation today for a liver ailment. Her surgeon reported afterward that her condition was favorable.

"Her condition will be critical for four or six days, but if there is no relapse she will have better than a 50-50 chance for recovery," he said.

He explained the operation involved plastic surgery to "detour" blood vessels around an obstruction in the liver.

THERE'S MORE TO PLAYING HOCKEY THAN MEETS THE EYE

The Chicago Blackhawks who meet the Canadiens in the Stadium tonight are mighty particular fellows about their playing equipment. Two of them, Mush March (left) and Johnny Gottselig, insist on taping their own sticks. As March tapes his, Gottselig squints along the finished job to see that there are no bumps which would cause him to lose control of the puck.

This scene is repeated frequently in the Blackhawks' dressing room. Manager Paul Thompson gets out the chalk to illustrate a play for Joe Cooper (left) and Earl Siebert (center).

An entry of ten squads totaling 320 of the outstanding bowlers of the country is anticipated in Louis P. Petersen's 23d annual individual classic, to be rolled at Hochstadter's Archer-35th recreation Friday, Jan. 26, thru the following Sunday. Entries are to close at midnight next Wednesday.

For the first time since 1923 a top prize of $3,000 will be the goal of the competing tenpin stars. This amount is $1,000 more than Eddie Zajac won as first prize last year and $2,000 more than was paid to the winners of the event during the four years preceding 1939.

Nineteen other prizes plus special prizes and awards to winners on the first squad rolling each of the three days of the event also have been put up. Second prize will be either $1,500 or $2,000.

One squad is to roll on Friday, Jan. 26, starting at 9:30 o'clock. Four more will bowl Saturday and five Sunday. The rules provide that each entrant must bowl eight games across sixteen alleys, making the test one of the most difficult, if not the most difficult, in the sport. Entrants from a number of states, including California, already are in.

Norge Skiers to Seek Title at Oconomowoc

Ski jumpers of the central states will get their first taste of competition this afternoon, when the Milwaukee-Oconomowoc Ski club holds the season's first tournament on the Oconomowoc, Wis., hill. From their performances today will come the first gauge to measure the possibilities of skiers of this district when they compete against outstanding jumpers of all sections of the country in the Norge Ski club's tournament Jan. 21 at Fox River Grove.

Only skiers of the central states will compete for the Oconomowoc title, but followers of the sport eagerly will await results for it will mark the first appearance in this country for Ole Narvik as a Norge Ski club member. He came to the United States from Norway only two months ago and brings a record of outstanding achievement from his native hills.

Third in Holmenkollen Meet.

Narvik's best ski jumping performance was made in 1937, when he finished third in the Holmenkollen tournament in Norway. Howard Jansen, captain of the Norge team, and Martin Wingsness are the other class A contestants entered by the Chicago club in today's meet.

Walter Bietila of the University of Wisconsin and Ted Zuberski of Ironwood, Mich., both chosen to represent the United States in the international tournament in Norway which was canceled because of the war, will meet for the first time as competitors since they were selected. They, too, are getting equal rating in the competition against the country's ranking skiers when the Norge meet is held.

Will Contribute to Fund.

The Norge club has taken the lead among the nation's sports organizations in aiding Finland's stand against Russia. It has pledged 10 per cent of the gate receipts from the Jan. 21 meet to the Finnish relief fund.

Torger Tokle elected to participate in the Norge meet even tho the New York state championship tournament is being held the same day. He has represented the Norway Ski club of Brooklyn, N. Y., since coming to this country last year. This will be his first competition out of the eastern district.

Last year Tokle introduced himself to skiing in the United States with a victory the day after he stepped off the boat that brought him from Norway. He won first prize and established a new hill record in the Bear Mountain, N. Y., tournament. With that as a start he went on to win 10 consecutive tournament titles and established 7 hill records.

Two Stand Out.

On form the Norge meet should be a duel between Tokle and Olaf Ulland, who will come from Seattle, Wash., to compete. Ulland was regarded as one of the most graceful skiers in Norway. He has been in this country three years. He was out of competition with an injured ankle last year but reports from the far west indicate he is skiing in excellent form. Ulland established a world distance record in 1936 at Plantier, Jugo-Slavia, when he sailed 337 feet.

LOYOLA, DE PAUL BATTLE KANSAS, KANSAS STATE

Iowa State at Nebraska.
Syracuse at Michigan State.

SATURDAY.

Chicago at Northwestern.
Illinois at Ohio State.
Kentucky at Notre Dame.
Marquette at Detroit.
Wabash at Bradley.
Omaha at Chicago Teachers college.

The state of Kansas, which for years has produced some of the country's greatest basketball teams, will send two representative fives against Loyola and De Paul tomorrow night in the Coliseum, Fifteenth street and Wabash avenue. Loyola plays the University of Kansas and De Paul is matched with the Kansas State Wildcats. The Loyola-Jayhawk game starts at 8:15 o'clock.

Ralph Miller.

The University of Kansas team is coached by Dr. Forrest C. [Phog] Allen, regarded as the dean of American basketball instructors. Allen played at Kansas under the late Dr. James Naismith, inventor of the game, and has coached Jawhawk fives for thirty years. During twenty-nine seasons his teams captured twenty-two conference titles.

Coach's Son to Play.

Another Allen will be present in the Kansas setup. He is Robert, 20 years old, who is the youngest son of Coach Allen. The youngster is the quarter back in his father's style of play, directing the team on offense and defense. In addition he is a tricky ball handler and a better than average shot. Bob Woodward and Bob O'Neil, sophomores, are sons of players formerly coached by Phog Allen. O'Neil is the son of Ralph O'Neil, former national commander of the American Legion. Kansas' attack is led by Ralph Miller, high scoring forward.

Kansas State is coached by Jack Gardner, who learned his game under Sam Barry at the University of Southern California. Gardner will bring three teams to Chicago. His plans call for whirlwind offense, since he will be able to substitute freely as players tire under the fast pace.

Haggerty Warns De Paul.

Familiar with the type of basketball played in Kansas, Coach Tom Haggerty of De Paul has been warning his players all week that the Kansas State game must not be considered a breather. De Paul has won its last two Coliseum games against two of the best teams in the country, but the last minute victories have given Haggerty a suspicion that his team is inclined to loaf unless the going is tough.

At Loyola, on the other hand, Coach Lennie Sachs has been telling his charges that they can defeat the University of Kansas. Sachs, with only Capt. George Wenskus back from last year's great five, has nursed the Ramblers along, developing a tricky passing attack and plays which allow comparatively small players to find access to the enemy basket.

De Paul will start Capt. Jim Szukala, Lou Possner, Elmer Gainer, Ed Norris, and Ed Sachs. The Rambler starters will be Wenskus, Vinny Graham, Ed Schell, Danny Cahill, and Ed Lee.

LOYOLA TO MEET ARMOUR TECH IN 1ST SWIM MEET

A nine meet schedule for the Loyola university swimming team was announced yesterday by Alex Wilson, who is beginning his eighth year as coach.

Armour Tech will open the season Friday night at Loyola, with the Ramblers meeting Milwaukee State Teachers in Milwaukee on Saturday. A veteran squad, which last year lost only to Milwaukee and Kentucky in 10 engagements, leads Wilson to believe Loyola will have a strong team. Wilson's seven year average is .667, his teams having won 32 and lost 16 meets. The schedule:

PACKERS' SALES OF FRESH PORK EXCEED NORMAL

Demand Best in 6 Years; Less Meat Frozen.

Packers this winter are moving a much larger share of pork than usual into the trade as fresh meat with a smaller percentage of the output being frozen, it was learned yesterday. Consumer demand is the broadest in six years and most cuts have been stable in price at attractively low costs to buyers, packers said.

For almost two months prices of most of the principal pork cuts have changed very slightly in wholesale channels. Since the middle of November costs of top light loins to butcher shop owners have ranged from 11 to 13 cents a pound. The heaviest cuts fluctuated from 10 to 11 cents. At the close of last week top light loins sold freely at 13 cents, and the heaviest loins went at 10½ cents.

Pork Storage Below Normal.

It was estimated about 8 per cent of the pork is being frozen this winter, whereas usually well over 10 per cent is frozen before it reaches consumers. Because pork is more desirable when it can be moved without first being frozen, packers make every effort to keep it out of the freezers. Only when sudden surpluses congest distributing channels and threaten the price structure of the markets for pork and live hogs do packers freeze any large quantities. Very few desirable cuts, such as loins, have gone thru the freezer this winter, packers said.

Pork production in the Chicago area last week was 11 per cent heavier than during the preceding week and 16 per cent above the first week of 1939, a review of operations disclosed. It was estimated that all plants produced almost 22 million pounds of pork and lard.

Pork Production Expands.

This quantity exceeded the preceding week's output by almost 3 million pounds and was 3½ million pounds above a year ago. Other leading packing centers also handled large volume. Eleven points received a total of 459,000 hogs, an increase of 54,000 head over the week previous and an increase of 105,000 compared with last year.

No price changes occurred in wholesale pork markets during the week, despite the heavy production, and only slight losses were incurred by hogs. The week's average price of hogs at the Chicago stock yards showed a loss of only 5 cents, at $5.45. However, this price was 5 cents higher than two weeks ago. The various classes of hogs finished the week 5 to 15 cents lower than the close of the preceding week, with "lard hogs" off most. A few top lights were steady.

Price trends in other meat animals were uneven, but the majority of purchases showed lower costs to packers.

FUTURES PRICES OF COMMODITIES UNEVEN IN WEEK

Sugar, Copper, and Silk Are Leaders.

Futures prices of commodities changed course from day to day last week and in most cases failed to establish a definite trend. Attention centered principally on sugar, copper, and silk.

At the close of the trading session yesterday the nearby delivery of sugar and cottonseed oil stood higher than on the preceding day. Hides, copper, wool tops, Santos coffee, and cocoa were lower, and tin and silk unchanged.

Changes in Week.

Changes from a week earlier in the nearby contracts were: Sugar, 0.02 cent a pound higher; wool tops, up 2 cents a pound; copper, up 0.04 cent a pound; Santos coffee, up 0.07 cent a pound; cottonseed oil, up 0.03 cent a pound; silk, 10 cents a pound lower; hides, down 0.34 cent a pound; cocoa, 0.27 cent a pound lower, and tin, down 0.45 cent a pound.

Silk futures tumbled the daily limit of 15 cents on Tuesday, but recovered much of the loss later.

Sugar contracts made a strong start early in the week, but at midweek turned irregular.

PLAN TO SWAP COTTON OFFERED BY GOVERNMENT

Low Quality Staple Is Reported Scarce.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7 (AP).—In a move to relieve a reported market shortage, the agriculture department announced today it would exchange government-owned low grade cotton for cotton of better grade and staple. The government has about 800,000 bales of low grade cotton acquired under its 1934 growers' loan program. Supplies of low quality cotton produced this year, the department said, appeared inadequate to meet market demands.

Under the exchange plan, firms and individuals could buy 1938 cotton stored under grower loans and trade it for cotton equal in value from the government 1934 loan stocks. In this way, the department said, farmers would benefit by cashing in on the equities they hold in the 1938 crop.

How Exchange Will Be Made.

For example: the value of 100 bales of cotton purchased from farmers under the 1938 loan may be equal to the value of 120 bales of low grade cotton held by the government as a result of the 1934 loan. The exchange would be made on the actual value of the cotton without, however, taking into account the carrying charges on the 1934 cotton. Persons making the exchange would be required to pay 10 points [100 points equal 1 cent] to cover costs of the exchange to the government. Adjustments would be made for the location value of the cotton exchanged.

The department said that unless this action was taken, current domestic and foreign demand could not be met and a decrease in the sale and the consumption of American cotton probably would result.

The value of the exchange cotton would be determined on certified reweights of warehousemen and the average grade and staple differences quoted for the 10 designated spot markets on Dec. 15, 1939.

Cotton Grades Acceptable.

The government would accept only American upland cotton, grown outside of irrigated districts, which is middling, white, or better in grade, and of staple lengths ranging from ⅞ inch to 1 1/16. Preference would be given to offers calling for the delivery of cotton of the following grades and staples:

Good middling, white, of ⅞ inch, 15/16 inch, one inch, and 1 1/16 inch staple length; strict middling, white, of 15/16 inch, one inch, and 1 1/16 inch staple length.

FOREIGN BOND PRICES ADVANCE ON QUIET FRONT

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—Foreign dollar bonds advanced today, leaving other groups to rest in a narrow and slightly irregular range.

Brokers said traders picked up most of the foreign obligations on the theory they might respond to continued inactivity in the central European war sector. Official announcement by the German news agency that the high command expected "quiet along the entire western front in the near future" received prominent display in board rooms.

In the main domestic group utilities and rails did better than others.

United States government loans were slow, but the undertone remained firm. Closing prices ranged from 6-32 of a point lower for treasury 2⅞s of 1960 to a gain of 14-32 for the 2½s of 1945.

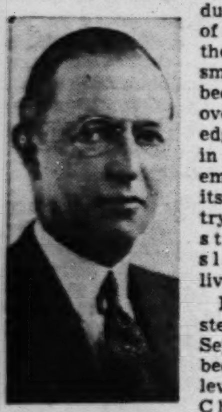
CHICAGO AREA'S NO. 1 INDUSTRY IS STEEL MAKING

Employs at Least 75,000 Persons.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Altho Chicago is known thruout the world as "packingtown," partly due to the efforts of fiction writers, the clouds of smoke that have been hanging over the lower edges of the lake in recent months emphasize that its No. 1 industry is steel instead of the slaughtering of live stock.



G. Cook Kimball recalls Chicago steel history.

Production of steel since last September has been at record levels in the big Chicago area plants, with most of its mills operating at virtual capacity. The roaring steel mills, including their adjuncts, the blast furnaces, in the last month have been giving employment to 75,000 to 80,000 persons, including workers in the mills, white collar men at desk jobs, and salesmen traveling out of Chicago.

Employment Sets Record.

This is the largest number employed in the history of the Chicago area mills, exceeding the number even in the boom year of 1929 and the heavy steel production year of 1937. The Chicago industrial area, as defined by the census bureau of the department of commerce, comprises Cook, Du Page, Kane, Lake, and Will counties in Illinois and Lake county in Indiana.

The present estimate of employment is obtained from reports of steel companies operating in the Chicago area. These include the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, Inland Steel company, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, the Republic Steel corporation, Wisconsin Steel Works [subsidiary of the International Harvester company], the Acme Steel company, and the Interlake Iron company, maker of pig iron from which steel is made.

Carnegie Employs Most.

Carnegie-Illinois is by far the largest employer with some 45,000 or 50,000 persons on its pay rolls in the Chicago area. Several of the other companies, because of internal problems, asked that the number they individually employ not be disclosed. Figures on the amount of wages being paid during the peak period of the last month are not available.

Bureau of census statistics for 1937—the last year for which a business and industrial census was taken—place the total employed in the steel mills and blast furnaces just under 69,000. With others not included in the tabulation it is indicated that the total was about 74,000. The bureau of census 1929 total was just under 50,000 and with those not included in the tabulation the indicated total was about 53,000.

The steel companies paid their workers a total of $121,245,000 in wages in 1937 and the value of the products coming out of the mills in that year was $671,737,355. The value of products produced by the packing industry in 1937 was $501,217,981 and the industry paid about $33,510,798 in wages to its 23,392 workers, exclusive of office help.

Steel company executives declare that one of the Chicago district's most valuable possessions is the huge reservoir of steel labor that it has developed. During the days when the mills were just creeping, the companies divided the available work so far as was possible and in this effort they said they had the coöperation of their employés. When business improved the companies had available a large number of workers ready to man the mills.

Chicago steel laboratories have been responsible for many new developments in steel and steel alloys, including a process for making rail that resist internal stresses.

Recalls Early History.

G. Cook Kimball, executive vice president of Carnegie-Illinois, recently recalled the early history of steel in Chicago. He said the industry had its birth here with the establishment of the North Chicago Rolling Mill in 1857. Two other pioneer companies were the Union Rolling Mill company, founded in 1863 on the South branch of the Chicago river, and the Union Coal, Iron and Transportation company at Joliet, which was reorganized in 1869 as the Joliet Iron and Steel company. All three made rails.

Chicago's position as a steel center is assured by its proximity to the sources of supply of essential raw materials—iron ore, coal, and limestone. The area has a steel ingot capacity said to be in excess of 15,000,000 gross tons a year, or about 22 per cent of the steel making capacity of the nation.

C. & E. I. Plan to Reorganize Near Success

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad is preparing to emerge from the jurisdiction of the federal court. It will be the first carrier to complete reorganization under the new bankruptcy law.

Benjamin Wham.

With holders of more than two-thirds of the dollar value of securities of the road approving the reorganization plan, Benjamin Wham, trustee, on Wednesday will ask Federal Judge John P. Barnes to confirm their vote, it was disclosed yesterday. The vote on the plan was held by the interstate commerce commission.

Judge Barnes approved the plan on June 17 and it is believed that the C. & E. I. will pass out of the jurisdiction of the federal court within two or three months. All that remains to be done after Judge Barnes confirms the vote is to obtain a charter for the new railroad company that will take over the old one, prepare the by-laws, arrange for trust indentures of the securities of the new company, and clear up certain legal odds and ends.

Work to Be Pushed.

Wham said this will be expedited and the C. & E. I. will be the first of the railroads that fell into financial difficulties after the 1929 depression to emerge from reorganizations under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act. Section 77 was designed to bring about speedy reorganization of carriers to meet their obligations.

The C. & E. I. filed its bankruptcy action on April 18, 1933.

Wham said that the vote held by the I. C. C. resulted in nearly unanimous approval of the reorganization plan under which the road's capitalization is reduced from about $85,000,000 to $61,000,000. Fixed interest charges were cut from about $2,470,000 to $509,140, with provision for payment of $767,725 in contingent interest each year if earned.

Stock Equity Eliminated.

The equity of the common stockholders was wiped out and they did not vote on the plan.

Meantime Chicago financial interests are watching the final steps of the reorganization in the hopes that Chicago banking houses will be named trustees and registrars for the new securities to be issued. Altho a Chicago railroad, New York banks have been the trustees, registrars, and paying agents for the road's securities. Appointment of these offices is said to be in the hands of the reorganization committee.

CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT TO BEGIN WEEK AT 88 PCT.

Ingot steel production in the Chicago district is scheduled to start the week at 88 per cent of theoretical capacity, a drop of 0.7 point from last week and 2.8 points lower than that of a month ago. A year ago production in the area was at 48.7 per cent of capacity.

At several other major steel production points, however, production rates will be unchanged. Pittsburgh will remain at 88 per cent, mill men estimated, while Birmingham operations will be unchanged at 94 per cent.

WALGREEN SALES RISE 4.6 PER CENT TO NEW ALL-TIME HIGH MARK

Sales of the Walgreen company last year were the largest in the history of the Chicago organization, which operates more than 500 drug stores thruout the country, a report issued yesterday disclosed.

For the 12 months ended with December the volume of business reached $71,125,239, compared with the former record of $68,020,017 set in 1938. It represented an upturn of 4.6 per cent.

December's business, amounting to $7,989,754, showed a gain of 4.2 per cent over the former high level of $7,670,718 established in 1938. The company's fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

Lane Bryant, Inc., operating a chain of apparel stores, reported December sales of $1,306,281, an increase of 6.4 per cent over the 1938 level. For the full year 1939 sales aggregated $13,862,512, or 6.6 per cent more than in 1938.

Robert Reis & Co., knit goods concern, announced sales of $643.223 for the final quarter of 1939, an increase of 25.1 per cent over the total for the last three months of 1938.

JOB STATEMENT BY ROOSEVELT IS CHALLENGED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6 (AP).—H. W. Prentis Jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today challenged what he described as the implication in President Roosevelt's annual message that invention takes away jobs.

Asserting that "the indiscriminate antibusiness attitude" of the administration was the greatest hindrance to recovery, Prentis said that "our task today is not, as Mr. Roosevelt says, one of 'finding jobs faster than invention can take them away' but one of putting inventions to work to create new industries and new jobs."

Prentis declared that invention had created "infinitely more jobs" than had been destroyed by technological improvements.

"Industry," he said, "is not shirking its part of the job. Given the support of government, it will provide new plants and new work."

HOME BUILDING LAST YEAR GAINS 30% OVER 1938

The number of urban single family homes constructed in the United States last year increased about 30 per cent over the 1938 level, Byron T. Schutz, president of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, estimated yesterday. He based his estimate on reports from 64 cities in 31 states where 92,719 single family houses were built last year, compared with 71,200 in 1938.

There was a 47 per cent increase in the number of apartment house units built last year in the same cities, according to Schutz, who placed the total at 26,123, against 15,709 in 1938.

Schutz expressed the conviction that a 15 per cent boost in residential construction this year, which, he said, is generally expected, will probably be bettered.

District National Bank Reports Profit of $15,707

The District National bank, 1110 West 35th street, had profit of $15,707 in 1939, after preferred stock dividends, Clarke Washburne, president of the bank, reported yesterday. He said the earnings were equal to 15.10 per cent on the common stock, compared with 11.65 per cent in 1938.

Treaty Break Held Proof of Plan's Faults

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6 [Special].—The breakdown of negotiations for a trade treaty with Argentina was described by 25 Republican representatives tonight as proof that critics of the administration supported agreement had made out a clear case against it.

Meanwhile, it was learned in responsible official quarters that similar trade negotiations with Uruguay will be terminated as soon as official announcements to this effect can be conveniently prepared in Washington and Montevideo.

From many sources came expressions of satisfaction over the suspension of efforts to enter a trade pact with Argentina. Senator Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] said: "Live stock interests of the west are gratified that the negotiations have been halted."

Welcomed by Agriculture.

The National Grange said that ending of the trade talks "was welcome news indeed to agricultural producers and must be regarded as a move to get rid of a back-breaking liability that the administration simply could not afford to carry into the fight."

The statement in which the group of Republican representatives joined was issued thru the party's national committee.

"The suspension of negotiations for a reciprocal trade treaty with Argentina," the statement said, "is a plain demonstration that the Roosevelt administration is afraid of public opinion on the question at this time.

"When congress adjourns, will the negotiations be resumed and an agreement completed contrary to the best interests of the farmers and workers of this country? There can be no assurance that this will not happen if the reciprocal trade agreement act is reënacted in its present form.

"The only guarantee against such an event is amendment of the trade agreement act to provide that all such agreements either must be ratified by the senate like all other treaties, or confirmed by the house and senate."

Insist on Ratification.

With the act due to expire June 12 unless renewed, the Republicans outlined what is expected to be the opposition program by insisting on this ratification. The administration opposes such a provision because of the difficulty of getting the senate to ratify any treaty by a two-thirds vote.

It was unofficially explained that the breakdown of negotiations with Argentina, announced by the state department last night, followed refusal of the United States to grant undue concessions that might have had a harmful effect on American producers.

A similar reason is expected to cause the suspension of trade negotiations with Uruguay because major products the United States could import from that country are much the same as those upon which it was proposed to grant concessions to Argentina.

BUSINESS MOVES WARILY; GROPES FOR 1940 SIGNS

Some Lines Advance, Others Retreat.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business and industry, still under the influence of the holidays and groping to find signs as to the 1940 trend, moved in a devious course last week.

Indices which nudged upward included those for steelmaking, retail sales, wholesale trade, engineering construction awards, the volume of new securities offered to the public, and bank clearings.

Pointing the other way were the figures for automobile production, electric power output, railroad freight movement, residential construction, and business loans by banks in Chicago and New York City. Cotton textile mills operated at about the same rate as in the preceding week.

Several Industries Expanding.

Meantime, numerous orders for equipment or enlarged programs for improvements or expansions were announced by companies engaged in the air transport, railroad, steel, utility, oil, and machine building industries. These were among the favorable signs for the new year.

Pessimism increased among small oil refining companies, particularly in the midcontinent area, with some plants reported to be considering shutdowns. They asserted they have been losing money on every barrel of crude oil they handle, and blame the current level of gasoline prices.

Banks in Chicago and the nation issued statements of condition as of Dec. 30. Some reported smaller earnings for 1939 and others said they had larger profits.

Chicago Bank Earns Most.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company earned more than any other bank in the nation, the Chicago institution's profit rising to $16,526,000, compared with $15,565,518 in 1938. In general, deposits increased, as did idle lendable funds,

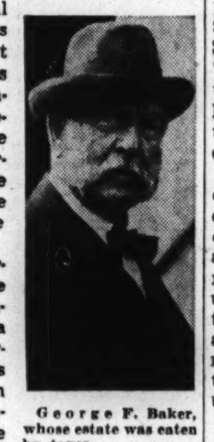
Insurance Reaping Benefits from Gift and Estate Taxes

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Insurance companies are indirect beneficiaries of the high gift and estate tax rates of the federal government. This is due to the fact that insurance is being widely employed to safeguard the future of business enterprises that are put in double jeopardy by the owner's death.



George F. Baker, whose estate was eaten by taxes.

Under any circumstances the death of the owner may place a business enterprise in serious jeopardy. When death is accompanied by the necessity of providing a large sum of cash to pay the federal estate and state inheritance taxes the threat to the future of the business is that much greater. Misfortune may overtake the business in a number of ways. The heirs may be forced to put the business in hock to pay the tax bill. This may handicap the business by giving outside interests a voice in the management.

Often Injures Business.

The heirs may choose to sell and take what is left after taxes are paid out of a business in which the risks are great. Some prosperous business enterprises have been permanently crippled financially by overcapitalization that sometimes follows a change in ownership.

To perpetuate their enterprises many men are resorting to insurance as a device for providing cash to meet the heavy death duties that may ruin their business.

Usually the insurance is made payable to a named beneficiary or trustee under an irrevocable life insurance trust. Thus the proceeds of the insurance are not lumped with the remainder of the taxable estate and made subject to higher tax rates. Under this arrangement the first $40,000 of insurance is exempt from the federal estate taxes. The insurance may thus be earmarked to meet the death duties and probate expenses and remove the necessity of forced liquidation of securities and property in the estate.

Life insurance trusts established for this purpose must be irrevocable. All rights of ownership and the equity in cash surrender values is assigned to the trustee.

The federal estate tax starts at 2 per cent on net taxable estates of $10,000 or less [after deducting the $40,000 exemption], and ranges up to 70 per cent on net estates of more than $50,000,000. The federal tax is levied on the estate as distinct from the Illinois inheritance tax which is on the recipient.

Persons of wealth must make other preparations to minimize the death duties on their estates. An income may be provided for a widow and other dependents under a testamentary trust that is to be distributed ultimately to the children when they have reached a stated age. This avoids the double taxation that would result were the estate first transferred to the widow and transferred again upon her death to the children.

Levies on Gifts.

Federal gift tax rates are about 75 per cent of the estate tax rates. If a sizable part of an estate is given away before the death of the owner the property may be taxed as heavily as if it was distributed under a will after the owner's death. Such gifts, however, may not be made in contemplation of death. The state of Illinois does not levy a gift tax.

A noted example of the shrinkage that may occur is the case of the estate of the late George F. Baker, New York banker. When Baker died in 1931 his estate was appraised at $77,000,000 gross value. The securities in the estate were worth $75,000,000. Three years later the securities had shrunk to $52,000,000 and debts and expenses cut the net value of the assets before taxes to $50,000,000. In 1935 the federal and state taxes amounted to more than the value of the estate. An amendment to the federal tax laws was adopted by congress, however, permitting valuation of estates for tax purposes either at the time of death or a year later, thus allowing for shrinkage in values during probate.

Peoples Gas Company Asks Rehearing on Rate Decree

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke company yesterday petitioned the Illinois Supreme court for a rehearing on a decision holding invalid an increase in gas rates which has been in effect for 23 months. Increased payments of Chicago consumers have been held in a separate fund pending the final outcome of the litigation.

AIR LINES PLAN COMMUTER RUNS BETWEEN CITIES

Frequent and Fast Service Is Goal.

America's air transport industry of the future will provide commuter service between metropolitan centers with plane service every half hour or less, increased frequency of trans-Atlantic service, and shortened time for travel and trade between any two points on the earth's surface.

Col. Edgar S. Gorrell.

This prediction was made yesterday by Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America. Reviewing the industry's record, he said 1939 was the best year in its history.

The domestic air transport industry, according to Col. Gorrell, has grown to such an extent that in normal times it flies more miles every day than the transport systems of any four other countries combined.

Big Sum for New Planes.

As an indication of even further expansion, Gorrell said, the air lines contemplate placing orders for new planes costing $25,000,000 for delivery

STOCKS CREEP AIMLESSLY IN DULL TRADING

Final Prices Unchanged to Slightly Lower.

New York, Jan. 6 [Special.]—Stocks crept up and down within a narrow range in spiritless dealings today and ended the short session not far from where they began. Advances, rarely exceeding fractional amounts, outnumbered the declines 226 to 201, but the combined averages were lower. Notwithstanding this, 11 of the 16 most active issues of the day closed higher.

Loft, Inc., which frequently moves in wide swings, led the list in volume and likewise showed one of the most substantial gains. It closed up a point at 22½, a new peak, on a turnover of 16,900 shares.

Other Issues Advance.

Brooklyn Manhattan Transit, ranking second in volume, also rose a point, reaching 15½ on a turnover of 9,900 shares. Electric Power and Light $7 preferred rose 1⅛. American-Hawaiian Steamship was up fractionally on reports of the sale of four ships to the British.

Others fractionally improved included Union Bag and Paper, General Motors, General Electric, Radio corporation, Reynolds Metal, Consolidated Edison, and Standard Oil of Indiana.

Closing down fractions to a point or more were United States Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, American Telephone, Union Pacific, United States Rubber, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Johns Manville, Standard Oil of New Jersey and du Pont.

Actions of Congress Awaited.

Brokers attributed the lack of aggressive buying to caution engendered by the new session of congress and what effect it may have on business thru new legislation. Many traders shunned the market until there is further indication on legislative trends, it was said.

Business news continued fairly cheerful, and altho some analysts look for a slump in the high rate of industrial operations in the spring, others predict the recession will be a minor one.

Factors helping the market included forecasts that next week's steel operations will maintain the gains achieved after the holiday letdown, and reports of expanding department store sales, freight car loadings and automobile sales.

WHEAT RECEDES AS SNOW HELPS WESTERN CROP

Moisture and Protection Given to Plant.

Snow was reported early yesterday to be falling over a large part of western Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma. It promised to furnish much needed additional moisture for the winter wheat crop in that area. It will also help to protect the plant against sudden changes in temperatures, crop experts said.

Fairly general selling developed in the wheat market as the result of the favorable weather conditions in the west and southwest. Prices on the Chicago Board of Trade declined about 1 cent at one time to a new low level for the week. Commission houses and professional operators bought on the decline and a fair rally followed. The close was ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower.

Weakness in the Winnipeg market, where wheat futures declined over 1 cent a bushel, and reports that Canadian No. 3 northern spring wheat was quoted at a price sufficiently low to suggest that a further recession in the market might result in imports of that grain had considerable influence on sentiment.

Fears that Canadian wheat might be imported into this country despite the duty of 42 cents a bushel have been a factor in accentuating the decline of about 5 cents a bushel from the recent high point in American markets, brokers said.

Ocean Freight Room Scarce.

Neutral countries in Europe are reported to be encountering considerable difficulty in securing liberal supplies of foreign wheat due to the scarcity of ocean freight room. A sale of Argentine wheat was made at Antwerp equal to $1.28½ per bushel, war risk insurance excluded, the grain to be shipped whenever a steamer is available.

Exporters were good buyers of corn futures, and there were reports that about 250,000 bushels had been sold to Europe. The United Kingdom was said to be out of the market for American corn at the present time, and business was said to be confined to Ireland and the continent.

Corn futures closed unchanged to ¼ cent lower. Soy beans showed independent strength and advanced 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents on scattered commission house buying.

COTTON

Mill and foreign buying of cotton futures resulted in advancing prices yesterday with the old crop months showing the most strength. Closing sales were 0.02 to 0.18 cent a pound higher.

Liverpool was closed for the usual Saturday holiday. Bombay prices were somewhat lower.

Exporters reported that it was easy to sell cotton to Europe when they could promise a definite shipment, but the scarcity of ocean freight room tended to restrict business. English interests believed that the government control of shipping would probably result in curtailing the movement of cotton for a short time, but they expected a larger amount of freight room will be available when the program starts to function without friction.

Spot cotton closed 0.06 to 0.17 cent higher with New York, 11.46 cents; New Orleans, 11.35 cents; Galveston, 10.91 cents, and Houston at 10.90 cents a pound. Prices follow:

RATE CUT BRINGS LARGE SHIPMENT OF MOLASSES

Rails Regain Business from Barges.

Forty-five tank cars loaded with blackstrap molasses last night started a trip from New Orleans to Chicago under a new low trainload freight rate recently approved by the Interstate Commerce commission. Railroad men said the commission's rate ruling was the most important decision in many years. The Illinois Central railroad is transporting the shipment to Peoria, Ill.

Several railroads which formerly did a substantial business in hauling the molasses to distillers and other processors in Illinois obtained a reduced rate in an effort to regain traffic diverted to barge lines. The commission in authorizing a rate of 15 cents a hundred pounds for trainload shipments reversed its former policy of refusing to grant lower than carload rates regardless of the number of cars in the train.

Ruling of Commission.

The commission ruled that "there is nothing unlawful in railroad rates based on quantities greater than carload, moving in single shipments, when such rates are designed to meet competition of other modes of transport, barges for instance."

The Illinois Central shipment is being made to the Commercial Solvents company at Peoria. The new rate applies also on shipments from Harvey, La., and to Pekin, Ill.

The New Orleans-Peoria-Pekin movement of blackstrap molasses attained large volume in 1935 when importation was undertaken on a large scale for the manufacture of alcohol, solvents, and allied products. The Illinois Central then published a rate of 17½ cents in an effort to forestall the use of river barges for the traffic and keep it on the rails.

Sets Other Rates.

However, in 1937 the commerce commission upset the 17½ cent rate and authorized a 20 cent rate. The use of river barges was doubled, and when the commission authorized a return to the 17½ cent rate in 1938 the cut failed to attract new rail traffic in adequate volume. The Illinois Central last June sought permission to cut the rate to 14 cents a hundred pounds on a minimum movement of 40 carloads. The commission last month set the rate at 15 cents for a minimum of 38½ tank car loads, effective yesterday.

Establishment of the new principle on trainload rates, according to railroad men, is likely to result in the early start of negotiations between railroads and industry on trainload rates on coal, oil, and other products.

CUSTOMER PROTECTION.

The stock broker holds a position of trust in dealing with the public. His customers disclose confidential financial information and often request him to assist them in investing their savings. He is intrusted with their cash balances pending instructions or with securities for safe keeping. He is asked to collect dividends and interest, to furnish advice and investment research, and to lend money on acceptable collateral.

The function of the broker obviously is a fiduciary one. To fulfill his trusteeship he must remain solvent. Thus, the New York Stock exchange has established rules of conduct for brokers to protect customers from losses resulting from insolvencies caused by brokers' errors or misconduct.

Last fall the stock exchange began an examination of its regulations to determine what additional safeguards could be adopted to protect customers against insolvency or failure of their brokers. The inquiry followed a tentative suggestion by the Securities and Exchange commission that a brokerage bank be created to hold all cash and securities of customers and to negotiate loans on their behalf.

A public examining board appointed by the president of the exchange conducted hearings on various proposals to increase customer protection. The board concluded that the transfer of the banking functions of brokers to a "brokerage bank" or to commercial banks was undesirable. It suggested instead that the exchange regulations be tightened.

The board suggested [1] that brokers maintain adequate capital to act as a buffer against any losses they themselves might take; [2] that they avoid assuming excessive risks by heavy dealings for their own accounts; [3] that they be supervised vigilantly, and [4] that brokers disclose to customers full details of their financial condition and practices.

Consideration of the recommendations was delegated to various committees of the exchange. Two of the suggestions have been enacted. One requires that member firms distribute to customers at least once a year a printed, audited financial statement. The other increases the minimum capital requirements of member firms dealing with the public from $25,000 to $50,000 after March 1.

Among other recommendations were: [1] Customers' cash balances left with brokers should either be segregated from the brokers' own funds in special deposits in commercial banks or the brokers should obtain authorization to use the deposits in their business, and [2] firms engaged in dealing for their own accounts or in underwriting new issues in excess of their capital should be required as soon as it is feasible to separate their brokerage from their dealing and underwriting business.

Woman Heads Railway

Mrs. Ida Gardner Dingler.

Cassville, Mo., Jan. 6 [Special].—Mrs. Ida Gardner Dingler deserted her household chores momentarily today to assume the task of running a railroad but assured questioners that within a short time she will be able to handle both with ease. Despite her 65 years Mrs. Dingler displayed youthful enthusiasm in her new job of directing operation of the country's smallest standard gauge railroad, the 4.8 mile Cassville and Exeter, as successor to her husband, David, who died last November.

Map shows location of railroad.

Mrs Dingler, altho not yet prepared to fill her husband's post as engineer of the line's only locomotive, said she is well able to handle the office work. And as president she becomes eligible to free rides on the big time railroads anywhere in the country and also to attend railroad conventions, at which her husband used to boast: "My road may not be as long as yours, but it's just as wide."

NLRB DROPS ONE CHARGE AGAINST FIRM IN CHICAGO

Guy Van Schaick, examiner for the National Labor Relations board, yesterday dismissed one charge against the Burry Biscuit corporation of Chicago and took two others under advisement at the conclusion of hearings on a labor controversy. The examiner agreed with the company that one of the employés was discharged for inefficiency and not as a result of discrimination, as alleged by the Cracker and Biscuit Workers' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Van Schaick is expected to make an intermediate report soon on the union's other charges that the company fostered and dominated an independent union, and discouraged membership in the A. F. of L. organization.

During the hearings company attorneys told of repeated attempts to settle the controversy and avoid the expense of the litigation, but declared labor board officials at Chicago and Washington had refused their pleas to hold a plant election to determine which union should represent workers in bargaining negotiations.

LIFE INSURANCE FIRM TAKES OVER STRAUS BUILDING

Title to the Straus building at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Jackson boulevard has passed from the Straus Safe Deposit company to the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company, holder of a mortgage on the building, it was learned yesterday. The building had not produced enough income in the last five years to reduce the $9,600,000 mortgage. A deed effecting the transfer has been filed with Recorder Edward Kaindl.

The name of the Straus Safe Deposit company has been changed to 310 South Michigan corporation. It will manage the building with the present personnel.

Egg and Butter Futures Firmer in Chicago Trade

Smaller receipts, liberal governmental support, and colder weather were credited by egg traders yesterday with steadying prices on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. January refrigerator standards closed at 14.25 cents a dozen, a gain of 0.15 cent. Other deliveries were nominally unchanged. The February butter future erased its Friday loss in dull trading yesterday, and closed at 28.75 cents a pound, up 0.25. Other deliveries and cash butter prices were unchanged.

New York Reserve Bank's Earnings Rise in 1939

New York, Jan. 6 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Bank of New York today reported net earnings of $4,831,000 in 1939, against $3,291,000 in 1938. Dividends for the year were $3,055,000, against $3,057,000 in 1938, making the balance of earnings after dividend disbursements $1,776,000, against $234,000.

BREEDING HYBRID SEED CORN TAKES 6 YEARS OR MORE

Middle West's Production Is Revolutionized.

Hybrid corn, which because of its heavy crop production has upset government plans for crop control, had a long record of scientific development before it appeared on the market to revolutionize the middle west's principal crop.

In the production of the hybrid seed there is a scientific process that involves six or eight years of control over the pollination of a single line of the plant. But the result of all this effort has been to produce a corn whose crop has been so heavy as to cause the department of agriculture to reduce the 1940 acreage allotment on corn in the middle west.

Ordinary, or open pollinated corn, is produced by random pollination. The pollen [male germ] which falls on any given corn silk, resulting in fertilization of the plant, may be from the tassel of any other corn plant, or from its own tassel.

Pollination Is Controled.

To produce the hybrid seed sold to farmers, however, it is necessary to control pollination by covering the ear shoots with paper bags before the silks emerge from the husk. When the silks emerge, pollen is collected from the bagged tassel of the same plant and applied to the silks, which then are covered again. The ear which develops is self-fertilized.

When this inbreeding is carried on for several years, the good qualities inherent in the particular line of corn become concentrated in a few plants by elimination of specimens with the bad qualities. Out of thousands of individual lines, very few are good enough to save. In this period of inbreeding, qualities producing weak stalks, poor root development, susceptibility to disease, and other undesirable characteristics are to a large extent eliminated.

Nevertheless, the plants themselves, while they have inherently superior qualities, are short and slender, with small ears.

Cross "Single Hybrid."

The crossing of two lines of satisfactory inbreds produces a "single hybrid." Only unrelated inbred lines are crossed, and the single hybrids are tested to determine which combinations are best. Single hybrids are not suitable for commercial use because the seed is produced on low yielding inbred plants which have irregularly shaped kernels, which makes the production cost high and planting difficult.

When single hybrids are crossed, the result is a "double hybrid" suitable for commercial corn seeding. Growth is carefully regulated, lest the years of patient inbreeding and careful crossing of adaptable lines be lost. Double hybrid corn is produced in a "crossing field" which should be about 660 feet away from any other cornfield, to prevent pollution of the pure strains by other lines of corn.

In the field there are four rows of seed producing "female" plants for each row of male plants. Tassels on the female plants must be removed daily before they shed any pollen, to make sure that the female plants are pollinated only by the "male" plants.

No Distinction in Plants.

There is, of course, no distinction in form or character between the so-called male and female plants. Corn is bisexual; each plant naturally performs the biological functions of both sexes. In developing hybrids, however, the expert suppresses the male fertilizing function in some plants by capturing the pollen. He calls these plants "female." The plants whose pollen is used he calls "male."

By the second cross, which brings together four inbred strains, there is at last produced double hybrid seed suitable for commercial distribution. Only the corn from the female plants in this second cross is double hybrid. Ears from the male plants, being self-fertilized, are suitable only for feed.

Saves Money at High Price.

This hybrid seed currently sells for about $6 a bushel. At one time it sold for $12 a bushel and more, and the farmers couldn't buy enough because it more than pays its way. One bushel of hybrid seed will plant six acres in corn yielding from 10 to 30 per cent more grain than ordinary corn. One bushel of ordinary corn will seed an acre and costs about 50 cents a bushel at present. At present prices the cost of seeding an acre with hybrid would be twice the cost of ordinary seed corn, but the net yield may be 10 to 15 bushels an acre larger.

The seed of the resulting crop, however, is not suitable for planting the second generation crop. It quickly loses its superior qualities, and will produce 15 to 30 per cent less grain and silage than the first generation. Thus the farmer must buy new hybrid seed each year.

Its Use Spreads Rapidly.

As a result of this, an entire new industry has grown up in the corn belt. Dozens of companies make a business—and a good one—of producing hybrid seed for sale. Each year they produce more, and each year the farmers buy more. Only six or seven years ago hybrid seed was of no importance at all commercially. Last year 70 to 80 per cent of all the corn planted in the commercial corn area was hybrid corn. This year the experts predict the percentage will be larger.

The result of planting hybrid corn is evident in a comparison of corn belt yields with those in other parts of the country, where hybrid corn has not been produced to any great extent.

Some corn belt states produced about 50 bushels per acre in 1939, while the average for the entire United States was only 28.6 bushels per acre. Corn belt yields were about 15 bushels per acre above the 1928-'37 average.

BUSINESS MOVES WARILY; GROPES FOR 1940 SIGNS

Record breaking sales figures for chain store organizations and mail order houses covering December confirmed previous estimates that the 1939 Christmas buying season was the best in years.

Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co., in December and in the first 11 months of last year exceeded all previous records.

The nation's shippers, including manufacturers and all others who use railroad freight cars, predicted that 5,123,227 loaded cars will shuttle back and forth thruout the country in the first three months of this year. That would be 12.1 per cent more than in the first quarter of 1939. The forecasts of these shippers are considered good business indicators.

Industrial Index Declines.

The Associated Press index of industrial activity declined to 110.7 per cent of the 1929-'30 average, compared with 111.7 per cent a week earlier and 92.5 per cent a year earlier. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Last week.	Preced'g week.	Year ago.
Automobile production	105.0	106.5	83.2
Steel mill activity	116.0	119.5	75.1
Cotton manufacturing	137.5	137.5	114.6
Electric power use	129.3	129.5	116.3
Residential building	*92.0	96.9	92.8
Total car loadings	75.2	74.3	67.8

Steel mill operations were on an average rate of 85.7 per cent of capacity, compared with 73.7 per cent in the preceding week, 92.8 per cent a month earlier, and 50.7 per cent a year earlier. The trade magazine, Iron Age, said the industry's outlook was the best for this season since 1929.

Retail Trade Above Year Ago.

Retail trade, as estimated by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was 4 to 10 per cent larger in volume last week than in the corresponding 1939 week. In the preceding week the year to year gain was estimated at 2 to 6 per cent. The mercantile agency said wholesale trade improved, but "rather slowly," and that the number of buyers arriving at central wholesale markets was smaller than a year ago.

Sales of new securities, including municipal issues, rose to $95,901,471 in the week ended Jan. 4, compared with $21,055,749 in the preceding week and $6,426,500 in the 1939 week.

Freight and Power Figures.

Compilations on railroad freight and electric power covered the week ended Dec. 30. They showed that freight volume was 550,270 cars, or 16 per cent less than in the preceding week but 10.2 per cent more than in the 1938 week, and that power output was 2,404,316,000 kilowatt hours, or 9.1 per cent less for the week, but 13.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Selection of a new leader for a billion dollar oil and utility organization was announced during the week. W. Alton Jones, who had been first vice president of Cities Service company, was elected its president to succeed the late Henry L. Doherty, the company's founder.

PARKS MAY PAY PORTION OF OLD TAX WARRANTS

Chicago District Awaits Court Decisions.

The Chicago park district is holding funds totaling $322,770 toward payment of tax warrants issued as far back as 1920 by predecessor park district units, it was disclosed yesterday. Securities held by the public, against which the funds on hand are applicable, total $1,172,841, exclusive of interest.

Harold L. Baker, awaits court order.

Of the $1,172,841 of warrants outstanding, issues of the old West Chicago park district account for $911,000. The balance represents issues of the other park districts consolidated into the present Chicago park district in 1934.

Accrued interest on bond and interest warrants, and corporate tax warrants of the predecessor units totaled $622,051 on Nov. 30. Unpaid interest on West Chicago park district warrants accounted for $533,879 of this total.

Warrants Quoted Below Par.

Dealers in the unlisted security market currently are quoting warrants of the predecessor park districts at 40 to 60 cents on the dollar.

Records of the Chicago park district showed unpaid corporate warrants of the predecessor park units on Nov. 30 were, by years of issue, as follows:

1930	3,500
1931	51,081
1932	110,499
1933	44,661
Total	$1,172,841

Besides the $911,000 of West Chicago park district warrants still outstanding, the total unpaid includes issues of the old Albany, Fernwood, Forest Glen, Hollywood, Irving, North Shore, Northwest, Norwood, Portage, Ridge avenue, Ridge, Sauganash, and West Pullman districts.

Distribution Awaits Courts.

Officials of the Chicago park district are awaiting a decision of the courts on which to base distribution of the funds now on hand, according to Harold L. Baker, director of accounts. The $322,770 now being held represents returns from taxes imposed by the predecessor park districts under levies dating back to 1929. Additional tax returns applicable toward payment of the outstanding warrants are still expected, Baker said.

Payment on interest and toward reduction of principal of the outstanding warrants has been withheld by the present park district because of legal technicalities, Baker explained. Officials were unable to determine whether payments should be made on a numerical or pro-rata basis, and whether warrants issued above the 75 per cent limit fixed by law represented valid obligations.

Seek to Clarify Payments.

Holders of warrants of the predecessor districts were recently made parties to lawsuits in the Superior court thru which the park district seeks to clarify the question of payment. Taking of evidence has been concluded and the matter is now being reviewed by a master in chancery, Baker said. A ruling is expected within the next few months.

Baker declared many of the predecessor park districts had issued tax warrants in excess of the 75 per cent allowed by statute against their levies. In the case of one of the predecessor units, he said, the percentage of warrants issued against the tax extension totaled 147 per cent. This district's tax extension in one year amounted to $2,784, of which 53 per cent was collected up to last June 30. Principal of warrants issued was $4,100, or 147.24 per cent against the tax extension. The full amount of the warrants is still outstanding, accrued interest up to June 30 was $1,288, and cash on hand at that time amounted to $1,408.

Monterey Hotel Is Leased for Ten Years at $155,000

The nine story Monterey hotel at 4300 North Clarendon avenue has been leased from the American National Bank and Trust company, as trustee, by the Monterey Hotel company, Horace A. Young, attorney for the bank, announced yesterday. The lease on the 210 room hotel is for 10 years from Jan. 1, 1940, and involves $155,000 rental for the entire 10 year term.

Company Formed to Erect South Shore Drive Building

Another step in plans made a year ago for construction of a $450,000 ten story apartment building at the northeast corner of South Shore drive and 74th street was reported taken yesterday. It was disclosed that the South Shore Drive Building corporation has been formed, with Nathan W. MacChesney as president. He has owned the land for many years.

AIR LINES PLAN COMMUTER RUNS BETWEEN CITIES

Frequent, Fast Service Is Goal.

in 1940. Last year the air lines added more than 50 new planes to their fleets, including six for transoceanic service, he said.

"Increased frequencies of service across the Atlantic are expected to go into effect in 1940," Gorrell said, visualizing the industry's immediate future. "Yankee clippers will connect the Pacific coast with New Zealand this year. It seems evident that as time goes on, America will have a more and more abundant supply of air transportation at prices sufficiently low so that every one may avail himself of this service."

Every index in air transportation, including passenger, mail and express traffic, employment, and financial operations, showed improvement last year, he said.

After losses of more than $2,000,000 annually for several previous years, Gorrell declared, the industry finished 1939 with a profit.

The head of the association of air transport companies, which maintains offices in Chicago, estimated that domestic and American international lines had flown 880,000,000 passenger miles during 1939. This was an increase of 40 per cent over the 635,000,000 miles flown in 1938. More than 13,000,000 pounds of express were carried last year, compared with 9,452,600 in the preceding year. Mail poundage jumped from 23,500,000 in 1938 to slightly better than 27,000,000 pounds in 1939. Employment rose 22 per cent during the year.

Safety Record Gains Passengers.

"The air lines' safety record has undoubtedly contributed materially to the unprecedented passenger volume," Gorrell continued. "At the close of the year, the domestic air lines completed 620,000,000 passenger miles, or 67,000,000 plane miles, and the carrying of 1,400,000 passengers without injury to any."

Passenger traffic has become the major source of air line revenue in the last few years and the ratio is steadily increasing, according to Gorrell. More than 60 per cent of air lines' revenues last year was from passenger traffic, he said, whereas five years ago 70 per cent was derived from mail carrying and only 30 per cent from passengers, express and all other sources.

Start Advertising Program.

A joint advertising campaign by air lines and aeronautical manufacturers, launched after more than eight years of negotiation, was one of the principal factors contributing to increased traffic, Gorrell said. One of the results of the campaign and other efforts of the industry to encourage air travel, he declared, is that today each air liner carries an average of four or more women on each trip. A few years ago there were few women air travelers, he said.

Formation of the Air Traffic conference, designed for collaboration between carriers on traffic matters, the functioning of the Civil Aeronautics authority, and the air carriers' arbitration agreement for the settling of disputes were other factors to which Gorrell attributed the industry's progress last year.

"Backed up by the daily operation essentials of speed and dependability, comfort, and convenience," he concluded, "the scheduled air lines are limited in their performance only by their ability to carry the loads presented."

AMERICAN GAS' BIG FINANCING PROGRAM GETS SEC APPROVAL

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6 (AP).—The securities commission today approved the issuance of $65,562,000 of securities by the American Gas and Electric company to redeem outstanding obligations. In addition, the SEC approved a bank loan not to exceed $20,000,000.

The new financing will consist of $30,000,000 of sinking fund debentures and 355,623 shares of 4¾ per cent cumulative preferred stock totaling $35,562,000. The debentures are made up of $8,000,000 of a 2¾ per cent series due in 1950, $10,000,000 of 3⅛ series, due 1960, and $12,000,000 3¾ per cent series, due 1970.

With the fund the company proposes to redeem at 106 per cent $30,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures, due 2028, and all outstanding $6 preferred stock. Holders of the present outstanding preferred will be given the right to exchange their stock for new preferred.

The new preferred stock will be first offered to the holders of the present stock and only that amount which is not purchased by them will be sold to the public.

RUBBER PLANTS FACING PROBLEM IN RISING COSTS

The rubber industry faces a serious problem as a result of increases in the costs of the raw materials which it uses, John W. Thomas, president of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, told stockholders yesterday at their annual meeting in Akron, O.

Costs of raw materials have risen 187 per cent since 1933, Thomas said, and the average hourly wage rates paid in the rubber industry have increased 61 per cent. Retail prices of tires increased 40 per cent in the same period, he said.

Firestone paid out 53.3 per cent of its total income for materials, fuel, transportation and other expenses in 1939, and 27.7 per cent in wages and salaries, the stockholders were told.

Thomas said a favorable situation exists for the industry insofar as tire replacements are concerned. The pound volume of replacement tire shipments in 1939 exceeded all previous records, he said, and there are "many indications" that the demand will continue at a high level.

BRITAIN'S TRADE LANGUISHES IN YEAR OF CRISES

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The paralysis of British business under the recurring European crises which finally plunged this country into another war with Germany is reflected in banking, stock market, and capital issues statistics issued this week-end and covering operations for 1939.

Bills and checks paid in to bankers and clearing houses last year from London and the metropolitan and provincial centers aggregated £36,641,873,000 [about $146,567,492,000], according to official figures just issued here. The total shows a drop of £2,968,365,000 [about $11,873,224,000], or 7.4 per cent under the corresponding figures for 1938.

Shrinkage Marks Entire Year.

An analysis of the statistics on a quarterly basis reveals that the shrinkage compared to the previous year persisted uninterruptedly thruout 1939. The first quarter produced a drop of 7.6 per cent, the second fared worse with a fall of 9.4 per cent. Thereafter it would appear that the effect of rearmament exercised a revivifying influence on some sections of British trade and commerce for the third quarter, despite the inclusion of the first month of the war, registered a slightly less steep decline at 9.1 per cent.

Many Lines Badly Hit.

Even now many undertakings are badly hit and the fact that the fourth quarter's slump in bank clearings is computed at no more than 3.7 per cent merely marks the diversion of spending to government sources for wartime requirements, according to market observers.

The freezing of the capital market following the outbreak of the war is disclosed in the register of the year's new issues compiled by the Midland bank. The total raised during the year is given as £66,294,000 [about $265,176,000] whereto the last four months contributed only £1,172,000 [about $4,688,000]. This was £52,000,000 [about $208,000,000] less than for the preceding year and more than £22,000,000 [about $88,000,000] below the total for 1931, when the previous big slump reached its worst point.

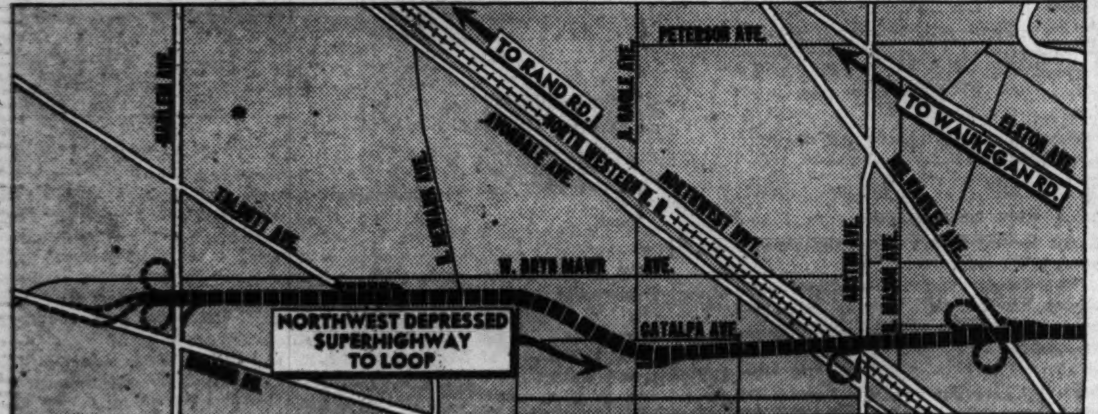
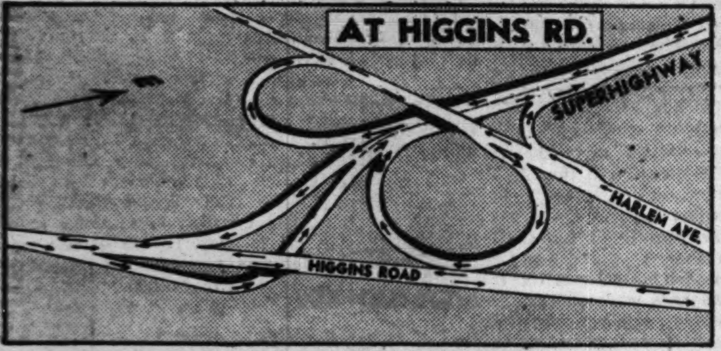
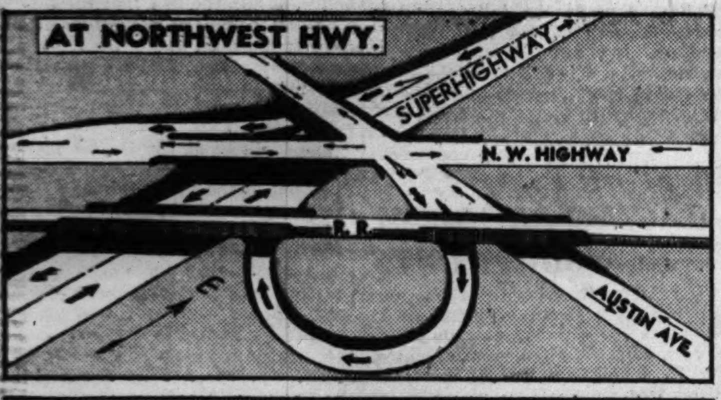
Superhighway to Connect with Rural Routes



This map shows the outer terminals planned by Cook county engineers for the $39,900,000 northwest superhighway they recommend for adoption by the county board. Below are enlargements of three grade separations at intersections of the depressed superhighway with important rural routes.

At Three Intersections





VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

NORTHWEST ROUTE FOR MOTORISTS.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Motorists of the northwest side are elated over the plans for a superhighway. Cook county engineers have done a magnificent job. Some details may be improved, but by and large congratulations are in order.

The presence of the Chicago Motor club, the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Chicago Regional Planning association on the advisory committee will prevent any injustices to motorists such as exist in the Congress street plan. Some real estate gamblers may be disconcerted over the location but the motoring public, which will be served, believes that a good job has been done. Let us keep real estate considerations, such as the insistence on some particular route, out of our northwest side discussions. Superhighways are for motorists, not for real estate promoters.

ADVOCATE.

ATLANTA TRAFFIC COURTS.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 26.—As a native born son of Chicago, I hold my head in shame today. This morning the headlines of an Atlanta newspaper read: "635 Die Violently as Nation Marks Holiday; Illinois Leads with 64." This headline sounds as bad as many headlines of today read in many large cities in war torn Europe.

Fourteen hundred traffic accidents in Chicago alone and 27 of these proved fatal. What Chicago needs is a court of strict justice like Atlanta has to teach autoists that the vehicle they drive every day can prove to be a weapon of death. Here in Atlanta the following fines prevail in the vehicle court: Speed limit, 25 miles within the city limits. You go 40 miles per hour; fine—$10, plus $3 court costs, plus $1 for every m. p. h. over 25. The total fine is $28. The fine for driving while intoxicated is $52.50 including court costs; second offense—same fine and confiscation of your state driver's license for one year. The most pleasant part of this court is that no politics is involved, so your brother-in-law's cousin, who is a precinct captain in the 4th ward, can't help you.

Do the pedestrians of Chicago want a safe city to walk in? If they do then the Municipal courts of Chicago should be turned into courts of justice such as Atlanta has. Then possibly when the next holiday season comes around Chicago will be about the 10th or 15th on the death toll list instead of the first, like it was in 1939.

M. LOEFFLER EHRMAN.

ABUSE OF MECHANICAL WONDER.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—With the coming of improved auto models each year the motor car becomes more of a marvel of man's ingenuity than ever. The auto is now one of man's major achievements. The only drawback it has are those who abuse it by destroying life with it instead of properly appreciating the power they hold at a press of a button. There is nothing wrong with the auto, but the drivers who override and overrun the road seemingly do not possess the type of mind which marvels at the wonder of the age—the auto.

PHILOSOPHER.

TOW CHAIN AND SHOVEL.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—In your article on winter driving hazards you failed to mention two valuable suggestions. Where there is a chance of being stopped by [illegible] a shovel and a tow chain are handy emergency equipment.

C. SAMUEL LANIER.

GOOD DRIVER SAVED A LIFE.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—I would like to have this letter printed where a certain driver will see it.

At the corner of Kimball and Lawrence avenues recently I was nearly killed by an oncoming car.

What I want that driver to know is this: It was entirely my fault, and a tribute is due to his skill, his brakes and his head work. If all were not just as good as they proved to be, I should not be writing this letter.

I did not go to the driver at the time for the reason that traffic was congested and would have been more so if I hindered him, and too, I was somewhat muddled, too much so to think of what I ought to do at the time. Again I thank that driver.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Charles Blades, oldest employé of the Oldsmobile division of the General Motors corporation, was given a dinner in Lansing, Mich., recently to celebrate his 80th birthday, at which Gov. Dickinson, R. E. Olds, founder of the Olds Motor Works, and W. S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, were present. Blades is the oldest worker in the automobile industry. C. L. McCuen, general manager of Oldsmobile, was host at the party to which were invited 300 Oldsmobile workers, each with a service record of 20 years or more.

Blades was born in England, Dec. 30, 1859, and came to this country with his parents when he was 5. After working at various jobs, he got work as a blacksmith at Clark's Carriage Works in Lansing where he helped build R. E. Olds' first automobile, which is now in the Smithsonian institute. He still has the hammer with which he fashioned the axles of that car 43 years ago. He is now employed as an information clerk in Oldsmobile's tool division.

Buick closed 1939 with one of the most successful years in its history behind it, reports O. L. Waller, assistant general sales manager, Chicago. Shipments during the year totaled 235,000 cars. Since the beginning of the 1940 model year, more than 111,000 units have been produced and shipped, with the last quarter of 1939 the largest by a substantial margin in the history of the company. The company enters the new year with a substantial bank of orders, according to Waller.

W. G. Morrison, since 1931 a district manager for De Soto in Newark, N. J., has been named assistant regional manager of the Chicago region, the De Soto division of the Chrysler corporation announces. C. C. Thompson was transferred from Kansas City to Chicago to become regional merchandising manager.

The Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation has added a line of seven passenger cars to its 1940 models. These cars have a 139½ inch wheel base, 20 inches longer than the standard 1940 cars.

NORTHWEST SIDE SUPER TO LINK RURAL ROUTES

BY HAL FOUST.

The Northwest superhighway, as planned by engineers under County Highway Superintendent George A. Quinlan, will have convenient connections with important rural routes that form a fan from the northwestern corner of Chicago. As much attention was given to this essential of an efficient traffic arterial as was given to a downtown terminal connecting with the outer drive and also absorbing and distributing loop traffic.

In this respect the county's plans differ from those prepared by the city's engineers for a Congress street superhighway. The city would end its express traffic on the east at Canal street. On the west, the superhighway would dump its load onto local suburban streets at the city limits. It has been suggested that at some future date, the superhighway might be continued farther west, to Butterfield road. This is eight miles west of the city limits, thru Oak Park, Forest Park, Maywood, Bellwood, and Hillside.

Kimball, Cicero Avenues Used.

McCormick road traffic in Evanston would reach the northwest superhighway by way of Kimball avenue. Skokie road traffic from Milwaukee and north shore suburbs would reach the express arterial by way of Cicero avenue.

Waukegan road and Milwaukee road travel would connect with the superhighway by way of Milwaukee avenue or Elston avenue. Rand road and Northwest highway users would connect with the safety route into the loop by way of the Northwest highway. Higgins road, planned and partly completed as a rural superhighway, would be the terminal of the urban superhighway. Commissioner Daniel Ryan, chairman of the county roads and bridges committee, likes the arrangement.

Grade separations of modified cloverleaf designs have been planned for these important intersections. All cross traffic movements have been eliminated in these pavement patterns. The express lanes of the new motorway would be depressed. The important cross streets would be on trestles.

Ramps to Connect Highways.

Ramps for one-way travel would connect the superhighway with existing thorofares, which would be at normal street level. Easy curves would carry travel up from the express lanes on leaving the superhighway and down to the express lanes on entering the superhighway.

The easy radius planned for these ramps is 140 feet. This might be contrasted with the 50 foot radii on the difficult ramps of outer drive grade separations between Bryon street and Foster avenue, as designed by the Illinois highway department.

Separate express lanes would approach and leave these ramps. These are for acceleration before merging with the thru traffic and for deceleration before diverging from the thru travel in making turns. The engineering calculation is for safety in leaving or entering these ramps at speeds as high as 56 miles an hour. It is not contemplated, however, that the superhighway will be operated at a pace this fast. More probable will be a 45 mile an hour usage, like rush hour travel on the outer drives where the signs read 35 m. p. h.

At Half Mile Intervals.

Thruout the 11 miles from Higgins road to the downtown business district ramp connections with the more important existing thorofares are made at intervals of about a half mile. Being a diagonal, the superhighway will pass under north and south as well as east and west section line and half-section line streets.

Cross streets of secondary importance to traffic will be carried over the depressed route on trestles without ramp connections. Cross streets purely local will be dead ended at the superhighway. This classification, numerically, will be greater than either of the other two.

Not Definitly Fixed.

Aside from the grade separation and ramp layouts for connections with the rural highways, the county engineers have not definitly fixed which cross streets should be closed, which provided with trestles without connecting ramps, and which should receive trestles with ramp connections.

The treatment to be given existing streets, while of only minor concern to motor travel, is of first concern to owners of stores, factories, and residences and vacant property in the neighborhoods traversed. On the route recommended by the county engineers, paralleling Clybourn avenue or Elston avenue for most of its distance, this inevitable agument with real estate owners will be more acute than it would be were the county board to adopt an alternate plan of building an elevated highway paralleling the existing embankment of the Chicago and North Western railroad.

Surveys Indicate Increased Building in 1940

MORE PRIVATE AND LESS PUBLIC WORK EXPECTED

Home Construction Will Be a Leader.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Most Chicago builders and bankers foresee an increase in building activity this year. Unless adverse developments check new building the year should record a gain over 1939, according to opinions expressed yesterday.

A national gain is also forecast. Surveys made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the realty field and by the Architectural forum in the building field disclose a general belief that real estate business and construction of all types will expand.

The American Institute of Architects asserts that the building industry is attracting private capital in progressively larger volume and that there will be an upward movement in construction during 1940.

Predicts Less Public Building.

The Architectural forum also predicts that the trend of public building will be downward this year but that it will be more than offset by a large increase in private construction.

The forum survey indicates that public construction will drop 6 per cent during 1940 to $2,632,000,000. On the other hand, private work will rise 12 per cent to a total of $3,926,000,000. Total construction expenditures in 1940 will increase 4 per cent to $6,558,000,000.

"Every major branch of private construction will share the upswing," the survey states. "In front dollarwise will be residential building [other than farm construction] due for an 11 per cent advance, from $1,900,000,000 to $2,109,000,000. This is exclusive of some $500,000,000 of public housing."

Expect Moderate Expansion.

The survey discloses that altho the twenty-one larger cities all predict an increase in home building, only four communities expect a more than 15 per cent gain. Chicago looks for 20 per cent more residential building. The other three cities anticipating more than 15 per cent are New York, Milwaukee, and Pittsburgh.

Commercial building, according to the survey, which last year involved $310,000,000, is scheduled to expand 10 per cent to $341,000,000.

Industrial building is expected to jump 27 per cent, from $200,000,000 to $254,000,000.

Public utility construction is scheduled for a 16 per cent advance, to a total of $638,000,000. Farm building will rise 9 per cent to $360,000,000.

Residential and commercial remodeling is expected to increase 9 per cent.

Factors of Advance.

The four factors indicating a general advance in the construction industry thruout the country, according to the survey are:

1. The business improvement which became markedly apparent prior to the declaration of war in Europe.

2. The added impetus given industrial production and employment by current and prospective war orders.

3. Prospects for increased economic expansion and consumer income.

4. Retrenchment by government from business baiting and deficit spending.

Volume of real estate sales this year will be higher than for 1939 in three cities out of four, according to a forecast made by real estate boards in 261 cities, all members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. In 62 per cent of the cities livelier new home building is in sight for 1940.

New Home in Edison Park

This five room home is being completed for Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Moffett by Theodore Nielsen & Sons, builders, at 6756 Octavia avenue in the Edison Park area. The reported construction cost is $6,500. The lot, 32½ by 124 feet, bought in 1930, cost $2,000, it was said. It is financed with a 25 year FHA loan made by the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation. The monthly interest and principal payments are $31.59, plus insurance and taxes. J. Steinbach is architect.

Announce New Regulations for FHA Title One Loans

Regulations governing the $2,500 small home ownership plan under title 1 of the FHA were made public yesterday by John R. O'Connor, Illinois state FHA director. They went into effect on Jan. 1, 1940.

Copies of the minimum construction requirements and property standards applying to this type of loan are available now in the Chicago FHA office, according to O'Connor.

Among the general provisions of the plan, known generally as title 1, class 3, $2,500 FHA loans, are these:

1. The maximum financing charge includes 4½ per cent interest, an annual service charge of ½ of 1 per cent, and mortgage insurance premium of ½ of 1 per cent on the original principal.

Need Own Only a Lot.

2. Potential low cost home owners now under the title 1, class 3 provisions need own only a lot free and clear, representing at least 5 per cent of the appraised value of the completed property. Or the house may be built on leased land when the borrower has an investment of 5 per cent in the completed property.

3. At least three inspections on all homes financed with loans under this section of the national housing act will be made by FHA to insure sound construction and afford extra protection to home buyers. Such inspections are made already on homes financed under title 2 loans. The same minimum construction requirements and property standards as are in effect on loans insured under title 2 will apply to the new title 1 type of home.

Explains Use of Proceeds.

4. The borrower's credit risk is to be determined by the institution lending funds under the new regulations.

5. The proceeds of the loan must be used to finance building of the home and appurtenances, including landscaping, fencing, garage, sidewalks and drives, septic tanks, cesspools, wells, lighting system, heating system, and other similar improvements. Fixtures or furnishings are not included in this category.

6. Plans or drawings and specifications of the proposed home must be submitted by the lending institution to the local FHA insuring office and no transaction is eligible for insurance if building starts before FHA approval is given.

John M. Smyth to Build New Evanston Unit

The John M. Smyth company, one of Chicago's oldest furniture concerns, expects to erect a building next fall at the southeast corner of Benson avenue and Church street, Evanston. Sketches are being made by Architects Mundie, Jensen, Bourke and Havens.

According to John M. Smyth, president of the furniture company, the height and floor area have not yet been determined. Notices have been sent to tenants in the old buildings on the corner to move prior to Oct. 1.

The property, fronting 150 feet on Benson and 105 feet on Church street, was bought in December, 1936, by the Smyth company.

The present Evanston Smyth store is at 816 Church street, east of and adjoining the site for the new building. The company's main store is at 703 West Madison street, Chicago.

Three Million Paid in '39 by Greenebaum

Dividends and interest paid in cash during 1939 on reorganized bond issues of the Greenebaum Investment company totaled $1,942,523, according to Edgar N. Greenebaum, president. This was an increase of 6 per cent over the 1938 distributions of $1,826,175. Payments on principal during 1939 were reported to have been $1,084,512. This makes the 1939 total payments $3,027,035.

Among the larger distributions of the year on properties in Chicago and vicinity were the following:

Bismarck Hotel Co.	$40,277
Gary Hotel, Inc.	56,875
Hayes Hotel Corp.	38,772
St. Clair hotel	42,750
Orrington hotel	56,859
Sheridan Brompton Trust	42,000
Shoreland Hotel Trust	58,170
636 Church St. Bldg. Corp.	39,137
333 N. Michigan Bldg.	87,[illegible]02
Tower Bldg. Corp.	33,525

The distributions of interest and dividends on a year by year basis have been as follows;

1935 and prior	$1,148,349
1936	1,463,108
1937	2,146,865
1938	1,826,175
1939	1,942,523
Total	$8,527,020

"In addition to the $8,500,000 distributed in interest and dividends since the work of reorganization began," said Greenebaum, "approximately $6,800,000 has been distributed in the reduction of the principal of the original financing. This includes funds realized from the sale of properties, the sale of deposited bonds by committees or trustees for the benefit of the bondholders, the refinancing of loans, the redemption of bonds, and the operation of sinking funds. The total amount of cash received by the holders of the Greenebaum reorganized issues from all sources, therefore, exceeds $15,300,000."

MICHIGAN-ERIE CORNER LEASED BY FUR COMPANY

Building Will Be Rebuilt, Air Conditioned.

The near north side's first big lease and remodeling project for 1940 was announced yesterday for the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Erie street.

Upon completion, scheduled for April 1, the Berman company will move from the 333 North Michigan building and occupy the entire building. Its new quarters will be about three times larger than its present space, according to the Bowes Realty company, broker for all parties in the transaction.

Leased for Ten Years.

The building was rented from the Illinois Automobile club, owner of the corner. Carl A. Barrett is president. The lease is for 10 years on a minimum guarantee and percentage of profits basis, according to Frederick M. Bowes.

HEITMAN TRUST CO.
3d Floor, Otis Bldg.

FRANKLIN 2400.

OUR LAST YEAR'S WORK—we handled 233 cases—covered a large variety of problems. Some were solved thru FHA loans, some with the help of our Bank, or Savings and Loan correspondents; others required cash advances and a reasonable chance with our own money until all "kinks were straightened out," and the title cleared. We handle ALL TYPES of mortgages on nearly ALL TYPES of property and are ready to serve you, too.
We lend on homes—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old; also 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment buildings, stores, garages, and factories. We also place FHA loans up to 90% of the value. We advance funds to settle estates, taxes, liens, and to redeem property. If even our top loans won't do we will see your mortgagee or bondholders' committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels.

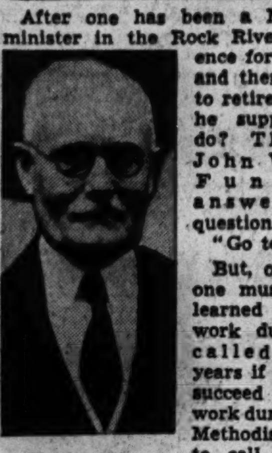
News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

After one has been a Methodist minister in the Rock River conference for 43 years and then decides to retire, what is he supposed to do? The Rev. John Wesley Funston answered this question tersely: "Go to work!"



The Rev. John Wesley Funston.

But, of course, one must have learned how to work during so-called active years if one is to succeed at real work during what Methodists used to call superannuation — a word that gave Methodist flavor to the otherwise cold meaning of retirement. Well, the Rev. Mr. Funston began learning how to work after he successfully served his apprenticeship at Northwestern university in the class of '96. His job was building churches and congregations and learning about all that can be known about the life of his namesake, the Rev. John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Last year, his studies produced a book called, "The Wesleys in Picture and Story." But it is no ordinary biography. It is neither Victorian with its lumbering, pedestrian movement, nor Strachian-Guadallian with its morbid psychological detail. Rather, it is a news writer's biography, hence is based on anecdote and photograph. Therefore, the book really tells something about John Wesley.

Open the Funston book anywhere and you'll stop and read what's under the picture on the page. No special pleading! No psychoanalysis! Just straightforward and interesting information. Here on page 126 is a picture of a Leyden jar for collecting static electricity from a glass electrical machine. Beneath the picture it was explained that Mr. Wesley "was open minded toward every new thing," and experimented with electricity "in treating patients." Wesley wrote one of the earliest books on the use of electricity in healing.

Now, about the Rev. Mr. Funston's real work. He retired as an active pastor recently after serving four churches in Chicago, and one each in Freeport, Joliet, and Waukegan. But since that time he is filling engagements, often twice in an evening, giving illustrated lectures on the Wesleys. Just now his house at 543 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, is closed for six weeks. He's lecturing on Wesleyana in Florida. All of which gives us the idea that we, too, should be learning how to work so that in the bleak January of 1964 we will be called to Florida for lecture engagements.

The Rev. Drs. Herbert L. Willett, Kenilworth Union church and emeritus in University of Chicago faculty; Charles G. Kindred, Englewood Christian church; Edward Scribner Ames, dean of Disciples Divinity house and pastor of University Church of the Disciples, and Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century. All ministers of the Disciples church; writers of Protestantism's modern signature.

Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of The Living Church, Milwaukee, Wis., Episcopal publication, has announced publication of a national magazine called The Layman's Magazine. There are plenty of journals for ministers. A religious magazine for and by laymen is a new thing.

"It will be stepped up to match the interesting, challenging, popular magazines on the news stands," Editor Morehouse said.

". . . You ought to call the Nineteen Thirties the decade of the Great Hangover. . . . It was a time of slow, painful recovery from the debauch of the twenties. . . . As always, when people have a headache, we turned to innumerable quack remedies. . . . We found momentary hope in secular movements for social salvation. . . ."

NEW OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED BY SOCIAL CLUB

New officers of the Jefferson Gardens Improvement and Social club were installed last night in Gompers park fieldhouse, 4224 Foster avenue. They are C. H. Wirth, president; E. P. Juberg, vice president; F. C. Achtner, financial secretary; Irwin Becker, secretary; Albert Anderson, treasurer, and Vincent Mayer, sergeant at arms.

Francis X. Nolan, retiring president, was presented with a set of golf clubs and a bag. A billfold and a key case were given to Leif Sandeno, retiring secretary, and Charles Schauer, social chairman last year, was given a key case also. Alfred Deitz, the new social chairman, had charge of the meeting and Arthur Miller was the installing officer.

The principal events on the 1940 calendar are the card party on Feb. 3, the annual dance on April 27, and the annual picnic on July 14.

Wizard of Oz Lives Again

They want to see the wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz. Dorothy and her pet pup, Toto, want to go back home to cyclone swept Kansas. Tin woodman wants a heart to beat under his welded chestplate, and the cowardly lion wants courage to be a proper king of beasts. So the good witch Glinda tells them: "Just follow the yellow brick road and beware the wicked witch." It's one of those happy moments from Frank Baum's long loved and long lived fairy tale, to be staged in Des Plaines on Friday night by students of the Riverview school. (Left to right) Ronald Wright, the heartless tin woodman, listens, as Dorothy, played by Lauretta Blenkle, talks with good witch Felicia Kurtz. Richard Averill is down on all fours to play Toto, sniffing at Richard Glander's version of the sissy lion. Paul Schumann is guardian of the gates in mystic Munchkinland. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

LECTURE SERIES OPENS TONIGHT IN BARRINGTON

"Abraham Lincoln" to Be First Subject.

Two of the most popular speakers during the first "Town Warming," lecture series at Barrington will return this year to initiate and to finish the second annual group of lectures. Dr. Edgar DeWitt Jones will speak tonight at 8 o'clock on "Abraham Lincoln," and Dr. Allan A. Stockdale has chosen "Where Do We Go from Here" for his topic on Tuesday, Jan. 16.

Following the practice established last year, the doors of the high school gymnasium will be opened at 7 o'clock. No admission will be charged and there will be no reserved seats. Community singing, led by Russell M. Johnson, will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Like Revival Meeting.

According to Erman S. Smith, general chairman, the meetings will be conducted in something of the manner of an old fashioned revival and will be designed to reawaken citizens to the rights and duties of citizenship.

Speakers other than Dr. Jones and Dr. Stockdale have been scheduled as follows: Tomorrow night, Channing Pollock, "Wake Up, America"; Tuesday night, David Seabury, "Social Change and Individual Growth"; Wednesday night, Norman Thomas, "Communism and Fascism: Resemblances and Differences"; Thursday night, Leila Blomfield, "Democracy Rampant."

Speakers on the remaining nights are: Friday night, Alvin M. Owsley, "America in 1940"; Saturday night, John Temple Graves, "Second Birth of America"; Sunday night, John B. Kennedy, subject to be announced, and Monday, Jan. 15, Clyde C. [Slim] Williams, "Blazing an International Trail by Motorcycle."

PARK RIDGE MASONS INDUCT A. A. ANDERSON AS MASTER OF LODGE

Albert A. Anderson, 6021 Irving Park road, recently was installed as worshipful master of the Park Ridge Masonic lodge. Other new officers are W. W. Spangler, senior warden; Walter Hoffman, junior warden; Virgil Livingston, senior deacon; Albert Verity, treasurer; W. A. Day, secretary; Harry Harridge, chaplain; John Duncan, senior steward; W. B. Van Rensalaer, junior steward; Larry Kalmann, marshal; and Owen Grigsby, tyler. One of the most important events on the lodge schedule this year is the reception to be given for the Rev. John B. Hubbard, grand chaplain of Illinois, on Jan. 29. Charter night will be held in February and the annual ladies night in March.

SAFETY DRIVE OF 1940 WILL OPEN TOMORROW

George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, will initiate the 1940 safety campaign on the northwest side this week by speaking before two neighborhood groups.

Tomorrow night he will address the Ben Hur chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star at 2410 North Kedzie boulevard. Miss Nellie Mae Rayman, associate matron, has arranged the program. Mr. Fleming's talk will be illustrated with motion pictures.

Next Friday night members of the Holy Name society of St. Tarcissus church, 6007 Ardmore avenue, will hear a review of the city accident record in 1939 and the outline of the program to reduce the number in 1940. Safety sound films entitled "Everybody's Business" and "Man at the Wheel" will be exhibited.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW ITASCA GRADE SCHOOL

Village Bonds Finance $32,000 Cost.

Excavation was begun last week for a new $32,000 school building in Itasca. The structure to be erected on a six acre site at North avenue and Linder street will replace the two room brick school house which has served the village for more than 40 years. Under the terms of the contract it is to be ready for occupancy when school begins next September.

No public assistance was sought by the board of education in financing the building. A bond issue of $28,000, voted last June and bid in by a Chicago broker at a premium of $3,155 two weeks ago, is expected to cover the entire cost of construction.

Will Accommodate 120.

The new two story building will have accommodations for 120 pupils. During the first year or two one of the four rooms will be set aside for use as an auditorium and play room. Later it may be converted to a classroom if it is needed. Enrollment in the present school, according to Jesse F. Beaver, board member, is 90. There are three teachers.

Provision has been made in the plans for the building to make it possible to add a structure of equal capacity if it becomes necessary. Mr. Beaver said he expected the school to be filled to capacity within five years since Itasca is growing rapidly.

New Homes Built.

The 1930 census set the population at 594, but recent estimates indicate more than 1,000 inhabitants. Twenty new homes were built last year, Mr. Beaver said, and as many more will be built in 1940.

There is no high school in Itasca. Practically all graduates of the elementary school attend the Bensenville High school four miles away.

Elmer H. Franzen is president of the board of education and George Goeddeke is the secretary.

TWO TOWNSHIPS PUT ON HEALTH TEST PROGRAM

Opening the tenth year of the national tuberculosis preventive program, testing of suburban school children will be extended for the first time this month to include students of Palatine and Schaumberg townships, according to officials of the Tuberculosis institute and rural public health service coöperating in the enlarged program.

Tests will be administered to students of nine schools in Palatine township and four in Schaumberg township on Tuesday and Thursday. Students who have obtained parental consent for the tests will be transported to Palatine High school for the tests and on Jan. 26 further X-ray tests will check findings of all children whose susceptibility to tuberculosis is in question.

Regular preventive work in other suburbs will be on a schedule which calls for testing in Des Plaines on Jan. 16, 17, 18 and 19, in Barrington on Jan. 23 and Elmwood Park on Jan. 31, according to Miss Marion McCorquodale, staff head.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

ORIOLE PARK has a new prophet in George E. Wagner. An enthusiastic booster of "community spirit," he has taken the lead in uniting some 60 families in the vicinity of Oriole avenue and Higgins road in the Oriole Park Community club. Associated with him in the work are Leroy Sanford, vice president; Phoebe Swenson, secretary, and Harold Kanning, treasurer. First fruits of their labors were reaped during the Christmas holidays, when the entire community aided in giving a party for children at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milo G. Behan, 5453 North Oriole avenue. Baskets for needy families were also collected, packed, and distributed by a committee composed of Mr. Wagner, William and Frank Martin, Carl Bachmann, and Mrs. Clarence Wittenmeier. This year the club will seek to have a new public school built at Rascher and Olcott avenue.

THREE MILLIONS SPENT ON HOMES IN EIGHT TOWNS

Added Construction Seen This Year.

BY CLAYTON KIRKPATRICK.

The rush to the suburbs gained increased impetus in 1939. Described as booming in 1938, home building in northwest suburbs last year exceeded the record of the previous year by nearly 100 per cent. Building permits issued up to the last week in December show that 506 new homes have been built or are in process of construction. In 1938 the total was 255.

The total value of new residence buildings last year was slightly more than $3,054,000 while the figure for 1938 was $2,447,000. The average cost per home was down from the 1938 figure of slightly less than $10,000 to approximately $6,000 in 1939. The largest gains were recorded in the low cost brackets.

Seven Show Increase.

In all but one of the eight cities and villages included in the survey building statistics showed an increase in activity over the previous year. The exception was Arlington Heights, last year's leader. In 1938 62 houses, costing approximately $720,000, were built in that suburb. Last year the records of Building Commissioner Paul Taege show that permits were issued for 54 homes costing $439,700.

Prospects for 1940, however, are exceedingly good, Mr. Taege said. Interviews with the village's leading real estate agents indicated that practically all subdivisions will have several new homes this year, he asserted. Tentative estimates for some of them are: Scarsdale, 50; Stonegate, 25; Mitchell's Addition, 15; Arlington Park, 10, and Arlington Crest, 10. Arlington Home Builders, Inc., a syndicate of local business men formed last year, is planning to erect some 25 houses on vacant lots in older sections of the town.

Des Plaines leads all other northwest suburbs in the number of permits issued, and in the percentage of increase over 1938. One hundred thirty-six new homes costing about $492,300 have been or are being built there. Last year only 27 permits for houses valued at $198,010 were issued.

Most in Subdivision.

According to Edgar J. Friedrich, city clerk, about 90 per cent of the new homes are being built in the recently opened additions to the Cumberland subdivision, Cumberland Terrace and Cumberland East.

Second in the number of permits issued was Elmwood Park with a record of 105 new residences valued at $590,155. This represents an increase of more than 300 per cent over the previous year's record when 34 houses costing $241,261 were built.

Part of this increase was due to the opening of a block of 81 lots in Westwood since last May. Thirty-six homes have been built there since then by the Buick and Guild real estate agency. As many or more homes will be erected there in 1940, Bruce Guild predicted. Another new building center opened since last May is the Green Oaks addition to Mont Clare where the John S. Clark Realty company has built 31 new houses. Robert Brooks, construction superintendent, said plans have been made to finish at least 50 homes in 1940.

Forecasts 100 More.

In the River Forest Manor subdivision 35 houses have been erected by the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company. William L. Wallen Jr., contractor for the company, said that if business continued good 100 residences may be erected there in 1940.

Park Ridge last year had one of the biggest building years in its history. Building Commissioner James W. Cuthbert issued permits for 89 new residences costing $744,290, more than double the number in 1938 when 45 homes costing approximately $450,000 were erected.

The unincorporated community north of Mount Prospect called Prospect Heights was expanded by the construction of 74 new homes valued at $450,000 last year. In 1938 only 42 houses were built at a cost of $210,000. Carlton Smith of the real estate firm, Smith and Dawson, said that he expects that 90 or 100 new homes will be added in 1940.

26 in Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect issued building permits for seven more houses in 1939 than in 1938 when 19 were granted. The cost of the 26 new homes is approximately $203,500. In addition a $6,000 Episcopal mission was built and an $8,500 grocery and market was erected.

Three times as many homes were built in Barrington during 1939 as in 1938. City Clerk A. C. Burandt has issued 19 permits for homes costing a total of $103,851. Building in Palatine was increased by the same percentage as in Barrington. Three new homes were built at a cost of $31,000. Last year one home costing $6,500 was constructed.

Sisterhood to Meet.

Mrs. Rae Weiss, 4920 North Ridgeway avenue, will be the hostess to the Sisterhood of the Hebrew Institute of Albany Park at a membership tea Wednesday afternoon. Rabbi Adam Neuberger will be the speaker.

Voice of the Northwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Northwest Side, The Tribune.

LONGS TO BE REPORTER.

Sometimes I wish I were a newspaper reporter. One of those times is when I go over the Touhy avenue viaduct at the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks in Park Ridge. For almost two years we have been fed on promises that an underpass would be built within a few months, but nothing comes of the promises.

If I were a reporter I'd have an excuse to investigate a little bit—to try to learn why construction always is just about to begin, but never does. I have learned by reading the papers that the project has been approved by the county highway department and that the plans are finished. So far as I know the railroad has offered no hindrance to the early completion of the work.

My neighbors sometimes say that if by some wild chance Park Ridge went Democratic in the next election, construction would begin right after the ballots were counted. If I were a reporter I'd find out whether there is any truth in that rumor. G. A. S.

TOO MUCH GARBAGE.

It's hard to understand how some of my self-styled "model neighbors" can do such a thing, but garbage dumping along the northwest highways is getting to be common practice in many spots. I don't know whether there's a law to halt this filthy business, but a little strongly worded publicity should shame untidy residents into a realization of their responsibility to the community. Let those who won't subscribe to garbage collection services out here at least have the decency to burn their refuse, and on their own premises. They shouldn't need to be told, but since they do I'd like The Tribune's help in reaching the offenders. J. M.

PAR CLUB NAMES LEADERS; PLANS YEAR'S CHARITY

Girls Group Sponsored by D. A. R. Women.

Work for mountain schools and local charities will go ahead in 1940 under three new officers elected last week by the Chicago Good Citizens club sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution. Outgoing officers of the D. A. R. junior group are Nelda Studtman and Dorothy Gerken of Arlington Heights, president and treasurer, respectively, and Secretary Norma Thieman of Roselle. Mrs. George E. Harbert of Park Ridge is group sponsor and state chairman of the annual citizenship pilgrimage sponsored by the D. A. R. to reward outstanding high school citizenship records with trips to the nation's capitol.

Projects planned for the year include collections of towels for local institutions, bedding for the newly dedicated boys' mountain school at Tamassee, S. C., and candles for Erie chapel, at the northwest side neighborhood house headed by Miss Florence Towne. The work will be financed by the sale of address label books.

TEMPLE BAPTIST CHURCH TO HAVE A DOUBLE FETE

Began as Sunday School 75 Years Ago.

A church that grew up with Chicago will celebrate two anniversaries today when Temple Baptists mark the 70th birthday of their congregation and the 75th year of the Sunday school from which it grew.

The red brick edifice at Humboldt boulevard and Cortland street, built in 1923, where the eight day anniversary celebration will be held, is the fifth home of the church which has moved four times as the tide of urban population changed. Present pastor and head of the anniversary program is the Rev. Joseph Croft Dent, who also served the church from 1909 to 1919 when the congregation was known as Pilgrim Temple church.

A morning service today will open the twin birthday celebration when John Nuveen, layman of the Northern Baptist convention and long time member, will speak. The Rev. George H. Yule, former pastor, will lead the evening program, and on Wednesday night a second former pastor, the Rev. Robert A. MacMullen, will speak on the anniversary banquet program with the Rev. Mike Elliott, religious editor. Arthur Jacobus, moderator, will be toastmaster.

Closes Next Sunday.

The birthday program will close next Sunday with the morning service, when the Rev. A. M. McDonald, superintendent of the Chicago Baptist association, and Pastor Dent will speak. Also on the program committee are the Rev. Fred D. Jarvis, assistant; Melvin J. Wigman, Walter R. Swartwout, and Arne Howard.

Temple church, now numbering 400 members, developed from a mission Sunday school founded in 1865, which met for five years in the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Streeter, early northwest siders. The Bible school, celebrating its 75th anniversary, is now headed by Irving Quackenbush, member of the history committee which is headed by David Martin. Other assistants on the history group are Mrs. Jennie Piatt, Mrs. Herbert F. Mrotz, Harvey Weinberg, and Mrs. Irving Quackenbush.

History of Church.

As it grew and moved with the city, the present Temple church was known in 1870 as First Baptist church mission, occupying a one story frame building at Coventry street and Bloomdale avenue. Moved from the heart of "the rolling mill district," the church founders reorganized as Coventry church, and later moved to form the North Ashland Baptist church.

Under the Rev. James P. Thoms in 1894 the church moved again to West North avenue and Leavitt street, where the congregation was known as Pilgrim Temple church. When this church was combined with the Humboldt Baptist church, the present name of the Temple Baptist was adopted and the two congregations joined in erecting the present building.

Building Still Stands.

The old Pilgrim Temple building still stands, used by Masonic lodges, and the earlier property of the North Ashland church is now occupied by the board of education.

Members of committees arranging the anniversary programs include Mrs. Robert Scollay, invitation chairman, assisted by Miss Violet Langseth, Miss Vera Kortun, and Miss Bonnie Thompson.

Winter Bride

Mrs. James Sanders is the former Miss Elvira Gauske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Gauske of Crystal Lake. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sanders, 1009 North Avers avenue. After a honeymoon in Florida they will make their home in Crystal Lake.

75 TO PRESENT PAGEANT TODAY AT SETTLEMENT

Old country legends that have outlived their homeland will be revived today in the 10th annual Twelfth Night program at Northwestern settlement, where a cast of 75 will enact the traditional pageant which closes the Christmas season and heralds Easter in Poland. Mrs. Netta Esta, queen chosen in last year's ceremony of the bean," will preside with Paul Motora as her consort.

Opening at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the settlement hall at 1400 Augusta boulevard, the pantomimes, processions, and festivities of the time honored Twelfth Night ritual will last about four hours, according to Miss Harriet Vittum, settlement director. Directors of the 10th revival are Miss Josephine Danialek, Miss Edith Gill, Gilbert Johnson, and Finidar Belajus of the house staff.

The pageant tells of the return of the three Wise Men from their worship at the Bethlehem manger, and centers about the village festival before a king and queen.

Other colorful ceremonies in the peasant pantomime include the choosing of a king or queen for next year's pageant as the huge Twelfth Night cake is eaten. Baked beneath its red and green icing is a single bean, finder of which is hailed as monarch of the next annual celebration.

James S. Davis.

Other officers are Charles George, vice president and treasurer; R. J. Eddelman, financial secretary; E. E. Ranseen, recording secretary, and John Gossy, sergeant at arms. The program for 1940, outlined at the meeting, includes four principal projects.

List of Projects.

These are: [1] the conversion of Addison street to a boulevard, [2] the speedy construction of the northwest elevated highway, [3] improved surface lines transportation on Elston avenue, and [4] an underpass to carry Central Park avenue beneath the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks between Avondale avenue and Addison street.

The first three projects have been supported by the association for some years. The demand for the underpass is new.

Tracks a Barrier.

"We think it should be the next one for the northwest side," Mr. Davis said. "The demands for subways on Wrightwood and Austin avenues have been satisfied, and Central Park avenue ought to be the next to be considered. The tracks are a barrier to north and south bound traffic for nearly a mile between Kimball avenue and Pulaski road."

Last year the association was instrumental in having Addison street paved and widened and St. Louis avenue and Bernard street resurfaced between Irving Park road and Addison street. Thru its efforts a traffic policeman was stationed during rush hours at the triple intersection of Monticello and Elston avenues and Irving Park road. The association's protests stopped violations of the antismoke ordinance by several industries of the community.

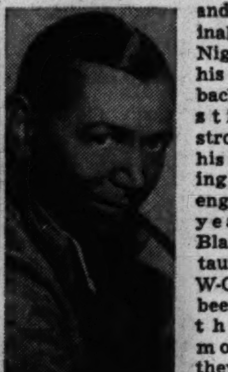
BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Talk about longevity in radio! Joe Sanders, who with Carlton Coon and their Original Kansas City Nighthawks got his start way back in 1922, is still going strong. Joe and his lads are playing their 12th engagement in 15 years at the Blackhawk restaurant and on W-G-N. None has been shorter than four months. And they have continued as long as 14 solid months.



Joe Sanders.

What has he got that gets them? Friendliness is first on the list. The "Old Left Hander" likes meeting people, all kinds of people. He's proud of the fact that among his fans today are men who were in their Harold Teen days back in the early '20s when they first danced to Coon-Sanders. Now they are solid business and professional men. Joe is proud of their loyalty. And now a crop of sons is beginning to go for him, too.

Joe credits his "happy" style of music with winning them, too.

Joe Mixes It Up.

"We have always mixed our music up to try to please everybody," he explained. "We get far more requests for ballads than any other types of music, so folks must prefer that kind."

Joe believes that versatile orchestras playing all kinds of dance music will have the longest runs in popularity. Among these, he says, will be Ted Weems, Wayne King, Kay Kyser, and Jan Garber, to mention a few. Swing, he says, is on the wing.

Joe has a lot of radio memories. The Nighthawks were radio's first orchestra to broadcast "remotely," that is outside of a studio. When they came to Chicago and W-G-N their Nights and Ladies of the Bath, [late Saturday night program with dedication of numbers to individuals] became one of the most famous of early day radio programs. Joe believes it had the greatest listening audience on the air at that time. Telegrams for request numbers or congratulations poured in by the hundreds. Once, Joe recalled, they got 530 wires in less than 2 hours.

Those were the days. "Nowadays radio is too dignified," Joe lamented. "They have taken a lot of the fun out of it."

200,000 Miles in 18 Months.

Joe and his band have done a lot of traveling thru the years—one night stands all over the country. They have made 200,000 miles in the last 18 months. Strange things have happened during these treks about the country. Once during a tornado downstate, Joe and Coony stopped to aid in the relief of the victims. A little baby died in Joe's arms.

At Herrin, Ill., they once played a dance at which customers checked their knives and guns outside. Another time they missed a train connection because of a flood and they had to ferry across the Ohio river. When they reached the Kentucky side they took off their shoes while pushing their bus out of the mud. They didn't have time to get cleaned up before they climbed the bandstand at Madisonville, Ky. So they played in their bare feet.

Joe left the orchestra business for several years after Coon died. Joe spent the time writing songs. He has written around 500. Best seller was "Beloved" which passed a million copies. And then there were "Brainstorm," "Hallucination," "The Wall," "Slewfoot," and "High Fever," to mention a few. And his various theme songs, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You" [with Eddie Edwards], and "Nitie, Nite," used for early morning signoff.

Joe still gets calls for "Harold Teen," which he wrote in 24 hours. It, like "Orphan Annie" and others named for Tribune comics, were published as features in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Joe also wrote the official song for the San Francisco fair, "Westward Ho."

The Coon-Sanders duo originated the idea of radio Shut-Ins club. Joe still gets letters from shut-ins who have followed him since the early days.

Collects Flowers as Hobby.

He has his hobbies, too, photography—both movies and still. But the one he rides hardest is collecting wild flowers. He has more than 2,500 varieties. And one he is particularly proud of is a Pasque posy which he plucked during a mountain blizzard in Berthoud pass.

Joe is a member of the recently organized Dodo society of radio. Among the old timers who belong are Graham McNamee, John S. Young, radio director of the New York world's fair, and Leo Fitzpatrick, who started Joe out down on WDAF, Kansas City, now executive of WJR, Detroit.

FOUR ROOM HOME EMERGES FROM 2 APARTMENTS

Affords Spacious Living in Use of Curves.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The year 1939 saw many interesting examples of modernization work. None of these examples was more unusual or dramatic than the combining of two small apartments into a large four room apartment home in Rockford.

The architect of this drastic and quite revolutionary change was Edward Paul Lewin, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago.

One of the first desires of Mr. Lewin's clients was for a large living room and a large bedroom. The clients wanted a smaller dining room, a very compact kitchen, and a bath which should include a spacious dressing room adjoining it, and generous wardrobe and cabinet space.

S-Shaped Hall.

"My clients," Mr. Lewin said, "wanted something a trifle different, and expressed a preference for curved wall surface treatments. This gave rise to the possibility of a circular bathroom which pleased the clients, provided no loss of space resulted.

"The fact that this apartment was on the third floor of the building gave simple access to the roof for intake and exhaust ducts, and the entire suspended ceiling of the apartment was covered with four inches of mineral fill to aid the efficiency of the conditioning system, as well as to add to the quiet of the rooms."

The entrance to the new four room apartment is thru an entry which leads to a curving reception hall, 3½ feet wide. This hallway has walls of opaline yellow and chalk white ceiling, with telephone niche which fits into a curved section and ceiling lighting fixtures of the fluorescent type, with frosted and clear glass discs.

Beyond is the living room, 18½ by 25½ feet. A four inch rise leads into the dining room, 10 by 10½. On the west wall of this dining room there is a sandblasted striped mirrored frame with a recessed plain mirror, extending from floor to ceiling, and giving an illusion of great length to the combined living room and dining room.

More Use of Mirrors.

There is no lighting fixture in the living room, but the dining room has a polished brass and brushed chrome combination ceiling fixture. And a striking feature between the dining room and kitchen is a mirrored trim of sandblasted striped pilasters, which extend to a wood cap, with a clear mirror between pilasters above the door.

The kitchen is compact, with sink and counters of stainless steel, and walls of French gray structural glass.

The bathroom is one of the most striking rooms in the house. It is circular and contains a recessed tub and shower compartment outside the circle. The entire walls are straight vertical segments of structural glass, treated in wine and ivory colors, in which the wainscoting is wine. The upper wall is ivory with a three inch wine colored dentil which caps the structural glass wall. The wainscot and cap is topped off with a plaster dome painted white.

"Evangeline" to Be Read on Book-a-Week Program

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "Evangeline" will be presented by Margery Graham in the program, "Book-a-Week," from 3:45 p. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow thru Friday, on W-G-N and Mutual system. The poignant story of lovers in old Acadia who were separated by the act of a foreign government, with its modern parallel in Europe, was selected by Miss Graham in response to many requests.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 8.

Give flowering pot plants plenty of water. A gift plant, after it has passed its period of attractiveness, may be discarded like a bouquet and a new plant obtained. Foliage plants will last much longer, but even they must have attention or they soon dry out, die, or are seriously retarded in growth. Remember that plants obtained from the warm, humid greenhouse must be watered and they must have their full share of light. A plant standing in the dry atmosphere and excessive, changeable heat of the average room requires more water than one standing in a cool room, and a rapidly growing plant requires more water than one that is in a semiresting condition; a plant with fibrous roots takes up water rapidly.

Tuesday, Jan. 9.

You may save a seed pod or two of the Jerusalem cherry, sow the seed along in February and have cherries next autumn. After all danger from frost has passed in late May or early June the young plants should be planted in rows in the garden, kept watered, and numerous cherries will be produced. The bright red fruits are indicative of Christmas and when a plant is in full bearing it is delightful. There are yellow fruited sorts as well as tall and dwarf varieties. Examine the pots of bulbs that were potted in late autumn and if the roots show thru the drainage hole, remove a few pots to the house for flowering. Place in a cool room for a few days and then bring to the light. Well rooted plants grow amazingly fast and the flowers soon appear. Amaryllis bulbs now are on sale and a choice collection of them works wonders in the ornamentation of any room. The bulbs are offered in different colors so that a variety can be obtained.

Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Perennial beds should have been mulched, newly planted shrubs and trees protected against the attacks of rodents, and the ground around them mulched. Roses taken down and covered with soil will endure thru the most severe winter without injury. Ferns and other foliage plants are benefited by dipping in a tub of water. Dust is removed and the plants stimulated. The offering of glass containers in odd shapes, such as pear, apple, etc., opens a wide field for the amateur to work out interesting effects. Small plants can be obtained from greenhouses. When the care of these glass gardens is understood it becomes a fascinating form of miniature gardening. Large containers may be used for an orchid plant.

Thursday, Jan. 11.

The used Christmas tree provides a fine shelter for the birds when placed in a spot in the garden. Three or more of them stood together is even better and grain scattered underneath lures the birds. Home gardeners, using wood fires, should save the ashes; keep them dry for later use. All animal manure should be saved, but it should not be left exposed to the weather. Manure containing shavings is not so good, for the shavings take a long time to decay and it is hard to spade over ground containing them. Mulch the strawberry bed with hay or straw that is free from weed seeds.

Friday, Jan. 12.

Examine the store of gladiolus corms and remove all surplus soil and other material that may surround them. Put 100 corms in a paper sack with one ounce of naphthalene flakes. Store in a cool room and leave for about three weeks. Such treatment will help to eliminate thrips. Grapevines can be pruned so long as the plants are dormant. The vines will stand heavy pruning to obtain an abundance of new wood, but it is advisable to study the various methods to obtain best results.

Saturday, Jan. 13.

During warm days spraying woody plants with lime-sulphur or miscible oil sprays is effective against scale insects. Some plants are very susceptible to this destructive pest. The materials, ready prepared except for the addition of water, may be obtained from local supply houses. A good knapsack spray outfit is not expensive and is easy to operate. If a definite spray calendar is adopted the plants are easily kept in good health. Wait until summer to prune maple trees; the sap runs in winter and spring, but not in summer.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

TRAVELERS' AID IS GIVEN HELP BY VOLUNTEERS

Scope Lent to Work by Woman's Board.

BY JUANITA DALY.

What happens to boys and girls who run away from home and come to Chicago? Why do they run away? Who looks after old folks who are traveling alone? If a lone traveler becomes ill where can he turn for aid? If a traveler loses his purse where can he borrow a few dollars?

The Travelers' Aid society knows the answers. These problems and many other emergencies are solved every day by the 35 social workers on B. A. Roloff's Chicago staff. One is on duty in each railroad station and bus depot day and night and the others work at the society's headquarters at 608 South Dearborn street.

However, even this efficient crew of experts finds it difficult to handle the 60,000 cases that go thru the office annually and give each one adequate attention. Last spring the executive board decided to organize a woman's board, which in turn would sponsor benefits, handle a radio program, and start a volunteer service committee. The latter is familiar to most social agencies, but has never been tried by the Travelers' Aid because of the emergency nature of the work.

Must Be Solved Quickly.

"Most of our cases," explained Mr. Roloff, whose official title is extension secretary, "must be solved on the spot and it demands a highly trained social worker to do it. However, there are several services that volunteers can do and, in addition, we are giving some of the girls a month's training course, two weeks in the office, and two weeks with a regular worker in a station. We are really counting on a great deal of help from our new board and I'm sure we're going to get it."

Miss Dorothy Drummond, board secretary and chairman of the volunteer service committee, is in charge of a threefold program. Committee members will take the month's training course and then assist in one of the following capacities: assist a social worker at her post, provide escort service for crippled children or help to plan and carry out a recreational program for the children who remain in the society's care for any length of time.

Varies with the Day.

The first type of service will vary with the emergencies of each day. Since Travelers' Aid is the only social agency available at night, many cases are handled for a few hours and then turned over to another group.

The worker may meet children or old people and transfer them to another train or start them on their way home. Children may be sent across the United States and on around the world in the society's care. There are 94 societies in the larger cities and 1,200 coöperating units in smaller towns in this country.

Sometimes old people lose their memory or become confused while traveling; a mother with several children may need assistance, or a person of any age may become ill and be unable to care for himself. In every instance the Travelers' Aid worker will take charge quickly and quietly and do any service possible free of charge.

Will Aid Cripples.

Innumerable crippled children are sent from downstate to the Chicago hospitals for treatment each year and they must be sent in a taxi to the hospital. Here the board members, pointed out Mr. Roloff, can be of inestimable value, for they can provide the transportation or accompany the child to his destination and cheer him up a little, too.

The recreation program will affect 600 or more children who annually spend from three days to a month in a foster home or some other place arranged for by the society. These children are the runaways, mostly boys in their 'teens. They run away for various reasons, but the most common are broken homes where the children think they are unwanted or where the family is on releif and the children leave to try to find work and food.

Some run away because they have read an exciting book and want to see the world or just Chicago; others because they have been reprimanded, and still others because they are at the age to have their one runaway experience.

Only Few Repeaters.

The workers usually solve their problems completely, for there are only a few repeaters. The recreation program will not be elaborate, but it will provide them with wholesome activities while their home life is being adjusted.

The radio committee, under the chairmanship of Miss Gertrude Smith, has been putting on a skit every Saturday morning this fall over WJJD. Committee members enact the parts and give suggestions for the script written by a professional writer.

The first benefit will be a Globe Trotters' ball on Feb. 2 in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. The supper-dance will begin at 10 o'clock, according to the co-chairmen, Miss Francigene Sheridan, in charge of the

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The Rev. John Wesley Funston.

After one has been a Methodist minister in the Rock River conference for 43 years and then decides to retire, what is he supposed to do? The Rev. John Wesley Funston answered this question tersely: "Go to work!"

But, of course, one must have learned how to work during so-called active years if one is to succeed at real work during what Methodists used to call superannuation—a word that gave Methodist flavor to the otherwise cold meaning of retirement. Well, the Rev. Mr. Funston began learning how to work after he successfully served his apprenticeship at Northwestern university in the class of '96. His job was building churches and congregations and learning about all that can be known about the life of his namesake, the Rev. John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Last year, his studies produced a book called, "The Wesleys in Picture and Story." But it is no ordinary biography. It is neither Victorian with its lumbering, pedestrian movement, nor Strachian-Guadallian with its morbid psychological detail. Rather, it is a news writer's biography, hence is based on anecdote and photograph. Therefore, the book really tells something about John Wesley.

Open the Funston book anywhere and you'll stop and read what's under the picture on the page. No special pleading! No psychoanalysis! Just straightforward and interesting information. Here on page 126 is a picture of a Leyden jar for collecting static electricity from a glass electrical machine. Beneath the picture it was explained that Mr. Wesley "was open minded toward every new thing," and experimented with electricity "in treating patients." Wesley wrote one of the earliest books on the use of electricity in healing.

Now, about the Rev. Mr. Funston's real work. He retired as an active pastor recently after serving four churches in Chicago, and one each in Freeport, Joliet, and Waukegan. But since that time he is filling engagements, often twice in an evening, giving illustrated lectures on the Wesleys. Just now his house at 543 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, is closed for six weeks. He's lecturing on Wesleyana in Florida. All of which gives us the idea that we, too, should be learning how to work so that in the bleak January of 1964 we will be called to Florida for lecture engagements.

The Rev. Drs. Herbert L. Willett, Kenilworth Union church and emeritus in University of Chicago faculty; Charles G. Kindred, Englewood Christian church; Edward Scribner Ames, dean of Disciples Divinity house and pastor of University Church of the Disciples, and Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century. All ministers of the Disciples church; writers of Protestantism's modern signature.

Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of The Living Church, Milwaukee, Wis., Episcopal publication, has announced publication of a national magazine called The Layman's Magazine. There are plenty of journals for ministers. A religious magazine for and by laymen is a new thing.

"It will be stepped up to match the interesting, challenging, popular magazines on the news stands," Editor Morehouse said.

". . . You ought to call the Nineteen Thirties the decade of the Great Hangover. . . . It was a time of slow, painful recovery from the debauch of the twenties. . . . As always, when people have a headache, we turned to innumerable quack remedies. . . . We found momentary hope in secular movements for social salvation. . . ."

JEWISH CHARITY GROUP TO HAVE ANNUAL MEETING

More than 5,000 persons have been invited to attend the 40th annual meeting of the Jewish Charities next Sunday evening at the Standard club, 320 Plymouth court. Drew Pearson, news commentator, will be guest speaker.

The charities served more than 126,000 men, women and children of all races and creeds in their hospitals and clinics, old people's homes, family welfare bureaus, children's institutions, free loan associations and employment bureau.

Celebrate 30th Year of Church in Rogers Park

Rogers Park Presbyterian church, 7059 Greenview avenue, will celebrate its 30th anniversary this week. The week long program will get under way this morning when Dr. Alvin A. Smith, pastor, delivers the opening anniversary sermon. His topic is "Hats Off to the Past, Coats Off to the Future."

The church was founded Jan. 13, 1910, by 29 Rogers Park residents. They held their first meetings in a public hall in the neighborhood. Their membership grew rapidly and within a year construction of the church was begun. Today there are 670 members, according to R. C. Bierdemann, chairman of the board of trustees.

Dinner on Wednesday.

Tuesday evening Dr. Emory Luccock, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston, will speak. The meeting will be sponsored by the Gladys Ramsey guild. Mrs. Mabel Cord, 1624 Morse avenue, is president.

A family dinner will be held Wednesday evening by the Woman's association of the church. A reception for charter members will be held in the primary rooms. Dr. Paul Johnson, executive secretary of the Chicago Presbytery, will be guest speaker. Mrs. Frank Hubbard, 6624 Newgard avenue, is president of the association. Charles D. Lowry, 628 Foster street, Evanston, will serve as toastmaster at the dinner.

Youth Program Friday.

On Thursday evening Dr. J. W. G. Ward, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park, will be guest speaker. The Tuxis society and the Young People's society will present a youth program Friday evening. Communion and another reception will be held next Sunday at 11 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Smith will preach on "The Message of Three Gardens."

The Christmas exhibit is continuing for a short time. Friends and the general public are invited to attend. The exhibit includes oils, water colors, sculpture, ceramics, and prints. Members of the tea committee are Miss Harriet Keith, Kenilworth; Mrs. Leland P. Arthur, Miss Betty Hall, Mrs. Catharine Lord, Mrs. Robert Elliott, Mrs. Clinton Evans, Miss Peg Lippert, Miss Kathryn Woodford, and Mrs. L. Roebuck Keeler, Evanston, and Mrs. Caraline Kirkpatric Mickey, Chicago.

SCHURZ ALUMNI TO HAVE FIRST MIDYEAR RALLY

The welcome mat for homecoming alumni will be dusted off twice yearly at Carl Schurz High school, where the alumni association will hold its first annual midyear reunion Thursday night in the school auditorium. Ernest Schein, president of the graduate group, will welcome returning. Growth of midyear graduating G. Bauersfeld. The school chorus will give a musical program and the Schurz orchestra will play for dancing. Growth of mid-year graduating classes has prompted the addition of a second homecoming date for alumni, according to President Schein.

BISHOP FROM TEXAS IS DUE TO ADDRESS SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Appropriately discussing for the first Sunday of 1940 the topic "Questions of Tomorrow," Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, resident bishop of the Methodist church in Dallas, Tex., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. Clifford W. Barnes will preside and introduce the speaker.

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt.

Dr. Holt was ordained in the Methodist Church, South, and is the first of the bishops to address the Sunday Evening club since the merger of the three branches of Methodism last year at Kansas City. For 20 years before his elevation to the episcopate in 1938, Dr. Holt was pastor of St. John's church in St. Louis, Mo., in which town he was also a leader in civic affairs. He was president of the Federal Council of Churches in 1934. Dr. Holt is regarded as a liberal in Protestant circles, and in his preaching noted for his emphasis on a Christian social order.

Another first appearance will be the première of Stanley Martin's festival setting of the canticle "Te Daum Laudamus," sung by the club's choir directed by Edgar Nelson, with Charles Sears and Mark Love as soloists. Mr. Martin is organist to the Sunday Evening club.

Sisterhood to Meet.

Mrs. Rae Weiss, 4920 North Ridgeway avenue, will be the hostess to the Sisterhood of the Hebrew Institute of Albany Park at a membership tea Wednesday afternoon. Rabbi Adam Neuberger will be the speaker.

Keeps Traffic Deaths at Zero for 17 Years

In the winter of 1922, Charles Marks and Fred Montanaro of Kenilworth overturned in Marks' car at Abbotsford road and Melrose street in the suburb. A few days later Marks died in a hospital.

Kenilworth has not had a traffic fatality in the 17 years since this accident. The record is remarkable in the face of these facts:

1. One-third of Kenilworth's 2,900 people own cars, and another one-third are licensed to drive.

2. One-fourth of her population are children in school, half of whom go to their classes on vehicles operated by themselves.

3. Three arterial thorofares, each with a capacity traffic stream to and from Chicago during rush hours, pass thru the village.

Streams of Traffic.

Kenilworth is tiny, area less than a square mile, but thousands of motorists race north and south daily over its three main arteries: Sheridan road [Route 42] on the east, Green Bay road thru the center and Ridge road along its western boundary.

How does an eight man police force cope with such traffic? How, for 17 years, should Kenilworth's children, who go to school in their own cars, on bicycles, tricycles, skates, and coasters, have escaped the fate of hundreds of victims of traffic in other outlying parts of Chicagoland during this same span of years?

Chief of Police Walter Yackel says it's luck. But a study of his methods reveal he augments the three E's of the modern traffic bureau—engineering, enforcement, education—with the three C's of his own invention—common sense, courtesy, coöperation.

Briefly, Kenilworth, with a closely knit community spirit, with but one public school, two churches in close proximity to each other, a love for the Boy Scouts and their code of courtesy and aid to others—all these elements generate a public consciousness where human safety is concened.

Reasons Are Cited.

Thru his policemen, Chief Yackel stresses neighborliness, a bending back to aid the other fellow, and respect for the rights of the pedestrian as well as the motorist. These men, who operate two radio equipped squad cars so efficiently that they can police the village in two hours, are given wide latitude. They are authorized to use their own judgment in issuing or withholding arrest slips.

Their efficiency is not judged by the volume of arrests made. They endeavor to set an example in the three C's of traffic safety, which has come to be regarded as the unwritten law of the community.

Chauffeurs, deliverymen, cabbies, students and the most prosperous—they all get a taste of the same medicine in Kenilworth. And it's usually the advice: "an ounce of prevention."

FLOWER SHOWS AT PARKS DRAW RECORD THRONGS

Chicagoans are becoming more flower conscious, judging from the announcement by George J. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district, that the main conservatories of the park system on the north and west sides enjoyed a record breaking attendance last year.

The two conservatories—Garfield park on the west side and Lincoln park on the north side—had a combined attendance in 1939 of 1,617,073, Mr. Donoghue said. This is an increase of 224,262 in the 1938 attendance of 1,392,811.

Surprisingly enough, most of the visitors were clocked in the Lincoln park flower houses, which had a total attendance of 837,488 last year, as compared with 702,443 in the previous year. A total of 779,585 flower lovers visited the Garfield park enclosure in 1939 as against only 670,391 in the preceding year.

Nearly one-third of the attendance in both places was compiled during the Easter show and the annual chrysanthemum show,

The park district's 27th annual Christmas flower show, in progress at both conservatories, will close at 10 o'clock tonight. During the first 10 days of the show the display of Poinsettias, early spring flowers and the Star of Bethlehem orchids was seen by 73,704 persons. Of these, 42,170 were counted at Garfield park and 31,534 at Lincoln park. Last year's total attendance at both places was 92,691.

GETTING AHEAD IS THEME OF FIVE PARK LECTURES

Five lectures on improving oneself thru the application of simple psychological principles will be given weekly starting Tuesday evening at Green Briar park, 2650 Peterson avenue. The talks will be by Joseph A. Kiss, author and instructor.

The first lecture is entitled "Prisoners of the Mind." In consecutive order the other talks are "Getting a Job and Making It Pay," "Escape from Loneliness," "How to Influence People," and "Getting What You Want Out of Life."

Following each lecture an open forum will be held and questions will be answered by the speaker. Robert G. Finn is park supervisor.

Amundsen High Musicians to Skate Wednesday Night

Members of Amundsen High School band and orchestra will sponsor a roller skating party on Wednesday in the Armory Roller Skating rink, 5917 Broadway. More than 300 students are expected to attend, according to Forest L. Buchtel, director and chairman, who is being assisted by Miss Adeline Bengel, 4725 Lincoln avenue. The party will begin at 7:30 o'clock and continue until 11 o'clock. Glen Davis, rink organist, will play for the skaters.

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, THE TRIBUNE.

BETTER TRANSPORTATION.

Often I have read complaining letters in the Voice about the north side's inadequate transportation system. I wonder why some group doesn't take up the matter.

I believe all north side community, patriotic, and civic organizations, such as the American Legion, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitans, and woman's clubs, improvement associations, and business men's groups, should band together in a united protest against the slow transportation on the north side. Faster, more comfortable transportation—such as the south side's I. C.—would aid real estate values.

I think the above mentioned organizations should place this matter on their 1940 agendas. They would be doing the whole town an estimable service if they forced the traction companies to do something about their overcrowded, poky buses, elevated trains, and street cars.

One of the leading points to fight for would be 5 cent carfare, which is all that it is worth, the equipment being what it is. A. L. W.

PARKING SIGNS IGNORED.

May I add my voice to those of other contributors who have protested the nonenforcement of the "no parking" signs in Ridge avenue between Bryn Mawr and Peterson avenues?

These signs, erected last summer supposedly to cure a real sore spot in north side traffic control, state clearly that there is to be no parking on the south side of the street during the morning rush hour, nor on the north side in the evening rush period. Nevertheless, there is always a handful of cars parked in flagrant disregard of the signs, forcing heavy traffic over into the opposite lane.

It is difficult for a layman such as I to understand why the police do not expend the small effort necessary to enforce a sensible prohibition that undoubtedly will save lives, suffering, and property damage if it is obeyed. A VICTIM.

PROTEST ON PARKING.

Any one who drives along Ridge avenue can't help but notice how the parking regulations are ignored by many motorists of that section of town. It seems to me that it would be a worthwhile project for residents and business men of that area to join forces with the Chicago Motor club and police officials in a drive to enforce these rulings. Not only does indiscriminate parking on Ridge hamper traffic, but it is actually dangerous. M. L. W.

CRITICIZES STOP LIGHTS.

I see that the 49th ward set a low mark for traffic accidents for the first 11 months of 1939. The ward could be made even safer, it seems to me, if the park district would install a progressive light system on Sheridan road between Howard street and Devon avenue. The present method of changing the traffic lights simultaneously at all corners bunches up traffic and is dangerous. J. F. G.

LEGION CHAPLAIN TO SPEAK BEFORE ULSTER GROUP

The Rev. Patrick McDermott, national chaplain of the American Legion and a native of Ulster, Ireland, will be guest speaker at the first 1940 rally of the Ulster Irish Liberty legion on Wednesday evening in the Colonial room of the Hamilton hotel, 18 South Dearborn street.

All Ulster men and women are invited to attend. The legion, according to its president, Bernard MacGillian, has been formed to aid in the movement to end the partition of Ireland and dismemberment of the historic province of Ulster. In addition to Father McDermott's talk, there will be Irish music and dancing.

North side members of the arrangement committee include Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. James Sheerin, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughes, Miss Ellen Boylan, Miss Mary Kane, Miss Delia White, Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna, Mrs. E. A. Dietz, W. P. Cawley, Patrick Hughes, Charles Flynn, Patrick Daley, Joseph Doran, Hugh Dugan, Mrs. John Dunn, John Hamill, Michael McGourty, John F. Maguire, Mrs. M. M. Rooney, Cornelius Rodgers, and Stephen Kelly.

Engagement Party

The engagement of Miss Marian Eck to Robert V. Siebel was announced during the holidays by her mother, Mrs. Henry A. Eck, 2121 Morse avenue. An engagement party was held on the Lindenhurst farms in Lake Villa, the country home of Mr. Siebel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Siebel, whose Chicago residence is at 3528 Janssen avenue. Miss Eck was graduated from North Park college and her fiance received his bachelor and master's degrees in science at Purdue university.

ONE WAY TRAFFIC SOUGHT ON THREE NARROW STREETS

Motor Council Reports on Survey of Area.

Recommendations that three north side streets be made one way thorofares were made last week to Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, by the North Area council of the Chicago Motor club.

Members urged that Frontier street be made one way southbound from North avenue to Blackhawk street; that Orchard street be open exclusively to northbound traffic from North avenue to Clybourn avenue, and that Weed street be one way eastbound from Frontier street to Ogden avenue.

All Are Too Narrow.

The North Area council bases its recommendations on a survey made by the club's engineering department. Engineers found that these streets are too narrow to permit parking on both sides and still provide space for two way traffic lanes. Accidents on these streets would be reduced under the one way system, Judge James G. Barber, council chairman, said.

Charles Sauers, superintendent of the Cook county forest preserves, informed the council at its December meeting that trees obstructing the vision of northbound motorists at the intersection of Caldwell avenue and Oakton street would be removed.

The council's campaign to obtain traffic signals at Ashland avenue and Roscoe street met with success last month when lights were installed at this corner. The council's campaign for these lights was one of its oldest projects.

Seek Parking Ban.

"No parking" signs are to be erected at the southwest corner of North and Ogden avenues, according to Judge Barber. He said the organization will urge Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets, to ban parking 50 feet from corners in all directions at the three way intersection of Ogden avenue, Larrabee street, and North avenue.

Members taking part in the December meeting of the council include Percy Baines, Lower North Community council; Melvin Bieggy, Veterans of Foreign Wars; J. E. Bulger, Chicago Motor club; H. W. Delano, North Avenue Business Builders association; Leo Dolkhart, Howard District Business association; Hugh Donaldson, Illinois Commerce commission; Ray Eisner, Lincoln Park Kiwanis club.

Z. A. Faulkner, Evanston city traffic engineer; A. L. T. Hoffmann, Central Uptown Chicago association; Harvey A. Kenney, Glenview chief of police; E. F. McGinnis, 44th Ward Citizens' committee; Cloyd C. McGuire, Wilmette chief of police; George Seebacher, North End Improvement Association of the 48th Ward; Helen M. Sewell, North End Women's club; Judge Oscar K. Stahle of Park Ridge, Mrs. Ethel Kelly, and James L. Middleton.

Aim to Cut Accidents.

A campaign to reduce accidents on Skokie highway between Chicago and Lake Forest will be one of the principal points on the council's 1940 program, according to Judge Barber.

"There are a number of improvements vitally needed along this stretch of highway if we are to reduce its present alarming accident toll," he said. "We intend to push surveys designed to correct timing on traffic signals and establish proper speed limits and, in general, correct many hazardous conditions along the road."

He said the council would continue its drive for automatic gates at the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad crossing at Gross Point road and Howard street near Niles. Other improvements to be campaigned for include installation of traffic signals at Milwaukee and Touhy avenues in Niles and at Howard street and Damen avenue; improvement of the grade separations at Ridge and Emerson avenues in Evanston, and improvement of the curve in Sheridan road at the Bahai temple in Wilmette.

SCHOOLS TO HAVE DANCE CLASSES FOR OLDER GROUP

Oldsters are to be encouraged to follow in the dance steps of their youngers and the board of education is to be their guide. That was the gist of an announcement last week by Supt. William H. Johnson.

Next month dancing classes resembling those formed for young people 25 years old or less will be offered to parents and others past the age limit in four high schools. The high schools and the dates for registration are: Schurz, Jan. 22 and 29; Englewood, Jan. 25 and Feb. 1; Phillips, Jan. 25 and Feb. 1, and Lakeview Jan. 24 and 31.

Classes will be held at weekly intervals beginning the first week in February for five weeks. The cost of the complete course will be 75 cents. Single lessons are 20 cents each. The first hour of instruction beginning at 6:45 will be devoted to elementary steps. The second hour will be given over to advanced instruction. Social dancing will follow the instruction periods. Ernestine L. Bade will have charge of the program.

Sergei Tarnowsky to Give Recital This Afternoon

Sergei Tarnowsky, 73 East Division street, pianist and professor of music at De Paul university, will present a recital this afternoon in the Studebaker theater. His program will include "Toccata in C Minor," by Bach; "Siciliana," arranged by Respighi; "Pastorale Variee," by Mozart; "Sonata, Op. 13" [Pathetique] by Beethoven, "Fantasie F Minor," "Nocturne B Major," "Ballade A Flat Major" and two waltzes by Chopin and "Variations on a Chopin Theme," by Rachmaninoff.

In Collegiate Comedy

These costumes are not exactly the rage on the college campus, but they will be worn nevertheless by these eight Lake View High school seniors as part of the chorus of a collegiate musical comedy to be presented Thursday and Friday evenings. The comedy, "The Poor Nut," will be enacted by the senior class of Lake View in the school auditorium. DECEMBER KEEPS TO AVERAGE IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

Rate Should Have Been Less Due to Weather.

December was a normal month with respect to traffic killings, it is shown by a study of records kept by the coroner's office.

These figures show there were 113 fatalities on Cook county streets and highways during the month, or an average of 3.65 deaths a day. The December average for the last 10 years is 111 deaths, or 3.58 killings a day.

One factor that reflects unfavorably for the month, according to traffic observers, is that December was unusually clear and dry, and thus theoretically there should have been a considerable reduction in the automobile massacre. Instead there was a slight increase.

Figuring from the first of the month, the fourth week of December was deadliest to motorists and pedestrians. There were 36 killings in that seven-day period. There were 21 deaths each in the first and second weeks and 26 deaths in the third week, with 9 in the last three days.

Increase in Suburbs.

December saw a sharp increase in the ratio of suburban to Chicago fatalities in the county. Chicago was charged with 81 of the fatalities and the outlying parts of the county with 32. Usually Chicago leads by a ratio of about 4 to 1.

Pedestrians, as usual, furnished a majority of the death victims. Seventy-six of the dead were in this classification, while there were only 37 in all other classifications combined.

There was a big jump in the number of automobile-train fatalities, which claimed a total of 14 victims in December. Eight of these deaths occurred in two accidents, an elevated-automobile crash at Harrison street and Central avenue on Dec. 22 that cost three lives, and an automobile-steam train accidents at 95th street and 51st avenue in Oak Lawn on Christmas day in which five died.

54 Males; 22 Females.

Fifty-four of the 76 pedestrian victims were males and 22 were females. Following the rule that most pedestrian traffic deaths are among the older persons, 36 of the December pedestrian fatalities claimed as their victims persons of 60 or over—8 women and 28 men.

There were 16 victims in the 50-59 year age group, including 11 men and 5 women, and 11 victims in the 40 to 49 year group, 4 of whom were women.

The eight other male victims to be accounted for ranged in age from 5 to 20 years, while the five female victims not included in the foregoing figures were from 5 to 34 years old.

LOYOLA THEATER OFFERS CONCERT BY BAGGIORE

The featured musical event which has become a part of the Loyola Community theater's season this year will be a concert by Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N operatic tenor, this evening in the theater, 1320 Loyola avenue. An American artist, Mr. Baggiore was born of Italian parents in a small mining community in Michigan. While studying at Morehead college in Minnesota, John McCormack heard him sing and urged him to continue his vocal studies in Italy.

There he attracted the attention of Caruso and Tetrazinni, who regarded him as her protége. He appeared with Tetrazinni in 30 concerts in the British Isles and has since sung with the La Scala Opera company in Rome, the Royal Opera in Rome, the Royal Opera of Egypt, the San Carlo Opera company of Naples, the Carlo Felice Opera of Genoa, the Amsterdam and Rotterdam Opera companies, and in Albert hall in London.

Two other theater events scheduled for January are a lecture by the Rev. Daniel A. Lord, national director of the young people's Sodality of Our Lady, on "Antisemitism" on Jan. 15, and the presentation of the third dramatic production of the season, "Our Town," on Jan. 22 and 23, under the direction of William F. Madden.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Salinger, 7615 Sheridan road, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Jayne, to Robert S. Long of St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Long, 4519 North Wolcott avenue.

68 Years Ago...

Mr. Tebbetts and Mr. Garland founded this store. They had only $500 between them, but they had VISION. Their store might be small, but they would distinguish it by selling only the cream of quality. Thus they established the policy to which this store has clung through the years.

And Today .....

Stop & Shop has become the outstanding food store of America. But like all truly great, it has but one purpose in mind . . . to serve. To serve not only the few, but the many who want the good things of life without paying a premium. This event is our way of serving them.

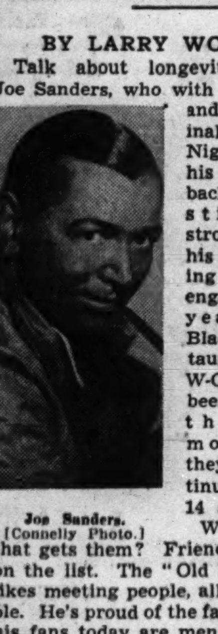
BY LARRY WOLTERS.



Joe Sanders.

Talk about longevity in radio! Joe Sanders, who with Carlton Coon and their Original Kansas City Nighthawks got his start way back in 1922, is still going strong. Joe and his lads are playing their 12th engagement in 15 years at the Blackhawk restaurant and on W-G-N. None has been shorter than four months. And they have continued as long as 14 solid months.

What has he got that gets them? Friendliness is first on the list. The "Old Left Hander" likes meeting people, all kinds of people. He's proud of the fact that among his fans today are men who were in their Harold Teen days back in the early '20s when they first danced to Coon-Sanders. Now they are solid business and professional men. Joe is proud of their loyalty. And now a crop of sons is beginning to go for him, too.

Joe Mixes It Up.

"We have always mixed our music up to try to please everybody," he explained. "We get far more requests for ballads than any other types of music, so folks must prefer that kind."

Joe believes that versatile orchestras playing all kinds of dance music will have the longest runs in popularity. Among these, he says, will be Ted Weems, Wayne King, Kay Kyser, and Jan Garber, to mention a few. Swing, he says, is on the wing.

Recalls the Early Days.

Joe has a lot of radio memories. The Nighthawks were radio's first orchestra to broadcast "remotely," that is outside of a studio. When they came to Chicago and W-G-N their Nights and Ladies of the Bath, [late Saturday night program with dedication of numbers to individuals] became one of the most famous of early day radio programs. Joe believes it had the greatest listening audience on the air at that time. Telegrams for request numbers or congratulations poured in by the hundreds. Once, Joe recalled, they got 530 wires in less than 2 hours.

Those were the days. "Nowadays radio is too dignified," Joe lamented. "They have taken a lot of the fun out of it."

200,000 Miles in 18 Months.

Joe and his band have done a lot of traveling thru the years—one night stands all over the country. They have made 200,000 miles in the last 18 months. Strange things have happened during these treks about the country. Once during a tornado downstate, Joe and Coony stopped to aid in the relief of the victims. A little baby died in Joe's arms.

At Herrin, Ill., they once played a dance at which customers checked their knives and guns outside. Another time they missed a train connection because of a flood and they had to ferry across the Ohio river. When they reached the Kentucky side they took off their shoes while pushing their bus out of the mud. They didn't have time to get cleaned up before they climbed the bandstand at Madisonville, Ky. So they played in their bare feet.

Joe left the orchestra business for several years after Coon died. Joe spent the time writing songs. He has written around 500. Best seller was "Beloved" which passed a million copies. And then there were "Brainstorm," "Hallucination," "The Wall," "Slewfoot," and "High Fever," to mention a few. And his various theme songs, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You" [with Eddie Edwards], and "Nitie, Nite," used for early morning signoff.

Joe still gets calls for "Harold Teen," which he wrote in 24 hours. It, like "Orphan Annie" and others named for Tribune comics, were published as features in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Joe also wrote the official song for the San Francisco fair, "Westward Ho."

The Coon-Sanders duo originated the idea of radio Shut-Ins club. Joe still gets letters from shut-ins who have followed him since the early days.

Collects Flowers as Hobby.

He has his hobbies, too, photography—both movies and still. But the one he rides hardest is collecting wild flowers. He has more than 2,500 varieties. And one he is particularly proud of is a Pasque posy which he plucked during a mountain blizzard in Berthoud pass.

Joe is a member of the recently organized Dodo society of radio. Among the old timers who belong are Graham McNamee, John S. Young, radio director of the New York world's fair, and Leo Fitzpatrick, who started Joe out down on WDAF, Kansas City, now executive of WJR, Detroit.

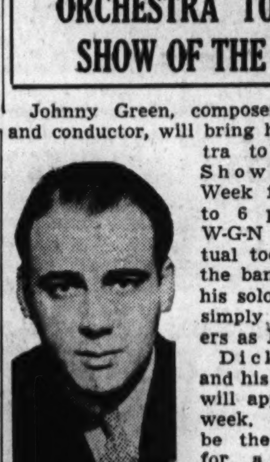
JOHNNY GREEN BRINGS ORCHESTRA TO MBS SHOW OF THE WEEK



Johnny Green.

Johnny Green, composer, pianist, and conductor, will bring his orchestra to Mutual's Show of the Week from 5:30 to 6 p. m. on W-G-N and Mutual today. With the band will be his soloist known simply to listeners as Beverly.

Dick Stabile and his orchestra will appear next week. This will be the occasion for a reunion. Stabile's boys have been on tour.

FOUR ROOM HOME EMERGES FROM 2 APARTMENTS

Affords Spacious Living in Use of Curves.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The year 1939 saw many interesting examples of modernization work. None of these examples was more unusual or dramatic than the combining of two small apartments into a large four room apartment home in Rockford.

The architect of this drastic and quite revolutionary change was Edward Paul Lewin, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago.

One of the first desires of Mr. Lewin's clients was for a large living room and a large bedroom. The clients wanted a smaller dining room, a very compact kitchen, and a bath which should include a spacious dressing room adjoining it, and generous wardrobe and cabinet space.

S-Shaped Hall.

"My clients," Mr. Lewin said, "wanted something a trifle different, and expressed a preference for curved wall surface treatments. This gave rise to the possibility of a circular bathroom which pleased the clients provided no loss of space resulted.

"The fact that this apartment was on the third floor of the building gave simple access to the roof for intake and exhaust ducts, and the entire suspended ceiling of the apartment was covered with four inches of mineral fill to aid the efficiency of the conditioning system, as well as to add to the quiet of the rooms."

The entrance to the new four room apartment is thru an entry which leads to a curving reception hall, 3½ feet wide. This hallway has walls of opaline yellow and chalk white ceiling, with telephone niche which fits into a curved section and ceiling lighting fixtures of the fluorescent type, with frosted and clear glass discs.

Beyond is the living room, 18½ by 25⅓ feet. A four inch rise leads into the dining room, 10 by 10½. On the west wall of this dining room there is a sandblasted striped mirrored frame with a recessed plain mirror, extending from floor to ceiling, and giving an illusion of great length to the combined living room and dining room.

More Use of Mirrors.

There is no lighting fixture in the living room, but the dining room has a polished brass and brushed chrome combination ceiling fixture. And a striking feature between the dining room and kitchen is a mirrored trim of sandblasted striped pilasters, which extend to a wood cap, with a clear mirror between pilasters above the door.

The kitchen is compact, with sink and counters of stainless steel, and walls of French gray structural glass.

The bathroom is one of the most striking rooms in the house. It is circular and contains a recessed tub and shower compartment outside the circle. The entire walls are straight vertical segments of structural glass, treated in wine and ivory colors, in which the wainscoting is wine. The upper wall is ivory with a three inch wine colored dentil which caps the structural glass wall. The wainscot and cap is topped off with a plaster dome painted white.

Design for Apartment

WAY TO PEACE TO BE EXPLORED IN RADIO SERIES

"Which way to lasting peace?"

Peoples everywhere are asking this question. What are the causes and results of war?

So that important phases of the questions arising from war and peace can be brought into public discussion, the Columbia Broadcasting system will inaugurate a new series of programs—"Which Way to Lasting Peace?"

The series began over WIND-CBS on the broadcasting period from 5:30 to 5:45 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 27.

This series is being presented in cooperation with a commission to study the organization of peace composed of more than 50 members. Dr. James T. Shotwell, Bryce professor of the history of international relations at Columbia university, is chairman. Dr. Shotwell will preside over the programs. He will have as his guests American authorities in the various fields of international relations, speaking from a nonpartisan point of view.

Sara Teasdale Is Subject of Pilgrimage of Poetry

The New York home where Sara Teasdale, noted St. Louis poet, spent the last years of her life will be visited by Ted Malone during his Pilgrimage of Poetry program at noon today over the NBC-Blue network. Miss Teasdale, who died in 1933, is particularly famous for her volumes of verse entitled "Helen of Troy" and "Rivers to the Sea."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Jan. 8.

Give flowering pot plants plenty of water. A gift plant, after it has passed its period of attractiveness, may be discarded like a bouquet and a new plant obtained. Foliage plants will last much longer, but even they must have attention or they soon dry out, die, or are seriously retarded in growth. Remember that plants obtained from the warm, humid greenhouse must be watered and they must have their full share of light. A plant standing in the dry atmosphere and excessive, changeable heat of the average room requires more water than one standing in a cool room, and a rapidly growing plant requires more water than one that is in a semiresting condition; a plant with fibrous roots takes up water rapidly.

Tuesday, Jan. 9.

You may save a seed pod or two of the Jerusalem cherry, sow the seed along in February and have cherries next autumn. After all danger from frost has passed in late May or early June the young plants should be planted in rows in the garden, kept watered, and numerous cherries will be produced. The bright red fruits are indicative of Christmas and when a plant is in full bearing it is delightful. There are yellow fruited sorts as well as tall and dwarf varieties. Examine the pots of bulbs that were potted in late autumn and if the roots show thru the drainage hole, remove a few pots to the house for flowering. Place in a cool room for a few days and then bring to the light. Well rooted plants grow amazingly fast and the flowers soon appear. Amaryllis bulbs now are on sale and a choice collection of them works wonders in the ornamentation of any room.

Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Perennial beds should have been mulched, newly planted shrubs and trees protected against the attacks of rodents, and the ground around them mulched. Roses taken down and covered with soil will endure thru the most severe winter without injury. Ferns and other foliage plants are benefited by dipping in a tub of water. Dust is removed and the plants stimulated. The offering of glass containers in odd shapes, such as pear, apple, etc., opens a wide field for the amateur to work out interesting effects. Small plants can be obtained from greenhouses. When the care of these glass gardens is understood it becomes a fascinating form of miniature gardening. Large containers may be used for an orchid plant.

Thursday, Jan. 11.

The used Christmas tree provides a fine shelter for the birds when placed in a spot in the garden. Three or more of them stood together is even better and grain scattered underneath lures the birds. Home gardeners, using wood fires, should save the ashes; keep them dry for later use. All animal manure should be saved, but it should not be left exposed to the weather. Manure containing shavings is not so good, for the shavings take a long time to decay and it is hard to spade over ground containing them. Mulch the strawberry bed with hay or straw that is free from weed seeds.

Friday, Jan. 12.

Examine the store of gladiolus corms and remove all surplus soil and other material that may surround them. Put 100 corms in a paper sack with one ounce of naphthalene flakes. Store in a cool room and leave for about three weeks. Such treatment will help to eliminate thrips. Grapevines can be pruned so long as the plants are dormant. The vines will stand heavy pruning to obtain an abundance of new wood, but it is advisable to study the various methods to obtain best results.

Saturday, Jan. 13.

During warm days spraying woody plants with lime-sulphur or miscible oil sprays is effective against scale insects. Some plants are very susceptible to this destructive pest. The materials, ready prepared except for the addition of water, may be obtained from local supply houses. A good knapsack spray outfit is not expensive and is easy to operate. If a definite spray calendar is adopted the plants are easily kept in good health. Wait until summer to prune maple trees; the sap runs in winter and spring, but not in summer.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

Lone Ranger Aids Youth.

The Lone Ranger, masked agent of justice, will go to the aid of a young man who after taking the blame for the misdeeds of a wayward brother once too often, finds himself facing a hangman's noose in the episode to be heard at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The Hunger for Hope.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman's first National Radio Pulpit sermon of the new year will be on "The Hunger for Hope" at 9:00 a. m. over WMAQ. The musical portion of the program will be under the direction of George Shackley.

Constipation Relief That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. Eno at 7 A. M. —relief by 8!*
Feel like a new person in 60 minutes
When plagued by sluggishness and headachy heaviness... when colds hang on and on... you may rightly blame constipation. Then you want speedy relief... a thorough, gentle, quick flushing out... the kind Eno gives.
Speedy results in 60 minutes
Take Eno before breakfast and within the hour you're usually* relieved. This pleasant-tasting "saline" laxative acts by concentrating fluid bulk in the intestines, gently flushes away accumulated wastes.
Help in fighting colds
Many physicians especially favor a "saline" laxative like Eno during colds. Take Eno also to "alkalize", to help neutralize excess stomach acids, an extra benefit.
For speedy results when you're constipated, remember: Eno at 7 a.m., relief by 8! Try Eno! Pay nothing. See offer below.
FREE—regular 30c bottle of ENO
Try Eno absolutely free. No labels. No purchases. All you do is fill out this coupon and mail it to J. C. ENO, Dept. H, 9 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

MEDALS READY FOR HONOR CADETS

SEEK $100,000 AS BENEFIT FOR GREEK ORPHANS

Home Due to Be Built in Chicago.

A national drive to raise $100,000 for an orphanage has been launched by the Greek American Progressive association [Gapa]. Chicago Greeks, under the honorary chairmanship of Bishop Callistos, Greek orthodox bishop in Chicago, 2727 Winona street, will hold their first benefit on Feb. 7, presenting the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos, in Orchestra hall.

The orphanage will be the first Greek philanthropic institution in the United States. According to present plans, it will care for 500 Greek American orphans. Dr. George P. Gavaris, national supreme president of Gapa, has announced that it probably will be erected in a suburb of Chicago. During the next six months, chapters of Gapa thruout the country will sponsor benefits whose proceeds will swell the common treasury.

Members of Board.

Chicago Greeks who have been elected to the orphanage board are Bishop Callistos, Dr. Gavaris, president; Constantine Mammon, treasurer; the Rev. Daniel Golemis, pastor of the Church of Saint George, 2701 Sheffield avenue; the Rev. Nikitas Kesses, pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, 1017 North La Salle street; Dr. Evans Pernokis, 5 South Wabash avenue, and Andrew Margaritis, 180 North Wabash avenue.

Others are Mrs. F. F. De Silla, 4522 North Ashland avenue; Dr. Peter Pane, 8 South Michigan avenue; Dr. Constantine Theodorou, 7 West Madison street, Constantine Soter, 711 Belmont avenue; James Mallars, 816 West Harrison street; Dr. Cleomenis Pappatheodorou, 528 South Halsted street; Costas Pandaleon, 3661 Iron street, and the Rev. Demetrios Averkios, pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity.

The Rev. Mr. Golemis is in charge of tickets for the initial event. Mail orders accompanied by checks are being accepted by Dr. Gavaris at the association headquarters at 5 South Wabash avenue.

American Debut in 1936.

Mr. Mitropoulos, conductor of the symphony orchestra, made his American debut in 1936 with the Boston Symphony orchestra, directed by Dr. Serge Koussewitsky. Born in Athens, Greece, in 1896, he started his studies at the Athens conservatory and continued them in Berlin with Ferrucio Busoni.

For a time he was assistant conductor of the Staatsoper in Berlin, then conducted the Athens Conservatory orchestra, appeared as guest conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic in 1930 and in Paris conducted the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris.

The Gapa was founded in Pittsburgh, Pa., by a handful of Greek Americans on Dec. 17, 1923. Since then it has spread thruout the country, has a membership of 30,000 and is the leading organization interested in naturalization and philanthropic work among the Hellenes in America.

Chapters in Chicago which have united for the orphanage drive include Alexander Ypsilanti, Navarino, Marathon, Solon, Apostle Paul, Estia, Gorgho, Kastalia, Kipseli, Aghisilaos, Lefkothea, and Mboumboulina.

Seventeen Marshall High school R. O. T. C. cadets have resumed work on the construction of a topographical map, according to Sergt. Gilbert Zahrn, military instructor. The map will be used for instruction in map reading, scouting, and patrolling, and combat principles.

The map, which is made of plywood, is a representation of the Gettysburg battlefield. It is on a scale of 21 inches to a mile. It will show hills, valleys, water, houses, and other characteristics on one side in a flat depiction; the other side will have the same topography in relief.

CHURCH GROUP IN WESTMONT HOLDS ELECTION

A. J. Glajsek recently was reëlected president of the Holy Name society of Holy Trinity parish, Westmont. H. S. Rondue was elected vice president; F. J. Paff, recording secretary; F. L. Fettig, financial secretary, and John Dietz, treasurer. E. L. Stromberg was appointed marshall.

"Much has been accomplished, said the Rev. Mr. Stokes, "more remains to be done, but with the help of every one in our growing parish we can look with confidence into the future."

News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev John Evans

After one has been a Methodist minister in the Rock River conference for 43 years and then decides to retire, what is he supposed to do? The Rev. John Wesley Funston answered this question tersely: "Go to work!"

The Rev. John Wesley Funston.

But, of course, one must have learned how to work during so-called active years if one is to succeed at real work during what Methodists used to call superannuation — a word that gave Methodist flavor to the otherwise cold meaning of retirement. Well, the Rev. Mr. Funston began learning how to work after he successfully served his apprenticeship at Northwestern university in the class of '96. His job was building churches and congregations and learning about all that can be known about the life of his namesake, the Rev. John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Last year, his studies produced a book called, "The Wesleys in Picture and Story." But it is no ordinary biography. It is neither Victorian with its lumbering, pedestrian movement, nor Strachian-Guadallian with its morbid psychological detail. Rather, it is a news writer's biography, hence is based on anecdote and photograph. Therefore, the book really tells something about John Wesley.

Open the Funston book anywhere and you'll stop and read what's under the picture on the page. No special pleading! No psychoanalysis! Just straightforward and interesting information. Here on page 126 is a picture of a Leyden jar for collecting static electricity from a glass electrical machine. Beneath the picture it was explained that Mr. Wesley "was open minded toward every new thing," and experimented with electricity "in treating patients." Wesley wrote one of the earliest books on the use of electricity in healing.

Now, about the Rev. Mr. Funston's real work. He retired as an active pastor recently after serving four churches in Chicago, and one each in Freeport, Joliet, and Waukegan. But since that time he is filling engagements, often twice in an evening, giving illustrated lectures on the Wesleys. Just now his house at 543 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, is closed for six weeks. He's lecturing on Wesleyana in Florida. All of which gives us the idea that we, too, should be learning how to work so that in the bleak January of 1964 we will be called to Florida for lecture engagements.

The Rev. Drs. Herbert L. Willett, Kenilworth Union church and emeritus in University of Chicago faculty; Charles G. Kindred, Englewood Christian church; Edward Scribner Ames, dean of Disciples Divinity house and pastor of University Church of the Disciples, and Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century. All ministers of the Disciples church; writers of Protestantism's modern signature.

Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of The Living Church, Milwaukee, Wis., Episcopal publication, has announced publication of a national magazine called The Layman's Magazine. There are plenty of journals for ministers. A religious magazine for and by laymen is a new thing.

"It will be stepped up to match the interesting, challenging, popular magazines on the news stands," Editor Morehouse said.

". . . You ought to call the Nineteen Thirties the decade of the Great Hangover. . . . It was a time of slow, painful recovery from the debauch of the twenties. . . . As always, when people have a headache, we turned to innumerable quack remedies. . . . We found momentary hope in secular movements for social salvation. . . ."

BOYS' REPUBLIC SEEKS LEADERS OF JUNIOR GROUP

With the recent organization of a junior department of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic, there is need of a number of volunteer group leaders and instructors to make the work possible. The republic is a small community of boys who elect their own mayor, police, councilmen and have their own city hall at 1532 South Hamlin avenue.

Positions that must be filled by volunteers are as follows: printing instructor, debate coach, stamp club, music director, dramatic coach, story tellers, hike leaders, instructor in first aid, club leader, amatuer radio operator and nature instructors.

The new junior department takes care of younger boys 10 to 14 years old. The senior members of the club are 14 to 19 years old. The motto of the republic is "So Long as there are boys in trouble, we too are in trouble."

Looking Forward to Ice Derby

Hundreds of young Hans Brinkers and their sisters in Oak Park are sharpening skates for the 20th annual ice Derby of the Oak Park playgrounds, scheduled for 8 o'clock Friday evening at the Stevenson field, Lake street and Taylor avenue. Juniors, midgets, intermediates, and seniors are practicing their figures to win a ribbon, prize, or trophy. Two young ladies who are wishing for a cold wintry day Friday try on their skates. They are Eleanore Burke (left) and Polly Laun.

OAK PARK'S ICE DERBY DEPENDS ON COLD SNAP

Event Is Set for Next Friday Evening.

Although thousands of boys and girls are eager for the event, altho Oak Park sportsmen and officials of Oak Park are working on arrangements, the 20th annual ice derby of the Oak Park playgrounds cannot take place Friday evening without the coöperation of one temperamental gentleman. He is Jack Frost.

Last year's ice derby was the first one for seven years that was held on schedule. Two years ago the event was postponed five times because the weather was too nice. So it winter stays, Stevenson playground, Lake street, and Taylor avenue, will be specially lighted for the derby at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening. Frank McLeod, who has never missed a derby for 17 years, will be an official along with Earl Solem of the Western Skating association who has given the prizes for midget events for many years.

Events on Schedule.

Events will include 50 yard dash for junior boys, midget boys and girls; 220 yard dash for senior boys; 100 yard dash for intermediate boys; junior boys and girls and midget boys and girls; quarter mile for senior girls, intermediate boys, junior giris and boys; ½ mile for senior boys, intermediate boys, and senior girls; a junior boys' obstacle race, an intermediate boys' obstacle race, and a senior boys' one mile race.

A. V. Hammerberg will be chairman, assisted by J. J. Maloney. The derby is under the general direction of Miss Josephine Blackstock, playground director, and Edward Beranek and Andrew Watters. Earl Solem will be the starter and Edmund Hann will be the clerk of the course.

Judges are Arthur J. Keating, Arthur Schultz, N. L. Kramer, Andrew Krantz, Mrs. C. A. Kristen, and Mrs. A. W. Richmond. Miss Mary Jason will be in charge of boys' awards and Miss Hazel Bowes, girls' awards. Mrs. Esther Armstrong will tally the points. Refreshments will be served by Miss Marie Bockholt, Miss Bertha Hough, and Mrs. Rose Alley.

Two Trophies Offered.

Two trophies will be presented to the playgrounds gaining the most points in all events. Medals, pins, and ribbons will be awarded in all classes.

Two exhibition skaters have been invited to perform. Lorraine Lawlor, who holds the junior western skating championship, is from Eugene Field playground. Earl Solem Jr., the midget western champion, comes from Anderson playground.

There will be heated accommodations for changing skates and music intermissions. A professional skater, Horace Duke, has been invited to give an exhibition of his skill.

If it does not freeze by Friday the derby will be postponed until Friday, Jan. 19.

Will Hang Etching.

Formal hanging of an etching of Wilbur Wright, recently retired principal of Austin High school, will take place Friday afternoon, Jan. 19, in the school library.

BELLWOOD VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT TO GIVE BENEFIT DANCE

The Bellwood volunteer fire department, which will hold its annual benefit dance Jan. 27 in Memorial Park ballroom, has as its chief Harvey W. Boeger, whose place of business as well as residence is just four doors from the city hall building where the fire equipment is housed. Charles Herrmann is captain of the department. Other officers are Fred Hohnke, lieutenant; Wayne Kemp, secretary, and Charles Stanger, treasurer. Announcement is made that members of fire departments in neighboring communities will be admitted to the dance upon showing their badges.

Harvey W. Boeger.

ARTHUR SCHULER HEADS C. OF C. IN FOREST PARK

Arthur H. Schuler, Forest Park postmaster, recently was elected president of the Forest Park Chamber of Commerce and will be installed with other newly elected officers at a meeting to be held during the month thru the arrangement of Gordon W. Bennett, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Other newly elected officers are Charles R. Hussey Jr., first vice president; Sam Slotky, second vice president; W. A. Ruppert, treasurer, and Henry C. Rieck, secretary. New directors are Mr. Schuler, Walter Henson, David Novak, W. A. Ruppert, and Mrs. Elsie Tonkin.

Mr. Schuler, a resident of Forest Park for 26 years, became postmaster of the village five years ago. Mr. Schuler said an innovation planned for the coming year would be a series of eight dinner meetings at which there would be outside speakers.

ISABELLA UNITS JOIN TO SPONSOR BENEFIT PARTY

The Chicago Diocesan group of Daughters of Isabella, comprising all officers and members of the 27 Chicago circles, will hold a card party Tuesday evening, Jan. 23, in the Palmer House. Proceeds will be given to Bishop Bernard Sheil to aid in diocesan charity projects.

Regents and state officers assisting on the committee for the west division are Mrs. Mayme McGloon, state recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Knippen, state chancellor; Mrs. Louise Lang, Miss Mary Ryan, Miss Ann O'Malley, Mrs. Bernice Ziebell, Mrs. Mary Tolan, Mrs. Emma Sullivan, Mrs. Elizabeth Brownell, Mrs. Martha Selver, and Mrs. Edith Bostrand.

FLOWER SHOWS AT PARKS DRAW RECORD THRONGS

1,617,073 See Displays Throughout 1939.

Chicagoans are becoming more flower conscious, judging from the announcement by George J. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district, that the main conservatories of the park system on the north and west sides enjoyed a record breaking attendance last year.

The two conservatories — Garfield park on the west side and Lincoln park on the north side—had a combined attendance in 1939 of 1,617,073, Mr. Donoghue said. This is an increase of 224,262 in the 1938 attendance of 1,392,811.

Surprisingly enough, most of the visitors were clocked in the Lincoln park flower houses, which had a total attendance of 837,488 last year, as compared with 702,443 in the previous year. A total of 779,585 flower lovers visited the Garfield park enclosure in 1939 as against only 670,391 in the preceding year.

Shows Attract Throngs.

Nearly one-third of the attendance in both places was compiled during the Easter show and the annual chrysanthemum show, and this was augmented by other special occasions such as the summer and fall shows, which feature begonias and fancy-leaved caladiums.

Garfield park played host to 339,929 persons at its mum show, and Lincoln park to 175,032. These figures represented substantial gains over 1938.

The Easter show featured lilies, and the mum show both chrysanthemums and Poinsettias. Garfield park had 108,254 Easter show visitors, and Lincoln park 66,778.

The figures indicate that while Garfield park had the greater pulling power for special occasions, the ordinary day-to-day attendance at Lincoln park held up better, perhaps because of its more convenient location.

Show Closes Tonight.

The park district's 27th annual Christmas flower show, in progress at both conservatories, will close at 10 o'clock tonight. During the first 10 days of the show the display of Poinsettias, early spring flowers and the Star of Bethlehem orchids was seen by 73,704 persons. Of these, 42,170 were counted at Garfield park and 31,534 at Lincoln park. Last year's total attendance at both places was 92,691.

MUCH HIDDEN TALENT.

I wonder if our men's club hasn't hit upon something that other groups might find profitable? We found that a good speaker could give our meetings a lift, but we had no funds for obtaining professionals. Looking about, we discovered that among our own members we had persons who had had rich and interesting experiences in their lines of work and our program chairman's problem was solved. It was as if we had all the time been walking over a gold mine without taking the trouble to delve and find what was beneath. As the series of talks progressed we were amazed at what our fellow club members had to offer. All were not orators, but not one, when dealing with the career about which he knew most, was uninteresting. The talks were not only informative, but I am sure the speakers profited from the opportunity to think on their feet. I venture to say there is not a community in the area but has its residents, now overlooked, who have something to offer worth while for a club program. There can be talent just around the corner as well as in some far off place. Glance about you, program chairmen!

THRILLS TO THE PAST.

It is a great thrill for me just to walk down Ashland boulevard or Washington. Modern apartments, street cars, and the hectic rush of city workers all disappear. Old mansard roofs, port cocheres, carved posts and pillars, and dusty old bricks change the era. For around these things is the aura of pink parasols and roses on tea cups. There Chicago is the town of dressed up neighbors with the ideals of eastern society and the mud of the west on their shoes. Snow on these mansard roofs along the boulevards brings back the days of sleigh races. Spring brings dandelions to the lawns and brings back the times when a good neighbor kept his distance with wide clipped hedges and his neighborliness with calling cards. The wealth of two boulevards cannot die. They are too rich in associations.

AN OLD TIMER.

LONGS FOR COMPANY.

As I sit at my third floor window looking out upon one of the west side's busiest boulevards I think of the lines. "Let me live in a house by the side of the road where the race of men goes by." Well, the stream of cars is constant and the race of men goes racing by, but none of them pause so that I might extend a friendly gesture. Concealed in their cars, I have no way of knowing whether they are good or bad, rich or poor, wise or foolish, but I think of the poem, which no doubt referred to a house beside a country road. The best I could do was hang a wreath in the window during the recent holidays.

CLOSE-IN WESTSIDER.

INSPIRED BY FLOWERS.

My Christmas was made more beautiful by a visit I made to Garfield park conservatory. I was astounded that in the dead of winter such artistry could be performed by our park gardeners. There were thousands of poinsettia blooms that made the Christmas green and red a symphony of color as great as a Handel oratorio. I wonder if those who gave charity this Christmas suggested to the needy that within walking distance of their home or just 7 cents by street car there was a real interpretation of Christmas said with flowers. And the marvel of it—it was free.

PRODS FACTORY OWNERS.

A reader points out that there is much need for a better appearance of private property on the west side. Reference is evidently made to dwellings.

There are many occupied factory buildings in and around that present a bad appearance. Some of them are in residential districts and their owners or managers apparently have no regard for nearby residents.

Such buildings need painting and a general brightening, especially factories that were in residential districts before the zoning laws were effective.

Those who cannot affort to keep their seals are asked to help the association complete its work by returning the seals to headquarters at Glen Ellyn.

SCHOOLS GIVEN WIDE PRAISE FOR PUBLICITY WORK

Elmhurst Bulletins Are Called Helpful.

International recognition of the Elmhurst elementary school system for its public relations work recently was accorded by the Bulletin of the International Bureau of Education, issued quarterly from Geneva, Switzerland.

V. L. Beggs.

The bulletin, which contains surveys of achievements in 26 nations thruout the world, gives an unusual amount of space to its comment on the bulletin for teachers and parents issued by the Elmhurst schools.

"The superintendent of schools in Elmhurst, Ill.," it says, "believes that good administration requires that both teachers and parents should be kept informed about the educational system. With this end in view he issues two publications at regular intervals. The Interlocutor, a mimeographed bulletin of some eight pages, is sent to teachers about every two weeks. It contains a great variety of information about such matters as the schools' financial status, curriculum and research.

One Sent to Parents.

"The second bulletin, entitled 'Your Child in School,' is sent to parents three or four times a year. It serves as an organ for keeping parents informed with respect to the policies and the practices of the schools."

Altho he started both publications in the school, Supt. V. L. Beggs said the task of getting out the two bulletins was handled by the public relations committee of the school system, composed of one teacher from each of the schools, and that he merely served as a consultant.

Serving on Committee.

Laverne Moore of Roosevelt school is chairman of the public relations committee for the 1939-'40 school year. Other members of the committee are Mabel Comery of Old Field school; Verna Hoyman of Hawthorne Junior High school; Alice Feller, New Field school; Mildred Stover of the Hawthorne elementary school; Josephine Thomas, Washington school, and Laverna Lindquist of the Lincoln school.

Recently the Elmhurst school system has added another publication, A Handbook of Information for New Parents, which contains information about the school curriculum, routine, services, and an illustrated map of Elmhurst.

Edward L. Burchard, executive-secretary, requests that any organization or group of individuals interested in making use of vacant property for winter sports inquire at the commissions office at 160 North La Salle street. Mr. Burchard also explains that the majority of the lots are supervised by local parks, playgrounds, settlement houses, churches, school playgrounds, and boys' clubs.

SCHOOL OF 1859 SCHEDULED TO HOUSE OFFICES

River Forest Board Is to Make Alterations.

Decision of the River Forest board of education to transform the old school building at Lake street and Park avenue into an administration building has revived interest in the structure erected in 1859 and then considered the largest and finest school building between Chicago and Elgin.

Ashbel Steele was contractor for the first brick building, called the Harlem school, in River Forest. Bricks for the structure were made in River Forest, and much of the lumber came from a nearby mill on the Des Plaines river.

To Keep Old Doors.

Alterations, after the first of the year, call for pointing of the worn brick walls, but old fashioned doors and windows will not be changed, and if a new front door is needed it will be of the same design and material as the one entered by pupils generations ago.

Nor will the architecture, reminiscent of pioneer days, including a cupola, be disturbed. New fireplaces will be built on the two floors.

A bronze tablet near the doorway reads:

"'For God and home and every land.' In memory of Frances E. Willard, who taught in this school in 1861. Presented by Oak Park, Forest Park, and River Forest Women's Christian Temperance Union."

Will House Offices.

The historic building, found on examination to be good for many more years when properly reinforced, will be utilized for offices of the school superintendent and assistants, department heads, and the board of education now operating in cramped quarters in the Roosevelt school building.

The building was erected to serve all of what was once known as Harlem, which comprised all of what is now River Forest and Forest Park, and the west part of the present Oak Park.

GIRLS' SEMINARY AT AURORA HAS NEW DIRECTOR

Miss Margaret de Booy Heads Jennings.

In recently accepting her appointment as head of Jennings seminary at Aurora, Miss Margaret de Booy has taken charge of one of the oldest girls' schools in the middle west. Miss de Booy, who received her bachelor of science degree at Northwestern university and her master's at the Teachers' college at Columbia, served two years as principal of the seminary. Formerly she was associated with Northwestern as director of tutorial work for women.

Miss Margaret de Booy.

Eighty-one years ago, when Jennings seminary had its beginning, the scene surrounding its hilltop location was quite different from the one that presents itself today. Houses were far apart, woods stretched down to the river, smart looking phaetons were drawn by high stepping horses, men wore silk hats and frock coats, and women were gowned in wide flowing skirts.

Adventure in Education.

During the winter of 1858 a "select school" was conducted by Miss Jemima Washburn for about 100 young men and women. The school was closed the following spring and arrangements were made for the opening of Clark seminary in the fall of 1859 with Dr. George W. Quereau as president and with Miss Washburn in charge of the young women.

Both classical and scientific courses were open to women and, from an educational viewpoint, this was considered an adventure. Enthusiasm of women for the exceptional advantages offered them is said to have been an important factor in the unusual success of the school thru the troubled years of the civil war.

Financial burdens, however, were a matter of concern, and the faculty and board of trustees struggled with the debt left from the original building fund. Traveling in an open buggy thru the severe winters, the Rev. Caleb Foster raised sums of money, but to Mrs. Eliza Jennings is credited the donation which cleared the debt and saved the school. Mrs. Jennings' action caused the school to change its name to Jennings seminary.

Run by Deaconesses.

In 1898 the Rock River conference of the Methodist church by an enthusiastic and overwhelming majority voted to convey the property of Jennings seminary to the deaconesses to maintain a school for young women.

Jennings seminary sets forth its aim as "that of a fine high school education in a homelike atmosphere where the ideals and standards of spiritual living as embodied in the life and teachings of Christ are upheld as every girl's rightful heritage."

DECEMBER KEEPS TO AVERAGE IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

Rate Should Have Been Less Due to Weather.

December was a normal month with respect to traffic killings, it is shown by a study of records kept by the coroner's office.

These figures show there were 113 fatalities on Cook county streets and highways during the month, or an average of 3.65 deaths a day. The December average for the last 10 years is 111 deaths, or 3.58 killings a day.

One factor that reflects unfavorably for the month, according to traffic observers, is that December was unusually clear and dry, and thus theoretically there should have been a considerable reduction in the automobile massacre. Instead there was a slight increase.

Figuring from the first of the month, the fourth week of December was deadliest to motorists and pedestrians. There were 36 killings in that seven-day period. There were 21 deaths each in the first and second weeks and 26 deaths in the third week, with 9 in the last three days.

Increase in Suburbs.

December saw a sharp increase in the ratio of suburban to Chicago fatalities in the county. Chicago was charged with 81 of the fatalities and the outlying parts of the county with 32. Usually Chicago leads by a ratio of about 4 to 1.

Pedestrians, as usual, furnished a majority of the death victims. Seventy-six of the dead were in this classification, while there were only 37 in all other classifications combined.

There was a big jump in the number of automobile-train fatalities, which claimed a total of 14 victims in December. Eight of these deaths occurred in two accidents, an elevated-automobile crash at Harrison street and Central avenue on Dec. 22 that cost three lives, and an automobile-steam train accidents at 95th street and 51st avenue in Oak Lawn on Christmas day in which five died.

Fifty-four of the 76 pedestrian victims were males and 22 were females. Following the rule that most pedestrian traffic deaths are among the older persons, 36 of the December pedestrian fatalities claimed as their victims persons of 60 or over—8 women and 28 men.

There were 16 victims in the 50-59 year age group, including 11 men and 5 women, and 11 victims in the 40 to 49 year group, 4 of whom were women.

The eight other male victims to be accounted for ranged in age from 5 to 20 years, while the five female victims not included in the foregoing figures were from 5 to 34 years old.

TINGE OF SOUTH IS BROUGHT TO SUBURBAN HOME

The cotton did not do so well, but peanuts, yams, and black-eyed peas grown in their garden last summer are being enjoyed by the Colvin Phillips family, 3412 Arden avenue, Hollywood. If these products of the soil smack of faraway Georgia there is good reason, for Mr. Phillips was born and reared on a plantation not far from Tara, home of Scarlett O'Hara of "Gone With the Wind."

Mr. Phillips, a resident of the Chicago area since 1926, is a salesman. He and Mrs. Phillips, a native of Illinois, met in Florida. When they bought their home in Hollywood a year ago they found the deep, wooded lot ideal as a setting not only for a garden but other features permitting a transplanting of Georgia atmosphere.

Dixie Rails in Fence.

Rails from the south have gone into a fence, and a wagon wheel has been used for a turnstile. Entrance to a cabin in the yard is lighted by old surrey lamps, and within there is a butter churn, a possum skin, a candle mold, and other relics of the southland. Here, too, may be found the black, iron kettle for the brewing of Brunswick stew.

Visitors at the home have discovered that Mr. Phillips is adept at cooking this stew, the dish served at the Ashley Wilkes barbecue where Scarlett underwent her first painful interview with Rhett Butler.

Brought Back Heirlooms.

From the Georgia plantation, inherited thru several generations, Mr. Phillips has brought to his Chicagoland home articles dating back, some of them, for a century. Among them are a spinning wheel used in slave time, a mustache cup, a planter's punch bowl, and andirons and a chip bucket for the fireplace.

Mrs. Phillips has added to the collection souvenirs gathered from her ancestral surroundings in Virginia. For a real Yankee souvenir she cherishes a chevron from the uniform of her great-grandfather, who was a colonel of a Missouri regiment in the northern army during the civil war.

It has been the custom for the Phillips family to visit at Monticello, Georgia, once a year, and they report that since the publication of "Gone With the Wind" the neighborhood for many miles around is besieged by tourists, eager to photograph buildings that may have played a part in the novel.

FRANK KEYSER'S STOP GAP WORK LASTS 46 YEARS

Everybody said a bad depression was coming. Frank Keyser's work at the World's Columbian exposition was over. But a woman he had known back home in Geneseo, Ill., offered him a job taking care of the two boilers in a big old house on Halsted street where she had moved to be a good neighbor.

Frank Keyser.

Frank Keyser, then 19 years old, took the job. He didn't think he should because it hadn't much future, but the depression was coming. He would work out the winter.

That was in 1893. Frank Keyser is still working in that boiler room. Today he can list among his visitors Teddy Roosevelt who stopped often to pass the time of day. William Jennings Bryan came to chat. He went to parties with Gerard Swope, and Scott Nearing, the political scientist, used to drop in to shovel coal for exercise.

Helps Boys in Trouble.

Besides his work in the boiler room Frank frequently rode over to the Maxwell street police station to rescue a boy in trouble. He carried baskets of food to the poor. He put his approval on speeches that were to be heard around the world and revolutionize social service history.

For Frank Keyser took the job in 1892 as maintenance engineer of Hull House. The woman who offered it to him was Jane Addams.

Frank's sister was Mary Keyser who spent the first day at Hull House with Miss Addams and worked with her until she died in 1897. Miss Addams knew the Keyser family from her girlhood when she traveled to Geneseo from her home in Cedarville, Ill., to visit her married sister. When Frank came to the city to work he stopped off to visit Mary at Hull House. Miss Addams had just put in a new heating system and needed a maintenance man.

Twenty-six Years, No Vacation.

In his 46 years at Hull House, he has helped with the thirteen new buildings added to make the famous settlement quadrangle and approved the 27 different additions and changes. "Working in that boiler room did have a future," says Mr. Keyser.

A close friend and confidant of Miss Addams, he was called on to do everything from organizing clubs to shoveling snow. For 26 years he worked side by side with her without a vacation. Now with ten engineers assisting him he gets a month off every year.

How Heating Bill Runs.

In the early days a dollar had to stretch a long way at Hull House. "But it's even more true today," explains the maintenance engineer. "Then $600 paid for the coal. Now $12,000 is the cost of heating the series of buildings. Once $700 worth of paint kept the settlement fresh and clean. Now this item costs $3,500." In 1913 Mr. Keyser was in charge of distributing 3,000 tons of coal to needy families.

Four stone door sills have been worn thru by thousands of neighbors in Mr. Keyser's time. One is used as a bench in the outdoor court. Others were sent as souvenirs to Berea college, Kentucky, and Rollins college, Florida.

As Hull House celebrates its golden jubilee thruout the year, friends and neighbors are paying tribute to the white haired man whose manual labor helped to make Miss Addam's dream of Hull House come true.

JAMES W. ALLEN

So he's flying down to Rio after all . . . .

After three years as an airline pilot between Chicago and New York, James W. Allen decided to take a vacation. His idea was to get a plane and take an extended trip to places he'd never seen before.

Following his graduation from Cornell in 1934, Allen had done a great deal of traveling. As a pilot with the army air service, he had flown over much of the United States. As a flyer for the U. S. Forest service and as an airline pilot, he had seen a lot more of it.

But he had never seen South America. He hankered to see the Aztec pyramids at Oaxaca from the air, and the harbor at Rio de Janeiro where mountains step into the sea, with a suburb on every ledge.

Last June he mentioned the idea to his brother-in-law, Dr. Charles K. Sibley, head of the science department at the John Burroughs school, St. Louis. Dr. Sibley thought it over and agreed to go. The date for the take-off was set for January 1, 1940, from Chicago.

So Allen bought a six-place Ryan B5 monoplane powered with a 330 h.p. Wright Whirlwind engine. He found a machine shop and started it on a complete overhaul. Next he wrote to twenty-seven airports in South America and Mexico, arranging for supplies and accommodations. Permits and passports had to be obtained from Washington. Everything was pretty well set when Dr. Sibley, much to his disappointment, found that he wouldn't be able to go.

Allen, however, still wanted to make the trip. It seemed to him that there must be lots of people who would jump at the chance of such a trip, so on October 14 and 15 he ran the following three-line want ad in the Chicago Tribune:

FLYING South America Jan. 1. priv. plane; take 4, 5; shr. exp.; pilot has army and airline exp. Lt. Allen, HYDE PARK 7577.

The ad pulled 40 inquiries. As a result, on January 1, the following party took off from the Lockport airport: Mrs. Doris Wallace, photographer, 126 E. Delaware Pl., Chicago; Miss Frieda Zylstra, 5308 Kenwood Ave., Chicago, who will photograph the trip; Miss June Sprau, 1 Stonegate Road, Lake Forest, Ill.; Mrs. Fred R. Allen (Mr. Allen's mother); Seward Bowers, an attorney of 320 Britian Ave., Benton Harbor, Michigan, and James Allen.

As it now stands, the trip will cover 8,000 air miles and will take two months, all told. One of the group has been appointed treasurer and will make all financial arrangements. The terminus will be Rio de Janeiro, where the party will disband and the plane will be sold. Allen and Bowers will then find guides and go hunting.

All of which is just another illustration of what you can do with Tribune want ads.

YOUNG SAILORS CONSTRUCT SHIP IN CLUBROOMS

Craft Helps in Study of Seamanship.

A ship that will never go to sea is anchored in a room on the third floor of the West Side Community center, 1145 Vernon Park place. It is manned by a crew of 40 young seamen who sail it to Timbuctoo or Siam thru calm and storm and touch strange ports at the ocean's ends.

They have everything for their sailing vessel—an afterdeck with a cabin below, life rings and jackets, a foremast, a mainmast and shrouds. They use a ship's bell for telling time, they have a gangplank and a signal gun. There is a running light system of red and green for the ships that pass in the night. But the sides of the ship are beaverboard, the caulking is just a painted black line and it never sails from the third floor room in Vernon Park place.

They're Indoor Sailors.

It's a strange story that Skipper Anthony Inorio can tell of building boys into good seamen far from a ship's deck or a rolling sea. Given a room 55x20 feet and boys who never breathed the salt air, this is what he did.

He bought some paint, and the boys put scenes of the sea on the walls. Charles Moon, artist, supervised the painting of the lighthouse, the distant tropical port and the white tipped waves. The ship took shape, and gifts of masts and rigging were sent to the boys by Charles Bidwell, who owns the yacht The Renmar. When it was built and staffed they called it the S. S. S. Bishop Sheil in tribute to the founder of the Catholic Youth organization of which the West Side Community center is a part.

The S. S. S. Bishop Shiel is now affiliated with the Sea Scouts of the West Side council, Boy Scouts of America. The boys meet at 7:30 o'clock every Friday evening in uniform, pipe their skipper aboard and go thru the routine of preparing the sailing.

Take Trial Voyage.

Last summer before the ship was built in the center the boys tried their sparse knowledge of seamanship on an excursion to Wilmette beach on a scout vessel. The result was fun, seasickness and blisters. By next summer the boys hope to have a vessel of their own.

Mr. Inorio's first mate is Victor Dominelli and second mate is Bordee Amendala. The junior officers are Mike Lucatorto, boatswain; Romeo Rondinelli, boatswain's mate; Donald Perri, starboard coxswain; Joseph Cima, assistant coxswain; Dick Lymperis, port coxswain; Ralph Melone, assistant coxswain; Philip Vincitorio, yeoman, and Orlando Bruno, bugler.

On Jan. 20 the Sea Scouts, whose ages range from 15 to 21, will invite their girls over for a moonlight cruise. There will be refreshments served on deck and the light in the lighthouse will take the place of the moon.

He's Littlest Sailor

The littlest sailor of the S. S. Bishop Sheil, the ship recently completed on the third floor of the West Side Community center, 1145 Vernon Park place, is Buddy Inorio, mascot. Buddy is 2½ years old and his father is Anthony Inorio, skipper of the ship that never sails. The S. S. Bishop Sheil was built to provide sea atmosphere for the newly organized Sea Scouts at the C. Y. O. recreation center.

HANDWRITING EXPERT TO TELL OF HOBBY BEFORE CHURCH MEN

For its program Tuesday night, the Men's club of the Riverside Methodist church will have as a speaker one of its own members, Dr. R. M. Walker, who will discuss his hobby of handwriting and its relation to the investigation of documents.

Dr. R. M. Walker.

Dr. Walker has been an active member of the Riverside church for 38 years and is chairman of the board of trustees. He took up the handwriting hobby 35 years ago, and in his talk Tuesday night will present the human interest side of his experiences as an expert. Back in 1904, Dr. Walker made the acquaintance of Warren A. Drake, a teacher of penmanship who testified in legal cases that involved handwriting. When Mr. Drake died, Dr. Walker succeeded him in the work.

Practising dentistry in Chicago since 1889, Dr. Walker in carrying on his hobby profession, has been called to states thruout the middle west. Among the famous cases in which he appeared as consultant was that of Capt. Billy Streeter in Chicago, involving property rights to the section now known as the Gold Coast.

Preceding Dr. Walker's illustrated talk dinner will be served by women of the church at 6:30 o'clock. Lee Arthur is president of the Men's club, and Homer A. Dawson is program chairman. H. R. Luttenbacher is chairman of the entertainment committee.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Talk about longevity in radio! Joe Sanders, who with Carlton Coon and their Original Kansas City Nighthawks got his start way back in 1922, is still going strong. Joe and his lads are playing their 12th engagement in 15 years at the Blackhawk restaurant and on W-G-N. None has been shorter than four months. And they have continued as long as 14 solid months.

Joe Sanders. [Connelly Photo.]

What has he got that gets them? Friendliness is first on the list. The "Old Left Hander" likes meeting people, all kinds of people. He's proud of the fact that among his fans today are men who were in their Harold Teen days back in the early '20s when they first danced to Coon-Sanders. Now they are solid business and professional men. Joe is proud of their loyalty. And now a crop of sons is beginning to go for him, too.

Joe credits his "happy" style of music with winning them, too.

Joe Mixes It Up.

"We have always mixed our music up to try to please everybody," he explained. "We get far more requests for ballads than any other types of music, so folks must prefer that kind."

Joe believes that versatile orchestras playing all kinds of dance music will have the longest runs in popularity. Among these, he says, will be Ted Weems, Wayne King, Kay Kyser, and Jan Garber, to mention a few. Swing, he says, is on the wing.

Recalls the Early Days.

Joe has a lot of radio memories. The Nighthawks were radio's first orchestra to broadcast "remotely," that is outside of a studio. When they came to Chicago and W-G-N their Nights and Ladies of the Bath, [late Saturday night program with dedication of numbers to individuals] became one of the most famous of early day radio programs. Joe believes it had the greatest listening audience on the air at that time. Telegrams for request numbers or congratulations poured in by the hundreds. Once, Joe recalled, they got 530 wires in less than 2 hours.

Those were the days. "Nowadays radio is too dignified," Joe lamented. "They have taken a lot of the fun out of it."

200,000 Miles in 18 Months.

Joe and his band have done a lot of traveling thru the years—one night stands all over the country. They have made 200,000 miles in the last 18 months. Strange things have happened during these treks about the country. Once during a tornado downstate, Joe and Coony stopped to aid in the relief of the victims. A little baby died in Joe's arms.

At Herrin, Ill., they once played a dance at which customers checked their knives and guns outside. Another time they missed a train connection because of a flood and they had to ferry across the Ohio river. When they reached the Kentucky side they took off their shoes while pushing their bus out of the mud. They didn't have time to get cleaned up before they climbed the bandstand at Madisonville, Ky. So they played in their bare feet.

Joe left the orchestra business for several years after Coon died. Joe spent the time writing songs. He has written around 500. Best seller was "Beloved" which passed a million copies. And then there were "Brainstorm," "Hallucination," "The Wall," "Slewfoot," and "High Fever," to mention a few. And his various theme songs, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You" [with Eddie Edwards], and "Nitie, Nite," used for early morning signoff.

Joe still gets calls for "Harold Teen," which he wrote in 24 hours. It, like "Orphan Annie" and others named for Tribune comics, were published as features in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Joe also wrote the official song for the San Francisco fair, "Westward Ho."

The Coon-Sanders duo originated the idea of radio Shut-Ins club. Joe still gets letters from shut-ins who have followed him since the early days.

Collects Flowers as Hobby.

He has his hobbies, too, photography—both movies and still. But the one he rides hardest is collecting wild flowers. He has more than 2,500 varieties. And one he is particularly proud of is a Pasque posy which he plucked during a mountain blizzard in Berthoud pass.

Joe is a member of the recently organized Dodo society of radio. Among the old timers who belong are Graham McNamee, John S. Young, radio director of the New York world's fair, and Leo Fitzpatrick, who started Joe out down on WDAF, Kansas City, now executive of WJR, Detroit.

WAY TO PEACE TO BE EXPLORED IN RADIO SERIES

"Which way to lasting peace?"

Peoples everywhere are asking this question. What are the causes and results of war?

So that important phases of the questions arising from war and peace can be brought into public discussion, the Columbia Broadcasting system will inaugurate a new series of programs—"Which Way to Lasting Peace?"

The series began over WIND-CBS on the broadcasting period from 5:30 to 5:45 p. m. Saturday, Jan. 27.

This series is being presented in coöperation with a commission to study the organization of peace composed of more than 50 members. Dr. James T. Shotwell, Bryce professor of the history of international relations at Columbia university, is chairman. Dr. Shotwell will preside over the programs. He will have as his guests American authorities in the various fields of international relations, speaking from a nonpartisan point of view.

NORTHERNERS TO PRESENT SONG BY CHICAGOAN

The Northerners will include many old ballads in their program from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday on W-G-N. The octet will sing "Love's Old Sweet Song," "The Song of the Jolly Roger," and the spiritual, "Holy Mountain." Bernice Rickman and George Grammer Smith will sing "Silvio! a Quest Ora," from the opera "Pagliacci."

The entire company will join in the new song, "I Never Knew How Much It Meant," by Bernard C. Russell, a Chicagoan.

The Hunger for Hope.

Dr. Ralph W. Sockman's first National Radio Pulpit sermon of the new year will be on "The Hunger for Hope" at 9:00 a. m. over WMAQ. The musical portion of the program will be under the direction of George Shackley.

Raphael Spiro, Violinist, on Melody Pageant.

Joseph Victor Laderoute, noted Canadian tenor, and Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N's operatic soprano, will be featured in the Concert Revue, conducted by Henry Weber, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Mr. Laderoute, who has been heard this season with the Chicago and Detroit symphony orchestras, will sing two songs: "Cavatina," by Gounod, and "Tell Me, Oh Blue, Blue Sky," by V. Giannini.

Miss Witwer will sing "Beautiful Art Thou My Love," by Herbert Hyde, and will join the women's quartet in the "Chorus of the Flower Maidens," from Wagner's "Parsifal."

Other numbers to be played by the orchestra will include "Der Bauer Ein Schelm," by Dvorak; "Dance of the Camorists," by Wolf-Ferrari, and "Scheherezade," by Rimsky-Korsakow.

The Pageant of Melody, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will present Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Raphael Spiro, violinist, in a program of classical music, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and Mutual.

Baggiore will sing the "Prize Song," from Wagner's "Meistersinger." With the octet Baggiore will do "Gipsy Moon," by Borganoff, and Romberg's "Wanting You," from "The New Moon."

Spiro will play the first movement from Wieniawski's Concerto in D minor. The orchestra will play "Ruy Blas Overture," by Von Weber; "Danse Espagnole No. 2," by DeFalla, and "Malaguena," by Albeniz.

Constipation Relief That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Design for Apartment

Monday, Jan. 8.

Give flowering pot plants plenty of water. A gift plant, after it has passed its period of attractiveness, may be discarded like a bouquet and a new plant obtained. Foliage plants will last much longer, but even they must have attention or they soon dry out, die, or are seriously retarded in growth. Remember that plants obtained from the warm, humid greenhouse must be watered and they must have their full share of light. A plant standing in the dry atmosphere and excessive, changeable heat of the average room requires more water than one standing in a cool room, and a rapidly growing plant requires more water than one that is in a semiresting condition; a plant with fibrous roots takes up water rapidly.

Tuesday, Jan. 9.

You may save a seed pod or two of the Jerusalem cherry, sow the seed along in February and have cherries next autumn. After all danger from frost has passed in late May or early June the young plants should be planted in rows in the garden, kept watered, and numerous cherries will be produced. The bright red fruits are indicative of Christmas and when a plant is in full bearing it is delightful. There are yellow fruited sorts as well as tall and dwarf varieties. Examine the pots of bulbs that were potted in late autumn and if the roots show thru the drainage hole, remove a few pots to the house for flowering. Place in a cool room for a few days and then bring to the light. Well rooted plants grow amazingly fast and the flowers soon appear. Amaryllis bulbs now are on sale and a choice collection of them works wonders in the ornamentation of any room. The bulbs are offered in different colors so that a variety can be obtained.

Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Perennial beds should have been mulched, newly planted shrubs and trees protected against the attacks of rodents, and the ground around them mulched. Roses taken down and covered with soil will endure thru the most severe winter without injury. Ferns and other foliage plants are benefited by dipping in a tub of water. Dust is removed and the plants stimulated. The offering of glass containers in odd shapes, such as pear, apple, etc., opens a wide field for the amateur to work out interesting effects. Small plants can be obtained from greenhouses. When the care of these glass gardens is understood it becomes a fascinating form of miniature gardening. Large containers may be used for an orchid plant.

Thursday, Jan. 11.

The used Christmas tree provides a fine shelter for the birds when placed in a spot in the garden. Three or more of them stood together is even better and grain scattered underneath lures the birds. Home gardeners, using wood fires, should save the ashes; keep them dry for later use. All animal manure should be saved, but it should not be left exposed to the weather. Manure containing shavings is not so good, for the shavings take a long time to decay and it is hard to spade over ground containing them. Mulch the strawberry bed with hay or straw that is free from weed seeds.

Friday, Jan. 12.

Examine the store of gladiolus corms and remove all surplus soil and other material that may surround them. Put 100 corms in a paper sack with one ounce of naphthalene flakes. Store in a cool room and leave for about three weeks. Such treatment will help to eliminate thrips. Grapevines can be pruned so long as the plants are dormant. The vines will stand heavy pruning to obtain an abundance of new wood, but it is advisable to study the various methods to obtain best results.

Saturday, Jan. 13.

During warm days spraying woody plants with lime-sulphur or miscible oil sprays is effective against scale insects. Some plants are very susceptible to this destructive pest. The materials, ready prepared except for the addition of water, may be obtained from local supply houses. A good knapsack spray outfit is not expensive and is easy to operate. If a definite spray calendar is adopted the plants are easily kept in good health. Wait until summer to prune maple trees; the sap runs in winter and spring, but not in summer.

FOUR ROOM HOME EMERGES FROM 2 APARTMENTS

Affords Spacious Living in Use of Curves.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The year 1939 saw many interesting examples of modernization work. None of these examples was more unusual or dramatic than the combining of two small apartments into a large four room apartment home in Rockford.

The architect of this drastic and quite revolutionary change was Edward Paul Lewin, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago.

One of the first desires of Mr. Lewin's clients was for a large living room and a large bedroom. The clients wanted a smaller dining room, a very compact kitchen, and a bath which should include a spacious dressing room adjoining it, and generous wardrobe and cabinet space.

S-Shaped Hall.

"My clients," Mr. Lewin said, "wanted something a trifle different, and expressed a preference for curved wall surface treatments. This gave rise to the possibility of a circular bathroom which pleased the clients, provided no loss of space resulted.

"The fact that this apartment was on the third floor of the building gave simple access to the roof for intake and exhaust ducts, and the entire suspended ceiling of the apartment was covered with four inches of mineral fill to aid the efficiency of the conditioning system, as well as to add to the quiet of the rooms."

The entrance to the new four room apartment is thru an entry which leads to a curving reception hall, 3½ feet wide. This hallway has walls of opaline yellow and chalk white ceiling, with telephone niche which fits into a curved section and ceiling lighting fixtures of the fluorescent type, with frosted and clear glass discs.

Beyond is the living room, 18⅓ by 25⅓ feet. A four inch rise leads into the dining room, 10 by 10½. On the west wall of this dining room there is a sandblasted striped mirrored frame with a recessed plain mirror, extending from floor to ceiling, and giving an illusion of great length to the combined living room and dining room.

More Use of Mirrors.

There is no lighting fixture in the living room, but the dining room has a polished brass and brushed chrome combination ceiling fixture. And a striking feature between the dining room and kitchen is a mirrored trim of sandblasted striped pilasters, which extend to a wood cap, with a clear mirror between pilasters above the door.

The kitchen is compact, with sink and counters of stainless steel, and walls of French gray structural glass.

The bathroom is one of the most striking rooms in the house. It is circular and contains a recessed tub and shower compartment outside the circle. The entire walls are straight vertical segments of structural glass, treated in wine and ivory colors, in which the wainscoting is wine. The upper wall is ivory with a three inch wine colored dentil which caps the structural glass wall. The wainscot and cap is topped off with a plaster dome painted white.

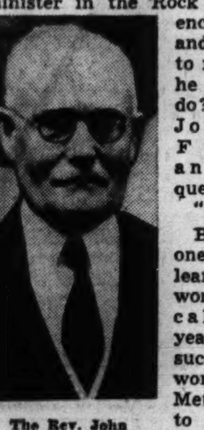
News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans



The Rev. John Wesley Funston.

After one has been a Methodist minister in the Rock River conference for 43 years and then decides to retire, what is he supposed to do? The Rev. John Wesley Funston answered this question tersely: "Go to work!"

But, of course, one must have learned how to work during so-called active years if one is to succeed at real work during what Methodists used to call superannuation—a word that gave Methodist flavor to the otherwise cold meaning of retirement. Well, the Rev. Mr. Funston began learning how to work after he successfully served his apprenticeship at Northwestern university in the class of '96. His job was building churches and congregations and learning about all that can be known about the life of his namesake, the Rev. John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Last year, his studies produced a book called, "The Wesleys in Picture and Story." But it is no ordinary biography. It is neither Victorian with its lumbering, pedestrian movement, nor Strachian-Guadallian with its morbid psychological detail. Rather, it is a news writer's biography, hence is based on anecdote and photograph. Therefore, the book really tells something about John Wesley.

Open the Funston book anywhere and you'll stop and read what's under the picture on the page. No special pleading! No psychoanalysis! Just straightforward and interesting information. Here on page 126 is a picture of a Leyden jar for collecting static electricity from a glass electrical machine. Beneath the picture it was explained that Mr. Wesley "was open minded toward every new thing," and experimented with electricity "in treating patients." Wesley wrote one of the earliest books on the use of electricity in healing.

Now, about the Rev. Mr. Funston's real work. He retired as an active pastor recently after serving four churches in Chicago, and one each in Freeport, Joliet, and Waukegan. But since that time he is filling engagements, often twice in an evening, giving illustrated lectures on the Wesleys. Just now his house at 543 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, is closed for six weeks. He's lecturing on Wesleyana in Florida. All of which gives us the idea that we, too, should be learning how to work so that in the bleak January of 1964 we will be called to Florida for lecture engagements.

The Rev. Drs. Herbert L. Willett, Kenilworth Union church and emeritus in University of Chicago faculty; Charles G. Kindred, Englewood Christian church; Edward Scribner Ames, dean of Disciples Divinity house and pastor of University Church of the Disciples, and Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century. All ministers of the Disciples church; writers of Protestantism's modern signature.

Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of The Living Church, Milwaukee, Wis., Episcopal publication, has announced publication of a national magazine called The Layman's Magazine. There are plenty of journals for ministers. A religious magazine for and by laymen is a new thing.

"It will be stepped up to match the interesting, challenging, popular magazines on the news stands," Editor Morehouse said.

". . . You ought to call the Nineteen Thirties the decade of the Great Hangover. . . . It was a time of slow, painful recovery from the debauch of the twenties. . . . As always, when people have a headache, we turned to innumerable quack remedies. . . . We found momentary hope in secular movements for social salvation. . . ."

Smooth Up Time for Alumnae

It'll be "smooth up" time for the alumnae of Mercy High school Saturday night as they dress for their annual formal dance in the Edgewater Beach hotel. These members of the arrangements committee offer a preview of how it's done. MOTOR COUNCIL SEES GAIN IN SAFETY IN 1940

Grade Separation Is One Major Project.

Roy F. Healy, chairman of the south area council of the Chicago Motor club, last week predicted that 1940 would be an outstanding year for traffic improvements on the south and southwest sides. Chief of the projects already planned and approved is the three-quarter million dollar grade separation at Kedzie avenue and 79th street.

"Our program for the ensuing 12 months is one of the most elaborate we have ever planned, and we expect to see considerable progress made in correcting a number of serious traffic hazards in our community," Mr. Healy said.

Rails to Be Raised.

The Kedzie avenue grade separation, which has been urged by the council for nearly two years, will carry four tracks of the Wabash railroad over the intersection of Kedzie avenue and 79th street. Southwest highway, paralleling the tracks, will be moved north and lowered to intersect both streets at grade.

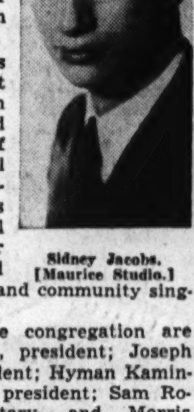
Among the intersections expected to get necessary protection this year, was listed 95th street and Jeffery avenue, Pershing road, and Wabash avenue, and Archer avenue and Pulaski road.

Will Hold Conferences.

The subcommittee on rail and highway crossings has planned a series of conferences with the Illinois commerce commission to urge grade separations or more adequate protection for a number of crossings, such as the Rock Island at 89th street and Loomis and Paulina streets, the Grand Trunk at 55th street and St. Louis avenue, and the same railroad at 115t. street.

With the approach of spring, the organization will renew its campaign to reduce the number of automobile-bicycle accidents. Mr. Healy said the safety bureau of the motor club will coöperate in a plan to educate bicyclists on proper driving practices and that the council will distribute pamphlets to children and adults, listing safe customs.

JEWISH GROUP PLANS TO PRESENT SERIES OF MODERN SERVICES



Sidney Jacobs. [Maurice Studio.]

The first of a series of modern Friday evening services will be held in Congregation Shomre Hadas in Roseland this week with an address by Sidney J. Jacobs, managing editor of the Advocate, 50 year old American Jewish weekly.

The services will be held at 8:15 o'clock on the second and fourth Fridays of each month until summer. Following the services a social hour will will be held, after which there will be refreshments and community singing.

Officers of the congregation are Harry Weinstein, president; Joseph Gildin, vice president; Hyman Kaminsky, second vice president; Sam Rosenbloom, secretary, and Morris Grauer, treasurer. Hostesses at the social hour this Friday will be Mrs. Fred Shackter, Mrs. Jacob Corngold, Mrs. Carl Sigal, and Mrs. Samuel Cohen.

SAFETY COUNCIL PREPARING TO SPONSOR FORUMS

The Greater Chicago Safety council will sponsor a community forum on the south side and another on the southwest side this week as part of its educational program.

Russell J. Greenly, Purdue university, will speak on "Safety Is the Right Way" for the Greater Pullman meeting tomorrow evening in the Fenger High school, 11220 South Wallace street.

"Be Sure You Know What You Think You Know" will be the topic of Michael P. Grady, foreman of the Pennsylvania railroad, for the Calumet safety forum Tuesday evening in South Chicago Masonic temple, 2939 East 91st street.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TWO oldtimers of Our Town can look back on a total of 165 years with memories. Hezekiah James Guy, who marked nis 90th birthday just a few days ago, lives with his daughter, son-in-law, and three grandchildren at 1418 East 65th place. Mrs. Antoinette S. Harris, 5130 Kenwood avenue, will celebrate her 75th birthday today. She has resided in Chicago for the last 50 years and has been active in clubs and other organizations. Braille work has been her special field, and she has contributed numerous volumes for the Chicago public library and Johannah lodge.

Bernard Finnigan will continue as president of the South Chicago Bar association for another year, following the recent election in the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. Other officers who were named are Vincent L. Knaus, vice president; John P. Coghlan, secretary; Frank Michalak, treasurer, and C. L. U. Clemens, Felix M. Buoscio, Samuel Silverman, Alvin Hansen, P. M. Knight, Homer Andreas, and Francis Poynton, members of the board of managers. The organization approved continuation of the fight for the restoration of full jurisdiction to the 2d district branch Municipal court.

TWO Our Town students have been granted one year full tuition scholarships to Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, and three have been awarded half tuition scholarships, according to an announcement last week. Recipients of those for a full year are Warren Sorensen, 8134 Princeton avenue, Wilson Junior college, and Earl Mills, 5720 South Spaulding avenue, Tilden Technical High school. The other three are Gladys Obrzut, 4739 Komensky avenue, Kelly High school; John Valentine, 4520 South Francisco avenue, Tilden High school, and Edward Enroth, 8324 Lafayette avenue, Bowen High school. The awards were based upon the students' high school or junior college records and a written examination, Dec. 8, in which 96 honor students from 36 Chicago high schools and three junior colleges participated.

Serving as president of the Russell Square Improvement association is becoming almost a custom for Frank X. Rydzewski. He was elected for the 13th consecutive term recently. Others chosen were Martin Przybyla, first vice president; Mrs. Constance Norwick, second vice president; Zygmund Szymanski, third vice president; Bruno Langwinski, fourth vice president; Stanley Rajkiewicz, secretary; Anton E. Perlinski, treasurer, and Jacob Lubawy, sergeant-at-arms.

Three southwestsiders are doubly happy that they chose photography for a hobby. They won valuable awards in an amateur photo contest conducted by a motor car company during the recent auto show. Art Fredrickson, 5206 South Fairfield avenue, received the second prize of $250; Howard Wolf, 6122 South Francisco avenue, fourth prize of $25, and William Thomas, 7122 South Talman avenue, tenth prize. All are members of the Gage Park Arts and Chicago Park District Camera clubs.

Miss Virginia Loraine Herrman, 6743 Cornell avenue, had as her guest over New Year's day Midshipman Robert Donaldson of the Annapolis Naval academy. They recounted the days of the International Boy Scouts' Jamboree of 1937 in Haarlem, Holland, where they met.

Activity and Peter J. Gilligan, 8432 South Ada street, are synonymous at St. Benedict's college, Atchison, Kas., where he is a senior majoring in business administration. One of the leaders of his class for the first quarter of the school year, he has maintained a high scholastic average thruout his college career, has been editor-in-chief of the student publication for the last two years, was president of the junior class, and was a member of the track squad in 1938.

HOPE LUTHERAN CHURCH TO HAVE SPORTS RALLY

A rally in which outstanding athletes and officials will speak on the benefits of sports will be held at Hope Lutheran church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue, at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. The church's purpose in staging the rally is to organize an athletic association in which sports will be sponsored under the guidance of an expert coaching staff, which will include Willis Young and Harry Lucas, National A. A. U. and professional basketball stars. The church's sports program will be designed to include men and women, and boys and girls over 12 years old.

Ask Reduction in License Fee for Filling Stations

The ways and means committee of the South East Chicago council of the Little Business Men's league has adopted a resolution instructing Adolph G. Kirbach, secretary, to have an order introduced in the city council reducing the license fee from $50 to $35 for 1,000 gallon tank gasoline stations. The order is to provide also for payment of the fee in semi-annual installments. Mr. Kirbach said the reduction would be a great help to station owners, many of whom are in debt.

Revived activity of the steel mills resulted in the transportation of an estimated 6 to 6½ million tons of ore into the South Chicago industrial area during the fall period, double the amount for the same period last year. John V. Hanberg, chairman of a special committee of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, said last week. The increased demand extended the shipping season for lake freighters several weeks past the regular end.

Total tonnage of ore, coal, oil, grain, and other cargoes in the Calumet district during 1939 was approximated at 27 million tons, a considerable gain over 1938. Last year's figure includes 350,000 tons of soybeans, the first big shipment into any harbor, he said, indicating the increased use of this product.

Steel Mills Active.

Reports from the Carnegie-Illinois, Republic, and Wisconsin steel works, the principal industries of the area, point toward a continuation of 90 per cent capacity production until April 1 at least.

Now that cold weather has definitely ended the shipping season, 49 vessels have berthed for the winter in the Calumet river, slips, and turning basins. Mr. Hanberg gave three reasons for the failure of boats to dock in the Lake Calumet harbor.

1. Because of war demands many ships transporting grain which ordinarily would lay up here ended their season in Buffalo, where their cargoes were transferred for European destinations.

2. The hand operated Calumet and Western railway bridge, northeast of the new Torrence avenue auto bridge over the Calumet river, prevented boats 520 feet and longer from maneuvering thru the channel to the lake. The Pittsburgh Steamship company, one of the largest lines, for example, had to send 17 of its fleet to Milwaukee because they could not get thru, he said.

3. Roadways have not been completed and water and electric facilities have not been added yet in the $73,000 dock project of the city in the south end of the lake.

Bridge Pier in Stream.

Altho representatives of the railway assured officials that they would take steps to remedy the bridge barrier, nothing has been done since the conference with United States army engineers last summer. The bridge, which swings on a support in the middle of the stream, would have to be removed or the abutments altered.

A $25,900,000 bill for the development and widening of the Calumet river, the Calumet-Sag channel, and the Indiana Harbor ship canal is scheduled for consideration by the congress which convened last week. If this is passed the bridge might be condemned on the ground that it would obstruct the increased commerce made possible by the other improvements.

Introduced at the last regular session of congress, the bill met with favorable comment. Because of various technicalities, however, a new survey was ordered. Congressman Raymond S. McKeough [2d], the senators from Illinois, and the representatives and senators from Indiana all are supporting it, Mr. Hanberg said.

Build Large Towboat.

In anticipation of the improvement of the lakes to gulf waterway system, the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company has just completed the largest towboat it has ever constructed. The 110 foot long vessel, which will propel nine of the modern steel barges, will be launched this week with public ceremony at the yards of the manufacturer, 94th street and the Calumet river, according to James Rogan Sr., general superintendent.

Powered with two Diesel engines in contrast to the usual one of the smaller crafts, this new towboat required the work of 45 shipbuilders for four months. It sold for $125,000.

A still larger towboat 130 feet long, the biggest ever to be constructed, has been started and is expected to be completed by the 60 shipbuilders by spring. Designed to manipulate 12 modern barges, the giant will sell for $190,000. Work will begin soon on a $70,000 average size towboat, 85 feet long, which will push five barges.

Defers Government Boats.

As long as construction for private concerns is available, the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company will not figure on government defense equipped boats about which it received inquiries. Orders from private business are available, moreover, because many of the eastern shipbuilders are engaged in turning out ships for the government.

WANTS A SUPERHIGHWAY.

I live in Gary, and I'm hoping for some much needed results from the meeting regarding a superhighway. I understand that this proposed highway is to extend from Chicago at least to Gary, and is intended to be a faster, safer route to the city. It would also eliminate traffic from U. S. routes 12, 20, and 6.

Gary people, I'm sure, would agree with me when I say that this improvement would mean more to our city than anything which has ever happened to date or which is now under consideration. The three highways which now are forced to carry traffic to Chicago are simply loaded, particularly at rush hours in the morning and evening. This same condition exists in Gary itself, principally on 4th and 5th avenues.

So I'm sure I speak for every resident of Gary when I wish success to this meeting and to the men and organizations which are doing everything in their power to put it thru like THE TRIBUNE, Robert Kingery of the Chicago Regional Planning association, and the Chicago Motor club. R. C. H.

NEW YEAR CONTRAST.

Hurrah for good old Illinois, the broadminded! A walk along State Line avenue, which divides Hammond and Calumet City, New Year's eve, brought home the strange quirks which influence this thing called man. On the east side life was quiet and dull. On the west, life was hilarious, and the tavern owners flourished. Poor old Indiana with its antiquated laws forbade its taverns to sell liquor except between Sunday midnight and 1 o'clock Monday morning. Consequently the operators lost thousands of dollars from the merrymakers who stepped a few feet across an imaginary line to buy and drink to their heart's content. Perhaps the "drys" feel that they have scored a great victory. But they have really aroused resentment and deprived their own neighbors of profits which ordinarily would have been their due lot. Life is so complex! R. T.

ASKS WPA HELP.

Just a puny voice from the south side hinterlands that seem to have been forgotten in the distribution of WPA projects. I refer to the terrible condition of vacant lots around south shore. Apparently every one dumps old bottles, broken dishes, etc., on any lot that is not at present occupied by a building, with the result that a person with thin shoes takes a real chance when he steps off the curb. This broken glass and other refuse detracts greatly from the sightliness of our part of the city. Why can't the city or some other agency get us a WPA project to clean up these eyesores? I am sure that once they were cleaned up people would keep them clean. MRS. W. E. C.

FEARS FOR CYCLISTS.

Too many boys and girls ride bicycles thruout Morgan Park and Beverly Hills as tho automobiles hadn't yet been invented. We motorists are on the spot. If we hit one of them—and it could easily happen, regardless of how carefully we drive—the sympathy is usually with the youth or child and we're called killers. And yet they continue to turn blithely into heavy traffic, hitch onto trucks, and tear thru the night without lights.

My only hope is that Mayor Kelly's bicycle safety campaign and 10 safety commandments have some effect on the school children. Otherwise there will be a lot of sad parents on the southwest side by this summer. SOL RAFFERTY.

Golden Day

Mr. and Mrs. William Schimberg, 4820 Kimbark avenue, will observe their golden wedding anniversary today. Mr. Schimberg came to Chicago in 1886 from Memel, and Mrs. Schimberg was born at 4th (now Federal) and Harrison streets in a home which was destroyed in the Chicago fire when she was about 2 years old. They have one daughter and two sons. Mr. Schimberg, a pioneer in the chain liquor store business, retired with the advent of prohibition.

DECEMBER KEEPS TO AVERAGE IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

Rate Should Have Been Less Due to Weather.

December was a normal month with respect to traffic killings, it is shown by a study of records kept by the coroner's office.

These figures show there were 113 fatalities on Cook county streets and highways during the month, or an average of 3.65 deaths a day. The December average for the last 10 years is 111 deaths, or 3.58 killings a day.

One factor that reflects unfavorably for the month, according to traffic observers, is that December was unusually clear and dry, and thus theoretically there should have been a considerable reduction in the automobile massacre. Instead there was a slight increase.

Figuring from the first of the month, the fourth week of December was deadliest to motorists and pedestrians. There were 36 killings in that seven-day period. There were 21 deaths each in the first and second weeks and 26 deaths in the third week, with 9 in the last three days.

Increase in Suburbs.

December saw a sharp increase in the ratio of suburban to Chicago fatalities in the county. Chicago was charged with 81 of the fatalities and the outlying parts of the county with 32. Usually Chicago leads by a ratio of about 4 to 1.

Pedestrians, as usual, furnished a majority of the death victims. Seventy-six of the dead were in this classification, while there were only 37 in all other classifications combined.

There was a big jump in the number of automobile-train fatalities, which claimed a total of 14 victims in December. Eight of these deaths occurred in two accidents, an elevated-automobile crash at Harrison street and Central avenue on Dec. 22 that cost three lives, and an automobile-steam train accidents at 95th street and 51st avenue in Oak Lawn on Christmas day in which five died.

Fifty-four of the 76 pedestrian victims were males and 22 were females. Following the rule that most pedestrian traffic deaths are among the older persons, 36 of the December pedestrian fatalities claimed as their victims persons of 60 or over—8 women and 28 men.

There were 16 victims in the 50-59 year age group, including 11 men and 5 women, and 11 victims in the 40 to 49 year group, 4 of whom were women.

The eight other male victims to be accounted for ranged in age from 5 to 20 years, while the five female victims not included in the foregoing figures were from 5 to 34 years old.

SCHOOLS TO HAVE DANCE CLASSES FOR OLDER GROUP

Oldsters are to be encouraged to follow in the dance steps of their youngers and the board of education is to be their guide. That was the gist of an announcement last week by Supt. William H. Johnson.

Next month dancing classses resembling those formed for young people 25 years old or less will be offered to parents and others past the age limit in four high schools. The high schools and the dates for registration are: Schurz, Jan. 22 and 29; Englewood, Jan. 25 and Feb. 1; Phillips, Jan. 25 and Feb. 1, and Lakeview, Jan. 24 and 31.

Classes will be held at weekly intervals beginning the first week in February for five weeks. The cost of the complete course will be 75 cents. Single lessons are 20 cents each. The first hour of instruction beginning at 6:45 will be devoted to elementary steps. The second hour will be given over to advanced instruction.

thusiastic over the contemplated airport to be created by filling in the north end of Lake Calumet, Mr. Hanberg said.

Mr. Hanberg heads a special committee of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce which has been largely responsible for gaining the construction of the dock in the south end of Lake Calumet by the city. This group has been campaigning to obtain berthing of a large fleet of commercial vessels during the winter after an analyses showed that each ship accounts for $6,000 to merchants of the area.

The committee has asserted that Chicago is bowing to Milwaukee, Toledo, and other cities because of lack of enterprise. These cities, with their municipally operated docks, charge much lower rentals than the privately owned concerns in Chicago which have facilities in the Calumet waterway. Towing charges are higher here also.

Many of the 49 boats berthed in the Calumet region now are loaded with grain because of the shortage in space resulting from the huge elevator fire several months ago.

The orphanage will be the first Greek philanthropic institution in the United States. According to present plans, it will care for 500 Greek American orphans. Dr. George P. Gavaris, national supreme president of Gapa, has announced that it probably will be erected in a suburb of Chicago. During the next six months, chapters of Gapa thruout the country will sponsor benefits whose proceeds will swell the common treasury.

Daniel Golemis, pastor of the Church of Saint George, 2701 Sheffield avenue; the Rev. Nikitas Kesses, pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, 1017 North La Salle street; Dr. Evans Pernokis, 5 South Wabash avenue, and Andrew Margaritis, 180 North Wabash avenue.

For a time he was assistant conductor of the Staatsoper in Berlin, then conducted the Athens Conservatory orchestra, appeared as guest conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic in 1930 and in Paris conducted the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris.

The Gapa was founded in Pittsburgh, Pa., by a handful of Greek Americans on Dec. 17, 1923. Since then it has spread thruout the country, has a membership of 30,000 and is the leading organization interested in naturalization and philanthropic work among the Hellenes in America.

BUDDHIST RITES IN CHINA HONOR CHICAGO WOMAN

Called Only Ceremonial of Its Kind.

Misery loves company. Perhaps that axiom can be stretched to explain why countless Buddhists of the far east accorded Mrs. Flora W. Seymour, 4917 Blackstone avenue, the first and only ceremonial dedication ever given a woman.

Mrs. Flora W. Seymour.

At least that is the strange tale relayed to Mrs. Seymour recently in a letter from Dorothy Moll, newspaperwoman of Shanghai, from the orient, land of mystery and surprises.

Mrs. Seymour, an authority on and a friend of the American Indian, started the curious chain of circumstances with her article, "Thunder Over the Southwest," in the Saturday Evening Post. That article, condemning the blundering of the United States government in recent dealings with the Navaho Indians, explained the sufferings of these primitive people because of the ignorant experimenting and the reduction of their sheep, the mainstay of their lives.

Praised and Condemned.

Mrs. Seymour expected American reaction from the story. And she got it. Numerous letters have poured in, both praising and attacking her for her stand. So pertinent did Dennis Chavez, senator from New Mexico, consider it that he had it inserted in the Congressional Record. But the letter from Shanghai was as unexpected as it was strange.

In the far east, the poor Buddhists, evidently envisioning a common bond between their plight and that of the Navahos, were deeply impressed with the woman who had written "strong words" for a downtrodden people in her country. Hence, the ceremony and veneration. Miss Moll relates the story graphically in her letter:

"When your article appeared, I was in the far interior of China for a local paper, trying to ascertain the actual conditions of the people.

"Whenever I stopped over night in any large place, I was at once informed of an American lady who had written 'strong words' for poor people in her country. I listened to a translation in Mandarin of your article which was almost identical with your own words, but I could not find out the name of the lady or when or where she had written. Persons' names are most difficult for the oriental.

Discovery in a Monastery.

"One night, in a devastated area, I asked for a night's shelter in a Buddhist monastery. These institutions are always most hospitable. I had visited this great monastery several years before. The lord abbott welcomed me and immediately asked me for information concerning the American lady of the 'strong words.' The men at the head of these monasteries are almost without exception of high intelligence and culture, and always good linguists. He took me at once to the library and gave me your article to read.

"Your article had caused great interest in Buddhist circles and had been translated into the various vernaculars and sent thruout the far east, especially to India where the conditions are unquiet. I found that they are greatly interested in Mr. Jacob Morgan [the Indian leader in the composition], and hundreds of questions have been asked concerning yourself and Mr. Morgan. The lord abbott was greatly disappointed that I did not even know your address, but I gave him my word that I would communicate with you.

"You probably know that the status of women in the far east is not high, but, Mrs. Seymour, you were accorded the first and only ceremonial dedication ever given to a woman by the Buddhists of the far east, in profound respect for the work you have done. When I have your home address, I will send you a description of the ceremony, one of the most imposing I ever saw in any country.

3,000 Monks Kneel.

"Three thousand monks, with the officials in the pontifical robes of yellow silk, knelt for eight hours before the great Buddha, lighted by a thousand candles, in the vast hall cut from the solid stone of the mountain and asked that the blessings of your God rest upon you and your work for the men who, like themselves, could not help themselves. The last two hours were given to Mr. Morgan.

"On my return to Shanghai, I met the maharajah of Kapurthala, who had read your article and also had it in the Hindustani translation. . . . I send you this because I gave my word to the maharajah and to many others to communicate with you. Letters are here for you and Mr. Morgan, sent in my care, in Chinese and Hindustani. Your article has done a great and unforeseen work in the far east, and no one appreciates it more than yours faithfully."

Author of 11 books on Indians and the westward movement of American pioneers, Mrs. Seymour has the proofs of her 12th now and expects it to be published next month. The tentative title is "We Called Them Indians."

Dear Sir,

I would like to inform you that the enclosed advertisement was the cause of our doing the largest Dining Room business in our experience.

Thanksgiving day we were filled to capacity the entire day, besides turning away dozens of people. Our staff was unable to take care of the throngs that came to enjoy their Thanksgiving dinner here at Hotel Maryland.

While we anticipated doing a large volume of business, we did not dream we would have the crowds that did come.

I am sure you will be interested in knowing these facts. It was a bold step for us to run a full page advertisement, but we feel sure it will continue to pay dividends for some time to come.

Yours very truly,

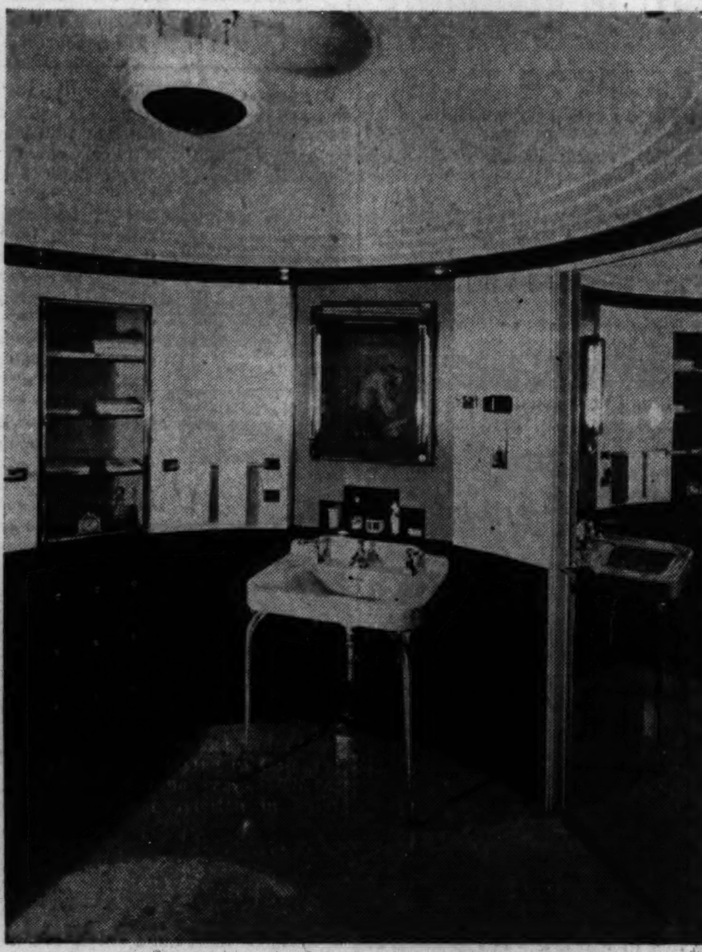
Circular Bathroom



A view of one-half of the striking, circular bathroom in a recently remodeled apartment in Rockford. The walls are of structural glass in wine and ivory colors, and the fixtures, including two lavatories and recessed tub, are of flesh pink tone. The floor is of ivory toned rubber tile, and both doors have full length mirrors.

Design for Apartment

FOUR ROOM HOME EMERGES FROM 2 APARTMENTS

Affords Spacious Living in Use of Curves.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The year 1939 saw many interesting examples of modernization work. None of these examples was more unusual or dramatic than the combining of two small apartments into a large four room apartment home in Rockford.

The architect of this drastic and quite revolutionary change was Edward Paul Lewin, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago.

Mr. Lewin in the beginning had two very ordinary little flats to start work on. In the end there emerged a handsome four room, modern apartment, completely air conditioned for all seasons of the year.

One of the first desires of Mr. Lewin's clients was for a large living room and a large bedroom. The clients wanted a smaller dining room, a very compact kitchen, and a bath which should include a spacious dressing room adjoining it, and generous wardrobe and cabinet space.

S-Shaped Hall.

"My clients," Mr. Lewin said, "wanted something a trifle different, and expressed a preference for curved wall surface treatments. This gave rise to the possibility of a circular bathroom which pleased the clients, provided no loss of space resulted. These ideas ultimately led to the final solution, which contained a spacious living room and bedroom, a smaller dining room and kitchen, a circular bath and dressing room, and an S-shaped reception hall.

"There is also a curved triangular air conditioning closet adjoining the curved reception hallway. This was a wise use of otherwise dead space, and the apartment has been given a thermostatically controled air conditioning system for all the rooms, all seasons of the year.

"The fact that this apartment was on the third floor of the building gave simple access to the roof for intake and exhaust ducts. and the entire suspended ceiling of the apartment was covered with four inches of mineral fill to aid the efficiency of the conditioning system, as well as to add to the quiet of the rooms."

Fluorescent Lighting.

The entrance to the new four room apartment is thru an entry which leads to a curving reception hall, 3½ feet wide. This hallway has walls of opaline yellow and chalk white ceiling, with telephone niche which fits into a curved section and ceiling lighting fixtures of the fluorescent type, with frosted and clear glass discs.

Beyond is the living room, 18½ by 25½ feet. A four inch rise leads into the dining room, 10 by 10½. On the west wall of this dining room there is a sandblasted striped mirrored frame with a recessed plain mirror, extending from floor to ceiling, and giving an illusion of great length to the combined living room and dining room.

Both rooms have walls done in light, platinum gray. In the living room there is a large, rose marble fireplace, and marble walls continue under window sills on the fireplace side of the living room. The fireplace andirons are bronze finished in satin chrome, with crystal rod shafts and crystal ornaments to match the railings which divide living room and dining room.

More Use of Mirrors.

There is no lighting fixture in the living room, but the dining room has a polished brass and brushed chrome combination ceiling fixture. And a striking feature between the dining room and kitchen is a mirrored trim of sandblasted striped pilasters, which extend to a wood cap, with a clear mirror between pilasters above the door.

The kitchen is compact, with sink and counters of stainless steel, and walls of French gray structural glass. The floor is a rubber tile with a field pattern of dark blue and ivory stripe. Recessed chromium plated lights are at both door entrances, and over sink and range.

The bathroom is one of the most striking rooms in the house. It is circular and contains a recessed tub and shower compartment outside the circle. The entire walls are straight vertical segments of structural glass, treated in wine and ivory colors, in which the wainscoting is wine. The upper wall is ivory with a three inch wine colored dentil which caps the structural glass wall. The wainscot and cap is topped off with a plaster dome painted white.

Coral Pink Fixtures.

The treatment of the bedroom includes ceiling and walls of opera pink, with a full length mirrored corner feature and mirrored trim at the dressing room closet door. The dressing room contains wardrobes and cabinets for clothes, with doors of sliding glass in small channeled frames. The entire room is done in a modern fluted wood detail and painted a very pale shell pink.

Monday, Jan. 8.

Give flowering pot plants plenty of water. A gift plant, after it has passed its period of attractiveness, may be discarded like a bouquet and a new plant obtained. Foliage plants will last much longer, but even they must have attention or they soon dry out, die, or are seriously retarded in growth. Remember that plants obtained from the warm, humid greenhouse must be watered and they must have their full share of light. A plant standing in the dry atmosphere and excessive, changeable heat of the average room requires more water than one standing in a cool room, and a rapidly growing plant requires more water than one that is in a semiresting condition; a plant with fibrous roots takes up water rapidly.

Tuesday, Jan. 9.

You may save a seed pod or two of the Jerusalem cherry, sow the seed along in February and have cherries next autumn. After all danger from frost has passed in late May or early June the young plants should be planted in rows in the garden, kept watered, and numerous cherries will be produced. The bright red fruits are indicative of Christmas and when a plant is in full bearing it is delightful. There are yellow fruited sorts as well as tall and dwarf varieties. Examine the pots of bulbs that were potted in late autumn and if the roots show thru the drainage hole, remove a few pots to the house for flowering. Place in a cool room for a few days and then bring to the light. Well rooted plants grow amazingly fast and the flowers soon appear. Amaryllis bulbs now are on sale and a choice collection of them works wonders in the ornamentation of any room. The bulbs are offered in different colors so that a variety can be obtained.

Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Perennial beds should have been mulched, newly planted shrubs and trees protected against the attacks of rodents, and the ground around them mulched. Roses taken down and covered with soil will endure thru the most severe winter without injury. Ferns and other foliage plants are benefited by dipping in a tub of water. Dust is removed and the plants stimulated. The offering of glass containers in odd shapes, such as pear, apple, etc., opens a wide field for the amateur to work out interesting effects. Small plants can be obtained from greenhouses. When the care of these glass gardens is understood it becomes a fascinating form of miniature gardening. Large containers may be used for an orchid plant.

Thursday, Jan. 11.

The used Christmas tree provides a fine shelter for the birds when placed in a spot in the garden. Three or more of them stood together is even better and grain scattered underneath lures the birds. Home gardeners, using wood fires, should save the ashes; keep them dry for later use. All animal manure should be saved, but it should not be left exposed to the weather. Manure containing shavings is not so good, for the shavings take a long time to decay and it is hard to spade over ground containing them. Mulch the strawberry bed with hay or straw that is free from weed seeds.

Friday, Jan. 12.

Examine the store of gladiolus corms and remove all surplus soil and other material that may surround them. Put 100 corms in a paper sack with one ounce of naphthalene flakes. Store in a cool room and leave for about three weeks. Such treatment will help to eliminate thrips. Grapevines can be pruned so long as the plants are dormant. The vines will stand heavy pruning to obtain an abundance of new wood, but it is advisable to study the various methods to obtain best results.

Saturday, Jan. 13.

During warm days spraying woody plants with lime-sulphur or miscible oil sprays is effective against scale insects. Some plants are very susceptible to this destructive pest. The materials, ready prepared except for the addition of water, may be obtained from local supply houses. A good knapsack spray outfit is not expensive and is easy to operate. If a definite spray calendar is adopted the plants are easily kept in good health. Wait until summer to prune maple trees; the sap runs in winter and spring, but not in summer.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Joe Sanders.

Talk about longevity in radio! Joe Sanders, who with Carlton Coon and their Original Kansas City Nighthawks got his start way back in 1922, is still going strong. Joe and his lads are playing their 12th engagement in 15 years at the Blackhawk restaurant and on W-G-N. None has been shorter than four months. And they have continued as long as 14 solid months.

What has he got that gets them? Friendliness is first on the list. The "Old Left Hander" likes meeting people, all kinds of people. He's proud of the fact that among his fans today are men who were in their Harold Teen days back in the early '20s when they first danced to Coon-Sanders. Now they are solid business and professional men. Joe is proud of their loyalty. And now a crop of sons is beginning to go for him, too.

Joe credits his "happy" style of music with winning them, too.

Joe Mixes It Up.

"We have always mixed our music up to try to please everybody," he explained. "We get far more requests for ballads than any other types of music, so folks must prefer that kind."

Joe believes that versatile orchestras playing all kinds of dance music will have the longest runs in popularity. Among these, he says, will be Ted Weems, Wayne King, Kay Kyser, and Jan Garber, to mention a few. Swing, he says, is on the wing.

Recalls the Early Days.

Joe has a lot of radio memories. The Nighthawks were radio's first orchestra to broadcast "remotely," that is outside of a studio. When they came to Chicago and W-G-N their Nights and Ladies of the Bath, [late Saturday night program with dedication of numbers to individuals] became one of the most famous of early day radio programs. Joe believes it had the greatest listening audience on the air at that time. Telegrams for request numbers or congratulations poured in by the hundreds. Once, Joe recalled, they got 530 wires in less than 2 hours.

Those were the days. "Nowadays radio is too dignified," Joe lamented. "They have taken a lot of the fun out of it."

200,000 Miles in 18 Months.

Joe and his band have done a lot of traveling thru the years—one night stands all over the country. They have made 200,000 miles in the last 18 months. Strange things have happened during these treks about the country. Once during a tornado downstate, Joe and Coony stopped to aid in the relief of the victims. A little baby died in Joe's arms.

At Herrin, Ill., they once played a dance at which customers checked their knives and guns outside. Another time they missed a train connection because of a flood and they had to ferry across the Ohio river. When they reached the Kentucky side they took off their shoes while pushing their bus out of the mud. They didn't have time to get cleaned up before they climbed the bandstand at Madisonville, Ky. So they played in their bare feet.

Composer of 500 Songs.

Joe left the orchestra business for several years after Coon died. Joe spent the time writing songs. He has written around 500. Best seller was "Beloved" which passed a million copies. And then there were "Brainstorm," "Hallucination," "The Wall," "Slewfoot," and "High Fever," to mention a few. And his various theme songs, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You" [with Eddie Edwards], and "Nitie, Nite," used for early morning signoff.

Joe still gets calls for "Harold Teen," which he wrote in 24 hours. It, like "Orphan Annie" and others named for Tribune comics, were published as features in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Joe also wrote the official song for the San Francisco fair, "Westward Ho."

The Coon-Sanders duo originated the idea of radio Shut-Ins club. Joe still gets letters from shut-ins who have followed him since the early days.

Collects Flowers as Hobby.

He has his hobbies, too, photography—both movies and still. But the one he rides hardest is collecting wild flowers. He has more than 2,500 varieties. And one he is particularly proud of is a Pasque posy which he plucked during a mountain blizzard in Berthoud pass.

Joe is a member of the recently organized Dodo society of radio. Among the old timers who belong are Graham McNamee, John S. Young, radio director of the New York world's fair, and Leo Fitzpatrick, who started Joe out down on WDAF, Kansas City, now executive of WJR, Detroit.

RADIO CAREER NOT GLAMOROUS, ACTRESS HOLDS

But Kay Campbell Admits Work Is Fun.

Radio acting for the young woman of 1940 is not a glamorous occupation. It is fun, that's true; but it is hard work. So says Kay Campbell, beautiful blonde W-G-N and Mutual network actress whose appearance belies her words.

"When a girl has to get up at dawn," she explained, "in order to rehearse a program that goes on the air early in the morning, and then keeps up at the same tempo all day long, it is hard even to think about the word 'glamor' by the time the dinner hour rolls around."

For a radio actor to succeed, Miss Campbell said, it is necessary that he show capacity for taking direction.

"One may not agree with the director," she said, "but it is still absolutely essential to play a part the director's way, and to play it sincerely. In my opinion, sincerity is the keystone to the whole business of acting."

Whenever possible, Miss Campbell said, she likes to project herself into the rôle in which she is appearing at the time. This, she added, is sometimes hard on her family and friends, because she is hard to get along with when she is taking the part of a "meanie."

Miss Campbell said that in order to improve her acting, she often listens to radio programs, putting herself in the place of the average listener. Then she criticizes the show.

WORLD MISSION OF RELIGION IS MIDDAY SUBJECT

Monday—The Rev. Oswald W. S. McCall, New First Congregational church.
Tuesday—Homer J. Coppock, assistant dean, Herzl Junior college.
Wednesday—Francis S. Onderdonk, educator, world traveler, Ann Arbor, Mich.
Thursday—Prof. Aloys P. Hodapp, Loyola university.
Friday—The Rev. Edmund D. Soper, Garrett Biblical institute.

INDUSTRIAL AREA SEES BUSY WINTER

225 ON ROSTER OF AWARDS FOR WORK IN R.O.T.C.

Tribune Is Largest Single Donor.

BY PAUL HEALY.

Top ranking cadets in R. O. T. C. units of 14 Chicago high schools will be decorated this week in a series of special midyear assemblies for medal presentations. The ceremonies, which are staged for students who have distinguished themselves in military training during the semester, began last week.

Two hundred twenty-five boys will be rewarded for merit in many phases of R. O. T. C. work, including efficiency, neatness, recruiting, marksmanship, and special duty. Nearly half of them, however, will receive gold and silver awards for all-around excellence, given twice a year by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the largest single donor. Other medals will be given by the war department, the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Daughters of the American Revolution, and neighborhood organizations.

Biggest of the week's programs will be held at 1:52 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Lane Technical High school where 39 cadets, the largest number for any of the 35 schools in the city and suburbs, will be honored. Marshall High school and Schurz High school also will hold their assemblies tomorrow at 11:30 a. m. and 10:23 a. m., respectively. News and Queries Within and Without the Church —A Religious Voice of the People— Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The Rev. John Wesley Funston.

After one has been a Methodist minister in the Rock River conference for 43 years and then decides to retire, what is he supposed to do? The Rev. John Wesley Funston answered this question tersely: "Go to work!"

But, of course, one must have learned how to work during so-called active years if one is to succeed at real work during what Methodists used to call superannuation — a word that gave Methodist flavor to the otherwise cold meaning of retirement. Well, the Rev. Mr. Funston began learning how to work after he successfully served his apprenticeship at Northwestern university in the class of '96. His job was building churches and congregations and learning about all that can be known about the life of his namesake, the Rev. John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Last year, his studies produced a book called, "The Wesleys in Picture and Story." But it is no ordinary biography. It is neither Victorian with its lumbering, pedestrian movement, nor Strachian-Guadallian with its morbid psychological detail. Rather, it is a news writer's biography, hence is based on anecdote and photograph. Therefore, the book really tells something about John Wesley. The Rev. Mr. Funston made himself into a good newspaper reporter and he took his camera along.

Open the Funston book anywhere and you'll stop and read what's under the picture on the page. No special pleading! No psychoanalysis! Just straightforward and interesting information. Here on page 126 is a picture of a Leyden jar for collecting static electricity from a glass electrical machine. Beneath the picture it was explained that Mr. Wesley "was open minded toward every new thing," and experimented with electricity "in treating patients." Wesley wrote one of the earliest books on the use of electricity in healing.

Now, about the Rev. Mr. Funston's real work. He retired as an active pastor recently after serving four churches in Chicago, and one each in Freeport, Joliet, and Waukegan. But since that time he is filling engagements, often twice in an evening, giving illustrated lectures on the Wesleys. Just now his house at 543 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, is closed for six weeks. He's lecturing on Wesleyana in Florida. All of which gives us the idea that we, too, should be learning how to work so that in the bleak January of 1964 we will be called to Florida for lecture engagements.

The Rev. Drs. Herbert L. Willett, Kenilworth Union church and emeritus in University of Chicago faculty; Charles G. Kindred, Englewood Christian church; Edward Scribner Ames, dean of Disciples Divinity house and pastor of University Church of the Disciples, and Charles Clayton Morrison, editor of the Christian Century. All ministers of the Disciples church; writers of Protestantism's modern signature.

Clifford P. Morehouse, editor of The Living Church, Milwaukee, Wis., Episcopal publication, has announced publication of a national magazine called The Layman's Magazine. There are plenty of journals for ministers. A religious magazine for and by laymen is a new thing.

"It will be stepped up to match the interesting, challenging, popular magazines on the news stands," Editor Morehouse said.

". . . You ought to call the Nineteen Thirties the decade of the Great Hangover. . . . It was a time of slow, painful recovery from the debauch of the twenties. . . . As always, when people have a headache, we turned to innumerable quack remedies. . . . We found momentary hope in secular movements for social salvation. . . ."

Whispering Good Luck Message

With support as attractive as this, the newly organized polo team of the Morgan Park Junior college, 2153 West 111th street, ought to be odds-on favorite to take the game with the team of cadets from the Morgan Park Military academy Friday night in the arena of the Woodland Valley stables, 82d avenue and 148th street. Marjorie Lee is the lady whispering the good luck message, and Nick Vander Meer, a member of the college team, is definitely very interested. Other members of the team are Robert Ehrler and Dan Johnson. Polo is an activity of the school's riding club, which is sponsored by Mrs. Jennie Orr, zoology instructor in the college. Ehrler is president of the group, and the other officers of the Saddle Bouncers, as it is more commonly called, are William Hillis, vice president, and Betty Stober, secretary.

LIVELY CONTEST HELD BREWING IN 16TH WARD

Ald. Boyle Seeking Post of Committeeman.

One of the liveliest interparty contests for ward committeeman in the city was promised in the 16th ward last week when it became known that Ald. John S. Boyle will try to wrest the job from Terence F. Moran, whom he defeated in a hot council race last year. Both are Democrats.

Moran announced his intention of running for reëlection to the ward post, which was his only visible salvage after Boyle had ended his 21 year service in the city council.

Thinks He's Entitled.

Soon afterward Boyle announced that he would start this week to circulate petitions for ward committeeman. To his friends he has expressed the conviction that his council position should entitle him to the committeemanship also, pointing to the precedent established by Moran, who held both jobs simultaneously for several years.

In the aldermanic election last year Boyle, a youngster in politics, surprised many observers by forcing the long-established Moran into a runoff. He surprised them even more by then beating Moran by a vote of 17,542 to 16,086. He has since been an aggressive figure in the council.

Opposition for Reid.

On the Republican side, it appeared likely last week that Ward Committeeman William Reid would be faced with opposition in his reëlection campaign. His petitions are now in circulation.

Feb. 3 is the first day for filing the nominating petitions and Feb. 19 is the final day. Ward committeemen are elected, not merely nominated, in the April primaries.

BISHOP FROM TEXAS IS DUE TO ADDRESS SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Bishop Ivan Lee Holt.

Appropriately discussing for the first Sunday of 1940 the topic "Questions of Tomorrow," Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, resident bishop of the Methodist church in Dallas, Tex., will make his first appearance before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. Clifford W. Barnes will preside and introduce the speaker.

Dr. Holt was ordained in the Methodist Church, South, and is the first of the bishops to address the Sunday Evening club since the merger of the three branches of Methodism last year at Kansas City. For 20 years before his elevation to the episcopate in 1938, Dr. Holt was pastor of St. John's church in St. Louis, Mo., in which town he was also a leader in civic affairs. He was president of the Federal Council of Churches in 1934. Dr. Holt is regarded as a liberal in Protestant circles, and in his preaching noted for his emphasis on a Christian social order.

Another first appearance will be the première of Stanley Martin's festival setting of the canticle "Te Daum Laudamus," sung by the club's choir directed by Edgar Nelson, with Charles Sears and Mark Love as soloists. Mr. Martin is organist to the Sunday Evening club.

Hudson H. Pittman's informal Bible talks, which were suspended during the Christmas season, will be resumed tonight at the preliminary meeting.

Will Meet Tuesday.

The South Shore association of Alpha Delta Pi will meet at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night in the home of Mrs. William J. Welsh, 2514 East 76th street.

MOTOR COUNCIL SEES GAIN IN SAFETY IN 1940

Grade Separation Is One Major Project.

Roy F. Healy, chairman of the south area council of the Chicago Motor club, last week predicted that 1940 would be an outstanding year for traffic improvements on the south and southwest sides. Chief of the projects already planned and approved is the three-quarter million dollar grade separation at Kedzie avenue and 79th street.

"Our program for the ensuing 12 months is one of the most elaborate we have ever planned, and we expect to see considerable progress made in correcting a number of serious traffic hazards in our community," Mr. Healy said.

Rails to Be Raised.

The Kedzie avenue grade separation, which has been urged by the council for nearly two years, will carry four tracks of the Wabash railroad over the intersection of Kedzie avenue and 79th street. Southwest highway, paralleling the tracks, will be moved north and lowered to intersect both streets at grade.

Among the intersections expected to get necessary protection this year, was listed 95th street and Jeffery avenue, Pershing road, and Wabash avenue, and Archer avenue and Pulaski road.

Will Hold Conferences.

The subcommittee on rail and highway crossings has planned a series of conferences with the Illinois commerce commission to urge grade separations or more adequate protection for a number of crossings, such as the Rock Island at 89th street and Loomis and Paulina streets, the Grand Trunk at 55th street and St. Louis avenue, and the same railroad at 115th street.

With the approach of spring, the organization will renew its campaign to reduce the number of automobile-bicycle accidents. Mr. Healy said the safety bureau of the motor club will coöperate in a plan to educate bicyclists on proper driving practices and that the council will distribute pamphlets to children and adults, listing safe customs.

Hezekiah James Guy, who marked his 90th birthday just a few days ago, lives with his daughter, son-in-law, and three grandchildren at 1418 East 65th place. Mrs. Antoinette S. Harris, 5130 Kenwood avenue, will celebrate her 75th birthday today. She has resided in Chicago for the last 50 years and has been active in clubs and other organizations. Braille work has been her special field, and she has contributed numerous volumes for the Chicago public library and Johannah lodge.

Bernard Finnigan will continue as president of the South Chicago Bar association for another year, following the recent election in the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. Other officers who were named are Vincent L. Knaus, vice president; John P. Coghlan, secretary; Frank Michalak, treasurer, and C. L. U. Clemens, Felix M. Buoscio, Samuel Silverman, Alvin Hansen, P. M. Knight, Homer Andreas, and Francis Poynton, members of the board of managers. The organization approved continuation of the fight for the restoration of full jurisdiction to the 2d district branch Municipal court.

TWO Our Town students have been granted one year full tuition scholarships to Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, and three have been awarded half tuition scholarships, according to an announcement last week. Recipients of those for a full year are Warren Sorensen, 8134 Princeton avenue, Wilson Junior college, and Earl Mills, 5720 South Spaulding avenue, Tilden Technical High school. The other three are Gladys Obrzut, 4739 Komensky avenue, Kelly High school; John Valentine, 4520 South Francisco avenue, Tilden High school, and Edward Enroth, 8324 Lafayette avenue, Bowen High school. The awards were based upon the students' high school or junior college records and a written examination, Dec. 8, in which 96 honor students from 36 Chicago high schools and three junior colleges participated.

Serving as president of the Russell Square Improvement association is becoming almost a custom for Frank X. Rydzewski. He was elected for the 13th consecutive term recently. Others chosen were Martin Przybyla, first vice president; Mrs. Constance Norwick, second vice president; Zygmund Szymanski, third vice president; Bruno Langwinski, fourth vice president; Stanley Rajkiewicz, secretary; Anton E. Perlinski, treasurer, and Jacob Lubawy, sergeant-at-arms.

Three southwestsiders are doubly happy that they chose photography for a hobby. They won valuable awards in an amateur photo contest conducted by a motor car company during the recent auto show. Art Fredrickson, 5206 South Fairfield avenue, received the second prize of $250; Howard Wolf, 6122 South Francisco avenue, fourth prize of $25, and William Thomas, 7122 South Talman avenue, tenth prize. All are members of the Gage Park Arts and Chicago Park District Camera clubs.

Miss Virginia Loraine Herrman, 6743 Cornell avenue, had as her guest over New Year's day Midshipman Robert Donaldson of the Annapolis Naval academy. They recounted the days of the International Boy Scouts' Jamboree of 1937 in Haarlem, Holland, where they met.

Activity and Peter J. Gilligan, 8432 South Ada street, are synonymous at St. Benedict's college, Atchison, Kas., where he is a senior majoring in business administration. One of the leaders of his class for the first quarter of the school year, he has maintained a high scholastic average thruout his college career, has been editor-in-chief of the student publication for the last two years, was president of the junior class, and was a member of the track squad in 1938.

Civic Leaders Seek Improvements.

BY EDWIN STOLL.

Revived activity of the steel mills resulted in the transportation of an estimated 6 to 6½ million tons of ore into the South Chicago industrial area during the fall period, double the amount for the same period last year. John V. Hanberg, chairman of a special committee of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, said last week. The increased demand extended the shipping season for lake freighters several weeks past the regular end.

Total tonnage of ore, coal, oil, grain, and other cargoes in the Calumet district during 1939 was approximated at 27 million tons, a considerable gain over 1938. Last year's figure includes 350,000 tons of soybeans, the first big shipment into any harbor, he said, indicating the increased use of this product.

Steel Mills Active.

Reports from the Carnegie-Illinois, Republic, and Wisconsin steel works, the principal industries of the area, point toward a continuation of 90 per cent capacity production until April 1 at least.

Now that cold weather has definitely ended the shipping season, 49 vessels have berthed for the winter in the Calumet river, slips, and turning basins. Mr. Hanberg gave three reasons for the failure of boats to dock in the Lake Calumet harbor.

1. Because of war demands many ships transporting grain which ordinarily would lay up here ended their season in Buffalo, where their cargoes were transferred for European destinations.

2. The hand operated Calumet and Western railway bridge, northeast of the new Torrence avenue auto bridge over the Calumet river, prevented boats 520 feet and longer from maneuvering thru the channel to the lake. The Pittsburgh Steamship company, one of the largest lines, for example, had to send 17 of its fleet to Milwaukee because they could not get thru, he said.

3. Roadways have not been completed and water and electric facilities have not been added yet in the $73,000 dock project of the city in the south end of the lake.

Bridge Pier in Stream.

Altho representatives of the railway assured officials that they would take steps to remedy the bridge barrier, nothing has been done since the conference with United States army engineers last summer. The bridge, which swings on a support in the middle of the stream, would have to be removed or the abutments altered.

A $25,900,000 bill for the development and widening of the Calumet river, the Calumet-Sag channel, and the Indiana Harbor ship canal is scheduled for consideration by the congress which convened last week. If this is passed the bridge might be condemned on the ground that it would obstruct the increased commerce made possible by the other improvements.

Introduced at the last regular session of congress, the bill met with favorable comment. Because of various technicalities, however, a new survey was ordered. Congressman Raymond S. McKeough [2d], the senators from Illinois, and the representatives and senators from Indiana all are supporting it, Mr. Hanberg said.

Build Large Towboat.

In anticipation of the improvement of the lakes to gulf waterway system, the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company has just completed the largest towboat it has ever constructed. The 110 foot long vessel, which will propel nine of the modern steel barges, will be launched this week with public ceremony at the yards of the manufacturer, 94th street and the Calumet river, according to James Rogan Sr., general superintendent.

Powered with two Diesel engines in contrast to the usual one of the smaller crafts, this new towboat required the work of 45 shipbuilders for four months. It sold for $125,000.

A still larger towboat 130 feet long, the biggest ever to be constructed, has been started and is expected to be completed by the 60 shipbuilders by spring. Designed to manipulate 12 modern barges, the giant will sell for $190,000. Work will begin soon on a $70,000 average size towboat, 85 feet long, which will push five barges.

Defers Government Boats.

As long as construction for private concerns is available, the Calumet Shipyard and Dry Dock company will not figure on government defense equipped boats about which it received inquiries. Orders from private business are available, moreover, because many of the eastern shipbuilders are engaged in turning out ships for the government.

Business and civic leaders are en-

WANTS A SUPERHIGHWAY.

I live in Gary, and I'm hoping for some much needed results from the meeting regarding a superhighway. I understand that this proposed highway is to extend from Chicago at least to Gary, and is intended to be a faster, safer route to the city. It would also eliminate traffic from U. S. routes 12, 20, and 6.

Gary people, I'm sure, would agree with me when I say that this improvement would mean more to our city than anything which has ever happened to date or which is now under consideration. The three highways which now are forced to carry traffic to Chicago are simply loaded, particularly at rush hours in the morning and evening. This same condition exists in Gary itself, principally on 4th and 5th avenues.

So I'm sure I speak for every resident of Gary when I wish success to this meeting and to the men and organizations which are doing everything in their power to put it thru like The Tribune, Robert Kingery of the Chicago Regional Planning association, and the Chicago Motor club. R. C. H.

CONDEMNS TRANSPORTATION.

Since getting married and moving to the far southwest side I have become all too well acquainted with the lack of transportation facilities between this section of the city and the far west side, where I used to live. The problem is: How can I get from my new home to my old home without practically going downtown? There is, in short, no direct bus or street car line [not to mention train or "L"] running north and south west of the 3200 line to the city limits. Neither the street car line on Cicero nor the bus line on Harlem is continuous, and this is about the only choice one has. I can't get used to the idea of spending a whole day in making this journey. Let's agitate for better transportation for the southwest and west siders. J. W. K.

FEARS FOR CYCLISTS.

Too many boys and girls ride bicycles thruout Morgan Park and Beverly Hills as tho automobiles hadn't yet been invented. We motorists are on the spot. If we hit one of them—and it could easily happen, regardless of how carefully we drive—the sympathy is usually with the youth or child and we're called killers. And yet they continue to turn blithely into heavy traffic, hitch onto trucks, and tear thru the night without lights.

My only hope is that Mayor Kelly's bicycle safety campaign and 10 safety commandments have some effect on the school children. Otherwise there will be a lot of sad parents on the southwest side by this summer. Sol Rafferty.

PRAISE FOR WILL COUNTY.

Permit me to offer a word of commendation for your recent decision to include Will county in the area served by your Sunday paper. I had long wondered why you did not publish neighborhood news about us. It warms my heart to pick up a newspaper the size of The Tribune and find in it the name of a neighbor or a neighbor's children, not as the center of a sensational story but in connection with some homely and wholesome pursuit. New State Law Affects Southwest Siders.

Ninety-six residents of the southwest side are among the 279 park district employés who were retired last week under the new state law requiring the pensioning of those who have reached the age of 65.

DECEMBER KEEPS TO AVERAGE IN TRAFFIC DEATHS

Rate Should Have Been Less Due to Weather.

December was a normal month with respect to traffic killings, it is shown by a study of records kept by the coroner's office.

These figures show there were 113 fatalities on Cook county streets and highways during the month, or an average of 3.65 deaths a day. The December average for the last 10 years is 111 deaths, or 3.58 killings a day.

One factor that reflects unfavorably for the month, according to traffic observers, is that December was unusually clear and dry, and thus theoretically there should have been a considerable reduction in the automobile massacre. Instead there was a slight increase.

Figuring from the first of the month, the fourth week of December was deadliest to motorists and pedestrians. There were 36 killings in that seven-day period. There were 21 deaths each in the first and second weeks and 26 deaths in the third week, with 9 in the last three days.

Increase in Suburbs.

December saw a sharp increase in the ratio of suburban to Chicago fatalities in the county. Chicago was charged with 81 of the fatalities and the outlying parts of the county with 32. Usually Chicago leads by a ratio of about 4 to 1.

Pedestrians, as usual, furnished a majority of the death victims. Seventy-six of the dead were in this classification, while there were only 37 in all other classifications combined.

There was a big jump in the number of automobile-train fatalities, which claimed a total of 14 victims in December. Eight of these deaths occurred in two accidents, an elevated-automobile crash at Harrison street and Central avenue on Dec. 22 that cost three lives, and an automobile-steam train accidents at 95th street and 51st avenue in Oak Lawn on Christmas day in which five died.

Fifty-four of the 76 pedestrian victims were males and 22 were females. Following the rule that most pedestrian traffic deaths are among the older persons, 36 of the December pedestrian fatalities claimed as their victims persons of 60 or over—8 women and 28 men.

There were 16 victims in the 50-59 year age group, including 11 men and 5 women, and 11 victims in the 40 to 49 year group, 4 of whom were women.

The eight other male victims to be accounted for ranged in age from 5 to 20 years, while the five female victims not included in the foregoing figures were from 5 to 34 years old.

INDUSTRIAL AREA FORECASTS BUSY WINTER SEASON

thusiastic over the contemplated airport to be created by filling in the north end of Lake Calumet, Mr. Hanberg said.

Mr. Hanberg heads a special committee of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce which has been largely responsible for gaining the construction of the dock in the south end of Lake Calumet by the city. This group has been campaigning to obtain berthing of a large fleet of commercial vessels during the winter after an analyses showed that each ship accounts for $6,000 to merchants of the area.

The committee has asserted that Chicago is bowing to Milwaukee, Toledo, and other cities because of lack of enterprise. These cities, with their municipally operated docks, charge much lower rentals than the privately owned concerns in Chicago which have facilities in the Calumet waterway. Towing charges are higher here also.

Many of the 49 boats berthed in the Calumet region now are loaded with grain because of the shortage in space resulting from the huge elevator fire several months ago.

FOUR ROOM HOME EMERGES FROM 2 APARTMENTS

Affords Spacious Living in Use of Curves.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The year 1939 saw many interesting examples of modernization work. None of these examples was more unusual or dramatic than the combining of two small apartments into a large four room apartment home in Rockford.

The architect of this drastic and quite revolutionary change was Edward Paul Lewin, 134 North La Salle street, Chicago.

Mr. Lewin in the beginning had two very ordinary little flats to start work on. In the end there emerged a handsome four room, modern apartment, completely air conditioned for all seasons of the year.

One of the first desires of Mr. Lewin's clients was for a large living room and a large bedroom. The clients wanted a smaller dining room, a very compact kitchen, and a bath which should include a spacious dressing room adjoining it, and generous wardrobe and cabinet space.

S-Shaped Hall.

"My clients," Mr. Lewin said, "wanted something a trifle different, and expressed a preference for curved wall surface treatments. This gave rise to the possibility of a circular bathroom which pleased the clients, provided no loss of space resulted. These ideas ultimately led to the final solution, which contained a spacious living room and bedroom, a smaller dining room and kitchen, a circular bath and dressing room, and an S-shaped reception hall.

"There is also a curved triangular air conditioning closet adjoining the curved reception hallway. This was a wise use of otherwise dead space, and the apartment has been given a thermostatically controled air conditioning system for all the rooms, all seasons of the year.

"The fact that this apartment was on the third floor of the building gave simple access to the roof for intake and exhaust ducts, and the entire suspended ceiling of the apartment was covered with four inches of mineral fill to aid the efficiency of the conditioning system, as well as to add to the quiet of the rooms."

Fluorescent Lighting.

The entrance to the new four room apartment is thru an entry which leads to a curving reception hall, 3½ feet wide. This hallway has walls of opaline yellow and chalk white ceiling, with telephone niche which fits into a curved section and ceiling lighting fixtures of the fluorescent type, with frosted and clear glass discs.

Beyond is the living room, 18½ by 25⅓ feet. A four inch rise leads into the dining room, 10 by 10½. On the west wall of this dining room there is a sandblasted striped mirrored frame with a recessed plain mirror, extending from floor to ceiling, and giving an illusion of great length to the combined living room and dining room.

Both rooms have walls done in light, platinum gray. In the living room there is a large, rose marble fireplace, and marble walls continue under window sills on the fireplace side of the living room. The fireplace andirons are bronze finished in satin chrome, with crystal rod shafts and crystal ornaments to match the railings which divide living room and dining room.

More Use of Mirrors.

There is no lighting fixture in the living room, but the dining room has a polished brass and brushed chrome combination ceiling fixture. And a striking feature between the dining room and kitchen is a mirrored trim of sandblasted striped pilasters, which extend to a wood cap, with a clear mirror between pilasters above the door.

The kitchen is compact, with sink and counters of stainless steel, and walls of French gray structural glass. The floor is a rubber tile with a field pattern of dark blue and ivory stripe. Recessed chromium plated lights are at both door entrances, and over sink and range.

The bathroom is one of the most striking rooms in the house. It is circular and contains a recessed tub and shower compartment outside the circle. The entire walls are straight vertical segments of structural glass, treated in wine and ivory colors, in which the wainscoting is wine. The upper wall is ivory with a three inch wine colored dentil which caps the structural glass wall. The wainscot and cap is topped off with a plaster dome painted white.

Coral Pink Fixtures.

The treatment of the bedroom includes ceiling and walls of opera pink, with a full length mirrored corner feature and mirrored trim at the dressing room closet door. The dressing room contains wardrobes and cabinets for clothes, with doors of sliding glass in small channeled frames. The entire room is done in a modern fluted wood detail and painted a very pale shell pink.

The overall of the four room apartment is some 35 by 35 feet. And it is altogether a noteworthy piece of work, with a wealth of fine detail spent on it.

Design for Apartment

Monday, Jan. 8.

Give flowering pot plants plenty of water. A gift plant, after it has passed its period of attractiveness, may be discarded like a bouquet and a new plant obtained. Foliage plants will last much longer, but even they must have attention or they soon dry out, die, or are seriously retarded in growth. Remember that plants obtained from the warm, humid greenhouse must be watered and they must have their full share of light. A plant standing in the dry atmosphere and excessive, changeable heat of the average room requires more water than one standing in a cool room, and a rapidly growing plant requires more water than one that is in a semiresting condition; a plant with fibrous roots takes up water rapidly.

Tuesday, Jan. 9.

You may save a seed pod or two of the Jerusalem cherry, sow the seed along in February and have cherries next autumn. After all danger from frost has passed in late May or early June the young plants should be planted in rows in the garden, kept watered, and numerous cherries will be produced. The bright red fruits are indicative of Christmas and when a plant is in full bearing it is delightful. There are yellow fruited sorts as well as tall and dwarf varieties. Examine the pots of bulbs that were potted in late autumn and if the roots show thru the drainage hole, remove a few pots to the house for flowering. Place in a cool room for a few days and then bring to the light. Well rooted plants grow amazingly fast and the flowers soon appear. Amaryllis bulbs now are on sale and a choice collection of them works wonders in the ornamentation of any room. The bulbs are offered in different colors so that a variety can be obtained.

Wednesday, Jan. 10.

Perennial beds should have been mulched, newly planted shrubs and trees protected against the attacks of rodents, and the ground around them mulched. Roses taken down and covered with soil will endure thru the most severe winter without injury. Ferns and other foliage plants are benefited by dipping in a tub of water. Dust is removed and the plants stimulated. The offering of glass containers in odd shapes, such as pear, apple, etc., opens a wide field for the amateur to work out interesting effects. Small plants can be obtained from greenhouses. When the care of these glass gardens is understood it becomes a fascinating form of miniature gardening. Large containers may be used for an orchid plant.

Thursday, Jan. 11.

The used Christmas tree provides a fine shelter for the birds when placed in a spot in the garden. Three or more of them stood together is even better and grain scattered underneath lures the birds. Home gardeners, using wood fires, should save the ashes; keep them dry for later use. All animal manure should be saved, but it should not be left exposed to the weather. Manure containing shavings is not so good, for the shavings take a long time to decay and it is hard to spade over ground containing them. Mulch the strawberry bed with hay or straw that is free from weed seeds.

Friday, Jan. 12.

Examine the store of gladiolus corms and remove all surplus soil and other material that may surround them. Put 100 corms in a paper sack with one ounce of naphthalene flakes. Store in a cool room and leave for about three weeks. Such treatment will help to eliminate thrips. Grapevines can be pruned so long as the plants are dormant. The vines will stand heavy pruning to obtain an abundance of new wood, but it is advisable to study the various methods to obtain best results. Go to the public library and study a general book on pruning. Write to the state experiment stations for literature on pruning.

Saturday, Jan. 13.

During warm days spraying woody plants with lime-sulphur or miscible oil sprays is effective against scale insects. Some plants are very susceptible to this destructive pest. The materials, ready prepared except for the addition of water, may be obtained from local supply houses. A good knapsack spray outfit is not expensive and is easy to operate. If a definite spray calendar is adopted the plants are easily kept in good health. Wait until summer to prune maple trees; the sap runs in winter and spring, but not in summer. Shrubs may be propagated now from hardwood cuttings. Take wood made last season, cut in lengths of 6 to 10 inches, tie in bundles and pack in sand, sawdust, or peat moss and put in a cool place. Callus will form during the winter; line out in early spring.

$100,000 SOUGHT AS BENEFIT FOR GREEK ORPHANS

Expected That Home Will Be Built in Chicago.

A national drive to raise $100,000 for an orphanage has been launched by the Greek American Progressive association [Gapa]. Chicago Greeks, under the honorary chairmanship of Bishop Callistos, Greek orthodox bishop in Chicago, 2727 Winona street, will hold their first benefit on Feb. 7, presenting the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra, conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos, in Orchestra hall.

The orphanage will be the first Greek philanthropic institution in the United States. According to present plans, it will care for 500 Greek American orphans. Dr. George P. Gavaris, national supreme president of Gapa, has announced that it probably will be erected in a suburb of Chicago. During the next six months, chapters of Gapa thruout the country will sponsor benefits whose proceeds will swell the common treasury.

Members of Board.

Chicago Greeks who have been elected to the orphanage board are Bishop Callistos, Dr. Gavaris, president; Constantine Mammon, treasurer; the Rev. Daniel Golemis, pastor of the Church of Saint George, 2701 Sheffield avenue; the Rev. Nikitas Kesses, pastor of the Church of the Annunciation, 1017 North La Salle street; Dr. Evans Pernokis, 5 South Wabash avenue, and Andrew Margaritis, 180 North Wabash avenue.

Others are Mrs. F. F. De Silla, 4522 North Ashland avenue; Dr. Peter Pane, 8 South Michigan avenue; Dr. Constantine Theodorou, 7 West Madison street, Constantine Soter, 711 Belmont avenue; James Mallars, 816 West Harrison street; Dr. Cleomenis Pappatheodorou, 528 South Halsted street; Costas Pandaleon, 3661 Iron street, and the Rev. Demetrios Averkios, pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity, 2101 South Peoria street.

The Rev. Mr. Golemis is in charge of tickets for the initial event. Mail orders accompanied by checks are being accepted by Dr. Gavaris at the association headquarters at 5 South Wabash avenue.

American Debut in 1936.

Mr. Mitropoulos, conductor of the symphony orchestra, made his American debut in 1936 with the Boston Symphony orchestra, directed by Dr. Serge Koussewitsky. Born in Athens, Greece, in 1896, he started his studies at the Athens conservatory and continued them in Berlin with Ferrucio Busoni.

For a time he was assistant conductor of the Staatsoper in Berlin, then conducted the Athens Conservatory orchestra, appeared as guest conductor of the Berlin Philharmonic in 1930 and in Paris conducted the Orchestre Symphonique de Paris.

Chapters in Chicago which have united for the orphanage drive include Alexander Ypsilaniti, Navarino, Marathon, Solon, Apostle Paul, Estia, Gorgho, Kastalia, Kipseli, Aghisilaos, Lefkothea, and Mboumboulina.

5 LOCAL OFFICES ARE AT STAKE IN WILL COUNTY

Place Seekers Already Laying Plans.

Rustlings of political activity in Will county became audible last week after the noise of holiday revelry had died away. Numerous candidates were reported to be setting their caps for the five county offices at stake this year, hoping to be chosen as their parties' candidates in the April 9 primary.

The men to be succeeded next Dec. 2, in accordance with the will of the electorate as expressed in the election Nov. 5 are:

State's Attorney James E. Burke, Coroner Londus B. Brannon, Recorder J. Bert Blackburn, Circuit Court Clerk George J. Buttell Jr., and Auditor William J. Barrett.

One a Republican.

Burke is a Republican. All the others are Democrats. Burke, Brannon and Barrett are said to be hopeful of succeeding themselves. Blackburn and Buttell are reported to be preparing to drop from public life when their present terms expire, altho neither has yet made formal announcement.

Because Will county is traditionally Republican and because there are plenty of signs of a popular swing back to political normalcy this year, it is expected there will be a rush for the G. O. P. nominations for all five offices next April. The prospective lively primary contest will, it is felt, foreshadow a hot election campaign.

Election of the four incumbent Democrats in 1932 to the offices that become vacant this year constituted the first rift in a Republican chain extending back many years. Burke succeeded a Republican, William R. McCabe, former state representative, one-time mayor of Lockport, and at present publisher of a Joliet weekly newspaper.

Line of Succession.

Brannon followed in office Coroner E. A. Kingston, a Republican, who was first elected in 1920 to succeed William C. Wunderlich, and who was reëlected in 1924, 1928, and 1932.

Blackburn's predecessor was William W. Smith, Republican, who had been reëlected recorder every four years since just after the turn of the century.

Buttell took over the job held for four consecutive terms by Paul V. Wunder, a Republican, who succeeded L. H. Piepenbrink in 1920.

Barrett supplanted another Republican, Thomas K. Sprague, who was first elected in 1924 to succeed Charles A. Noble, and who was returned to office for two additional terms.

Petitions for the five offices can be filed as early as Feb. 3 and as late as Feb. 19. Several prospective candidates were reported to have started circulation of their nominating petitions.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Talk about longevity in radio! Joe Sanders, who with Carlton Coon and their Original Kansas City Nighthawks got his start way back in 1922, is still going strong. Joe and his lads are playing their 12th engagement in 15 years at the Blackhawk restaurant and on W-G-N. None has been shorter than four months. And they have continued as long as 24 solid months.

Joe Sanders.

What has he got that gets them? Friendliness is first on the list. The "Old Left Hander" likes meeting people, all kinds of people. He's proud of the fact that among his fans today are men who were in their Harold Teen days back in the early '20s when they first danced to Coon-Sanders. Now they are solid business and professional men. Joe is proud of their loyalty. And now a crop of sons is beginning to go for him, too.

Joe credits his "happy" style of music with winning them, too.

Joe Mixes It Up.

"We have always mixed our music up to try to please everybody," he explained. "We get far more requests for ballads than any other types of music, so folks must prefer that kind."

Joe believes that versatile orchestras playing all kinds of dance music will have the longest runs in popularity. Among these, he says, will be Ted Weems, Wayne King, Kay Kyser, and Jan Garber, to mention a few. Swing, he says, is on the wing.

Recalls the Early Days.

Joe has a lot of radio memories. The Nighthawks were radio's first orchestra to broadcast "remotely," that is outside of a studio. When they came to Chicago and W-G-N their Nights and Ladies of the Bath, [late Saturday night program with dedication of numbers to individuals] became one of the most famous of early day radio programs. Joe believes it had the greatest listening audience on the air at that time. Telegrams for request numbers or congratulations poured in by the hundreds. Once, Joe recalled, they got 530 wires in less than 2 hours.

Those were the days. "Nowadays radio is too dignified," Joe lamented. "They have taken a lot of the fun out of it."

200,000 Miles in 18 Months.

Joe and his band have done a lot of traveling thru the years—one night stands all over the country. They have made 200,000 miles in the last 18 months. Strange things have happened during these treks about the country. Once during a tornado downstate, Joe and Coony stopped to aid in the rescue of the injured. A little baby died in Joe's arms.

At Herrin, Ill., they once played a dance at which customers checked their knives and guns outside. Another time they missed a train connection because of a flood and they had to ferry across the Ohio river. When they reached the Kentucky side they took off their shoes while pushing their bus out of the mud. They didn't have time to get cleaned up before they climbed the bandstand at Madisonville, Ky. So they played in their bare feet.

Composer of 500 Songs.

Joe left the orchestra business for several years after Coon died. Joe spent the time writing songs. He has written around 500. Best seller was "Beloved" which passed a million copies. And then there were "Brainstorm," "Hallucination," "The Wail," "Slewfoot," and "High Fever," to mention a few. And his various theme songs, "Do You Miss Me," "I'll Never Forget I Love You" [with Eddie Edwards], and "Nitie, Nite," used for early morning signoff.

Joe still gets calls for "Harold Teen," which he wrote in 24 hours. It, like "Orphan Annie" and others named for Tribune comics, were published as features in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Joe also wrote the official song for the San Francisco fair, "Westward Ho."

The Coon-Sanders duo originated the idea of radio Shut-Ins club. Joe still gets letters from shut-ins who have followed him since the early days.

Collects Flowers as Hobby.

He has his hobbies, too, photography—both movies and still. But the one he rides hardest is collecting wild flowers. He has more than 2,500 varieties. And one he is particularly proud of is a Pasque posy which he plucked during a mountain blizzard in Berthoud pass.

Joe is a member of the recently organized Dodo society of radio. Among the old timers who belong are Graham McNamee, John S. Young, radio director of the New York world's fair, and Leo Fitzpatrick, who started Joe out down on WDAF, Kansas City, now executive of WJR, Detroit.

Constipation Relief That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

RADIO CAREER NOT GLAMOROUS, ACTRESS HOLDS

But Kay Campbell Admits Work Is Fun.

Radio acting for the young woman of 1940 is not a glamorous occupation. It is fun, that's true; but it is hard work. So says Kay Campbell, beautiful blonde W-G-N and Mutual network actress whose appearance belies her words.

"When a girl has to get up at dawn," she explained, "in order to rehearse a program that goes on the air early in the morning, and then keeps up at the same tempo all day long, it is hard even to think about the word 'glamor' by the time the dinner hour rolls around."

For a radio actor to succeed, Miss Campbell said, it is necessary that he show capacity for taking direction.

"One may not agree with the director," she said, "but it is still absolutely essential to play a part the director's way, and to play it sincerely. In my opinion, sincerity is the keystone to the whole business of acting."

Whenever possible, Miss Campbell said, she likes to project herself into the rôle in which she is appearing at the time. This, she added, is sometimes hard on her family and friends, because she is hard to get along with when she is taking the part of a "meanie."

Miss Campbell said that in order to improve her acting, she often listens to radio programs, putting herself in the place of the average listener. Then she criticizes the show.

to do with anybody but Mr. Hunnable.

She often talked about him, and told me how lucky I was to have such a fine old gentleman about the office, and she was never tired of saying: "I bet he finds you a change after that girl. I expect she's arrived now where she was heading for. French! Well, a man who has a French girl in his office is asking for it."

Poor Doris! By then she was the mother of mother's first grandson.

But to come back to this independence they talk about. Was I independent? I was not. I had to account at home for every penny I earned and every hour I spent. Jack was always urging me to revolt. "Take a little flat," he used to say. "You can afford it now. Don't darken their doors."

That was all very well, but if I could afford a flat, they couldn't afford to let me have one because father was out of work now and I used to give them a pound a week as well as pay for my food. Perhaps I was a fool. Perhaps I wasn't. It depends on how you look at it. I'm not much of a one for leaving people in the lurch, even if you've got little enough to thank them for.

"Well, have a fling," said Jack, twirling his mustache which was more luxuriant now, because he was altogether a more luxurious person. There he was at thirty, boss of everything. Mr. Hunnable had retired and I was no longer Jack's secretary but chief of a department. But I kept that to myself at home. Yes, I could certainly afford a little flat now.

Receives an Invitation to the Derby

"Have a fling, and show 'em you're the boss," said Jack. "If they live on you, make 'em live on your conditions. Tell you what, Doris and I are going to the Derby on Wednesday. Come with us."

I was horrified. Of all the things that made father go mad, horse racing was the worst. "The lives it's ruined!" he used to moan. Any one would think it had ruined his own life.

Doris joined her pleading to Jack's. "You'll never have a better chance," she said. "Give 'em a real shock. Tell 'em you're spending Tuesday night with Mr. Jackson and going on to Epsom early Wednesday morning. Because that's just what you're going to do, isn't it, Jack?"

"I hope so," Jack said.

Well, there was Tuesday morning, and there was I eating a cereal breakfast food that was supposed to make you start the day feeling like Jack the Giant Killer, and all it was doing to me was making me feel sick.

"You haven't got much to say for yourself," mother said. "Something on your mind?"

She looked at me as tho expecting me to confess the worst there and then, but I just shoveled the last spoonful of that stuff into my mouth and went upstairs without a word. My suitcase was packed, but I hadn't known till the last minute whether I should unpack it again or take it with me. Now I picked it up with sudden resolution and walked swiftly downstairs.

"I shan't be in tonight," I said tonelessly before my courage should fade out.

Mother dropped her morning paper and glanced across at father. "D'you hear that? She won't be in tonight! She just informs us. Daughters don't ask in these days. They just announce their intentions."

Suddenly I hated mother. I'd put up with so much from her. I'd put up with it for so long. Now I saw her face with a swift clarity that I had not known before. I saw that it was mean and spiteful and tyrannical.

"Well, I've announced MY intention,' I said, my voice all at once hard and controled. "I've told you I shall be away for one evening. Or would you prefer that I followed Jack's example?"

"Lot of good that would do you," she sneered. "I'd like to know where he is now. Wishing he could sneak back home, I'll bet. And you watch yourself, my girl. You remember that French piece that was thrown out of the office. You take warning."

I picked up the suitcase and strode toward the door. "And you take warning," I said. "I'm 25 years old. I'm more or less keeping a roof over your head. Any time hereafter that I want to spend a night out I shall do so. And any time I want to follow Jack's example, I'll do that, too."

She got up and moved toward the door. For a moment I thought her lifetime's habit of tyranny would be more than she could now resist, and my mouth went dry. Then she sank back into her chair and I was outside. In the street I dropped the suitcase to the ground and stood still, panting, I could hardly realize it. I had won.

Her First Night Away from Mother

Believe it or not, that was the first night I had ever spent away from home, except holidays, when mother was with me, and to be starting off in a motor car at five in the morning, as we did the next day, was the sort of harebrained adventure that I could never have believed I would be engaged in.

But there we were. Jack said he wasn't going to get caught in the traffic, and we might as well spend the day in Epsom as in London. We were there by six and the holiday and the idea that I was going to see horse racing and the larks that were singing made me feel so excited that I just couldn't keep still, but I said I'd wander about for a while. Jack was finding a garage for the car. He showed me the hotel where I was to join him and Doris for breakfast.

Then I went strolling up the lane that leads from the town to the Downs, and I couldn't feel that this was anything wrong that I was doing [tho I did think remorsefully of mother now and then] and I felt more like 14 than like a 25-year-old grown manager of a department.

Right at the top where the lane opens out into the Downs I was rather alarmed because there were hundreds of men couched under those fine beech trees and the red brick wall. The sun had come out like a resurrection trump and they began to stir. There was a fine commotion round the frosty tents and the canvas lean-tos. Fires blazed, bacon sizzled in pans, and the dudes among them were at it with razors.

There is a great trough there with the name of Cicero on it—not him that could talk the hind leg off a donkey in the Roman law courts, but the quadruped who won the Derby. Some of these bundles of rags and bones were sousing themselves in Cicero's trough, stripped to the waist, and I thought I'd better go on.

Then I stumbled on a heap that might have fallen off an old clothes dealer's cart—round as a furled hedgehog, and it grunted as I once heard a hedgehog grunt that I kicked in a field in the dark.

"What the hell!" it said, and that made me jump and start to go on very quickly, and then this bundle unfurled, and sat up on haunches, and a set of very white teeth grinned at me thru a mass of dirty whiskers.

"Beg pardon, miss. No offense," it said. "Lookin' for an 'orse?"

I said politely that I was not looking for a horse; I was just taking a morning walk, thank you, and then said: "Made yer mind up, I suppose. Pasch! Everybody thinks it'll be Pasch. Pasch my eye! Don't believe 'em, lady. Don't waste yer money."

He got up and came toward me, combing his whiskers with long, dirty fingers. I began to walk back toward the town, and he fell in at my side.

"Listen to me, lady," he said, "and avert your eyes. Don't look at the sad wreck of the man I once was. Think of me in my prime. Think of me in silk, turning the scale at seven ten, riding the finest horse that ever flashed past the winning post out yonder."

He waved his hands toward the Downs and seemed to be deeply moved. "Stable jealousy!" he muttered. "Stable jealousy was my undoing. Stable jealousy ended the riding career of as good a lad as ever bestrode a thorobred. And that lad is talking to you now. Epsom, Newmarket, Doncaster, O-ti, and Long-shon: a flash of glory, lady, and then the end."

I relaxed my swift stride a little and looked at him with sympathy. It seemed deplorable that a great jockey should come to this. I tried to imagine how he would look shaved and bathed and wearing a jockey's cap. He had the bow legs. "Will you never be able to ride again?"

"Never, lady," he said, with conviction. "All I can do now is to use my influence to secure information. I am selling this information for a contemptible price." He began to fumble in his pocket and brought out some dirty scraps of paper. He whispered very quietly: "What would it be worth to you to know the name of the horse that will win the Derby this afternoon?"

Now, honestly, I had never intended to bet. I remembered what father had said about that, but when I knew I could actually learn the name of the winner my heart began to beat a little swiftly. He saw my hesitation and said: "Would it be worth 5 shillings to you, lady?. And, believe me, if this horse does not win I am prepared to meet you at this time and place next year, and repay your money." He added devoutly: "D. V."

Well, I went back to Epsom, very excited, clutching my little bit of paper, on which was written: "Bois Roussel."

"Keep it to yourself. We don't want a run on this 'orse," was the last thing the little man said to me. But, of course, I had to tell Jack and Doris of my luck. They were waiting for me in a fine aroma of coffee and kidneys and bacon and new bread—enough to put any one in a good humor, and the story of my lucky encounter seemed to make the cup of their joy overflow. They sat back in their chairs; they laughed and laughed.

"O, Carrie, my dear," said Jack at last, "have you never heard of a tipster? In a few hours' time you'll find hundreds of 'em willing to disclose the most secret, sacred, inside information for a shilling, sixpence, nay, tuppence. Five bob really is a bit steep. We shall have to take this girl about a bit more, Doris, and open her eyes to the ways of this wicked world."

"Yes, indeed," said Doris. "You keep off Bois Roussel, Carrie. If you're betting at all, put your money on Pasch."

"Pasch! Nonsense!" said Jack, arresting a forkful of kidney halfway to his mouth. "Scottish Union, my girl, Scottish Union. And where I got that from is where the real information comes from."

"Yes, I know," said Doris. "It's where you got the winner of the Grand National from."

Jack blushed and poured me out some coffee. They continued to go at it and I said nothing. I'd paid 5 shillings for my information and I was going to use it.

What a scene it was when we got there! I'd never imagined such a thing: the bookies going purple in the face, the revivalists singing their hymns, the hot pies and the ice cream and the trampling, jostling, shouting people. Jack had got us places on a wagonette, so that we were high up over everybody's heads, and just before the race started we went down to lay our bets.

Doris insisted on backing Pasch, and Jack put his money on Scottish Union. "Some one's got to keep the money in the family," he said. "And what about you? D'you still insist on this supreme folly? Look at that," he added, pointing to a man who was chalking up figures on a blackboard. "Twenty-to-one Bois Roussel."

"What does that mean?" I asked, clutching the little scrap of dirty paper that I had kept all day.

"It means that if you put a bob on, and if—if, mark you—Bois Roussel wins, you can get back your bob plus twenty more. In short, money for jam."

I didn't hesitate. I stepped up to the bookie and said: "One pound, Bois Roussel."

"One pound!" Jack cried. "You mean 1 shilling. A pound is what you get if you win."

"One pound is what I said," I told him. "I've never bet in my life before, and I don't suppose I ever shall again, so I might as well make a good job of it."

Jack led me back to the wagonette, and there were the horses cantering along to the start. I thought I'd never seen anything so lovely, and I hoped the little man who had sold me the information was not looking at them now. They would bring back too painful memories of his prime. "There he goes," said Jack. "That's Bois Roussel. That's the graveyard of your hopes." O, the lovely horses! The beautiful colors!

I wonder whether anybody else there felt as I did? I wonder whether racing people get bored and blasé? My heart nearly stopped beating, not with excitement, but because it was so beautiful: that restless line of horses tossing the colors about on their backs, then breaking away into the frenzied race that thudded the earth and sent shivers up my spine.

How long does a race like that last? I don't know. It seemed to me at once endless and unendurably fleeting. In no time at all Jack, who had his field glasses to his eyes, dropped them and said: "Good God! That horse has passed Pasch!"

He put the glasses up again hurriedly, and said: "It's a thunderbolt! It's up to Scottish Union! It's beaten him—beaten him! Bois Roussel!"

Jack's was the only voice I heard shout the name. Every one else seemed stricken dumb.

The Three of Them Stage a Celebration

And I can tell you I was pretty dumb by 11 o'clock that night. We celebrated. I had never celebrated with Jack and Doris before, I had never celebrated with anybody before. Perhaps those who are accustomed to celebrations would not think that the dinner and the music hall and the odd drink afterward came to very much. It came to a lot with me, and round about 11 o'clock it came to a realization that I had a father and mother.

Gone now were my fine emancipated thoughts. Present only to my consciousness was the realization that a good deal of the wages of sin still remained in my purse—"The lives it's ruined!"—and that I wanted to go to sleep on some one's shoulder.

I was aware of Jack stopping the car at the corner of our street, of Doris putting my hat straight and then of my key and the lock trying a bit of jigsaw work. The next thing I knew was that father and I were sitting face to face in the parlor in a sort of mutual wonder and friendly understanding. "She's gone to bed," he whispered, pointing a finger aloft. "Given you up for the night."

My voice was a conspiratorial echo of his "Been to the Derby," I whispered. "Backed Bois Roussel." I fumbled my bag open and pressed notes into his hand. "Twenty to one."

He looked wonderingly at the money, then put it back into my bag.

"I wouldn't touch winnings on a horse with a barge pole," he said firmly. "Look at me. Look!"

He got up and struck his chest. "A free man—once. What ruined me? Horse racing! Nineteen hundred and eight. A long time ago, my girl. Talk about your twenty to one! A hundred to one! Signorinetta—the rankest outsider that ever won the Derby. I had a quid on her, and I wish she'd dropped dead on the course. But she made me a hundred pounds, and on the strength of that I married your mother. And I never had the courage to do what Jack did. I never had the courage to do what you did yesterday. You go on doing it, my girl. Keep it up. But don't talk to me about winners. Go to bed now. Want a hand?"

I managed without. But it had been a full day, and I dreamed that the little man with the whiskers had turned into father, who was dressed like a jockey and was riding Signorinetta hell for leather with mother riding after him on Bois Roussel. The last I saw of them, they had flashed past the horse trough labeled "Cicero," and were pounding down the lane toward Epsom. Then I woke up, and I wasn't feeling too good.

By ELSIE JANIS

(Copyright by Elsie Janis Wilson.)

"OPERATOR! Yes, Madam, I'm trying to get Cleveland! Yes, Madam, I know, but New Year's Eve, everybody's trying to call their home town. Yes, Madam, I'll call you—"

"Operator! Yes, Sir, you'll know when you hear the whistles"—"If you hear them," Maizie added as she deftly plugged the questioner out. "That guy's been rehearsing for New Year's Eve since Christmas," she turned to the operator beside her. "Say, you better get going—it's twenty to twelve! Where are you meeting the boy friend?"

"Out in the lobby," the girl rose. "It's awfully sweet of you to take this extra time for me, Maizie."

"Skip it! I've got no date and no reason to celebrate. Might as well keep plugging as sit at home with Ma, saying 'Happy New Year' when maybe she won't live through it. So long! Say good-by to 1939 for me!"

"Operator! O. K. Wait till I get my party. Hello. We are ready with your call to Cleveland, Madam," Maizie listened a minute—the lady from Cleveland's conversation was dull. Maizie relaxed and closed her eyes. Why did everybody get a few drinks and then want to talk to the people they had been abusing all year?

A quarter to twelve! Already the din of rattles and horns was starting in the streets. Happy New Year? Maizie's pretty mouth curled into a sneer. Well, it couldn't be worse than the last one. Work! Work! Work!—no time to play and no one to play with. Poor Ma. Lying there alone in that cold hovel that the landlord claimed was a flat.

"Operator! Yes, Sir! Well, I'll try—it's ten minutes to—the wires are tied up in lover's knots, and Chicago is——"

"I know, but try Langely 1742. I'll bet you always get what you go after." His voice was low and had a smiling sound. Maizie felt as if she were talking to an old friend. "Do you want any one in particular?" she asked.

"I'll say I do!" he answered, "but just call the number, thanks. I'll hang on."

She put through the call with a "Make it snappy, please," to Long Distance. Of course, he would want somebody special! A voice like that was made to make love. "Grab me a line, will you please, Long Distance?" Her slim fingers beat a tattoo on the desk. "Maybe he's calling his mother?" She smiled—hope revived! Hope of what? You poor sap. He don't know you're even human.

"Thanks, operator. You're a peach! Happy New Year!—Hello! Hello! Sylvia? Hello! Is that you darling? You don't sound natural!"

Maizie sat listening in—to hell with the rest of the guests! This was as near as she would get to Happy New Year. Vicarious—but exciting!

"Oh, it's you, Mrs. Hartman," he was saying. "Happy New Year! May I speak to Sylvia, please?" His anticipation was catching. Maizie waited breathlessly.

"Oh, Hello, Bob!" a thin voice responded. "Sylvia isn't home. She's—"

"Didn't she get my wire?"

"Yes, she got it, but——"

"It told her I would call when it was midnight here and we would talk until it was midnight in Chicago. Where is she, Mrs. Hartman?"

Maizie was gasping. Imagine! Talking an hour to Chicago! She held the earphone in an effort to hear better.

"But Bob," the thin voice was whining, "you couldn't expect Sylvia to sit at home all evening."

"I didn't ask her to. I asked her to give me the first hour of the New Year. It didn't seem much when you figure that she has promised me the rest of her life. Who's she with?"

"I really am not sure. Bill Marsden called for her at seven and ——"

"She promised me she wouldn't see him again." His voice was far from smiling. Maizie was suspended between a shiver and a thrill.

"But, Bob, they are with a party—they're not alone. I don't see ——"

"No! You don't see—and you never will. Sylvia has to be taken care of. She can't drink—she loses her head. You're only her mother—you wouldn't know that, but Bill Marsden knows it. Oh, well! What the hell? Tell her I said 'Happy New Year.' The same to you. Good-by!" the receiver banged.

Maizie, laughing thru tears, answered at least six irate guests at once. "What will he do now?" she thought. "Get drunk of course!" She banged his plug in quickly. "Hello! Did you get your party?" Maizie's voice was soft, strangely gentle for a telephone operator.

"No! I did not!" he said. "I got a good gust of Chicago air! She was out with another guy. Happy New Year—what?"

"Never mind, there's plenty of good fish in the sea!" Maizie's blue eyes were shining—unconsciously she patted her satin smooth black hair.

"Yeah! but I don't happen to want a fish." His voice was smiling again. "Say, what do you look like?" he added.

"What do you look like?" Maizie said.

"There go the whistles!" Maizie cut in, "Happy New Year! and I hope 1940 will bring that girl in Chicago more sense. 'Bye"——"Operator! Yes, Sir. Haven't they sent that ginger ale up yet? I'll see to it at once."—"Operator! Yes, Sir, those are the whistles. Sorry they woke you up. Los Angeles? It's only about 8 o'clock there. No Sir, I'll have him call you in time."

ZANE GREY'S FAREWELL TO THE RANGE

Zane Grey's pen is put away. Never again will he write another western story to thrill the millions of his admirers. Shortly before his death late last October The Chicago Tribune purchased his novel "Twin Sombreros," one of the last stories he wrote in his amazing literary life. Zane Grey was one of the most widely read of American authors. More than eleven million of his books have been bought in this country, and there are translations in twenty languages. His second book, "Riders of the Purple Sage," was bought by almost two million readers. It was with infinite regret that millions of Americans read of his death. But readers of The Tribune are to have this one last thrill in "Twin Sombreros," which begins in this section next Sunday and continues in serialized form weekly until concluded. Don't forget—it begins next Sunday. Start it and finish it before it appears in book form.

Poor drunk! Maizie lifted the earphone to listen to the mad sounds of 1940's boosters. Again her eyes filled with tears. Poor Ma! I'll bet she's scared stiff. Wish we had a phone——

His light—331—was flashing. "Say, you didn't let me finish telling you what I look like. Don't you care?" He sounded quite gay. He's started to celebrate his defeat, Maizie thought. "Sure, I care, but we're not the only people in the hotel, you know."

"I'm glad you warned me. We'll have to go somewhere else. How long do you have to keep on saying 'yes Sir'?"

"As long as you keep on asking me questions."

"Is that a promise?"

"I'm on duty till one—after that the 'no's' have it. Excuse me!"—"Operator! Yes, Sir, there is a doctor in the house. Yes, Sir, I'll tell him to get out at once. You better get some more sleep before you talk to Los Angeles. Go back to bed like a good boy." For ten minutes, her fingers flashed from plug to plug; her eyes never left 331. Would he call again?

"You don't look a bit like Dietrich or Norma Shearer, but I'll forgive the deception. Polly Moran is more my type, anyway." Maizie had to make a full right-about turn to see him. It was well worth the effort—6 feet 1, brown twinkly eyes, white even teeth set in a bronzed background, chestnut hair, waves carefully flattened and glistening, he stood smiling down at her. She held back her own smile.

"I won't forgive you your deception. Clark Gable has big ears . . . yours are very small." She turned to the switchboard again.

"All the better not to hear you with when you start saying 'no' after 1 o'clock." He walked around and stood leaning over the top of her desk. "You were swell to rush that call for me."

"It would have been better if I hadn't got it at all, I'd say." Maizie's hands trembled as she plugged calls in and out.

"No. I don't think so. After all, that was last year! Have to start all over again now. Hard to do alone—will you give me a boost?"

"Me? How can I help?"

His Eyes Caught Hers and Held Them

"By saying 'yes' when I ask you to come out and have a bite with me at 1 minute past 1." He moved closer. "Please. It's New Year's. I'll probably get into some mess if I go on the town alone."

Maizie didn't look at him. "How about my getting into some mess if I go on the town with you?"

"You don't believe you will, do you, Hey! Look at me! Do you, honestly?" His brown eyes caught hers and held them with a strangle-hold.

"No, I don't. I'll come with you. Maybe it won't be such a rotten New Year's after all. I'll meet you outside the front door at 5 minutes past 1. We're not supposed to make dates with the guests," she smiled. "Say! Stay sober until we start out, will you?"

"You said it! I'll go up and write a letter. Be seein' you!"

"Don't mail it until tomorrow!" Maizie said as he walked away.

At 1 minute past 1 Maizie—model 1940—was talking fast to Maizie—model 1939—as they stood face to face in the ladies' "restroom" where no lady is ever known to rest. "You've been a sap long enough!" Maizie said to Maizie, "What have you been saving yourself for anyway?" She applied a double coating of lip rouge—then wiped it off. "We don't want anything between his lips and ours," Maizie smiled at Maizie. "Sappy New Year? Perhaps, old dear—but you'll take it and like it!" She tilted her tiny saucer of a hat further over one blue eye. "So long, Miss Lonely Heart! You've had your day—I'm going to have my night!" Maizie—1940—walked quickly from the restroom without a backward glance.

At 3 a. m. she was listening to the fourth head waiter, who had scraped and bowed as they entered another "night spot." . . . "Always room for Mr. Hastings and his friends."

Maizie laughed. She had reached the giggle stage, due to her baptism in champagne. "Friends! Ha! Ha! He thinks I'm a crowd. My feet feel plural, but you'd think he would have to keep sober tonight."

"Nobody has to keep sober tonight, my sweet. That's why you hear that barrage of 'Happy New Years.' Come on, let's dance. You've got to spend all the time in my arms, except when getting in and out of cabs."

The musicians, filled with the good spirits around them—and what good spirits they could afford, inside them, were waxing sentimentally uncertain about "The End of a Perfect Day."

"That's Ma's favorite piece!" Tears, which so often follow the course of "giggle water," splashed on Bob Hasting's crumpled shirt front.

He lifted Maizie's face and kissed them away, but the thought, which brought them to Maizie, wandered about stubbornly in the dizziness of her mind. "Bet Ma's praying right now. Well, it won't do her any good this time!"

She clung closer to Bob in an effort to forget the last time Ma had won. That guy had been a big shot and she had gone out with her "for sale" standard flying. She was going to get enough to pay for some of the things Ma needed. She had failed just because she lost her nerve. When she got home, Ma, patiently waiting, had accepted in silence her alibis about where she had been most of the night, then said, "Maizie, child, let me look at you!" Ma had smiled triumphantly as Maizie's frustrated blue eyes met hers, steadily. "I knew nothing really bad could happen to you. I started to pray, when you were not here by midnight. 'Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.'" Ma had kissed her good night and turned her frail body peacefully to the wall.

She could not have heard Maizie's smothered exclamation of "Nuts!" The only reward she had received for her virtue had been an awful headache and hands that trembled so much the day after that she couldn't control the switchboard plugs.

She pressed her cheek against Bob's. The orchestra snapped into "Wahoo." Away with all sentiment. "Wahoo!" the crowd screamed. "Wahoo!" Maizie cried. "Tonight the show's goin' to be different." Unconsciously she had quoted Ma's favorite radio program. "Wonder if Ma's listening to the New Year whoopee? No, of course not. She's prayin'."

"Say! I like to dance with you, but my throat thinks we're a couple of camels out for an eight day romp." She led Bob from the floor to the "special table the head waiter always could find for Mr. Hastings and his friends." Another bottle—and then, another table in another spot. Next stop Harlem.

"Start for Awbany and I'll shay when to stop. Go up the Awbany Posh road," Bob stumbled into the cab. Maizie had not realized how tight he was. She had been "going easy" on drinks all thru the Harlem sequence because she wanted to be herself on this great adventure.

"Listen, B. B." [She had christened him "big and beautiful" between gulps and giggle water.] "You just tuck yourself back in the corner and sleep it off a little, will you? I want you to recognize me when we meet upstate."

"Recognish you, I'll be righ wizh you." He groped for her, but Maizie slid to her corner of the cab as he sank back into his, empty armed. "You're wonnerful," he murmured. "Juz made for love, an' you're right, sweet, I'll jus' sleep a little." He sat up unsteadily, long enough to add, "but wake me at Oshinin. You don' know where our love nesh is," he chuckled, "I only know when I shee our love nesh—I only know——" Whatever else he knew was his own secret in sleep.

Harlem was left behind, blinking at the first dawn of 1940. The trees along the Motor parkway welcomed it with fluttering leaves.

Maizie had never shared a taxi with a sleeping partner before. She suddenly felt cold—and very lonely. "See if there's any whoopee left on the radio," she leaned forward. The driver was staring relentlessly ahead. "Incidentally, Happy New Year to you," she added.

"Thanks! A swell way to start it—goin' to Albany when I want to be home with the wife and kid." He turned the radio switch. "The dial's there beside you. They don't even let us pick our music no more. You pay and you pick. There ain't nuthin' now but records and psalm singers, anyway."

Maizie was not listening to him as she tried to tune in some sort of "airy" company. "I want music on my road to ruin." As if in answer to her thought, an organ responded—a rather breathless and wheezy organ, greeting the New Year with the strains of "Lead, Kindly Light." A voice spoke thru the hum, "The time now is exactly 5 o'clock. If you have by any chance just tuned in you are listening to the early morning gospel service."

Maizie dialed away quickly. She did not know the realm of all night radio. In vain she stopped at the important stations on the dial. They were silent. Each time she passed the organ it seemed to wheeze pathetically.

The "guy" was gabbing again. "Imagine picking a job like that for the cold gray dawn of the morning after? Well, the dawn wasn't cold and gray—it was beautiful, and that guy probably didn't have any one to love, poor sap! Funny, his voice sounded real human."

Her Partner in Cab Merely Slept On

Her sleeping partner in the corner apparently hadn't noticed it; he was breathing heavily. "If he wasn't so beautiful he'd be just snoring." Maizie smiled and settled back to give the "poor sap" on the radio a break. "He's better than being alone."

"At the request of Mrs. F. D. in Bergen, New Jersey, I am reading this first morning of the New Year everybody's favorite, 'The Sermon on the Mount.' St. Matthew, chapter 5."

Maizie settled back more solidly to argue mentally, "So, Mrs. F. D. stays up all night, too—and in Bergen."

Maizie's lips compressed as the "poor sap" continued, "No matter who you are or wherever you are, friends, whatever you may have done in the year just passed, or whatever you plan for the one just born, remember that He is with you if you want Him and need Him."

"He's not talking about you, B. B." she glanced at the sleeping young man—his hair had fallen over his eyes; his attractive mouth, which had shown her its flair for kisses during the evening, was partly open now. "Just tired," Maizie decided. "Gee! that radio sap loves his own voice."

"Before I begin Mrs. F. D.'s request may I quote my own favorite and ask that you try to remember it in 1940? 'As ye sow, so shall ye reap.'"

"Ha! Ha! I'm givin' up sewing, my pal. I'm wearing those nifty little ready-mades from——" her thought balked momentarily as he began to read.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." The thoughts stood at attention! The battle was on! [Heaven? You ought to get a load of that thing they call a flat we live in.]

"Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted." [A lot of comfort Ma got when Dad was knocked off by a truck—she mourned.]

"Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth." [O yeah! Well, Ma's meek—the only earth she's going to get is that family plot her Ma left her.]

"Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." [Ma pulls that one every time we just miss starving to death.]

"Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy."

Maizie didn't know about that, but she knew that she was crying like a ninny. "O God! What the hell's the matter with me?" [Why had she asked God? It's Ma at work, of course.]

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God." [That was what Ma said that last time. Remember her smile and how she went off to sleep so peaceful-like?]

"Aw, nuts!" Maizie was repeating herself.

Maizie knocked on the window in front of her and motioned the driver to stop the radio. Her hand was too shaky to try. The "poor sap" was nipped in the midst of his "Blessed ares." Bob Hastings was still dead to this world—or any other.

Maizie knocked again and motioned for the driver to stop. She pointed to the side of the road. "Where are we?" She stepped out, closing the door carefully for fear Bob might feel the brakes and think they were in "Oshinin" already.

"We've just passed Yonkers. What's the matter? Want a restroom?" The intimacy, which is a part of New Year's eve, still lingered.

"No! I want you to keep driving. He'll sober up and he's good for as much as he rides. I've changed my mind. How far is it back to Yonkers?"

"Only about a mile. I can turn around here and——"

"No! I'm doing the turning around!" [Maizie was not at all inspired. She was mad! She had lost another argument with Ma.] "This ought to be a good laugh to start your year with. You can tell your kid they really do 'walk home.' Is it a girl or a boy?"

"A girl—and listen, lady, I hope I'll be as proud of her when she's your age, as your mother ought to be. Have you got one?"

"Have I? Don't make me laugh thru these tears. This is her work—and she don't know where I'm goin' to get the new shoes I'll have to have after I ruin these, hoofing it to Yonkers. Well, anyway," she smiled grudgingly, "so long, and tell my sleepy souse friend about your kid. Maybe he'll come thru with a big tip."

"O. K. and congrats on your startin' 1940!" the driver beamed upon her.

"Yeah! I'll probably end it in the booby hatch. Bye!" she waved as she started toward Yonkers. She would have said "Baloney!" if told that she was smiling.

At Yonkers her protesting feet drove her to a debut in hitch-hiking. Any effort to explain her situation was silenced by the truck driver, who had said, "Happy New Year! Get aboard—and don't gab."

Van Cortlandt park—Motor parkway—Harlem—it's still New Year's. "I'll get out here!" Funny he should have been going right down Broadway and she was only two blocks from home. "Thanks a lot!" She climbed down easily.

Ma Was Watching Thru the Night

Ma was lying, bolstered up in bed. Her big gray eyes looked as if they had not looked away from the door all night. "O! Thank God, Baby! I've been worried for the first time. I was afraid you were out in a car somewhere, and——"

Maizie stooped to kiss her. "I was in a car all right—one of those new taxis with a swell radio, and"—[Maizie couldn't admit defeat enough to "come clean"]—"and it was only when they gave the time signal that I realized it was so late. I mean—so early."

Ma's lips were moving and her eyes were closed in that peaceful way. Maizie started to tip-toe away. Ma stirred ever so slightly. "Happy New Year, baby."

Gee! Ma's voice was sweet! "All right, Ma!" Gently, Maizie closed the door of her tiny bedroom and started to undress. She held her smudged and scratched slippers in her two hands, which had ceased to tremble. "O. K.—Thanks, God!" automatically, her glance traveled toward the low ceiling and back to the slippers. "But do something about these wrecks if you can—please?"

At noon she reported for duty, as usual. The grind was on. Nellie held her head with one hand and pushed plugs with the other. "O Lord, Maizie, how grateful you ought to be, you wasn't out on the loose like I was last night. I wish you hadn't offered to take my place. Honest, I do!"

Maizie sat down and adjusted her earphones. "Sit back awhile. What happened to you?"

"O! it was terrible! Bill, after all I've done for him—he just got drunk and left me flat."

"You were flat before he ever got drunk. Don't kick. Has 331 rung down yet?"

"O, gee! I forgot! Ain't I the dope? I'm just dizzy, that's what. I——" Nellie was reaching under the board for her bag.

"Being dizzy's no new thrill for you, kid. What did you forget?"

"This! He came by at 10 and asked me to be sure you got it. Gee, he's a swell number! How did you ever——"

"You'll have to take it for a few minutes, Nellie!" Maizie threw her earphones on the board and rushed toward the restrooms, clutching the envelope as if it had been a reprieve. "Was he sore? Would he ask her out when it wasn't New Year's eve? Maybe he did really love her? Maybe he——" Something fluttered to the ground as she opened the letter—a bill. She put her foot on it while she read—

"My dear and blessed little friend: I'm off to Chicago by plane. A telegram from the girl, saying she is sorry about last night, sends me and my spirits flying. Thru the haze of last night, I remember your devotion to Ma. I could never repay you for what you did for me, but I wish you would get Ma something she wants as a token of my appreciation. She brought an angel into the world, whom I have to thank for making it possible for me to face the woman I love and not have to say I'm sorry about last night. We'll come east on our honeymoon and I want her to meet the girl who saved this big bum for her. My blessings and thanks.

"ROBERT HASTINGS."

Slowly Maizie moved her foot and retrieved the bill. One hundred dollars! In a daze, she walked back to the switchboard.

Nellie looked up at her and blinked. "What's the matter, Maizie? What's happened? You look like you seen a ghost."

"I feel like I have!" Maizie was staring over Nellie's head and smiling a smile Nellie had never seen before.

Nellie turned to see what caused it. She saw only a blank wall. "Well, what's the idea? It must have been a swell ghost!"

Maizie didn't hear Nellie, but she could hear Ma's sweet voice saying, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

ONE THING LEADS TO ANOTHER

By HOWARD SPRING

(Copyright: 1940: By Robert Howard Spring.)

I DON'T suppose you know what it is to be a girl like me. Suppose, indeed! There's no suppose about it. You don't.

They talk about emancipation and all that, I'd like some of 'em to live with my father for a week. They'd find out how emancipated they were!

When you're a kid it's not so bad, tho it's not always a joke for a kid if it comes to that. Don't I remember when our Jack used to change at the Traceys' whenever he wanted a game of football? He was on the school team and daft about the game. The team gave him boots and shorts and a jersey, and he'd change at the Traceys', play his game, go back with the Tracey kids to change again, and then come home.

All because games were sinful! When father found out and tanned him black and blue Mr. Tracey came around and told Dad to be reasonable. "After all, Mr. Loftus, we're not living in the Middle Ages."

"A pity we're not," was all father said to old Tracey, and bawled to me: "You come in, Carrie, I won't have my children making a playground of the streets."

There was no other playground, I can tell you, but every Sunday afternoon we went for a walk in the country. We took the tram as far as it would go, wet or fine, and then we walked. Jack and I walked together, and father and mother walked about ten yards behind us. Father always wore his bowler hat and mother always carried her umbrella.

They never spoke to one another, just marched side by side like soldiers, and Jack and I had to march like soldiers, too. If we spoke in loud voices mother would say: "Don't shout!" and if we spoke quietly father would say: "What are you two conspiring about?"

Once Jack shouted: "A thrush's nest!" and father said: "Never mind thrushes' nests. You're out for exercise."

When Jack was 17 years old and I was 12 father came downstairs one day and said: "Who's been smoking in the washroom?"

Jack said: "Is it forbidden?"

I thought father was going to have a stroke. Not that I knew anything about strokes, but his face went first red, then purple, and he looked as if he was trying to swallow something that was sticking in his throat. At last he said: "That remark was a defiance, my boy."

Jack said quietly: "I just want to know where I can smoke, that's all."

"You won't smoke so long as you're under my roof," said father. "If you want to smoke, you'd better not darken my door."

Brother Jack Walks Out for Good

Yes, actually these words in the year 1923! "Darken my door." Jack took a packet of cigarets out of his pocket, lit one and walked out into the passage. It was a fine summer evening. We heard the door bang, and mother said: "My Lord'll be back soon. Don't worry about him."

That's where she was wrong, and then they had only me.

As I say, I was 12 then, and when I was 17 they sent me to a secretarial college. The first day I was there, mother came as far as the door with me. Before we got there she had shown me where I must buy a pot of tea to drink with the sandwiches she had put up for my lunch. "And mind you go straight back to the college, and don't talk to strangers." She was waiting for me when the day's work at the college was ended, and took me safely home.

I didn't tell her that I had seen Jack. He said he'd screw my neck if I mentioned his name. But there he was in that café where I'd gone to eat my sandwiches. I walked in feeling very awkward, because, say what you like, those places don't like people who order a pot of tea and then unpack sandwiches on the table.

I didn't have to do that, because there Jack was, sitting at a table not far from mine. He got up at once and came across and said: "Well! If it isn't little Carrie!"

For a moment I didn't recognize him. He was beautifully dressed and had a small dark curling moustache, but I soon tumbled to him, and believe me I was glad!

"You come and eat with me and Doris," he said, and he took me across to the girl who was sitting at his table. I hadn't known she was with him, and she gave me a thrill, I can tell you. Everything about her was just what I should have liked everything about me to be. But there! I had already begun to wear spectacles, and if I'd used rouge like her, mother and father would have thought I'd taken the wrong turning.

But Doris was all right, and even if I had unpacked my sandwiches I'm sure she would not have said anything. But I kept them out of sight, because Jack said: "Well, what are you having? You'd better have it on me."

So I had saddle of mutton and red currant jelly and all sorts of things, ending up with an enormous ice in three or four colors. You never saw such a thing. Jack said I'd evidently been color-starved. "She'd better come round and see us some night, Doris," he said.

It was only then that it dawned on me that they were married. It seemed incredible. Jack was nothing but a big boy when I saw him last, but there the wedding ring was all right on Doris' finger.

What a day! What a lunch! I seemed to learn one surprising thing after another. Now it seemed that Jack was quite well off. Doris was his boss' daughter, and what I want to tell you is this: Jack never did go home, I never did tell father and mother that I was seeing him, but I did see him and Doris and the two children they had in due course, and this went on for eight years.

Strange Interview with Mr. Hunnable

Of course, I'd finished with the secretarial college long ago and got a job, and the joke was that I was Jack's secretary. Mother was just how I'd expected her to be when I said I'd been offered a post, and she insisted that she must see my prospective employer before I took the job. So Jack arranged for old Hunnable, his venerable white haired father-in-law, to conduct the interview, and everything went off well.

Mother almost held my hand as we walked up the stairs and across the office to Mr. Hunnable's room, and there was Doris sitting at a typewriter and pretending to be the old man's secretary who was sacked and working out a week's notice. She just had to come to see the fun and to hear mother telling Mr. Hunnable what a good home I came from and how I was unused to the temptations of a city life. She had on the most seductive dress and sheer stockings and lipstick.

"Please leave us alone a moment, Miss Lavalliere," old Hunnable said to Doris, and she had to go, making a grimace at him behind mother's back for this dirty trick in spoiling the fun for her.

"Sit down, Mrs. Loftus," he said. And then he sighed and pointed to the door Doris had gone thru and said: "I hope your daughter won't give me the anxiety I've had from that one, Mrs. Loftus. I suppose a certain freedom must be allowed to young ladies nowadays, but really one must draw the line somewhere, and Miss Lavalliere is too often inclined to draw it above the knee."

Mother bridled at the mere mention of knees, and looked severely at my black lisle stockings and said: "I've brought Carrie up sensibly, Mr. Hunnable. You'll have none of that nonsense with her."

"They begin well, Mrs. Loftus," said Mr. Hunnable. "But they develop, they develop."

"Well, you let me know, sir, if there are any developments in that line with Carrie," mother said. "I shall know how to deal with it. You remember, my girl, shorthand and typewriting are what you're here for."

They were, and I had plenty of them. Jack earned his pay, and he made me earn mine. It wasn't easy at first to keep the secret at home, and one night when I blurted out Jack, I just managed in time to convert it into Jackson, and this Jackson thereafter was very useful to me. I told plenty of tales about him. He became a bit of a card, and I think mother wished I had nothing

Grooming Is the Foundation of Hand Beauty

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

THE exacting twentieth century standards of beauty impose equal obligations on the Judy O'Gradys and the colonels' ladies. There are no class distinctions where good grooming is concerned.

Consider hands, for example. The hand that rocks the cradle, washes the dishes, or thumps out a hundred perfectly typed letters in a day is expected to be every bit as well groomed as the utterly idle hand of the sybarite.

There was a time when the accolade of beauty was denied the hand that wasn't soft, white, tiny, and rather helpless looking. That's all changed now. The shape and size of a woman's hand are not particularly important as long as the bone structure is proportionate, the nails well groomed, and the skin endowed with what Shakespeare described as the "white wonder" of dear Juliet's.

Hands unfailingly reflect the care they receive, or the lack of it. And hands are like bodies: well tended, they preserve their youthful appearance and flexibility; neglected, they age dismally.

Hands that are much in water will coarsen and redden if the oil sapped from the skin is not faithfully replaced. Hands should be protected from the drying out process whenever possible. Housewives should use rubber gloves whenever feasible, and should remember that harsh soaps or other cleansing agents take a dreadful toll of hand beauty. Drying the hands imperfectly is a bad habit into which the busy housewife falls too easily. Damp hands will chap quickly.

The best and simplest program of hand care is to use bland soap, a good lotion after each washing, and a rich cream at night, when one can spare the time for a rather leisurely massage, but perhaps the most important feature of this program is regularity. Following it in spurts will not be too helpful. Your aim should be to prevent hand skin trouble, and this program will do it.

In soaps, if the skin is extremely sensitive, one of the excellent superfatted choices is a good investment. In hard water districts water softeners always pay beauty dividends.

Tastes vary in creams and lotions. What one woman uses with the utmost satisfaction sometimes proves completely unsatisfactory to another. But all women demand that the lotion or cream that is used several times a day dry quickly, leaving no sticky residue, and that it protect the hand skin somewhat and soften it as well.

One new lotion on the market that meets all these requirements is literally a liquid cream, shell pink and very faintly scented. Used regularly, it keeps the hands soft and smooth. It may also be used as a body lotion, a distinct advantage in cold weather, when so many women, and men as well, suffer from bath itch.

In using this lotion it must be remembered that a little is better than a lot. A few drops on the hands will do the trick. To use too much is waste of material and of motion, and prolongs the drying time. Use it sparingly and work it in quickly but well.

Husbands Know Little of Home Finances

By Doris Blake

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"WE are a couple of perfectly good wives and homemakers, working away at our jobs and putting a lot of heart and enthusiasm into them. We like men. We like our husbands. We think other women's husbands are all right, too. BUT we, together with a few other marrieds we know intimately, do feel that the other sex needs a bit of public instruction on the financial running of households. We say 'public instruction' advisedly, because the men get enough private hints and attempts at correction, if not bawlings-out now and then. But men simply do not seem to be able to separate the problem from their own queer, shortsighted prejudices about money.

"Understand us. We are not saying these men are miserly or picayune. Our feeling is that they simply will not view the expense of home management with the same sense of economics they would have to apply in a business capacity. To be more specific, let us quote one instance with which we happen to be familiar:

"This husband, who, as Noel Coward might say, shall remain nameless, goes ahead and spends money on things he really could do without, and should do without, since his wife is terribly short changed on her end of the deal. He is a nice man, too, really! But, he argues out of his ignorance and inexperience with household upkeep (Continued on Page 2.)

Child's Desire to Touch Is Natural One

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

IS your little son or daughter at the "touching" age, the inquisitive, curious age? Are you in doubt as to how to proceed so that he or she will not be destructive at home or when visiting, so that he or she will not be a "meddlesome Mattie"? Or are you more thoughtful than that, wanting to give your child every chance to develop, but still not quite sure of your ground? Perhaps it will help you if we talk about it today.

A baby comes to know the world into which he is born thru his five senses. Before he can walk, even before he can creep, four of his senses can develop. While he is still little enough to be kept in one place four of his senses can help to acquaint him with this new world. His sense of sight, his sense of hearing, his sense of taste, and his sense of smell all can have plenty of practice. But it is only when he is able to creep and walk that his fifth sense, his thirsty sense of touch, can be satisfied. Now at last he has a chance to feel all those things he's been seeing.

We've known so long, we grownups, the stories that our sense of touch tell us that they're stale to us. We've forgotten what a child's sense of touch is like.

To gain even a slight idea of it, sit down at your desk or your bureau drawer, or stand before your mantel, close your eyes, reach out your hands, and touch and lift some of the objects within your reach.

And don't think it strange if I suggest that first you wash your hands and scrub your finger tips in warm water and soap. Clean, newly washed skin is more sensitive, more like the thinner skin of a baby or small child.

Now, then, close your eyes, put your mind in your hands, and reach out. What is this thing I feel, cool and heavy and smooth? A familiar ink bottle. What is this rather heavy, velvety, oblong object with softly rounded edges? A pencil eraser. And this, thin and light, and smooth and crackly? Paper, of course. And what is this rough thing, so heavy that it makes your hand droop? A paper weight.

Or, if you're not at your desk, what are these cold little, smooth little balls that slip on a string and have a nice heavy droop? Your silver beads. Or this sleek, flat object that opens and has round flat objects in it that roll on the floor and clink, and crackly paper? It's your patent leather purse or handbag with coins and a dollar bill which you often see but rarely feel.

Now open your eyes and try to see the world as the baby sees it, a challenge to his sense of touch. To know what things are like, he must feel each one, because he has no experience to go by. You know from experience that glass will feel smooth, metal heavy and cold, cotton light and fluffy. You know from looking at an object what it will feel like, but the baby doesn't. He must touch it.

For that matter, you must, too, when it's an unfamiliar thing. Watch grown people when they're shown something new. They invariably take it in their hands, if they're interested at all. Watch yourself when you go shopping. Don't you touch just about everything you consider buying?

So with the baby, only more so. He must be allowed to take things in his hands. This not only develops his sense of touch—that is, that actual part of his body he feels with—but it develops him mentally, too. And it helps him to relate himself to his world, which at first consists entirely of his home.

So, when a mother asks, "How can I keep my little boy from touching things?" and I say, "Don't," she probably wonders what I'm talking about, what I mean.

Well, what I mean is just that. Let your small boy or girl examine in his or her hands the articles about the house, in the living room, in the kitchen (most fascinating place of all), in the bathroom, and in your bedroom when you are there, too.

If there's anything fragile or perishable, put it out of the baby's reach. But, if he's interested, first hold it for him while he runs his hands over it to satisfy his natural curiosity about it.

Dangerous things, too, have to be put where he can't get them, such as shears and pins. Sometimes for a dangerous thing you can substitute a similar but harmless one, such as providing a pair of small, blunt scissors for large pointed shears.

This same idea of substitution can be carried out with other things. If you must deny a child something he wants to touch, try to give him something else that will interest him. This is not because he needs everything, not because you must never refuse him a thing, but bcause he needs activity, and if he is left blank he may get into something else.

But, as a matter of actual experience, you will find that the baby or near-baby who is not a victim of the eternal "Don't touch!" will be amenable when he is occasionally denied something he wants. It's the constant denial that makes them "get into everything they shouldn't."

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

There's an adage to the effect that one can't have too many aprons. We're banking on the truth of this in presenting these three patterns. You'll want one or all of them, we're sure.

No. 3204 is a one piece dress apron that buttons down the front, has kimono shoulders, and a shirtwaist collar. The only trimming is bias binding and a belt to match. The inexpensive cottons all make up well, but if you're going south this pattern is nice enough to create in wash silk for informal daytime wear.

No. 2144 is a coverall with only straps over the shoulders, eliminating bunchiness when you have a dress beneath it. This model, too, is trimmed only with inexpensive and easy to use bias binding or rickrack braid, and there are two capacious pockets for the linen room keys and other such trifles you must carry around with you.

No. 3136 is a coverall that is open at the sides, giving panel protection front and back without bulk around the sides. The neckline is round and the entire model is trimmed only with binding.

Style No. 3204 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2144 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch material with 4 yards of binding.

Style No. 3136 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 5 yards of binding.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Husbands Know Little About the Home Finances

costs, that his wife spends too much, anyway, and if he isn't extravagant she will be. The bald truth is that bills cropped up on her so that her winter coat money had to be used. Time and again, in order to keep peace in the household, she has converted her modest clothes savings into just such channels. When this woman confessed that she couldn't get a winter coat this year her man said: 'What do you do with all your money, anyway?'

"And that's the sort of thing we mean. Some of us have to laugh, a bit sourly you may imagine, when we hear and read about us spoiled American wives whose husbands see that our bed of roses is always blooming.

"Men, some men and too many of them, have an extraordinarily poor appreciation of food costs and the cost of other features of home maintenance. They never have had to wrestle with it and that is why they remain ignorant

"We could cite another case, not an uncommon one we are led to believe, but this is one with which we are familiar.

"The wife has no idea what her husband's income is. She has asked him, so that she might know better how to budget and control her expenses. Every time money is required for perfectly legitimate household expenses, the poor wretch is made to feel like a mendicant begging for alms. Perhaps these are extreme cases, but there are too many of them. And in between are many grievances nursed by wives who feel money injustice is done them. This certainly does not and cannot add up to compatibility in the home, now can it?

"But we repeat, because we do want to be fair in this money matter, that men simply underestimate the sum required to run a house and home. That is, the kind of men at whom these remarks are aimed. True, there are plenty of women who never know what it is to beg for household food money, nor to have to go without needed clothing rather than face a row. But these are among the blessed on this earth, and there is no doubt that their and their husbands' home life reflects the congenial state.

• • •

"Just one more word, our last word: We appreciate what men are up against, trying to keep face with their brothers on incomes that are none too hearty these days. And we only ask that husbands assume a more friendly attitude when the subject arises; that they stop approaching it with a chip on their shoulders. Wives aren't trying to 'do' them, as the attitude seems to imply; that men try to remember that wives entered the union on a partnership understanding and good partners are what they, the wives, aim to be. From the other side that's all that's asked, too.

[Signed] "Two of Us."

We think, after the foregoing straightforward appeal to husbands, there is little left to be said. If the appeal just registered won't move the money miscreants to a more understanding attitude, we feel they won't be moved, due to a basic character strain of selfishness, if not cruelty, as in cases in which the conscientious homemaker has to plead for what is honestly her rightful share in the partnership.

One educational thought occurs, however. A month of wrestling with a Saturday shopping list in one hand and a bill in the other would come as a walloping surprise to husbands who demand good meals and ask: "What became of all the money I gave you?" We'd wager they'd be groaning, as many a thrifty housewife is heard to groan: "Only staples, vegetables, and fruit, and meat for Sunday, and it's all gone . . . every cent of it."

"That'd larn 'em a few things!" as one might say with more force than elegance.

Every day there is presented, in the feature columns of The Chicago Tribune, a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

A little hard work wouldn't be a bad idea today. That goes for all the birthday children of today, too. Work and more work is the program for the year ahead. You might as well get into the habit right from the start! This won't be a gay year, but it can be important as a foundation for the years ahead. The month of January ought to be stimulating and the freest month of the year. If you hoped to get a winter vacation, now is the time, because the rest of the year will prove more restricting.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Yours truly has her brainstorms once in a while, but most of the time she prefers simple things that are no strain on the observer's imagination or the wearer's purse and figure. Such a stable item is the dress sketched today, which I designed, selfishly enough, for myself only, being weary momentarily of helping roommates to fashion.

The simple bodice of this model gives way to a slender waist and a skirt that is molded at the hips and rather widely flared below the knees. A stitched self fabric belt is used around the waist, with a novelty buckle. My own model is adorned with the frilly collar, but you may have the neckline notched and stitched to match the belt, if you like.

As to the collar, it lends a broad shouldered effect, while clinging high at the throatline, extending to where the sleeves join the shoulders and reaching midway down the bustline. I made the basic collar of white organdy and sewed matching lace ruffles perpendicularly. My dress is black crêpe.

Style No. T-8655 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for dress, ⅝ yard of 35 inch for collar, with 7 yards of lace edging.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

Now that the holidays are over, are you still loathe to part with your Christmas cards? Most of us receive so many and such lovely ones, gay and beautiful, that it seems a shame to consign them to the waste basket. However, if they come in great quantities, as they do in the average home, it is impossible to keep them, cherished as they may be.

If you'd like to have them give pleasure to others, perhaps you'll be interested in the following note, recently received from a nurse in a state hospital for the mentally ill.

Some time ago, thru the generosity of our readers, we were able to provide amusement and pleasure for several of the wards, and Christmas never passes without a greeting of cheer and appreciation from this group of unfortunate persons.

• • •

"My dear Miss Brown: With this card, made by one of the patients, go our best wishes. The man who made it is a talented artist, as you can see, and enjoys sending this message to you.

"May I ask what you do with your Christmas and New Year cards? If you have no use for them, we would be glad to have them. We can make many nice things from them, and the patients who are unable to read always enjoy the pictures and colors. Perhaps your readers also would like to send their discarded cards to us.—Miss H."

In my opinion, there could be no more fitting use for the cordial greetings sent to us by friends.

Because the institution is on the outskirts of the city, collections of cards will have to be mailed. The address will be supplied to any interested reader who will write or telephone to me for it.

• • •

If a new radio came to your home during the holidays, perhaps you would like to give your discarded one, if it is in good condition, to the writer of the following note:

"Dear Miss Brown: As you have been a great benefactor to many people in need who were made happy thru your assistance, I thought possibly you would do a similar favor for me.

"Being all alone and virtually blind, I have been wishing for a small radio, which would relieve my loneliness and more or less keep me company. If, by chance, any reader has a small one which has been discarded for a larger or more modern one, I would be very thankful to have it. It would surely bring cheer into my gloomy life.—A. S."

This address is on the near north side of the city.

Perhaps some reader who has a discarded set of drums can fill this mother's request on behalf of her son.

"You have helped so many, I wonder if you would help my boy, who is 16 years old and very much interested in drums. A discarded instrument would mean so much to him, as he is now in third year high school, and has played in both the orchestra and the band. You see, there are seven children in the family, and my husband earns less than $15 a week. We can just barely make ends meet, so we have no way of helping him. An instructor has taken an interest in him, and will give him extra lessons. He is such a good boy that it makes us feel bad to be unable to help him.—Mrs. M."

Pockets Are the Big News in Trim Frock from Paris

By Bettina Bedwell.

One of the big things in Paris fashions during this midseason is pockets. We say "big" advisedly and literally, because they ARE large. During these war days in France women are carrying more articles about with them than they used to, so pockets are more than mere decoration. They're utilitarian. This dress is one of the more recent Paris designs sent over, and it has the big pockets. You'll like 'em for style, if not for carrying "things and stuff."

The dress has a severely plain bodice with no collar. Sleeves that are rather puffed at the shoulders narrow until, at the wrists, they are snugly fitted. The frock has a corsetiere waistline and a full skirt below molded hipline.

In crêpe, satin, velvet, and sheer woolen, it's a dress you can wear everywhere. Your costume jewelry will look grand against its black or colorful background.

Style No. 5328 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for long sleeved version.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Frothy White Neckwear Has Winter Appeal

By Rhea Seeger.

Touches of white are the never-failing bit of magic that successfully revives the most dejected dark dress, suit, or ensemble. After weeks of shine and glitter, sequins, gold braid, metallics and other dazzling trim, all exquisitely groomed women welcome the new fresh, crisp, white sheer collars, cuffs, boleros, and intricate biblike finds in the neckwear assortments, new stuff, designed by a most understanding genius for the needs of the great American uniform, the daytime outfit of silk, wool, or combines of both. Only a designer with the knowledge of what we wear from dawn to dusk for office, for shopping, for afternoon and dress parade clothes could present such telling wisps of white.

Sheer whiffs of organdy, very decorative affairs in embroidered organdy, smart white piqué, or soft pastels, nets, tucked sheers, others with fine handwork, fanciful ideas made with scrolls of the material, fagoting, feather-stitching and beautiful bits of embroidery . . . all these details make the newest lingerie touches for the midwinter wardrobes. Frills, lace, ribbon, bows, embroidery, cascades of sheer material in picturesque jabots, stiff charmers such as the ruffs of the Elizabethan courtiers, frail, lovely, plaited effects, lacey concoctions with thread-thin tucks, mark all the flattering feminine models.

Stark white piqué, tailored precisely, double layers of organdy, likewise Puritan plain but most effective, cross-barred swisses and scalloped outlines in crisp nets make the swanky tailored finds for simple daytime dresses.

What these fine white edgings, the shallow collars, the narrow cuffs do for the rejuvenation of otherwise dull and dated dresses is something that makes one's reputation as a fastidiously groomed individual.

Smart, crisp bows are used for chest pocket accent, or employed in threes down the center closing of a prim, dark, wool jacket, or tucked under the chin to fasten a round collar. Biblike collars transform a dress completely. These come in piqués, in double organdies primly plain, or in more decorative models made with insets of lace and insertion combined with tucked sheer materials.

Short or long jabots consist of flat affairs with a row of tiny buttons down the center or the foamy cascades of fine organdy edged with lace, or the plain organdy with bound edges. Old-fashioned effects made with what is called quilling look like intricate, plaited chest frills, and are used for low neckline suit jackets, where they frill out as the smart accent in white.

Round collars, square-cut affairs, mere outline edgings, and duets of collar and matching cuffs provide distracting and flattering trim for plain dark wool dresses or for winter silk crêpes. As frosting for such winter clothes they have no equal.

Another good way to revive and change a dark dress is with crisp, short boleros. These are plentiful in piqué, of varying weaves and textures, in double layered organdies and in some exceptionally beautiful new white sheers with applique trim of white taffeta. Eyelet embroidery is used for both bolero jackets and the many effective collar and cuff sets as well as in the biblike collars that sometimes extend down to the belt.

Piqué vestees, fake fronts, tie-on plastrons, sleeveless blouses such as the old-fashioned guimpe and waistcoats come in white as well as pastel shades for suit jackets. Some of these waistcoats feature perfectly tailored details such as flat pockets, turnover collars, or the tailored, notched collar and dashing wide lapels.

All kinds of lace cuffs and tiny round collars, from the luxurious and never old Irish crochet to the swank eyelet embroidery and the whitest of point Venise, offer everything for white costume frosting. Dimities in ribbed designs, or the fine cross-bar, are used for the sheer stuff in semi-tailored simplicity. Whatever is new, all the best assortments are worth a shopping trip. The new showings are most complete.

Crocheted Penguin Toy

By Ellen Bruce.

Here is the most amusing fellow in the world, also one of the most silent! Crocheted in black and white knitting worsted, this penguin is the perfect playfellow for a child. When completed the toy is over 12 inches tall and requires a half pound of kapok stuffing. It is not difficult to crochet this bird, and he will afford many hours of companionship to any child fortunate enough to receive him as a gift.

For instructions in crocheting the penguin, No. X-405, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Wartime France Gives Economy Foods Glamor

By Mary Meade.

How are the French, a people renowned for their excellent food, meeting the cooking and eating emergencies brought about by war?

First, they are dropping, "for the duration," their most exotic dishes and are turning to the cheaper vegetables and meat cuts. But the food is not unappetizing—not at all! Stimulated by the necessity for strict economy and inspired by patriotism, French cooks are glorifying the plainest foods with those masterly touches of perfect seasoning for which they are famous.

• • •

Dried vegetables, haricots, flageolets [both of these resemble our dried kidney beans], lentils, split peas, pois chiches [chick peas], are no fun if they are simply boiled. Here is how the typical French housewife prepares them:

First she washes and soaks the dried vegetable. Then she adds salt, pepper, and "a bouquet of parsley, thyme, and bay leaf" [these herbs are half the secret of her success], boils the beans until tender, drains them of all but a tablespoonful or two of the liquor, and adds a little butter, olive oil, and chopped parsley. The finished dish is simmered for a short time and served by itself or as an accompaniment for a meat dish.

The idea is simple enough for the American housewife to follow. Dried beans and peas of all kinds may be treated in similar fashion.

• • •

Dried beans also are used by the French in many soups. With the plain, everyday parsnip and dried beans plus that so necessary "bouquet" of herbs, the French cook creates something very delicious.

Potage de Fèves.

[As the French prepare it.]

Have some broad beans cooked and soft. Take also two or three parsnips, cut them in pieces and cook in butter for a few minutes. Add them to the beans with a bouquet of rosemary, thyme, and parsley, and simmer together about three-quarters of an hour.

When both parsnips and beans are really soft, mash them well and pound them in a mortar or thru a sieve. Put the purée in a saucepan, add enough of the stock to dilute it a little, and cook a little longer.

Six minutes before serving, bring it to the boiling point and throw in a little vermicelli. Be sure that it is highly seasoned, and serve.

Dried bean salads also are popularly used in wartime France. A French dressing of salt, pepper, oil, and vinegar, a little chopped onion and parsley are added, and the salad is allowed to stand for an hour so that the seasonings are well blended.

The American housewife may take a tip from the French cook. It isn't the food you prepare, it's how you prepare it, or, to be more exact, how you season it, that determines the appetite appeal of a dish.

Popular Cardigan Waistcoat

By Jean Macdonald.

The cardigan waistcoat is one of the most popular types of sweaters chosen by the outdoor enthusiast. For skiing and ice skating, worn under a heavy jacket or to be worn after the activity is over, this waistcoat may be knitted of heavy four ply Scotch worsted, or fine three ply Scotch fingering. Buttons may be of the novelty variety or simple, and in matching or contrasting colors. Instructions are available in sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the cardigan waistcoat, No. X-411, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Some Elegant Meals May Be Taken from Can

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We seem to be progressing rapidly toward a time when the family's food will be prepared by specialists and delivered to the back door ready to eat, three times a day. Already the housewife does her mixing by electricity, her baking by scientific oven control, and has upon her shelves canned and packaged foods which make her dinner getting tasks as simple as she wants them to be.

I, for one, hope that the time never comes when cooking is taken entirely out of the home. "Home, sweet home," would be much less sweet without mother.

But it's a fact that cooking has been made easy, so easy that sometimes there's more difficulty in planning a meal than in executing it once there is a menu to serve as guide. Look at these three menus, if you don't believe me. There's not much work here for a cook, is there?

DINNERS UTILIZING PREPARED AND SEMI-PREPARED FOODS.

I.

Chilled Canned Cocktail Fruits

Canned Shoestring Potatoes
Buttered Canned or Frozen Corn
Muffins from Prepared Mix
Canned Pear Salad
Butterscotch Pudding from

Packaged Vanilla Wafers

Compare the time it would take you to get one of these meals with the time it would take if the food weren't already prepared or partly prepared. If, for example, you had to prepare and combine your own fruit cocktail in the first menu, bake one of the old fashioned salt hams which required a soaking overnight previous to all day in the oven, peel and boil the potatoes, clean and trim the broccoli [a mean job!], make the delicate Hollandaise sauce [a tricky piece of cookery], make biscuits, cake and sauce from the beginning.

Instead, you pour chilled cocktail fruit from a can, merely heat ham and precooked potatoes. The broccoli is all cleaned for you. From the package it goes into boiling salted water and cooks quickly. Only milk is added to the biscuit mix, only water to the cake.

Women who do not find cooking to their liking, busy working women, busy mothers, and ordinary housewives at times find prepared foods such as are included in these menus of considerable help. Usually one wouldn't plan a meal consisting entirely of such items, for it's more fun to do at least a part of the actual preliminary preparation oneself, when there's time.

As a reminder of the many different kinds of prepared foods available, many of them valuable assets for cupboard shelves where they may await the next household cooking emergency, I'm going to list a few.

PREPARED FOODS FOR EASY MEALS.

APPETIZERS: Fruit and vegetable juices, fruit nectars, fruit cocktail mixes, canned consommes, bouillons, cream soups, vegetable soups, antipasto in jars.

DINNER COURSE: Cooked and canned hams, canned boneless chicken, canned meats, canned chili con carne, chop suey, spaghetti with meat balls, baked beans, Irish stew, beef stew. Sweet potatoes are canned plain and in sirup. White potatos are canned plain, shoestring, and creamed. A cheese manufacturer has a packaged quick macaroni and cheese product. Frozen and canned vegetables of all kinds might be named.

SALADS: Mixed fruits for salad, canned macaroni and potato salads, all kinds of salad dressings.

BREADS: Canned brown bread, date-nut bread, canned buttermilk biscuits ready-to-bake, packaged biscuit, muffin, waffle, pancake, gingerbread mixes.

DESSERTS: Packaged butterscotch, vanilla, chocolate pudding mixes, white cake, chocolate cake, spice cake mixes, frosting mixes, canned plum puddings, fig pudding, ice cream powders, liquid mixes and gingerbread mixes in cans also are good desserts with sauces or whipped cream.

SAUCES: Brandy flavored dessert sauces, chocolate sauce, marshmallow sauce, Hollandaise sauce for vegetables, tartar sauce for fish and numerous meat sauces come in cans and bottles.

This list could be extended a great deal. The products listed are simply examples of their class of prepared food items.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

The two patterns for juveniles today are simple to make and require only a minimum of inexpensive material, so that you may make both of them for your small daughter's wardrobe. No. 2915 is a jumper model with sturdy, comfortable shoulders, square neckline, snug bodice, and shirred skirt. The blouse has a neckline shirred onto a ribbon, and the short sleeves are puffed. In cottons, wash silks, challis, and light weight woolens this costume is practical as well as pretty. The heart motif applique is included in the pattern.

No. 2908 fashions a loosely fitted one piece dress with Peter Pan collar, puffed kimono sleeves, buttons down the front, and patch pockets. The materials mentioned in connection with the other model also are suitable for this one.

Style No. 2915 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1¼ yards of 35 inch material for jumper, ¾ yard of 39 inch fabric for blouse.

Style No. 2908 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting for dress and matching panties.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex; NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern ad the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Versatile Transfer Pattern

By Nancy Cabot.

This gay and active miss from Mississippi makes a colorful decoration on tea towels. She may be used also for motifs for children's rooms or for hot pads in the kitchen, for there is no end to her versatility. She is embroidered almost entirely in cross-stitch.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the "Miss from Mississippi," No. X-624, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

To Relieve Bad Cough, Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

FAMOUS CIGARETTES

● WHEN YOU HOLD one of the new Pall Mall in your fingers, you will immediately sense the added distinction the longer size confers on this traditionally smart cigarette.

But more important, as you will see for yourself, the additional length travels the smoke further, and gives you a noticeably cooler and smoother cigarette—thus enhancing the rich flavor of the superb Pall Mall tobaccos.

Ed Sullivan Picks The STARS of 1940!

New Voices and New Faces!

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

WHAT NEW STARS will the movies uncover in 1940? Quien sabe? In other words, who knows? It takes a great deal of luck to make a movie star—the right studio, the right picture, the right rôle, the right director. Put them all together and the result is a movie star. The spectacular 1939 rise to fame of young Jane Bryan illustrates this.

Take, for instance, the case of Vivien Leigh, elevated to stardom by "Gone with the Wind." America had seen her as the college campus flirt in "Yank at Oxford" and dismissed her as an interesting actress. Yet because she was lucky enough to visit the Selznick studios after they'd tested every actress in the business, she won the most coveted rôle of 1939 and became a great star.

Certainly 1940 will find Ingrid Bergman vaulted to movie stardom as the result of "Intermezzo—A Love Story." The Swedish girl will become a star because you movie fans liked her nontheatrical appearance, her youth, and her charm. Ida Lupino, as a result of "The Light That Failed," may become a star IF (and it's a large "if") she can change her style of work. I'm thinking of Andrea Leeds, a sensation two years ago in "Stage Door." We all agreed that Andrea would be a star the next season, but, unfortunately for us and for her, she continued to play the same scene in each succeeding picture. Instead of going on to greater things Miss Leeds continued to do business at the same old melodramatic stand.

In Deanna Durbin's last picture Newcomer Robert Stack won critical attention. He was young and handsome and had an ingratiating smile. He should carry on to stardom because Hollywood's crying need is for male stars. But it is not always up to the performer. Two years ago Jon Hall scored in "Hurricane," and we predicted a great future for him. Yet Hall, because Sam Goldwyn hasn't had another picture since then, has been idle for two years, and things like this indicate on what an uncertain foundation stardom is built.

The Englishman Who Rules America!

Amazing Story of How One Man Turned New Deal Into Frenzy of Spending

By REUBEN CAHN

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT said that if he was named President over Herbert Hoover he would cut the expenses of the government and balance the budget—"for a nation which persists in spending more than income, courts disaster."

As President, he followed his announced program—for about 3 months. In that period he was doing about as good a job of retrenching and pay roll pruning as could have been hoped for. For 3 months, one-quarter of a year, one-sixteenth of his first term, President Roosevelt was the kind of a President he said he was going to be. And then—

In the most amazing turn to of all times he began to authorize large increases in disbursements and additions to the pay rolls. Within a few months the scale of outgo had far exceeded that which he had savagely criticized in his predecessor's regime.

A deficit was no longer a national catastrophe, but an even larger one was a national blessing. Before the economies which he had brought about could take effect, before he had a chance to find prosperity in one direction, he had reversed himself and was seeking it in a direction diametrically opposite.

How come? Who made a prodigal out of the President who promised economy and balanced accounts and began to keep his promises? This article attempts to supply the answer. It wasn't Moley or Tugwell or any of the others who had been associated in campaign speechmaking, nor was it Corcoran or Cohen or any of their contemporaries. The man who turned Mr. Roosevelt from the path of economy, and who thus probably affected the course of American finance more than any other man since Alexander Hamilton, was a super brain truster. It was a Britisher, John Maynard Keynes, who by captivating Mr. Roosevelt with his views, led the President to repudiate the platform on which he was proceeding in the spring of 1933.

The views which Mr. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for President in 1932, held about public spending, budget balancing and the relationship of the two to economic recovery were set forth in speeches which have been reprinted in Volume I. of the set of books entitled "The Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Mr. Roosevelt in the fall of 1932 believed that the government under President Hoover was spending too much. The excessive expenditures of the federal government he asserted were having a harmful effect upon the country. To maintain a deficit more than a year was to court disaster, he thought. A few extracts from several of Mr. Roosevelt's speeches will make it clear that these were his beliefs then. The page references below are to Volume I. of his "Public Papers."

• • •

"Any government, like any family, can for a year spend a little more than it earns. But you and I know that a continuation of that habit means the poorhouse."—(Page 663.)

• • •

"What I should like to do is to reduce insofar as possible the problem of our national finances to the terms of a family budget. The credit of the family depends chiefly on whether that family is living within its income. And that is equally true of the nation. If the nation is living within its income, its credit is good. If, in some crises, it lives beyond its income for a year to two, it can usually borrow temporarily at reasonable rates. But if, like a spendthrift, it throws discretion to the winds, and is willing to make no sacrifice at all in spending; if it extends its taxing to the limit of the people's power to pay and continues to pile up deficits, then it is on the road to bankruptcy."—(Pages 796-797.)

• • •

"Would it not be infinitely better to clear this whole subject of obscurity, to present the facts squarely to the congress and to the people of the United States, and to secure the one sound foundation of permanent economic recovery—a complete and honest balancing of the federal budget?"—(Page 807.)

• • •

"I regard reduction in federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign. In my opinion it is the most direct and effective contribution that government can make to business."—(Page 809.)

During the campaign Mr. Roosevelt quoted approvingly the following plank in the Democratic party platform of 1932:

"An immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus and eliminating extravagance, to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government, and we call upon the Democratic party in the states to make a zealous effort to achieve a proportionate result. Maintenance of the national credit by a federal budget annually balanced on the basis of accurate executive estimates within revenues, raised by a system of taxation levied on its principle of ability to pay."

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau . . . "we deliberately used an unbalanced budget."

Taking office after declaring his great passion for economy and a balanced budget, President Roosevelt lost no time in proving that he meant it. Less than a week after his inauguration, even before the banks reopened, he sent a message to congress requesting authority to effect "drastic economies in government." Concluding that message, the President said: "I ask that this legislation go into effect at once, without even waiting for the beginning of the next fiscal year. I give you assurance that if this is done, there is a reasonable prospect that within a year the income of the government will be sufficient to cover the expenditures of the government."

Having obtained the legislation he sought, Mr. Roosevelt at once began to economize. In the first four months of his administration expenditures were 25 million dollars less than in the same period of 1932. Nineteen thousand federal civilian jobs were eliminated. Mr. Roosevelt was acting like the kind of a President he said he was going to be.

Then something happened, and the President completely reversed himself. After cutting the civilian pay roll down by 19,000 he proceeded to restore not only that many jobs but by the end of the year 20,000 besides. Subsequently he has added 300,000.

In the six months before the election, expenditures of the government were running between 250 and 350 million dollars a month. These Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate had declared were excessive. Mr. Roosevelt pared these down a bit in his first months of office, but then he began boosting the outgo so that within a year Mr. Roosevelt was spending twice as much as the amount he thought was too much when Mr. Hoover was doing the spending. Speaking at the Academy of Political Science late in 1937, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who is said to be closer to the President than anyone else, said that "we deliberately used an unbalanced budget during the past four years."

The explanation of this electric abandonment of a policy of balancing the budget for one of deliberately unbalancing it is that the President came under the influence of John Maynard Keynes, the first economist to advocate that a depressed nation should spend its way back to prosperity. Mr. Keynes is an Englishman.

The President's infatuation with Mr. Keynes' doctrine must have been love at first sight. For a Keynes booklet entitled "The Road to Prosperity" setting forth the spending argument in popular form came out in April, 1933, and from May onward, according to Raymond Moley, who ought to know, in "After 7 Years," the President's views seemed to approximate those expressed by Keynes. From that time on he came to regard deficits not as an evil to be avoided but as a good to be sought after. And from the end of summer onward, the pay rolls increased and the outgo of money was stepped up in keeping with the Keynes doctrine.

So closely did the President's views of finance correspond with Keynes', that Moley, the President's personal representative at the London International economic conference, invited Keynes to assist in framing for the conference a statement of the President's position for the conference. It is significant that when the President on July 3, 1933, dispatched the message which wrecked the London conference, only one voice, Keynes', was heard to approve. He described what the President had done as "magnificently right."

Keynes, the Britisher who made a spendthrift out of one who had been determined to cut expenses to the bone, is a professor at Cambridge university, one of England's two most celebrated institutions of higher learning. He was barely 30 when he became assistant to Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer in Lloyd George's war government. That his relations there were not wholly happy is indicated by what Lloyd George says of him in the second volume of his war memoirs: "The chancellor's nerve was shaken by these vaticinations of his chief adviser, Mr. J. M. Keynes. The latter was much too mercurial and impulsive a counsellor for a great emergency. He dashed at conclusions with acrobatic ease. It made things no better that he rushed into opposite conclusions with the same agility. He is an entertaining economist whose bright but shallow dissertations on finance and political economy, when not taken seriously, always provide a source of innocent merriment to his readers."

In 1919, Keynes went to the Paris peace conference as the chief representative of the British treasury and the chancellor of the exchequer's deputy on the supreme economic council. He became a world figure when he severed his connection with the British delegation and wrote a book of sensational interest about the peace conference and those who took part in it. In that book, "Economic Consequences of the Peace," he asserted that the treaty of Versailles had bankrupted Germany beyond possibility of recovery, and had created a European muddle which was bound to have appalling consequences. He said that the treaty meant ruin to every country in continental Europe. Such views of the conference from one who had participated in it as a representative of the British government were bound to be read avidly thruout the world. And his devastating characterizations of President Wilson, Clemenceau, and Lloyd George widened the influence of his book.

Keynes was proved right in his judgment about Versailles. As the truth of the treaty came to be appreciated he became a best seller and one of the most highly paid British journalists. A ready improviser and a skilful writer, he unfailingly had an answer for every world problem. But the hard-headed men who have been at the helm in Great Britain were not willing to put into practice the fine sounding theories of the Cambridge professor.

So little regard did the British have for the schemes of Keynes that he refers to himself as a "Cassandra, who could never influence the course of events in time." Cassandra was the daughter of King Priam, to whom Apollo in a moment of infatuation gave the art of prophecy, but becoming angry at her, willed that her prophecies should go unheeded. Altho Keynes' influence on British government is nil he is a power at Cambridge. Having married Lydia Lopokova, the beautiful Russian ballerina, he was able to get the ballet revived at the university.

Fortunate it is for Britain that it did not try some of his plans. For many of them have not even stood up when examined abstractly. Prof. Alvin Hansen, now of Harvard university, formerly a Rooseveltian braintruster, and a Keynesian pump primer, has effectively criticized several points in the Keynes doctrine. He has this to say about those who have punctured holes in Keynes' pump priming:

"The critics may well, however, be wary of assuming too much credit for the author's abandonment of the edifice so elaborately constructed only 6 years before. For Mr. Keynes is one of those rare and delighted spirits who find it quite impossible to live happily for long in contemplation of old ideas, even tho those ideas are his own. He must forever be exploring new frontiers and evolving new weights and new solutions."

His infidelity to propositions which he has stoutly asserted must have caused the New Deal some dismay. Keynes had described the Rooseveltian gold policy as "magnificently right" when it was adopted during the London conference as a means of raising prices. But not six months later he characterized as "foolish" the idea "that there is a mathematical relation between the price of gold and the price of other things."

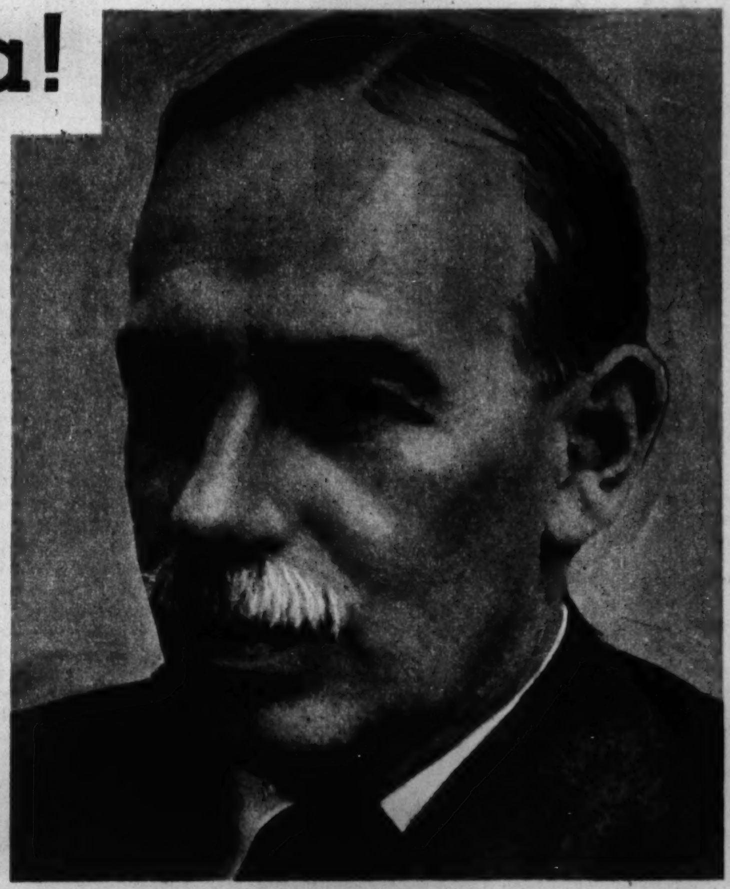
Keynes' general proposition which the government began to follow about the middle of 1933 was that increased expenditures of a government in a depression become multiplied in passing thru the economic system and thus lead to increases in the national income many times the original government outlay. He specifically declared that if the United States would spend 400 million dollars per month more than was required to carry on its ordinary functions, an upward spiral of business would be started which would culminate in full restoration of prosperity.

This was the reasoning which persuaded President Roosevelt to become a spender instead of an economizer. That the pump priming plan has failed even after nearly 7 years of it is an established fact. Altho the debt of the government has been boosted nearly 20 billion in following Keynes' theory, expenditures are still maintained at 3 times the level which prevailed when President Roosevelt took office.

What is even more surprising is that when President Roosevelt was authorized to employ six $10,000 a year men "with a passion for anonymity," he chose as his financial assistant Lauchlin Currie, an unceasing advocate of spending and credited with being the best qualified interpreter of Keynes in America.

Recently Keynes proposed a war tax plan for Great Britain, by which substantially all individual incomes above a low minimum would be taken by the government. A part, as now, would be taken as tax and the rest as a forced loan. The bonds evidencing the forced loan would not be salable until after the war was over.

Great Britain's war needs are great, but that she will socialize the nation's income, make a low standard of living uniform and cut off all businesses from access to new capital is doubtful. The British aren't going communistic—yet. But any proposal of this British apostle of the pump has to be considered seriously in the United States, for Keynes' influence upon our national administration has been and still is very great. Any man who can divert a nation from a policy of economy to one of spending 22 billions of borrowed money on a theory is a man always to be watched and feared.



John Maynard Keynes, the British economist.

Absolute Altimeter Has Arrived

By WAYNE THOMIS

A NUMBER of the larger commercial air lines have ordered for service tests Western Electric absolute altimeters—radio indicators that measure accurately the distance between an airplane and the ground beneath it. These orders indicate that the development of one of aviation's most needed instruments has progressed to the place where it soon will be ready for regular use.

In 1936 this department described the first fumbling experiments that promised the ultimate success of the absolute radio altimeter. Last year another instrument developed by Bell laboratories and United Air Lines was also described in this department.

The need for an absolute altimeter is basic. The ordinary aneroid altimeter is merely a barometer calibrated to measure heights in relation to sea level. This altimeter does not indicate to a pilot the distance between his plane and the ground below it—mountains, rivers, valleys, etc. And the aneroid altimeter is seriously affected by changes in temperature, humidity, and pressure. With present-day speeds and ranges these inaccuracies are multiplied.

Let us look at a concrete illustration. Suppose a plane takes off from Newark, N. J., airport at virtually sea level for Pittsburgh, Pa. The pilot climbs until his altimeter says he is 3,500 feet above sea level. But the mountains rise under him, and if he maintained that height all the way he well might strike some of the peaks that rise to 4,000 feet just east of Pittsburgh. When landing at Pittsburgh airport the altimeter still will register 1,100 feet.

When you consider that many present-day flights are made thru cloud and fog it can readily be understood how great is the need for an instrument showing the actual height of the plane above the ground. Indeed, it becomes a life-saving instrument, for in the past many aircraft accidents have been caused by pilots flying into mountains in snow squalls or cloud. If the absolute altimeter had been functioning aboard these ships, pilots would have known that they were perilously close to terrain.

There is a kinship between the absolute altimeter and the sonic depth finder as used by ocean-going vessels. But the altimeter is using a radio wave. Stated in its simplest form, the airplane sends out a radio wave that speeds to the ground, rebounds, and is picked up again by a receiver. The time interval taken for that wave to travel from ship to ground and return is measured and interpreted for the pilot in feet.

Essentially the altimeter is a complete radio station. It includes a low-powered ultra-high-frequency transmitter and receiver, a power unit, transmitting and receiving antennas, and an electrometer calibrated in feet. The transmitter sends out signals on a wave length that is varied 60 times a second between 420 and 445 million cycles. This is the highest frequency that has ever been put to practical use.

The transmitter antenna radiates its output downward. The receiver antenna is arranged so that a minimum amount of direct wave is received from the transmitter and a maximum of the reflected wave from the ground is picked up. The direct and reflected signals are directed to a detector circuit in the receiver.

The frequency of the alternating current from the output of this detector is equal to the instantaneous difference in frequency existing between the direct and reflected signals. This instantaneous difference amounts to about six cycles for each foot of altitude and thus is directly proportional to the height of the airplane above the ground.

This low-frequency signal from the detector output is amplified and applied to a frequency meter or cycle-counting circuit including a meter with the scale calibrated in feet. This meter is the instrument read directly by the airplane pilot, and it can be placed on the instrument board alongside the aneroid altimeter.

The delicacy of the whole instrument can be understood when it is recalled that the speed of radio waves is the speed of light, 186,000 miles a second. To illustrate the minute differences measured, let us consider that we are flying with a properly equipped airplane half a mile above the ground. The time difference between the waves is 54 ten-millionths of a second. The difference in frequency is 16,200 cycles a second, or about 6 cycles a foot of height.

The absolute altimeter has certain definite limitations. For instance, it will not measure more than 5,000 feet between the airplane and the ground. This, however, is ample. A pilot knows that if the needle of his altimeter is off the scale he is more than 5,000 feet above terrain.

When making an instrument let-down, or in the future, perhaps, a complete instrument landing, the indicator will show the descent as the airplane approaches the ground. The exact altitude is measured continuously until the needle will register 0 as the landing wheels are between 4 and 10 feet off the ground. No correction to the reading of the terrain clearance indicator is required, even tho the landing be made at an airdrome far above sea level.

Who Will Be Stars of 1940?

Brenda Joyce, Nancy Kelly, Linda Darnell, Jeffrey Lynn, Maureen O'Hara, Geraldine Fitzgerald, and Dennis Morgan were the colony's best bets for stardom in 1940, and you can check back on my predictions a year from now — and pen insulting letters.

Because Frances Dee, an established performer, asked Twentieth Century-Fox $35,000 to let her enact the rôle of Fern in Bromfield's "The Rains Came," Missouri's Brenda Joyce may be a movie star in this year of grace 1940. Darryl Zanuck, at Twentieth Century-Fox, having loaded up his picture with Myrna Loy, Tyrone Power, and George Brent, didn't believe that it was necessary to spend $35,000 on the part of Fern. Unknown Missouri Girl Brenda Joyce therefore got the job, handled it brilliantly, and is now on the high road to stardom because you movie fans liked the clean cut of her face, enjoyed the thrill of a new personality, were pleased by her mannerisms, and condoned her technical faults as an actress. In other words, the performers who will become the stars of 1940 not only need studio support; they have to click with you who pay the freight.

In venturing the assertion that the players named in this article may well be the new stars of 1940 I'm not being presumptuous. Stars in the final analysis always are created by the movie fans. Sam Goldwyn, for instance, spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in exploiting Anna Sten as "my new star." The public rejected her, and Sam took his loss. Zanuck tried to ram Simone Simon down the throats of moviegoers on the brash assumption that he had determined she would be a star. The public rejected her. He did it again with Arleen Whelan. The public rejected her. I told the movie makers then, and often have repeated it, that it is arrogance of the worst sort for any man to set himself up as a dictator of public taste, and quite unfair to performers, who have to suffer the brunt of the opposition set up against them. So in naming the younger players who have a chance for 1940 stardom I simply will report my conclusions and tell you of studio ballyhoo plans.

ANN RUTHERFORD

LANA TURNER

NANCY KELLY

RITA HAYWORTH

Columbia Pictures will stage an extensive campaign in behalf of Rita Hayworth, the attractive brunette you saw in "Only Angels Have Wings." Miss Hayworth is a member of the famous Cansino family of dancers, a sultry type of beauty who well may achieve stardom. However, I doubt it; I vision her as the type of performer who always will be best as the third member of a triangle situation.

Paramount's Patricia Morison, one of the most striking brunettes of the screen, and already indorsed highly by Able Actor Robert Donat, will get the full publicity treatment from her studio in 1940. Irish Miss Morison, it seems to me, needs at least a full year of experience before she can become a star. I think that 1941 will find her name in lights as a star, providing she will obey rigid dietary laws. Unfortunately for her, weight is a definite hurdle she must overcome to reach stardom. On the success of her own sacrifices at the table the answer will be forthcoming. Personable, well liked, Patricia has the chance of a lifetime if she can yank out a sweet tooth.

At Paramount, too, Jimmy Cagney's kid sister, Jean, will have the benefit of carefully selected rôles and carefully plotted publicity. You will have a chance to observe her in "Golden Gloves," which is not to be confused with "Golden Boy."

M-G-M, biggest studio out here, last year had ample success with exotic Hedy Lamarr, Ann Sothern, and Britisher Greer Garson, who scored in "Good-by, Mr. Chips." This year Leo the Lion is trying to make stars of seven players: Ilona Massey, Lana Turner, Helen Gilbert, Ann Rutherford, John Carroll, young June Preisser, and young Virginia Weidler. Of this group of seven it is my feeling that the two best bets for stardom are Ilona Massey and Lana Turner. In "Balalaika," Hungarian Miss Massey revealed a blonde beauty as photogenic as the blonde loveliness of Madeleine Carroll and displayed dramatic instinct of greater depth and understanding. I believe that the public will demand that Ilona be made a 1940 star. Lana Turner, groomed by her studio to take over the rôles that the late Jean Harlow might have filled, will be lifted to stardom by the kids of the country. Her particular dash and spirit and formful chassis are just what the collegiates of the country desire, and I think that you'll find her name up in the lights reserved for stars this year.

At Warners' the publicity drums will beat most loudly for Brenda Marshall, Marilyn Merrick, Northwestern's David Bruce, red-haired Nell O'Day, Dennis Morgan, Lucille Fairbanks, and Ronald Reagan. Dennis Morgan, in case you are curious, used to be known as Stanley Morner when he was employed at M-G-M, and if he gets the "Desert Song" rôle that his studio now envisions it may be that 1940 will find a new singing star scaling the horizon. Brenda Marshall is the federal theater project alumna who clicked in "Espionage Agent." David Bruce, when at Northwestern, was enrolled as Andy McBroom. Ronald Reagan, former midwestern sports announcer, has had a solid year of "B" pictures behind him as a backlog of experience, and that experience is responsible for his fine performance in "Brother Rat" and "The Baby."

Nancy Kelly, Twentieth Century-Fox featured player, recruited from the New York stage, should arrive at stardom in 1940. So, too, should young Linda Darnell, who has appeared only in two pictures. I think that Mary Healy needs another year of hard work. Bill Holden, despite his good luck at being cast opposite Barbara Stanwyck in "Golden Boy," needs a great deal more experience before he can win star rating.

Yet, in the final analysis it is you, the movie fans, who will order the fates of all these young players. So be kind to the kids in 1940.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have been a regular reader of your weekly column for quite some time and have enjoyed the many comments concerning movie stars as a whole. But in your June 25 column there was a letter submitted by G. Brandt that I just couldn't swallow.

I should like to know just why the author of that particular letter thinks that Mickey Rooney deserves "a whole flower shop" instead of "just orchids." In my opinion Mickey Rooney is just a cocky brat who needs some brains and manners put into his head—if not peacefully, then forcefully.

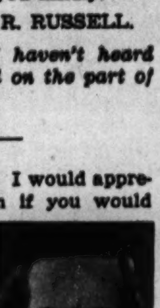
Recently I have heard many parents of adolescent boys complain of the tremendous malinfluence Mickey has over their offspring. This is especially true in families where there are elder sisters. The adolescents in question have no respect for their sisters' rights, and when they are disciplined they bring in their hero—Mickey Rooney—as proof that their treatment of their sistess is legitimate. Every day we thank our heavenly stars that both our children are girls and so escape from this menacing Mickey Rooney.

There are two ways that one might consider in determining the ability of Mickey Rooney as an actor. Either he is a genius for interpreting cocky little brats or he is just being natural. From all that I gather from magazines and newspapers the latter seems to be the case. He is just being natural. I hardly blame Wally Beery for refusing to appear in another movie with him. Thank you kindly.

C. R. RUSSELL.

Editor's note: I haven't heard of any such refusal on the part of Wallace Beery.

Dear Miss Tinée: I would appreciate it very much if you would print a picture of Paul Muni as he appeared in "Juarez." I have just returned from Mexico, and I would like to compare the picture with a snapshot I took of a painting of the real Juarez. I was struck with the resemblance between the two so much that I determined to bring my snapshot to Chicago and write to you. Of course, I know Mr. Muni doesn't really look like this, but I certainly think he did an excellent job of makeup for the film.



PAUL MUNI

Thanking you in advance, I am yours very truly,

GEORGE ARTLET.

Editor's note: Glad to oblige!

Dear Miss Tinée: Please settle an argument that has been going on between a friend and myself. The question is who played the leading male rôle in the picture "If I were King." Thank you.

DAN CUNNINGHAM.

Editor's note: I settle it (or hope I do) with pleasure. Ronald Colman played the male lead in "If I Were King." You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: I just saw the movie "Daughters Courageous," and I think the Lane sisters were grand. Could you please tell me where I can obtain a photo of them, also who played the rôle of Gabriel? I thank you very much.

E. M. JOHNSON.

Editor's note: You can write to Warners-First National studio, Burbank, Cal., for photographs of the Lane sisters. John Garfield played the rôle of Gabriel. You're welcome!

"The Guilty Bystanders"

A Novel in Pictures by RUPERT HUGHES

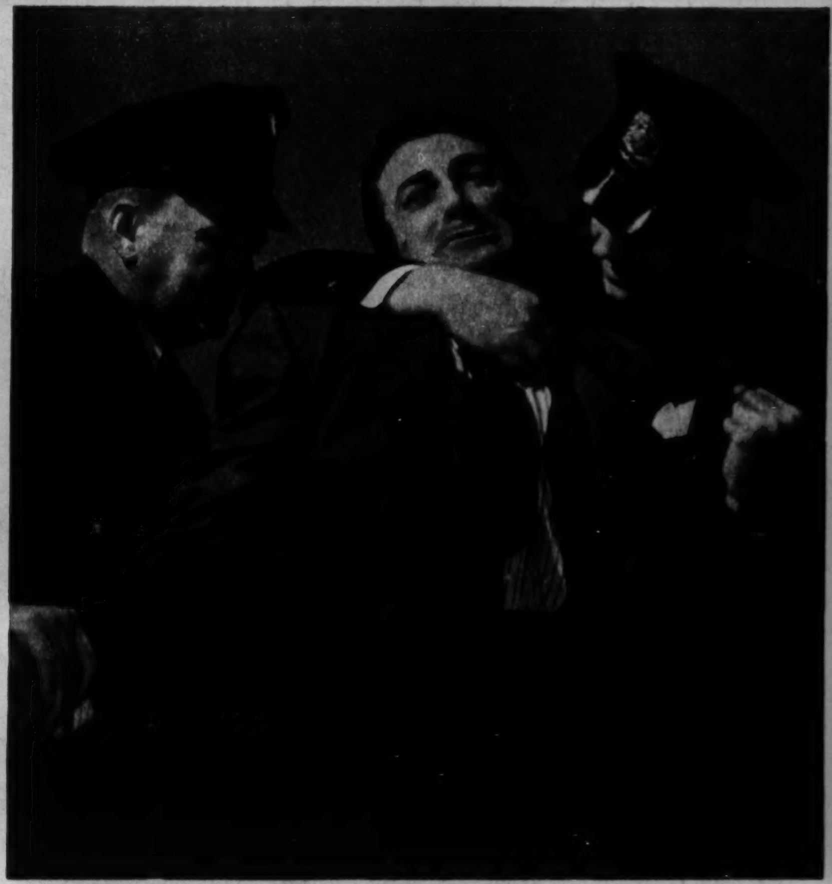
Caroline Fisher as PHOEBE LOCKWOOD — Jack Barrick as KIRKE McKEEL — Stanley Waxman as MURRAY BENTLE — Kay Campbel as EDITH RYDER — Bob Barron as HUGO RYDER — Ian Chaplan as JOE CRESSY — Muriel Dunkelman as DORIS CADE — Doris Larson as MRS. JOE CRESSY — George Neise as DICK BENTLE

YOU HAVE WATCHED Hugo Ryder kill Martin Yorke and then go free as State's Attorney McKeel fought vainly against Defense Attorney Murray Bentle's heartless tactics; you have seen Phoebe Lockwood courted by Murray and Kirke and pilloried as a witness; you have watched Dick Bentle's dangerous affair with Peg Cressy, and Husband Joe Cressy's move toward vengeance. NOW FINISH THE STORY.

DEATH STRIKES AGAIN

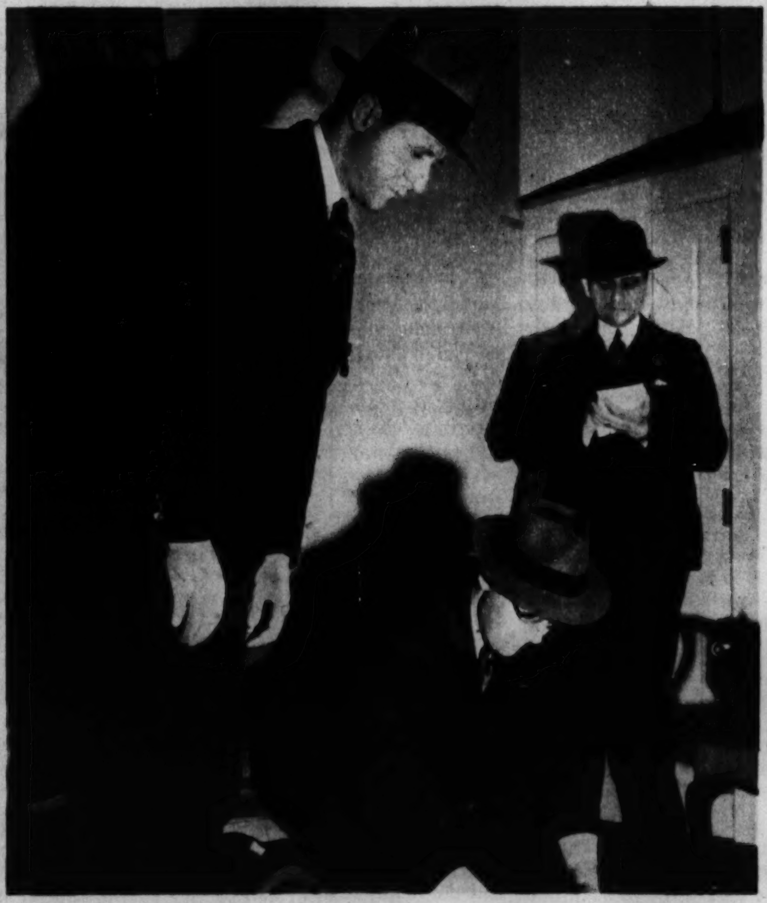
1 A shot, and the old cycle of intrigue, jealousy, revenge has again been carried out. Dick Bentle lies at Joe Cressy's feet, victim of a game too dangerous for him to play.

2 "He's a murderer! He's killed Dick!" cries Peg Cressy to Murray Bentle and Kirke McKeel, who rushed to the Cressy home from the courtroom after receiving Joe's note warning Murray of his intentions.

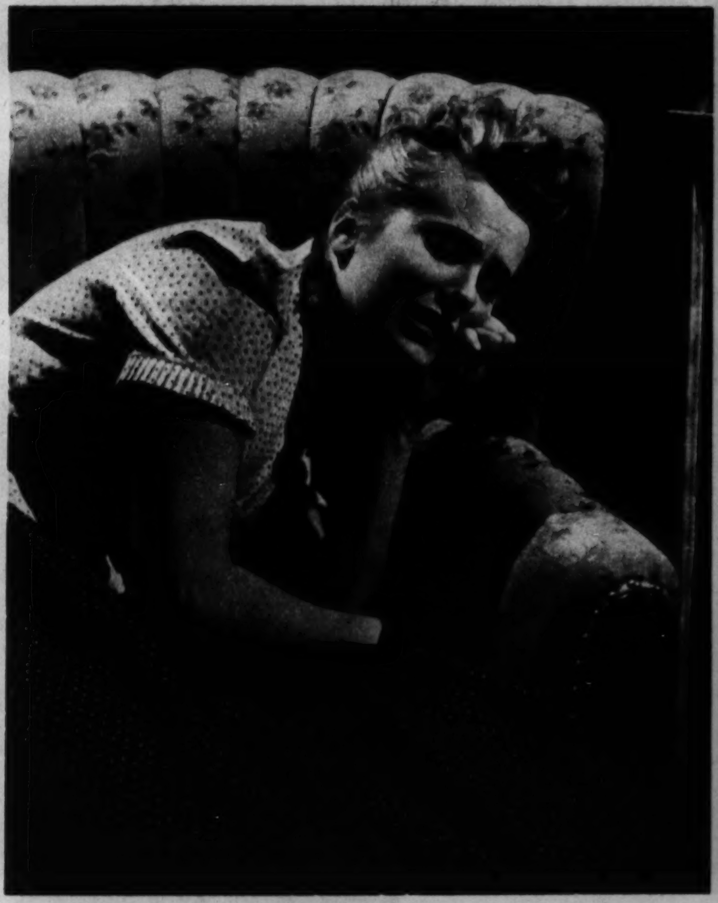


3 "I said I'd get that home breaker. Cressy snarls as he is taken away, "and I did! I'd do it again!"

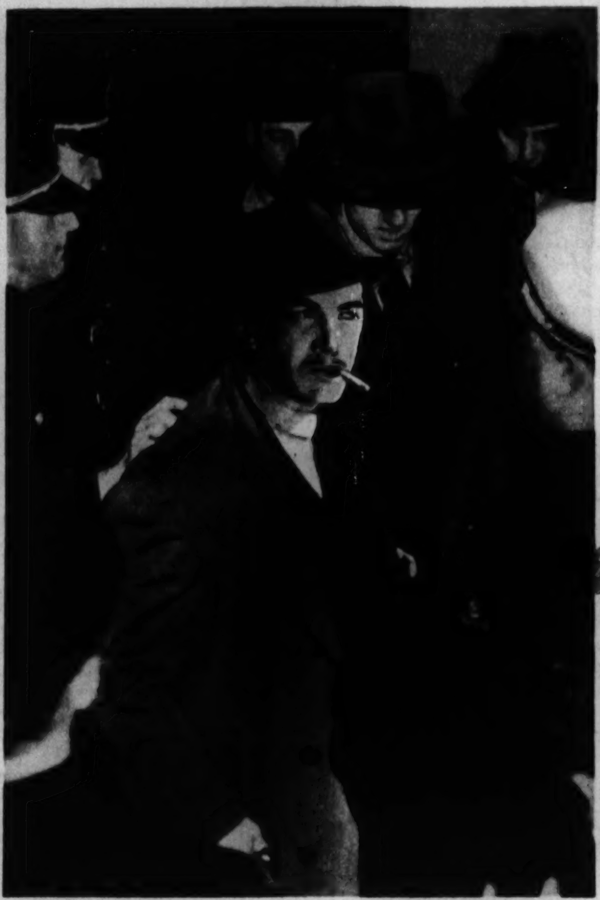
4 "As for you, Mr. Murray Bentle, you now have a dead brother and a live client. You were so successful in making a hero of Hugo Ryder for murdering the man who courted HIS wife, now you can do the same for me. It'll be a great boost for your reputation as the protector of the home."



5 The grim routine of the law sets in again, a strange echo of the Martin Yorke case. The coroner, the detectives, the questions, the hunt for witnesses . . .



6 And another home has crashed into ruins. Peg Cressy sobs hysterically as she realizes the staggering price of her foolish attachment for Dick Bentle.



7 Joe Cressy goes to jail, tense, grim, but braced by the knowledge that Hugo Ryders have won acquittals before and probably will for a long time.

AT PHOEBE'S HOME

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

. . . if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method

CHAMPION BLOW'S DISCOVERY

EVEN though you may have had no worming experience, the Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms.

Your dog can have Tape Worms or Round (ascarid) Worms or Hook Worms—or any combination of the three at the same time. That's why the average dog owner should worm his dog for all those three worms whenever he worms him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can possibly expel all those three kinds of worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains those two types which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid), or Hook Worms—whichever your dog has—not just one or two kinds of worms.

The Pulvex Worming Method is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs urge their puppy buyers to use it, saying it is the only method the average dog owner should use.

For the sake of your pet, follow their advice. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either size, with picturized instructions, 50c. At leading druggists everywhere.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST to show you this Picturized Instruction Sheet. It shows you an amazingly easy, speedy way to worm your dog.

A certified statement from W. E. Rock, Chicago, Illinois
"Thin and nervous—that's how 'Babe,' my four-year-old Boston Terrier, was. And her coat was in poor condition . . . dull, harsh. When she showed no signs of improvement, I had our own veterinarian examine her, and he recommended an exclusive Pard diet. 'Babe' began improving almost overnight. In a little over one month her coat was full and glossy. No more fidgets! And ever since, her health has been splendid."
The facts of this case history were sworn to before me on October 31st, 1939—Robert P. O'Brien, Notary Public.

Leading veterinarians blame faulty diet for causing many common ailments. The Pard-fed dogs at Swift's Research Kennels escaped them all!

● In their fight to prevent common dog ailments, veterinarians are attacking incorrect feeding. For they have found that in the majority of cases malnutrition due to hit-or-miss diet is the real cause for such widespread complaints as diarrhea, excessive shedding, nervousness, and many others. They have found, too, that these ailments sometimes herald more serious disorders.

An increasing number of crusading veterinarians are recommending Pard. Because Pard has proved its ability in a conclusive scientific test. 290 registered dogs—representing four consecutive generations—have been raised on Pard alone . . . and while on Pard, none ever suffered from digestive upset nor from diet-caused ailments of any kind! All matured normally, were full of pep and vigor.

Have a good veterinarian examine your dog to make certain he is in top condition. And to maintain his health, feed Pard regularly.

HIT-OR-MISS FEEDING CONDEMNED BY MANY LEADING VETERINARIANS, RECOMMEND PARD. Dr. V. M. H.........., of Illinois, says: "Nervousness, excessive shedding, and skin irritations are, in 9 cases out of 10, caused by malnutrition due to hit-or-miss feeding." In such cases, Dr. H.......... recommends Pard exclusively.

LL BE KING AND QUEEN OF THE MOVIES FOR 1940?

A Southern Pacific train drawn by a streamlined steam locomotive built by the Lima Locomotive Works of Lima, O. The locomotive is of the 4-8-4 type, which means it has four leading wheels, eight driving wheels, and four trailing wheels.

Modern Locomotives in Four Classifications

● This is the third article of a series on the subject of railroad locomotives. On Dec. 24 the modern steam locomotive was discussed in part. Today's article is a continuation of the discussion.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

OF MODERN steam locomotives there are types for four general purposes. These are represented in the switching, the passenger, the freight, and the combination passenger and freight locomotives.

The switching locomotive, because of the nature of the work required of it, possesses extreme flexibility and maximum hauling capacity in relation to weight. As its principal duties consist of shifting cars in the railroad yard, it must be built for quick starts and quick stops and sufficiently powerful to move heavy loads at low speed. As the typical switching locomotive is required to develop full power only for short periods, its boiler capacity is limited. Its driving wheels are relatively small, and in almost all cases its whole weight is carried on the driving wheels, there being no leading or trailing wheels.

It is of the passenger locomotive that fastest schedules are expected. Therefore in this locomotive are required ample boiler capacity for sustained speeds and comparatively large driving wheels. This locomotive must move evenly and safely on curves as well as on straight track and must possess high boiler power in proportion to adhesion. In other words, the weight on the driving wheels must be sufficient to enable the locomotive to start the heaviest train it is expected to haul, and the boiler power must be ample for rapid acceleration and for maintaining high speed after the train is under way.

The freight locomotive hauls the heaviest of railroad loads. Hence it is important that this type of locomotive be constructed to utilize for adhesion as large a proportion of its total weight as operating conditions will permit. The ideal freight engine would be designed as is a switch engine, with all the weight carried upon the driving wheels, but this becomes impossible when the locomotive reaches the weight and size of the present-day freight locomotives. As a rule the driving wheels of freight engines are smaller than those of passenger engines, altho the tendency in recent years, due to the increased speeds of freight trains, is to build bigger and bigger drivers for the freight power units.

The combination passenger and freight locomotive is, as its name implies, one that can be employed in either type of service, possessing sufficient speed to handle passenger traffic and ample power to haul heavy loads. It therefore is constructed on plans midway between those of the high-speed passenger engine and the lower speed, powerful freight engine.

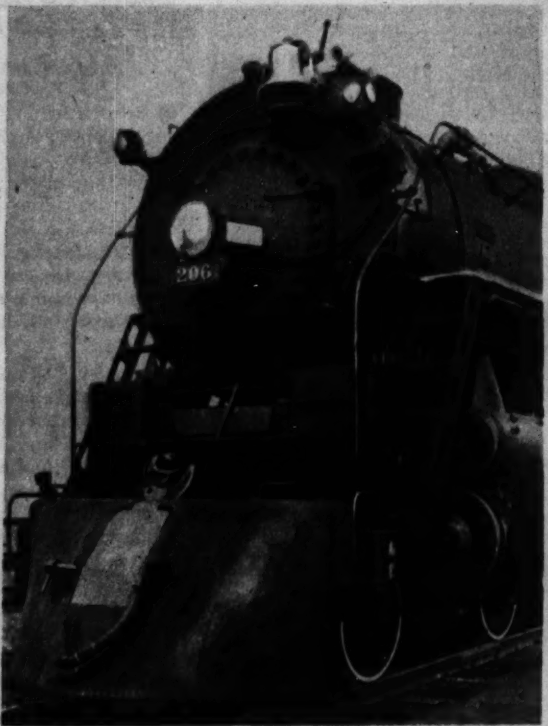
There was a time when steam locomotive types generally were classified by names. The modern tendency, however, is to use the wheel arrangement as the designation for each particular kind of locomotive. This is a system of classification devised by F. M. Whyte, a mechanical engineer of the New York Central railroad. Under this form of classification the four-coupled switching engine is known as the 0-4-0. The first zero indicates that the locomotive has no leading wheels. The figure 4 indicates that it has four driving wheels. The final zero indicates that it has no trailing wheels. The six-coupled switching engine goes by the designation 0-6-0, which discloses that it has six drivers but no leading and no trailing wheels. Other types of switching engines are the 0-8-0, the 0-10-0, and the 0-10-2. The last named, as can be seen from the figures, is, unlike the others, equipped with two trailing wheels.

Among passenger locomotives the so-called American is designated as a 4-4-0, the Atlantic as a 4-4-2, the Pacific as a 4-6-2, and the Hudson as a 4-6-4. In the case of the last named, as is shown by the figures, there are four leading wheels, six driving wheels, and four trailing wheels.

Locomotives with the following designations are employed either for passenger or freight service: 4-6-0, 4-8-2, and 4-8-4. They are the combination engines, possessing both power and speed.

A cast steel locomotive bed or frame made by the General Steel Casting corporation. It can be noted that the cylinders, steam chests, and other parts of the frame are cast in one piece. This casting weighs 77,000 pounds.



A Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific locomotive equipped with the new type cast steel pilot and lift type coupler. The unbreakable cast steel pilot takes the place of the old barred cowcatcher.

In the freight class the designations range from the 2-6-0 (mogul) up to the 2-10-10-2. All locomotives with four figures in their designation, such as the 2-10-10-2, are articulated locomotives. This means that they are equipped with two pairs of cylinders instead of one, that each pair of cylinders independently drives a separate group of driving wheels, and that the under part of the locomotive is jointed or articulated to separate the forward cylinders and drivers from the rear cylinders and drivers.

Most articulated locomotives are utilized in the heavy freight service. This may not necessarily be the case, however. A group of powerful locomotives of the 4-8-8-2 type recently built for the Southern Pacific Lines by the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, for example, are so designed that they can be employed in either passenger or freight service. Engines of this classification, as the figures of their designation show, have four leading wheels, two groups of driving wheels of eight wheels each, and two trailing wheels. In this particular type the engineer's cab is at the front of the locomotive, giving the appearance that the engine is running backward.

The 4-4-0 passenger, 2-6-0 freight, and 4-6-0 combination locomotives no longer are built for main line service, and the 4-4-2 passenger locomotive is very seldom built nowadays.

In a previous article on the subject of the modern steam locomotive the development of the present-day four-cylinder articulated type was discussed. Also taken up was the development of the use of superheated steam for the locomotive and the introduction of the metal covering or shroud to streamline the engine. These are just three of the factors involved in modernizing the steam engine. There are a number of others, including the gradual increasing of the diameter of driving wheels. At the beginning of this century the average diameter of the driving wheels of a typical freight locomotive was 58 inches. Today the average is 73 inches, the extreme about 77 inches. Larger driving wheels were necessary for freight engines as freight service was placed on faster schedules. Big driving wheels naturally mean higher speed, provided the power behind them is adequate. Modern high-speed passenger locomotives have driving wheels with diameters as great as 84 inches.

The tendency in locomotive designing constantly is toward increased power. In 1900, for example, the potential horsepower of the typical steam locomotive was 1,200; today it is 4,500. Increased steam pressures mean increased power. Steam pressures have been increased by building stronger boilers and producing greater heat in larger volume. To construct stronger boilers to handle higher pressures without exceeding weight limitations it has been necessary to use improved materials, such as nickel steel and other alloy steel. These materials provide greater strength without increasing weight.

Another modern development in locomotive designing involves the use of the foundation frame that is cast in one piece of steel. Formerly these frames were fabricated; that is, they were built up from separate pieces and sections. But now they are usually one huge casting, comprising frames, cylinders, steam chests, and crossties. Termed by the locomotive builders bed castings, they weigh many tons each. The one illustrated on this page weighs more than 38 tons. That they greatly strengthen the locomotives of which they are parts is obvious.

Modern steam locomotives utilize coal or oil as fuel, depending upon which of these this or that railway company finds most economical to use. For coal-burning locomotives the mechanical stoker represents a fairly recent development. Altho many steam locomotives still are stoked by hand, the newer types generally are provided with stokers. By means of a conveyor trough the stoker delivers coal from the tender to a table, from which it is blown into the firebox. Nearly all locomotives designed to burn oil may be converted readily into coal burners, and vice versa. It is merely a matter of using a grate for coal or a fire pan for oil.

In locomotives built in recent years roller bearings often are used instead of friction bearings. The last named are bearings of soft metal. Roller bearings permit the engine to move itself and its load with lessened effort.

An innovation in locomotive parts is the cast steel pilot which has taken the place of the old type cowcatcher. The cast steel pilot is unbreakable and designed so that it keeps wrecks from getting under the wheels of the locomotive. It is a definite contribution to the safety of railroading.

The future of the steam locomotive may depend upon many factors that cannot be foreseen now. Among designers efforts are going forward for the further development of fuel economizers. The so-called poppet valve eventually may become a part of the standard American locomotive. This is a valve that works on the lift principle rather than the slide principle. It is used successfully in Europe but so far has not been considered highly practicable in this country. European locomotives, while efficient within their own limitations, are much lighter in weight than American locomotives and are not required to draw such heavy loads. The modern trend naturally takes into consideration increased power and increased speed, the further development of the superheater, and, in fact, every part and every accessory of the engine.

Present-day steam locomotives range in price from $100,000 to a quarter of a million.

Mostly About Dogs

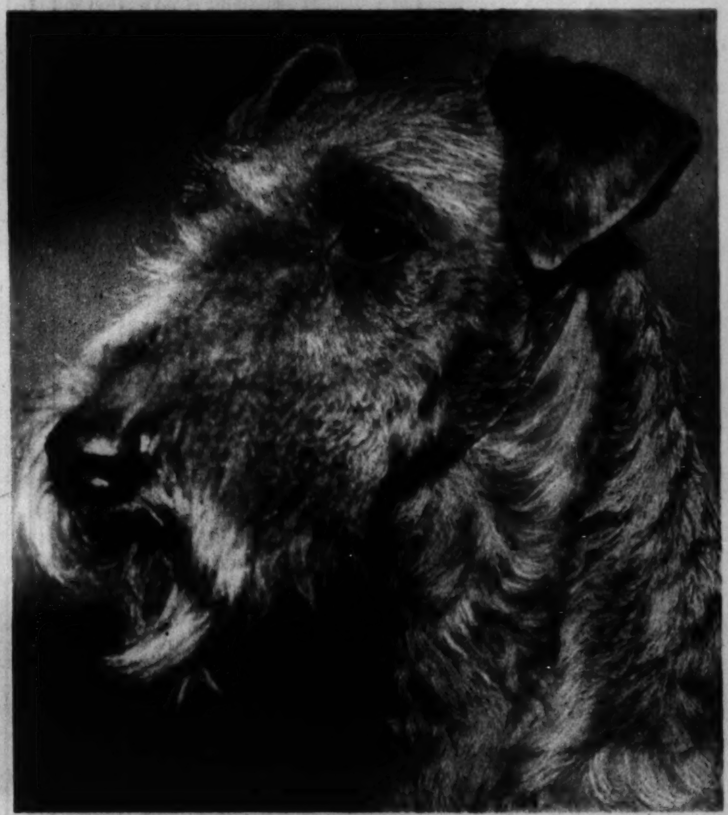
Tournaments to Decide Best Dogs



This Irish terrier, Champion Aristocratic Rum Hound, owned by T. B. Maginnis, is a show winner with many ribbons to his credit.

BASEBALL has its world series every fall. Professional football ends its schedule in a special game to decide the championship. In the same way the setter and pointer fanciers look forward to the concluding "championship" trials which are held each season in the south. This year the National Free-for-All championship will be decided at Shuqualak, Miss., starting Jan. 29. The National Amateur Quail championship will be run near Sumter, N. C., commencing on Feb. 5, with the season's grand finale, the National championship at Grand Junction, Tenn., carded for Feb. 26.

Thus the world of dogs has to a certain degree adopted the championship contest idea. Now dog fanciers are giving more thought to a truly national field trial contest for other breeds of dogs—one for the springer spaniels and another for the retrievers. The proposal is to hold a national championship for springer spaniels at the end of the field trial season. During the same week a similar event might be held for the retriever breeds—a trial that would settle the question of whether a Labrador, Chesapeake, golden, or other breed should wear the crown of champion for a year.

This department proposed a championship field trial for springers and another for retrievers many months ago. Since then breeders, owners, and professional handlers, now more conscious of the faults of our field trial schedule and system than ever before, have been talking about a national championship and expressing the hope that such an event could be worked out for the winter of 1940. There is sentiment in the east for a finale of that type.

Dog fanciers in the middle west have been hoping for a well directed field trial championship meet for a long time. Under the present unsatisfactory arrangement the nearest thing to a championship is the awarding each fall of the Field and Stream challenge cup to the outstanding springer and top-notch retriever. A committee decides which spaniel trials shall be counted in the competition for points toward the cup. If a dog wins at these picked trials it gets so many points toward the challenge cup. In order to get the top ranking in field trial work for the season the owner of a good springer can't afford to stay away from any of these trials. The same system prevails in the competition for the retriever cup, which also has been donated by Eltinge F. Warner, publisher of Field and Stream.

Roseville Brightbeam, owned by Dr. R. H. Thomas of South Bend, Ind., may consider himself a lucky bulldog. He was imported from Europe and thus escaped the short rations of dogs in warring countries.

Both of these cups and the prestige which goes with the winning of them have been a big stimulus to the springer and retriever field trial game in this country, and all dog fanciers are grateful to Warner for the help he has given to springer and Labrador field trial competition. But there are obvious difficulties attending this award each year which would be eliminated by a truly national contest to decide the best springer and retriever in the country.

Both springer and retriever fanciers apparently believe that the growth of field trials for these breeds, the intense competition between individual kennels and owners, the sectional rivalry between the east and the west, and the popularity of the spaniels and the retrievers now warrant national contests for both. Inasmuch as such a national contest would automatically call for winners only, it would bring together the top-notch dogs of the country for a grand finale.

A national championship field trial for retrievers and a similar event for spaniels could be made two of the biggest outdoor events of the year, according to field trial enthusiasts. When we discussed this whole idea with Mr. Warner months ago we suggested that for each trial a special committee be selected to represent both the east and the west, this group to handle the details of the trial with respect to grounds, entries, and judges. If blessed and aided by the American Kennel club, judged by competent authorities, and competition limited to winners of approved trials, a national championship for springers and the same type of event for retrievers would eliminate the difficulties of our present field trial schedule and truly pick a national champion.

Dog fanciers feel that both of these championship trials should be held in neutral country, if there is such a thing in the world of canine competition! It has been suggested that it might be wise to hold both of the championship trials south of the snow and chilblain belt.

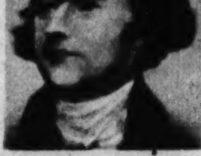
Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the thirty-first of the series.

WHEN IT first became necessary to meet the expenses and liquidate the debts of the new republic of the United States its congress had no greater power than that of issuing requisitions upon the assemblies of the various states. But these requisitions bore little weight. In this state of affairs, and to save the country from ruin and disgrace, congress proposed that the state legislatures should empower it to lay an impost. A bill to this effect was before the state assembly of New York, and Alexander Hamilton, who later was to become secretary of the treasury in George Washington's cabinet, spoke in its behalf on Feb. 18, 1787, in part as follows:



Alexander Hamilton

"Having now shown, Mr. Chairman, that there is no constitutional impediment to the adoption of the bill; that there is no danger to be apprehended to the public liberty from giving the power in question to the United States; that in the view of revenue the measure under consideration is not only expedient but necessary—let us turn our attention to the other side of this important subject. Let us ask ourselves, what will be the consequences of rejecting the bill? What will be the situation of our national affairs if they are left much longer to float in the chaos in which they are now involved?

"Can our national character be preserved without paying our debts? Can the Union subsist without revenue? Have we realized the consequences which would attend its dissolution?

"If these states are not united under a federal government they will infallibly have wars with each other; and their divisions will subject them to all the mischiefs of foreign influence and intrigue. The human passions will never want objects of hostility. The western territory is an obvious and fruitful source of contest. Let us also cast our eye upon the map of this state, intersected from one extremity to the other by a large navigable river. In the event of a rupture with them what is to hinder our metropolis from becoming a prey to our neighbors? Is it even supposable that they would suffer it to remain the nursery of wealth to a distinct community?

"These subjects are delicate, but it is necessary to contemplate them to teach us to form a true estimate of our situation.

"Wars with each other would beget standing armies—a source of more real danger to our liberties than all the powers that could be conferred upon the representatives of the Union. And wars with each other would lead to opposite alliances with foreign powers and plunge us into all the labyrinths of European politics.

"The Romans in their progress to universal dominion, when they conceived the project of subduing the refractory spirit of the Grecian republics which composed the famous Achaian league, began by sowing dissensions among them and instilling jealousies of each other and of the common head, and finished by making them a province of the Roman empire.

"The application is easy: if there are any foreign enemies, if there are any domestic foes to this country, all their arts and artifices will be employed to effect a dissolution of the Union. This cannot be better done than by sowing jealousies of the federal head and cultivating in each state an undue attachment to its own power."

Fiction often plays a considerable part in public speaking. Witness this present selection from Hamilton. In the whole compelling argument there is—with one exception—no other kind of reasoning except guesswork. What Hamilton does here is to ask the question, "What would happen if congress is not permitted the power of taxation?" From there he plunges into prophecy, outlining the course of chaos, intrigue, and civil war which he believes to be the answer. The argument is powerful for two reasons—Hamilton draws his picture so vividly that it seems real; and even the guesses of a man like Hamilton must have carried considerable weight. Such hypotheses are not to be condemned in public speaking. They are to be judged according to their source.—Comment by Martin Maloney of Northwestern university school of speech.

Flashlight Photography Is Fun Indoors or Out

THOUSANDS of amateur photographers have learned during the last year how to take flashlight pictures, and their efforts to acquire this simple technique are not a mere fad. Flashlight photography opens up entirely new fields of picture taking for the amateur.

You will have noticed that the old-fashioned flash powder has completely disappeared from use. Its place has been taken by the flash bulb.

There are two fundamentally different methods of flashlight photography. The simpler of these is the open flash method. All you need beyond your present camera is a flash gun consisting of an ordinary bulb socket and switch, connected with the electric light circuit in your house, or a hand flashlight and battery. The flashlight must have a socket big enough to take flash bulbs. Both types of flash guns should be equipped with reflectors, as these increase several times the intensity of the light thrown on the subject.

When making an open flash picture you set up your camera on a solid support, focus, dim the lights in the room, open your shutter, fire the flash bulb, and close the shutter. The dim light in the room will not register on your film; only the subject illuminated by the flash bulb will. You can even snap action by this method, for the brief duration of the flash acts as an "instantaneous" exposure fast enough to stop moderate action.

The other, more elaborate method of flash photography involves the use of a flash synchronizer. This device, of which several different types are in existence, fires the flash bulb in such a manner that the flash reaches its peak while the shutter is open, thus insuring that the maximum amount of light given by the bulb is actually used for taking the picture. The synchronizer has two functions: it releases the shutter, and fires the bulb simultaneously. Its advantage over the open flash is that it enables you to use fast shutter speeds, snap your picture in any kind of light, and move about freely with the camera, holding it in your hands instead of placing it on a tripod.

No doubt you have seen many horrible examples of flash photography. Don't be deceived by them. Good flashlight photographs rank among the best pictures taken by any method and in many cases are not distinguishable from studio or daylight shots.

And this brings us to the question of single or multiple flash, and to the all-important matter of placing your flashlight in the correct position. Synchronized flash guns are usually attached to the camera and throw a head-on light on the subject. In portraiture such light, if it is the only light source, tends to create flat effects. You can remedy this by placing your subject in such a manner that either daylight or other light sources give supplementary illumination; or you can detach the flash gun from the camera and place it to the side, above or below the lens—nearer to or farther from the subject than the camera itself. This in itself gives you a great deal of flexibility. But you will get even better effects if you use multiple flash, meaning two or more flash bulbs in reflectors, placed in different positions and fired simultaneously by one flash gun. Extension cords from the gun connect shutter release and flash bulbs. By this method you can duplicate elaborate studio lighting setups.

This Lamb Is Sure to Go—Fast

By MARY MEADE

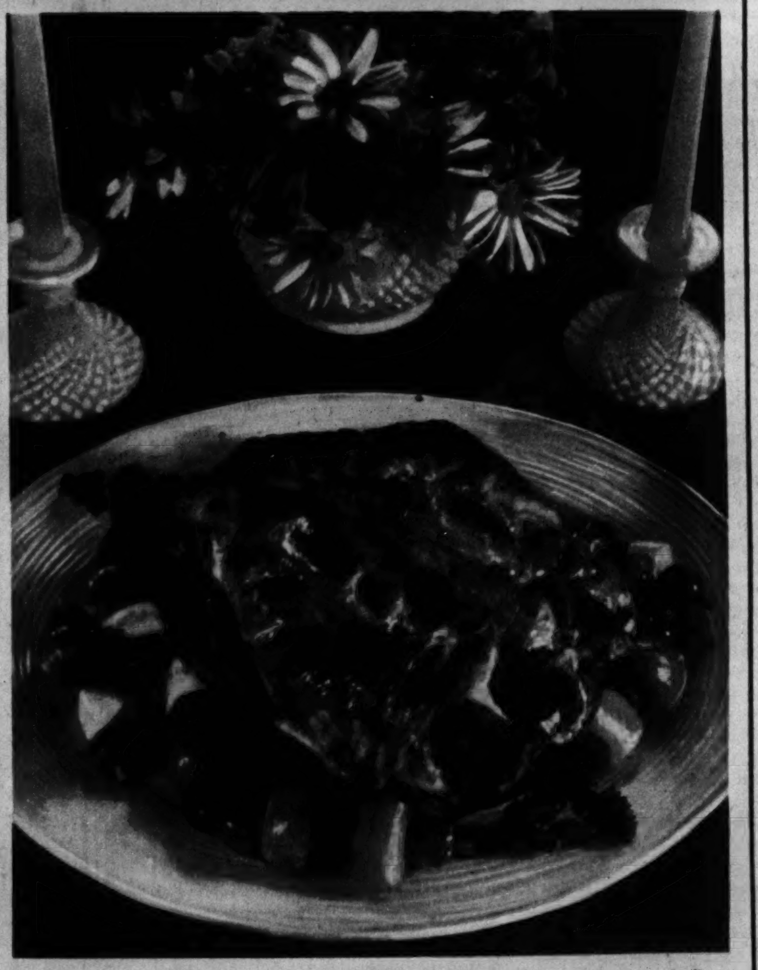
LAMB IS ONE of many meats which are enhanced in beauty and flavor by fruit garniture. Maraschino cherries, cubes of pineapple, and canned figs, threaded on skewers, are an effective garnish, especially if broiled until hot and lightly browned.

For a small family boned and stuffed shoulder of lamb is a good Sunday roast. Lamb shoulder is an economy cut, and a nuisance to carve with bones left in. But have the butcher remove the bones to leave room for a stuffing and lamb shoulder is not only easy to carve but easy to eat.

STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB

Shoulder of lamb
Salt, pepper
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
¼ cup chopped celery
Meat stock or hot water

Have lamb shoulder boned and sewed on two sides, leaving one side open for stuffing. Season the meat with salt and pepper. Brown onion in bacon drippings and combine with celery, bread crumbs, and enough hot water or meat stock to moisten. Fill the cavity with the dressing and sew or skewer the edges together. Place the roast, fat side up, on a rack in an open pan. Roast in a slow oven, 300 degrees, allowing about forty minutes per pound.



Maraschino cherries, canned figs, and pineapple garnish this stuffed lamb shoulder.

Vienna sausages, prepared mustard, and chives make these potatoes especially good.

HYDE PARK STUFFED POTATOES
(For six)

6 large baking potatoes
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped chives
Hot milk
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
7 ounce jar Vienna sausages
Melted butter

Bake clean potatoes in a hot oven, 450 degrees, forty-five minutes, or until tender. Remove from oven and slice off the top of each. Scoop out potato, mash or rice it, add butter, salt, chives, and enough milk to make the potatoes fluffy. Add mustard. Pile lightly into shells and place a sausage in each, pressing it into the potato. Brush with melted butter. Bake ten to twelve minutes longer, or until potatoes are browned.

If there should be leftover lamb roast after the shoulder of lamb has been served, a Persian lamb curry might make its appearance a dinner or so later, and it won't seem at all like a leftover dish.

PERSIAN LAMB CURRY

Diced roast lamb
1 cup cooked diced potatoes
1 onion, diced
½ cup water in which rice has been boiled
½ cup meat stock or hot water
Salt
2 tablespoons curry powder (less, perhaps)
Lemon juice
Boiled rice

Brown onion in olive oil in a deep pan. Add the half cup of water in which rice was cooked and the meat stock or hot water. Season with salt. Add curry powder, mixed smooth with a little of the rice stock. Simmer slowly until oil and curry form dark globules on the surface of the stew. Add lamb and potatoes and simmer until hot. Just before serving add the juice of a lemon. Serve over hot rice.

New Beauty Twists

By ELEANOR NANGLE

LAST SUNDAY we described and illustrated three of the series of six simple exercises to be done daily if you want to look better, feel better, and redistribute your weight in this new year of grace. Those exercises and these shown today are suggested by Wallace, the well known authority on figure control, who conducts a daily exercise class via radio which some million women attend in the privacy of their own homes.

The man behind the microphone in the "Keep Fit to Music" program over station W-G-N and the Mutual network offers these six exercises, to be done daily, preferably at a regular time, for the career girl or housewife whose limberness is vanishing and whose silhouette reveals a crying need for re-sculpting, whether she be too thin or too fat.

For your exercise period wear loose, light clothing; make a session part of your routine at least six days a week and follow the gentle gymnastics with a warm bath. For the good of the complexion Wallace suggests that you cream your face and neck before you begin the calisthenics. Do each movement six times the first day. Add one more each day until you are doing about fifty of each exercise. You'll be surprised at how quickly you can swing thru your complete routine once you get limbered up. And we can promise you'll be enchanted with results. Your posture, your measurements, and your sense of well being will be wonderfully improved in a remarkably short time.

Remember last week we told you about the "anchor," the simple homemade arrangement of cord stretched from two screws set in the baseboard? When the cord is stretched almost taut (the two screws are set about a foot apart) you slip the feet in under it for those floor exercises in which it's advisable to keep the feet stationary.

In the first of the exercises shown today, No. 4 in the series, the anchor is used again. But the cord is loose enough to pull out at least a foot from the wall, as shown in the photograph. This exercise is started with the body stretched at full length, flat on the back, with the hands, palms upward, gripping the anchor. By raising the legs off the floor, without bending the knees, and pulling on the anchor with the hands, you are able to raise the hips to the position shown in the photograph. By lowering the hips to the floor and bringing the legs down slowly you return to starting position. Continue raising and lowering the body rhythmically, without stopping or jerking, until you've completed your allotted number for the day. This looks hard, but the anchor is a great help. And this exercise is one of the best of figure beautifiers!

No. 5. Lie flat on the floor, knees unbent, with the hands behind the head and the elbows brought forward, almost touching one another. First bend the right knee, bringing it up until it touches the left elbow. Return to starting position. Bring left knee up until it touches the right elbow. Return again to starting position. Continue alternating right and left.

No. 6. This is the "spare tire" special, a deadly threat to unwanted flesh anywhere between the hip line and the shoulders. Starting position is taken with the feet apart, hands high above the head, with arms stiff and thumbs locked together. Face directly forward and, without turning sideways or twisting brought forward, almost touching one another. First bend the right knee, bringing it up until in the slightest degree, lean first to the right, then to the left. Continue leaning right and left alternately. And remember that to twist instead of to lean is to cheat yourself of the benefits.

Story of Two Masterpieces

Continuing its unpredecented series, The Tribune today presents on page one of its Picture Section full color reproductions of masterpieces of Italian art now being shown in a popular exhibition in the Art Institute of Chicago. The masterpieces are "Birth of Venus," by Botticelli, and "Boy Bitten by a Lizard," by Caravaggio. The accompanying article discusses the paintings and their creators.

THE PAINTINGS "Birth of Venus," by Botticelli, and "Boy Bitten by a Lizard," by Caravaggio, are in sharp contrast as works of art. The first of the masterpieces is poetic, idealized, quaint, formal; the second earthy, realistic, sensuous, dramatic.

The better known of the two artists, Sandro Botticelli, lived in Florence, Italy (1444-1510). The son of a struggling tanner, he showed an artistic bent which won him an apprenticeship in the workshop of Filippo Lippi, who schooled him in the lineal and lyrical tradition of the artist Lorenzo Monaco.

Florentine art was flourishing under the patronage of the wealthy, powerful Medici family which ruled the city for three centuries. Botticelli was fortunate enough to win the favor of the Medici, first Lorenzo il Magnifico and later Lorenzo di Pierfrancesco. "Birth of Venus" was one of several pictures (including the famous "Spring") which Botticelli painted for the second Lorenzo's villa at Castello. It was executed about 1485.

"Birth of Venus" was inspired by stanzas from Angelo Poliziano's poem "La Giostra," altho his mood of pagan joyousness shifts to delicate fantasy in Botticelli's interpretation. Here are the stanzas:

One saw
Born in the sea, free and joyous in her acts,
A damsel with divine visage
Driven ashore by the ardent zephyrs,
Balancing on a shell; and it seemed the heavens rejoiced thereat.

True the foam and true the sea, you would have said;
True the shell, and the blowing of the winds true.
You would have seen the gleam of the goddess' eye
And the heavens laugh about her, and the elements.
And the Hours in white garments on the strand,
And the Winds toss their spreading soft locks.

You could swear that you could see the goddess coming from the waves,
Wringing out her hair with her right hand
And with the left covering the sweet mount of desire,
And the sand, once trodden by her feet,
Clothing itself with grass and flowers.
Then with joyous and expectant glance
You would have seen her clasped by the three nymphs
And wrapped in a starry robe.

Botticelli preferred to picture one nymph instead of Poliziano's three.

In his later years Botticelli's paintings became more emotional, being influenced by his attraction to the teachings of Savonarola, the Italian religious reformer, who was excommunicated, tortured, and hanged in 1498. This new faith lost him the patronage of the Catholic Medici.

Whereas Botticelli was of the Florentine school, Michelangelo Amerighi da Cavaraggio, who lived from 1569 to 1609, was of the Roman school. He was the son of a mason, but who his masters were in his studies in Milan and Venice is not known.

The violent naturalism of his painting, with great emphasis on light and shadow, was characteristic of his impassioned life. He was successful in painting sacred subjects in realistic settings, altho his contemporaries hated him for flouting their conventions. He was frequently in trouble—duels, imprisonments, flights, and other adventures. His life ended in misery following his escape from prison with the intention of seeking a pardon. The ship which was to carry him in his flight put to sea with his possessions and he was left stranded on the beach. He was overcome by the sun and died.

"Boy Bitten by a Lizard" was one of Caravaggio's early works, painted after he had finished his studies and settled in Rome. He was unable to find a purchaser for it.

'Abe Lincoln' Ready for Long Run in Chicago

The Musical Spotlight Shifts Back to Symphony

By Edward Barry

NOW that the last of the opera's post-season performances has been given and the ballet has packed its bags and gone, the musical spotlight shifts back to the Chicago Symphony orchestra. This organization, which plays 35 or 36 weeks a year (counting its summer concerts), in contrast to the seven of opera and the two or three of ballet, can be counted upon to provide the city with a rich musical schedule before, during, and after the more spectacular engagements of its competitors.

This week the orchestra makes four appearances in Orchestra hall. Subscription concerts on Tuesday afternoon, Thursday evening, and Friday afternoon will be supplemented by a popular program Saturday night. Frederick Stock is to conduct the first three, Hans Lange the fourth.

Interest is heightened by the return of Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, duo-pianists of extraordinary ability, who are to participate in Tuesday's program, and by the Chicago debut of Isaac Stern, violinist, who is to appear as soloist at the Thursday-Friday concerts.

Vronsky and Babin (man and wife, by the way) are Russians who have developed to a remarkable degree the unity and mutuality which first rate two-piano playing demands. They made quite a sensation on the occasion of their Chicago debut two years ago, and their succeeding appearances here have served to increase their following. Their first appearance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra was made only last fall, when they were heard in a Bach concerto and in one of Mr. Babin's own. This time their vehicle is to be the Mozart concerto in E flat.

Robert Sherwood Play Opens at Grand Tomorrow Night

By Cecil Smith

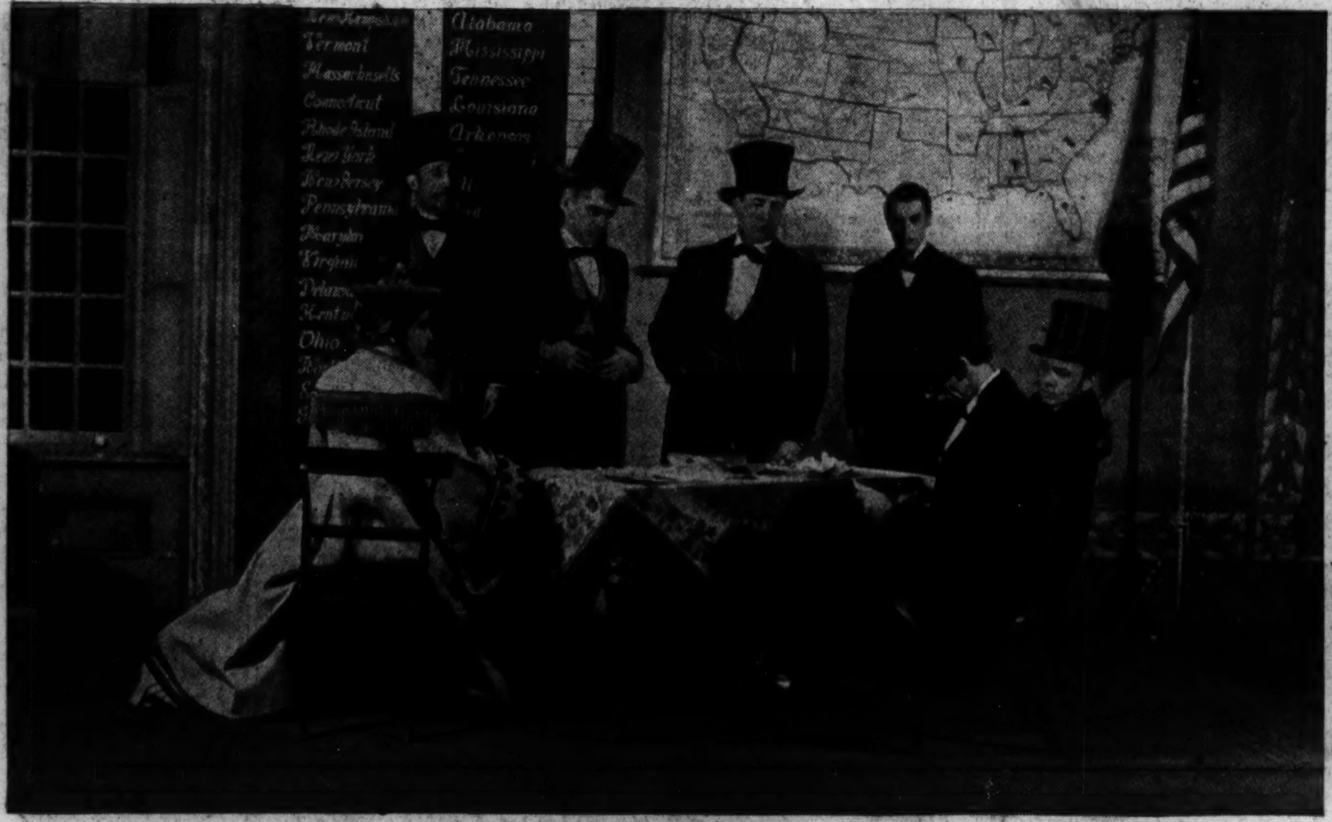
FEW plays in the decade just closed were awaited here with more eagerness and suspense than greets the arrival of Robert Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" at the Grand Opera house tomorrow evening. The reasons for Chicago's high interest—as manifested in an unusual volume of advance mail orders—are easy to discover.

To begin with, there is Raymond Massey's characterization of the Lincoln of the pre-presidential prairie years. It may seem odd on the surface that a Canadian should take over the part of the midwestern United States' most historic citizen and turn the rôle into a personal triumph. Mr. Massey, however, starts with the advantage of a loose, gangling body and a rugged face that are reminiscent of Lincoln without seeming like a cheap counterfeit.

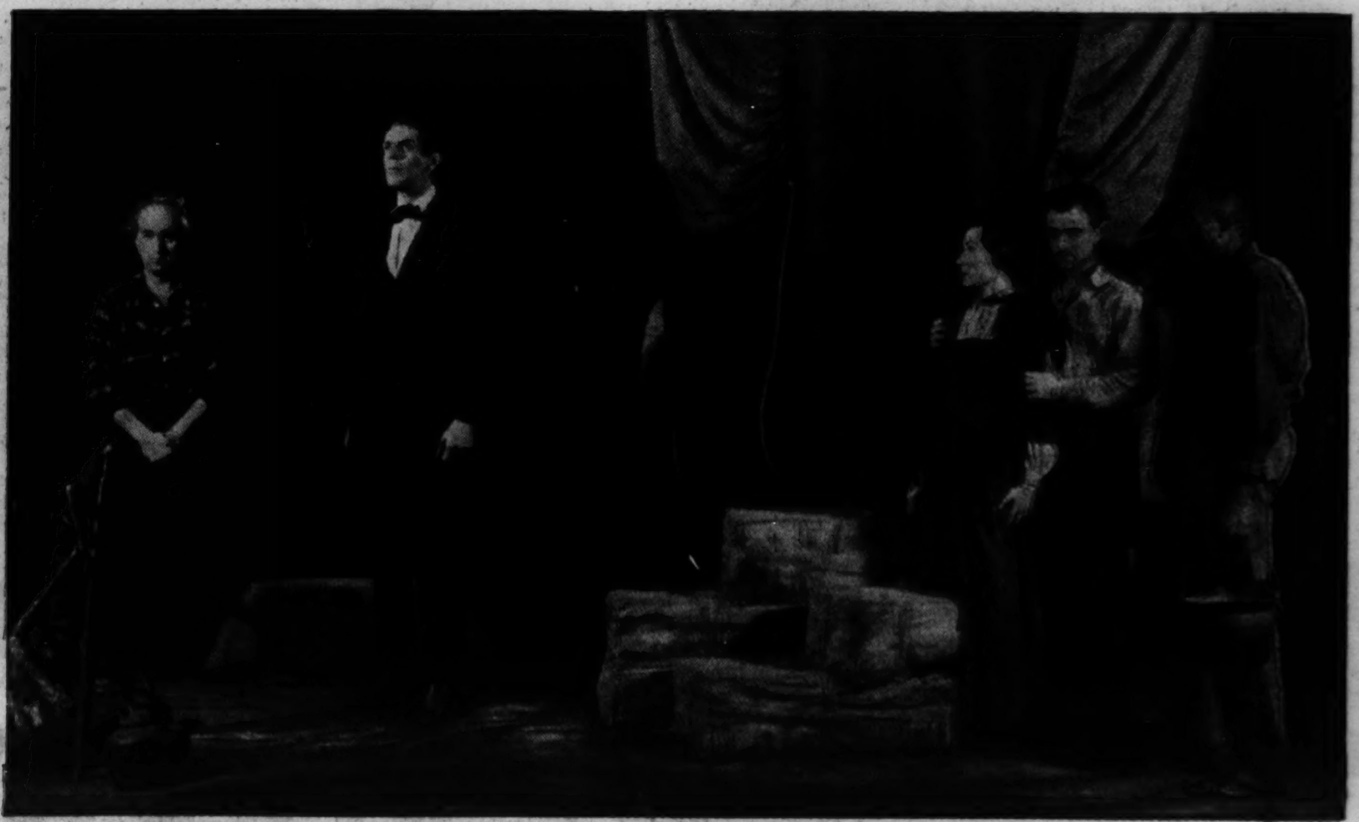
His impersonation of the young Illinois lawyer is not an attempt at mere photographic representation of a textbook character. He has brought the kindled imagination of a first-rate stage craftsman to his task of characterization, and even at the risk of departing from a few established folk notions of Lincoln he has created a consistent, admirable flesh-and-blood human being.

Of course it is foolish to talk as tho Mr. Massey accomplished all this without assistance. For he does have the indispensable aid of Robert Sherwood's play, which is in itself a rare combination of literary excellence and experienced dramaturgy. Mr. Sherwood did not cut his pattern of Lincoln out of whole cloth. For some fifteen years the playwright has been an extensive student of Lincoln biographies and documents and of miscellaneous Lincolniana. Some of this rich supply of source material he has translated into a character study of Lincoln which is at least (Continued on Page 2.)

Below: Young Abe, gloomy about the future and something of a misanthrope, appreciatively reads Keats' poem, "On Death," to his patient schoolmaster, Mentor Graham.



In the presence of his wife and political advisors the presidential candidate learns of his election. Depressed rather than elated by his victory, Lincoln continues to view the future without pleasure, having presentiments of his impending martyrdom.



During his wanderings, the lonely man encounters an old friend and his family on the prairie near New Salem. When he is asked to pray for a sick son, his prayer generalizes into an appeal for all Americans striving for the democratic ideal.

Poor Old 1939 and Broadway Stage Flops Gasp Together

Even Carroll and Priestley Don't Impress

By Burns Mantle.

New York [Special].—The old year went out in a welter of Broadway flops so far as the theaters were concerned. One failure trod upon another's heels, so fast they followed, and there was little to relieve the gloom. It was a good thing we had a little holiday spirit left to sustain us.

And there were fine names and established reputations back of all the experiments, too. Having been promised new plays by Paul Vincent Carroll and J. B. Priestley, and a third by a newcomer sponsored by the wise Guthrie McClintic, the experienced playgoer had a right to expect something pretty fine.

But Mr. Carroll, whose "Shadow and Substance" and "The White Steed" are still titles to remember, came in with a doleful and lightly fantastic opus called "Kindred." Mr. Priestley, who still has "Time and the Conways" and "Dangerous Corner" to talk about, was represented by a sad little comedy called "When We Are Married," and the newcomer, Dr. Gustave Eckstein, offered a study of inhibited adolesence and public childbirth cheerfully entitled "Christmas Eve." Dr. Eckstein, incidentally, is accused of having furnished the inspiration for the cockroach scientist the Messrs. Kaufman and Hart have playfully written into "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

• • •

To add to the poignancy of our wailing, every one of these failures was buttressed by a fine idea for a play. Take for example Mr. Carroll's "Kindred." It is the Carroll idea that because the greedy materialists of the world have made a failure of their job, only the creative geniuses, the artist natures that will fight for the finer things without thought of profit, can be looked to for the reforms of the future.

Carroll presents the case of Dermot O'Reagan, a half mad artist who refuses to marry the simple and sweet Mary Griffin because he loves her too much to let her bear children of his uncertain strain. Whereupon two of his ancestors appear to him in a sort of day dream and acquaint him with his greater duty to the race. He has no right to deny posterity the help and inspiration of his creative kind just because of his love of a woman. Women are merely the mothers of men, the chosen instruments of procreation. So Dermot seduces his serving woman and, being told she is to bear him a child, kills himself.

Twenty-five years later the illegitimate son of the painter and the legitimate son of Mary Griffin, whose love he denied, are the play's protagonists. The painter's son is a wandering fiddler, a half-mad idealist, a crusader for truth, but a work-a-day failure, Mary's son, by the village grocer, is a school teacher turned politician, who is standing for parliament as the representative of a corrupt party.

Aline McMahon.

Mary's spiritual kinship for the half daft painter's son is strong. He and she try to save her own son from politics, but fail. In the end the creative forces are again in flight and the politicians in the saddle, but the seeds of reform have been sown. A depressing and a fantastic play that some way should have been much better. Aline MacMahon, one of our finer actresses, was outstanding in an uncertain cast, including Arthur Shields and Barry Fitzgerald.

• • •

The Priestly idea for "When We Are Married" was also an excellent comedy idea. Six married couples who were wed the same day are in the habit of celebrating their anniversaries together. On the occasion of their silver wedding party they discover that the young parson who had married them 25 years before was not officially qualified to perform the rites. They have, it would appear, been living in sin for 25 years and their children are nameless before the law.

Then some of the six are glad of the excuse to slip the bonds of responsibility and matrimony, and some are crushed at the thought of the scandal. They are all pretty upset, but little real comedy is born of the situation or the lines, and an inefficient job of casting and directing kills what little chance the play had.

Now we come to the item called "Christmas Eve" and I may confidently assure you that in all your born days you have not sat with an audience as completely startled as was the first Broadway audience that saw this play. For once hardened first-nighters found themselves sitting, in effect, in the clinic of a lying-in hospital during the delivery of a baby, and they were disturbed. There was nothing for them to do but take it or make a hurried exit. Only a few made the exit.

Yet, for all its seeming sensationalism, this childbirth was a legitimate crisis of the dramatic structure and not in any sense dragged in for the purposes of shock. The story of "Christmas Eve" is that of a lower middle class family living in the "somewhat foreign quarter of a good sized American city." Might be Pittsburgh, seeing there is much talk of ironworkers and iron mills in it.

The McGlorys are fathered by a Joe McGlory, a friendly and moderate drinking Irishman and mothered by an amiable Polish woman named Hanka. There are four children of assorted ages and they live in a crowded-apartment. Now Hanka is expecting a fifth child. Julia, the oldest daughter, who resents sex anyway, is greatly embarrassed. When a stolid ironworker who has been courting Julia comes to visit her on Christmas eve and finds father McGlory a little tight and mother McGlory expectant, Julia, who might be a psychoanalyst's case history, is violently resentful.

It is the unexpected arrival of Hanka's baby—the hurried summoning of the doctor; the calm, practical assistance of Grandmother McGlory, and finally the arrival of the infant, birth wail and all—that serves to correct Julia's abnormal prejudices and set her on the way toward a normal mating and the establishment of a family of her own.

This birth scene [which is no more, incidentally, Mr. McClintic having decided to bow before a blasting critical protest and withdraw the play after six performances] was accompanied naturally by some suggestion of indelicacy on the part of the producer What may have been gained in sheer drama was lost in an excess of realism that set a part of the audience giggling and made another part decidedly uncomfortable.

But it should be said in defense of Mr. McClintic that, in so far as such a scene can be staged before the staring eyes of a mixed audience, this one was accompanied by neither offensive line nor gesture. The scene was skilfully masked by doctor and nurse and save for the recurrent labor pains under which the actress writhed modestly, and the shrill cry that accompanied each pain until an anesthetic was applied, there was no attempt made to harrow unduly the sensibilities of the auditors.

However, the longer we can keep the drama out of the delivery room the better, I feel, will it be for the drama, and it probably is as well that "Christmas Eve" suffered a quick failure. Any measure of success it might have won could easily have served less intelligent producers as an excuse to try to add something to it that would have stirred another censorship campaign.

Beth Merrill, who has been away from the local stage for a dozen years [or since she played in "Ladies of the Evening" and other plays for David Belasco], courageously took on the rôle of Hanka and did quite wonderfully with it, considering. Katherine Locke was the inhibited Julia, Kent Smith her befuddled suitor, and James Rennie the Irish father.

• • •

We have also started our own little "Folies Bergere" by way of rounding out the holiday experiments. This is in effect a restaurant-theater show without food or drink. A straight French vaudeville, squired by the Clifford Fischer who introduced it first at the San Francisco fair last summer. It is a pretty naked affair, done in the French manner, and runs for an hour and a half. There are two showings a night, one starting at 7:30, to please suburbanites, and one at 9:30, to catch the late diners. It sells for a dollar, which is its strongest bid for popularity. Nudity has ceased to be the attraction it was in the good old hypocritical days, when half the world wondered.

'Abe Lincoln' Play to Open Run Tomorrow

strong and unified, whatever its critics may have to say about its complete historicity.

• • •

This young Lincoln of Mr. Sherwood's has been described as "a man divided against himself in a country divided against itself." This theme of inner psychological struggle, projected upon the broader canvas of controversial pre-civil war national affairs, runs thru the play. From the very opening scene, in which we see Lincoln trying to learn about the indicative mode in a grammar lesson with the elderly schoolmaster, Mentor Graham, the young lawyer's shyness and social awkwardness are presented as stumbling blocks to the full realization of his ambition.

Certainly it does not befit an amateur like me to pass judgment, favorable or unfavorable, upon the authenticity of Mr. Sherwood's characterization. Suffice it to say that "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" is a drama of immediate significance to every citizen of the middle west, a sober attempt to shed light upon the formative years of the great President's life, and a credit to the American theater as a vigorous and high-minded institution.

The two chief feminine rôles of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" are played by Augusta Dabney, as Ann Rutledge, Lincoln's first sweetheart, and Muriel Kirkland, as Mary Todd, the woman who became his wife. Jo Mielziner designed the settings, and Elmer Rice, an important author in his own right, directed the production. The play is presented by the Playwrights' company, a producing group only a little more than a year old, which has already been represented in Chicago by "Knickerbocker Holiday" and "No Time for Comedy."

• • •

"The Hot Mikado," as it will be revealed at the Auditorium theater tonight with Bill Robinson in the royal title rôle, is the full length, full splendor production originally presented on Broadway by Michael Todd. When the New York fair began to attract summer visitors from out of town, Mr. Todd took his jitterbug extravaganza away from the main theater mart and offered it in a one hour tabloid version, three times a day, in the Hall of Music on the fair grounds. Here it proved, along with the Aquacade, to be one of the few commercial successes in the entire amusement zone.

When the fair closed, Mr. Todd expanded "The Hot Mikado" to its full length once more and sent it to Boston to begin the road tour which now brings it to us. Tabloid or full length, the production has been in the hands of experts. It was directed by Hassard Short, who has had a hand in many good musical shows of the 1920s and 1930s. And the settings and costumes by Nat Karson will make you sit up and take notice.

In addition to a big corps of dancers, choristers and Harlem jitterbugs, the cast includes the following principals: The Mikado, Bill Robinson; Ko-Ko, Freddie Robinson; Katisha, Rose Brown; Nanki-Poo, Maurice Cooper; Poo-Bah, Maurice Ellis; Pish-Tush, J. A. Lillard; Yum-Yum, Alice Harris; Peep-Bo, Roseeta Le Noire.

Tonight represents an evening of divided loyalty for Hassard Short. In addition to "The Hot Mikado" he is represented on the local boards by "Easy Virtue," which he also directed, and which opens tonight at the Selwyn theater in conflict with the Bill Robinson fiesta. The direction of this Constance Bennett vehicle, a reworked and Americanized version of Noel Coward's comedy, is something of a new departure for Mr. Short. Ordinarily he has devoted himself to such large productions as "The Great Waltz," "As Thousands Cheer" and "The American Way." It will be revealing to see his experienced technique applied to a smaller scale undertaking.

Miss Bennett's part—her first on the legitimate stage—is that of an American girl who marries into a conservative British family, and subsequently finds it necessary to assert herself in no uncertain terms. The script has been brought up to the minute, even to the introduction of air raid blackouts. The comedy will remain at the Selwyn for exactly two weeks and no more.

• • •

On Sunday evening, Jan. 21 a new tenant will take over the Selwyn. "Three After Three," a musical comedy that has not yet seen the bright lights of Broadway, will introduce Simone Simon, youthful French charmer of the movies, as a star of the American legitimate stage. The new musical was tried out in Boston not long ago. Since then four new numbers and a larger chorus have been added. The musical score is by Hoagy Carmichael, of "Star Dust" fame, and the book, based on the play "Three Blind Mice," is the combined product of Guy Bolton, Parke Levy and Allen Lipscott. John Mercer wrote the lyrics. Aside from Mlle. Simon, the list of featured players includes Mitzi Green, Mary Brian, Frances Williams, Stepin Fetchit, Art Jarrett and Marty May. The Shuberts are the producers.

The Kim Loo Sisters add a touch of fresh oriental beauty to George White's "Scandals," now current at the Erlanger theater. These four choice, fragile maidens are the children of a Chinese father and a European mother. They claim Minneapolis as their home. Until Mr. White discovered them they had never appeared in New York or Chicago, though they have participated in a family act since they were all wee tots. Their names, I hear, are Margaret, Jenee, Alice, and Bubbles.

Attendance figures for last week at the Harris theater are not yet available, but the opening week of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was pretty terrific, as they say in trade parlance. Not a single seat for a single performance between Christmas night and New Year's eve went unsold. The box office gross of the first eight performances [Monday thru Saturday] exceeded that of the first week of nine performances of "You Can't Take It With You" by approximately $3,500. And "You Can't Take It With You" stayed in Chicago for 49 weeks! "The Man Who Came to Dinner" has had John Barrymore, Edward Everett Horton and the "Scandals" as holiday competition. "You Can't Take It With You" did not have to meet stronger opposition in the loop from Charlotte Greenwood, the "Ziegfeld Follies" and the D'Oyly Carte company. All of which means that the new Kaufman-Hart comedy must be classed, by all the rules of the game, as a bona fide "smash hit."

Do you ask, What has become of Mr. Barrymore and Mr. Horton? Well, Mr. Barrymore has gone to Pittsburgh, and he will open "My Dear Children" in New York Jan. 29. Mr. Horton is now in Detroit. After a week there he will play St. Louis, Cincinnati and Washington before working down the Atlantic coast toward a Florida tour in February. Rowland Stebbins, producer of "Springtime for Henry," is already planning another vehicle for Mr. Horton for next summer or fall, or whenever the present comedy finishes scouring the country.

The Jack and Jill players present their final performance of "Cinderella and Her Comical Cat" at the Civic theater this afternoon at 3. The story is by Frances Homer. The Goodman theater also has its version of "Cinderella," presented each Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Maurice Evans and the full length "Hamlet" are now en route to the Pacific coast. Persistent rumor has it that Mr. Evans will engage in conversations with prominent film moguls, with a view to a screen version [full length?].

TWO CHEZ PAREE ADORABLES

Vaudeville

Benny Davis, one of the leading talent discoverers, is offering several of his latest finds in his new show, "Stardust Revue," at the Oriental theater. These include such budding celebrities as Mary Dooley, Ginger Manners, the Four Harmonica Revellers, Marie Austin, the Three Chords, Katherine Harris, Denett and Dae, Norman Duke, and many others. On the screen Hugh Herbert cavorts with Baby Sandy, Florence Rice, and Richard Carlson in the comedy, "Little Accident.

Jane Wyman.

At the Chicago theater a group of Hollywood starlets present a revue. Those engaged in this off-screen frolic are June Preisser, Susan Hayward, Joy Hodges, Arleen Whelan, Ronald Reagan and Jane Wyman. The last two are also on view in the current film, "Brother Rat and a Baby."

The State Lake theater features a stage show with Bobby Jordan and Billy Halop, two of the "Dead End" kids, this week. Other entertainers are Jackie Searle, David Gorcey, Florence Halop, Bob McLung, the Three Murtah Sisters, Cy Landry, the Three Ryans, and Jordan and Grace. On the screen is "Private Detective."

At the Rialto theater none other than lovely June St. Clair is heading the stage show. Some of her partners in the business of entertaining are Kitty Ellis, Marjorie Roye, Rita De Vere, Hank Henry, Benny Moore, and Bob Alda. The screen bill is "Café Hostess," with Preston Foster and Ann Dvorak.

Hanya Holm Dance Group to Open Engagement Wednesday

Same Program Will Be Given Four Evenings

By Cecil Smith.

With the recent engagement of the Ballet Russe now no more than a rosy memory, the focus of dance interest is transferred this week to the modern dance. On four consecutive evenings, Wednesday thru Saturday, Hanya Holm and her group of ten girls will appear in the Goodman theater. The same program will be given each night. The concerts constitute the second attraction in the Art Institute Members' dance series—an attractive sequence of four events which are, despite the misleading name, open to the general public.

Hanya Holm's dance group is one of the "big three" in the field of modern American dance, the others being the Martha Graham group and the company headed jointly by Doris Humphrey and Charles Weidman. Of these principal exponents of the special form of activity known as "modern dance," Hanya Holm is the only one who received her first training in Europe.

• • •

As a young dancer and teacher, Hanya Holm received her first eye-opening experience when she saw a concert by the daring German innovator Mary Wigman. The cult of Miss Wigman, which has now lost all immediate influence in America, played an important rôle in the post-war history of dancing. With its hard, gymnastic movements and its whole-souled reliance upon the bleak accompaniment of percussion instruments, the Wigman school represented a complete break with classical ballet and veil-and-garland "interpretative" dancing alike. It was, indeed, the first attempt to create a "pure art" of dancing, in which rhythmic and contrapuntal movement was undisturbed by reliance upon a story or upon a musical score.

When Miss Holm first came to América, her manner of dancing still retained much of the abstract gymnastics of the Wigman style. In the last few years, however, her outlook has undergone tremendous revision—for the better, it seems to me. Like her colleagues in the modern dance field, she is coming to talk less and less about pure, nonrepresentational dancing, and she is beginning to lose her haunting fear of being branded "theatrical."

Indeed, the healthiest sign on the 1940 modern dance horizon is the discovery on the part of both Miss Holm and Miss Graham that dancing must be a frankly theatrical art to attract real support from the American audience. It is possible to say honestly at this time that the modern dance is no longer a specialized cult, for it is now making an honest attempt to capture the spontaneous interest of a wide public.

The frankly theatrical trend of Miss Holm's interest may be seen in the final item of her present program. "Metropolitan Daily," danced to music by Gregory Tucker, is a satiric suite based upon the various departments—financial, sports, want ads, comics, and so on—of a big city newspaper.

The complete program is as follows:

Dance of Introduction....................
[Music by Freda Miller.]
Dance of Work and Play....................
[Music by Norman Lloyd.]
Tragic Exodus [first time in Chicago]..
[Music by Vivian Fine.]
Two Primitive Rhythms....................
[Percussion accompaniment.]
Metropolitan Daily....................
[Music by Gregory Tucker.]

In its ten day stay at the Auditorium theater, ending last Thursday night, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo managed to weave its familiar spell once again. And in the main it deserved to. The company's season began in the face of unbelievable obstacles, what with the perils and delays of trans-Atlantic voyaging. From a beginning in New York which must have been pretty ragged, judging by critical reports, the troupe managed to whip itself into good functioning condition before the Chicago opening. Even tho the corps de ballet included many new dancers, the ensemble was more polished this year than last, and the total effect of most of the performers was more brilliant.

The company is still somewhat weak in principal dancers, however. Leonide Massine and Alexandra Danilova, both of whom remain supreme artists and unsurpassed technicians, are, of course, beyond all cavil. So is Alicia Markova, a classical dancer inferior to Danilova only because she has less personal warmth. The other principal feminine dancers, on the other hand, do not efface memories of Baronova, Toumanova, and Riabouchinska; even Mia Slavenska, a first rank technician, wears too fixed a musical comedy smile to fit into the more discreet and imaginative assignments that fall her way.

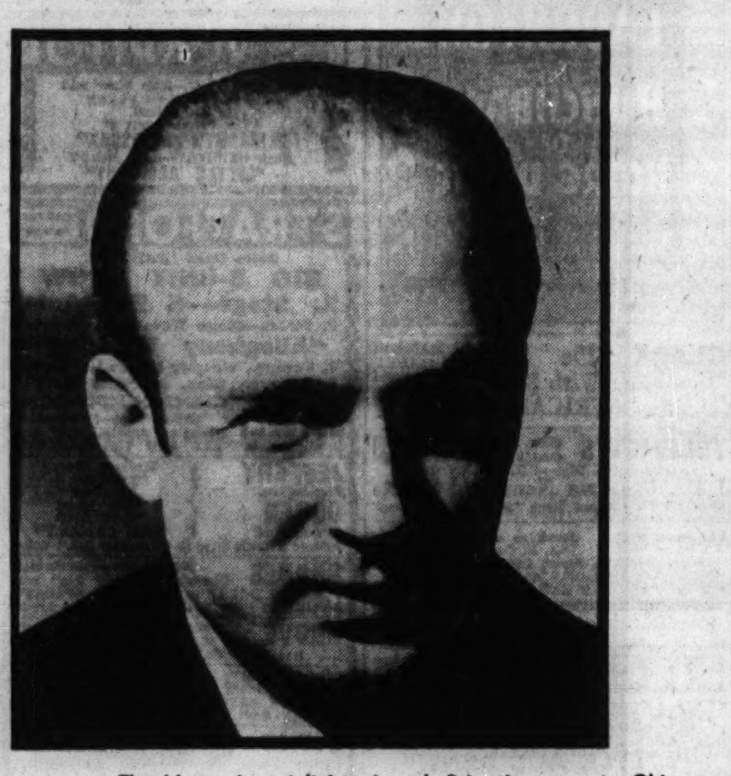
Of the male dancers, Frederic Franklin and Igor Youskevich are the best, tho neither has yet come to a full realization of his potentialities. George Zoritch, an accomplished lyric dancer, needs a little more hardness of outline and virility of muscular precision before he can become wholly satisfying. Andre Eglevsky, a good partner in classic episodes, was on the whole something of a disappointment, since his style verges on heaviness and monotony.

• • •

Most of the company's six novelties came off well. "Rouge et Noir," to the Shostakovich First symphony, proved to be one of Massine's best conceived and most exciting experiments in the realm of abstract choreography. "Bacchanale," with the Dali trappings that set every one by the ears, turned out to be a far more lucid, comprehensible, and beautiful work than most people had anticipated; it is an imaginative work of art, and not the sorry spectacle of Freudian neurosis some thought it would be. "Devil's Holiday," less commanding than the two ballets already mentioned, is at the very least a valuable attempt at a consciously restricted, and partly archaic, type of movement and composition.

The one real failure was "Ghost Town," the much-advertised all-American item. The Richard Rodgers score is too close to Broadway and too slavishly conventional in its metrical periods. Marc Platoff's choreography is, tho I hate to be brutal, a bundle of Russian ballet platitudes, and says nothing that an American can understand as his own language. Place also on the debit side the revival of "Scheherazade," with a bad new setting and substandard dancing on the part of several principals.

SOLOIST ON TUESDAY NIGHT



The Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti, comes to Chicago fresh from a concert tour of Europe's warring nations. He will be soloist with the Saidenberg Symphonietta in the Goodman theater on Tuesday night.

Music in Paris

Parisian musical life is returning to a state of normalcy these days. The National Conservatory of Music has reopened in the French capital in spite of a plan to move it to Nantes or Fontainebleau. A great deal of amalgamation is current among musical organizations. The Grand Opera and the Opéra-Comique have combined personnel to give performances at the latter's theater. Three famous orchestral societies—Colonne, Lamoureux, and Pasdeloup—have merged for the duration of the war, the conductors taking turns in leading the united group. There exists at present a tendency to stress French music on all programs and theatrical performances, but master works from other countries are still prominent in the various répertoires.

Lake View Musical

The Lake View Musical society will begin the new year with a program tomorrow night in the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, starting at 8:15. The artists will be Ada Paggi, mezzo-soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, and Pearl Gran and Margaret Smith, duopianists.

Week to Bring 4 Appearances by Orchestra

infant, who studied on the west coast and in New York, and who has to his credit appearances with California orchestras and in a New York recital. He is making his Chicago bow this week in the Sibelius concerto, as a feature of a program devoted entirely to the works of that composer.

The Tuesday concert offers an attractive miscellany of music. It opens with the "Tambourin" from Grétry's "Céphale et Procris," maintains its old French character with the Rameau-Motti G minor concert suite, goes from that to "On the Shores of Sorrento" from Strauss' "Aus Italien" fantasy, and ends the preintermission period with the light, holiday music of Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker" suite. The postintermission period is given over to the Mozart two piano concerto.

The all-Sibelius programs Thursday and Friday are not as austere as they sound, for the works are all early ones, dating from a period when the composer used conventional melody in a much more generous way than he does now. The "Karelia" overture, the second symphony, the tone poem "Finlandia," and the violin concerto make up the program.

The most recent of these works—the concerto—dates from 1903; the earliest—the overtures—from 1893. "Finlandia," the most popular of Sibelius' compositions, was written in 1899. The second symphony, so melodious as to be almost Tschaikowskian in places, is a product of the year 1901.

Mr. Lange's program Saturday night consists of the prelude to Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," Borodin's second symphony, the suite from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, "Christmas Eve," and Elgar's variations on an original theme.

This program is interesting for more than one reason. In the first place it contains one of the most beautiful of late nineteenth century orchestral pieces—the Elgar variations. In the second it offers the Borodin second symphony, a work whose appeal for many has been heightened by the use Massine made of it in his recent [1938] ballet, "Bogatyri."

• • •

Closely associated with the Chicago Symphony orchestra is the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, which this afternoon opens its season of five Orchestra hall concerts. The Civic orchestra, jointly sponsored by the Orchestral association and the Civic Music association, is a training school for orchestral players. By the time its first concert comes around each year the orchestra has successfully absorbed its new members and is playing with precision, tonal beauty, and exurberance.

Julius Katchen.

Today's concert, conducted by Hans Lange, offers Julius Katchen, a pianist new to Chicago, in the Schumann concerto. Katchen is a 13 year old New Jerseyite who is said to have walked into a rehearsal of the Philadelphia orchestra one day and announced calmly to Eugene Ormandy that he had come to play and had brought his music. In the fall of 1937, when the boy was only 11, he did actually play in public with the Philadelphia orchestra. A month later he appeared with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra under John Barbirolli's direction. Today marks his debut in this section of the country.

Mr. Lange surrounds his prodigy this afternoon with such standard music as the prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and Tschaikowsky's sixth ["Pathetic"] symphony and with Bernard Rogers' "The Supper at Emmaus," a symphonic picture after Rembrandt. Rogers is an American composer now teaching at the Eastman school in Rochester, N. Y.

The Civic orchestra concerts offer one of Chicago's greatest musical bargains. Individual tickets are 15 cents to 50 cents, season tickets for the five concerts 75 cents to $2.50.

The first Sunday of the new year is a good time to look ahead at the remainder of the symphony's season. And this year certain changes have been necessitated by the war and by other causes, and the January to April schedule will not follow in every detail the one announced for these months earlier in the season.

The series has lost Myra Hess and George Enesco, but has gained Egon Petri. He is the great Dutch pianist who last fall played the solo part of the Busoni concerto at the Thursday-Friday concerts. He will appear in the same work at the Tuesday concert of Feb. 13. Other Tuesday personalities still to come are Nathan Milstein, violinist [Jan. 23], Igor Strawinsky, composer-conductor [Feb. 27], Guiomar Novaes, pianist [March 26] and Arthur Rubinstein, pianist [April 9].

The Thursday-Friday audience will hear Beveridge Webster, pianist [Jan. 18-19], Nathan Milstein, violinist [Jan. 25-26], Serge Prokofieff, composer-conductor [Feb. 15-16], Igor Strawinsky, composer-conductor [Feb. 22-23], Vladimir Horowitz, pianist [Feb. 29-March 1], Robert Casadesus, pianist [March 14-15], John Weicher, violinist [March 28-29], Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist [April 4-5], and Arthur Rubinstein, pianist [April 11-12].

Notes of Music and Musicians

For its third concert of the season the Saidenberg Symphonietta will present as its soloist the great Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti. For his only appearance in Chicago this year he will play a Concerto in D minor by Giuseppe Tartini. Under Daniel Saidenberg's direction the ensemble will give the local première of a Sinfonietta for string orchestra in B minor by the prolific Russian composer, Nicholas Miaskovsky. The balance of the program will be devoted to Bassani's "Canzoni Amorose" for strings and Mozart's Divertimento in B flat for strings and two horns.

Bettina Bjorksten, soprano, will give a recital in Kimball hall on Tuesday night. A proficient pianist during her youth she began her vocal studies at the age of 17 with the late Hermine Bosetti. Thereafter she worked with Ria Ginster and Louis Bachner. On her program are listed arias from operas and oratorios by Handel, Mozart, and Gounod, and songs by Brahms, Wolf, Mahler, MacDowell, Debussy, and Cyril Scott. Charles Lurvey will be the accompanist.

This week brings forth two recitals by local dancers. Tonight in the Goodman theater Anne Rudolph will offer a joint program with William Heyne and Bertha Fitzek, duopianists. The concert will come to a close with all three collaborating in a choreographic as well as a pianistic interpretation of Milhaud's "Scaramouche."

On Monday night the Lithuanian dancer, Vytautas Finadar Beliajus, will perform with his company at the Woman's Club theater, offering two large works, "Our Lady of Vilna" and "Kiddush Ha 'Shem" ["In the Glory of His Holy Name"]. Both make copious use of genuine folk dances.

Guila Bustabo, the young violinist whose career began in these regions, has managed to continue her recent European tour in spite of the current war. Many of her engagements took her into belligerent as well as adjacent neutral countries.

The traditional Epiphany candle lighting service will be observed in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Music for the service will be sung by the University of Chicago choir under Mack Evans' direction. Admission is without ticket.

Colleges Turn on Accrediting Agency System

[How can you tell which schools have strong faculties? Information which can help you select the right school for your son or daughter is given in the helpful book, "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans of the Tribune staff. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. Price, 10 cents. By postpaid mail, 13 cents.]

By Dr. John Evans.

American colleges and universities lately have been wondering whether or not they like the standardizing processes set up by accrediting agencies during the last quarter of a century. From rebellious complaints now arising on many campuses, it begins to appear that they do not. So loud have been some of the opponents of standardization that the American Council on Education took formal notice of the complaints. A conference on the question of standardization under the council's aegis heard a good deal of plain speaking.

One speaker told of these accrediting agencies as being "irritatingly burdensome." Another spoke of accrediting "gadflies now drawing sustenance from tortured flanks of American higher education . . . because each institution has to pay to be stung." The educators even socked their accrediting tormentors with such words as "racketeers," while one pointed to a professional school accrediting agency and accused it of establishing a quota system so that graduates in the profession would enjoy membership in a monopoly.

The facts are that accrediting agencies have multiplied rapidly in the last decade, that they have widened their scope, and that tho their requirements are no more exacting than they were several years ago, the total effect of their prescriptions is materially greater.

The introduction to the report resembles an indictment. The agencies are accused of placing restrictions on the local control of the educational program, of overlapping with their frequent inspections, of developing a friction between themselves and the institutions of higher education to such an extent as to obstruct the evolution of educational policies, and exceeding their powers

"Trustees, administrative officers, and faculty members have begun to wonder who really controls our educational institutions" reads the introduction. "They see final determination of educational policy consciously or unconsciously being assumed by accrediting agencies, and they are exercised by what they consider a usurpation of their own legal and proper responsibilities."

The rallying of the scattered dissentients dates from a speech made by George F. Zook, president of the executive officers of the American Council on Education, in November, 1938, before the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities. In the course of his address on "Who Should Control Our Institutions of Higher Education" he referred to the encroachments of the agencies.

"The power of the accrediting agencies, however, is now being challenged" he said, "and challenged in the very place it ought to be, within the institutions themselves. Once more the individual institutions are asking for freedom—this time from the requirements of a variety of associations."

• • •

Later that month, at a meeting of the National Association of State Universities and the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities, a joint committee was appointed "to prepare a list of those agencies to whose inspections member institutions should submit." The committee was to report at the annual meeting of the groups in the autumn of 1939.

Then in April, 1939, the American Council on Education invited a number of accrediting agencies and other professional associations to send delegates to a conference in Washington, D. C., "to talk over the various problems in the present accrediting situation in order to see if any activities can be undertaken which may be of mutual interest and benefit.

Samuel P. Capen, chancellor of the University of Buffalo, was asked to present a paper, discussing the long-time influence of accrediting agencies of higher education by the president of the American council.

"Seven Devils in Exchange for One" is the title of Dr. Capen's address, and if the introduction be regarded as an indictment then his speech immediately following in the report is certainly that of a prosecuting attorney. It will be discussed in a future article.

Sousa Memorial.

Early this month the first part of the John Philip Sousa Memorial bridge was dedicated in Washington, D. C. The United States Marine band, with which the conductor and composer was so closely affiliated, performed at the ceremonies. A more elaborate dedication will take place when the bridge is completed within a year or so. It is believed to be the only major structure of this kind to be named after a famous musician.

Good Morning!

And on this, the first Sunday of a New Year, we pause for a moment, to make obeisance to December, 1939's, best movies.

"The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex"—"Historical romance . . . is, as title implies, not so much a study of the times of Elizabeth and Essex as it is a study of the two in their human relationship . . . seems a gorgeous, living tapestry in its rich colorings . . . clings closely enough to history . . . like the play, is dramatically satisfying . . . packs some powerful humor. . . . Miss Davis plays with artistry. . . . Mr. Flynn acts with fire and fluency. . . ."

"Destry Rides Again"—With Marlene Dietrich, James Stewart, Charles Winninger, Mischa Auer, Una Merkel, Brian Donlevy. IT'S SWELL!"

"Katia"—French film. . . . "Sings of a Russian ruler who was young and handsome and kind and gay and who wanted to give his people what they wanted—namely, a constitution, but who was killed off too soon to bring his dream to reality. . . . Romance of Katia and Alexander depicted with delicacy and occasional humor . . . lavishly staged and costumed and quite provocative as to suspense." Featured players, Danielle Darrieux and John Loder.

"Gulliver's Travels"—Full length cartoon in color—"witty, wacky and completely charming version of Jonathan Swift's gentle satire on the folly and futility of war." . . . By Max Fleischer of "Betty Boop," "Pop Eye," etc., fame.

"The Great Victor Herbert"—"Victor Herbert's lovely music, pervades like a fragrance this story about the great composer . . . isn't biographical. It is, rather, a sentimental tribute to a brilliant and kindly gentleman, essaying to show the effect of his life and influence on those with whom he came in contact. . . .Older generation is going to lôve this movie, and I don't just see how a younger one, for all its 'swing' addiction, can help doing likewise." . . . In the featured rôles, Mary Martin, Allan Jones, Walter Connolly and Susanna Foster.

"Generals Without Buttons"—French production. "Quaint little drama of child life based on the novel by Louis Pergaud which won the Goncourt prize."

"The Heart of Paris"— . . . "One of those really excellent French films that descend upon us every so often. . . . Both simplicity and power mark the story and the manner in which it is worked out . . ."

"Intermezzo" — Featuring Leslie Howard and Ingrid Bergman. "You saw the same story filmed not so long ago by a Swedish company and it featured as Anita the same actress who portrays the character in the English version. . . . The piece, as was the Swedish production, is short, excellently staged, intelligently dialoged, and most atmospheric.

"Ninotchka"—"In Ninotchka the Garbo runs completely UNtrue to form. . . . She kids, she laughs, she sloughs off Russian inhibitions as a snake does its skin, emerging all softly amorous, ready for love and HOW. And there is occasion when she drinks not wisely, but too well. . . . Well, well. . . . Melvyn Douglas has plenty of what it takes. . . . Ina Claire sparkles. . . . Brainy direction by Ernst Lubitsch. . . ."

And so, a LAST farewell to old December—1939.

See you tomorrow.

Red Hair Is Enjoying New Wave of Favor

How to develop lovely hands by simple treatments is told in Antoinette Donnelly's booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We don't know whether Bette Davis' portrayal of Queen Elizabeth, in a late movie, is responsible for revived interest in redheads. We think it may be one influence. Another, we think, is the general tendency in Hollywood away from the strident blonde hair shade. Within the last few months we have interviewed outstanding Hollywood personages, including Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Blondell, Ann Sheridan, Shirley Ross, Rosemary Lane and others.

From each of them we have heard repeated news of a Hollywood direction definitely away from the brilliant blonde. One of the stars thinks Hedy LaMarr's dark haired entrance is responsible. Also, the fact that the blondes looked so much alike that, 10 feet away, you wouldn't know who was approaching you regardless of her box office standing. It might be a famous glamor girl or it might be a little unknown extra who got in the way of your vision.

So began the dénouement of the brittle blonde. In her place are what have come to be known as "brownettes," whose hair may be any shade from a tawny to a mahogany brown. Rosemary Lane, incidentally, is one of those rarely gifted as to tresses, for hers is the true ash blonde which hasn't been tampered with ever, a blonde best described as having the color of clear, light ashes illumined with silver tints.

In many of the brownettes, such as Barbara Stanwyck and Joan Blondell, you see reddish tints under certain lights. This is a common characteristic of brown hair. Then, too, certain outright redheads, such as Greer Garson, Ann Sheridan, Lana Turner, Jeanette MacDonald, Myrna Loy, and Janet Gaynor, represent a colorful type of beauty that, properly presented and maintained, wins acclaim.

We are told, too, that sales of henna-colored dyes, rinses, washes, tints and stains, all designed to add the reddish glow to hair, are in their ascendancy at the moment.

It is claimed that redheads, as a rule, whether that way by nature or by artifice, have a bigger problem in clothes and makeup than do other types. First, because tradition would confine the redhead to certain colors which, in view of modern makeup aids, may be deemed outmoded. Anyway, they needn't be considered arbitrary rules. One of Hollywood's designers says that when it comes to choosing colors to wear, redheads are too conservative. They should not be confined to greens, browns, yellows and black. If they choose the right shade, they can wear any color. To prove it, she dressed redheaded Susan Hayward in smoky, winey reds and even pinks. However, it is agreed by designers generally that while redheads can wear certain shades of pink, it takes one with a most discriminating eye to get the right pink, that is, one that doesn't conflict with the hair shade.

• • •

The redheads' native fondness for Nile green is decried by another Hollywood designer, who thinks it is trying with certain shades of red hair, making too violent a contrast. But dark green gets almost universal approval, because it brings out the fine glints in the hair. There are certain odd, unusual shades of green that enhance the green eyes often found with Titian locks, at the same time pointing up the coppery hair tones. That's why, they say, the designer, Adrian dresses his wife, Janet Gaynor, in these particular greens.

Janet's skin is very fair. But redheads with florid skin tendencies must look for a different green tone, if it is to be green at all.

While modernists may plead for the adoption of reds and pinks, the consensus is that a danger signal should hang over such materials for the benefit of the redheaded shopper. Nothing less than a rare artist's eye and sense will serve. Chestnut red hair, such as Myrna Loy's, may carry Chinese red beautifully, but Myrna Loy is in a class by herself. But if the average, nonprofessional redhead wants to give her glowing locks their appointed place in her ensemble, a plain background color will permit her striking head a distinction worth aiming for. Let that background color be flattering, not to the hair alone, but to the skin as well. The consensus of expressed opinion is that redheads too often omit the skin color consideration, also failing to take account of eye color influence, redheads' eyes being blue, blue-green, hazel, real green and varying tones of brown.

• • •

Another criticism heard about redheads is that they, a bit too prideful of their flaming tresses, cannot resist letting it run too riotously and fully, whereas a nicer restraint, a simpler coiffure, would amplify its bright appeal.

That redheads have a bigger job than others is agreed, for their locks must be burnished bright with brushings.

As for makeup, none has to be more discriminating. Orange tints in rouge and lipstick are decried by experts. Clear, red shades serve the type infinitely better. One makeup expert suggests that redheads overlook a great makeup by not capturing in foundation creams, rouges, powder and so on a reflection of the coppery light in every redhead's hair. The suntan shades are very close.

All of which should give the redheaded world of women, whose tribe increases daily, an idea that they have a world of their own to conquer, a world from which blonde and brunet dress and makeup color suggestions must be banished.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

I cannot think of any game, hobby or pursuit at which the old saw, "Look before you leap" pays better dividends than it does at contract bridge.

It may come as something of a shock to thousands of players who have never entered a tournament or even a bridge club to hear that not one of the outstanding players of the country is really fast. Admittedly, some are much slower than others—indeed, two or three of them take as long as 20 minutes to play a hand, and they may think for 10 minutes over the play of one card. This, of course, applies only to tournaments, but even at rubber bridge they are no speed demons. The fact of the matter is that in one sense experts are really modest. They have no glorified idea of their ability to execute an abstruse coup in the flicker of an eye. They admit to themselves and to the world that these masterpieces are not tossed off nonchalantly.

I do not recommend that long huddles be used in the average game; if they were, the opponents and partner would either be fast asleep or off in some other room playing Chinese checkers. But I do strongly suggest that every one slow down a trifle and try to apply the advice given by A. Wolfers, writing in the Bridge World Magazine, to-wit:

"In every leading group of players, there are a few who have trained themselves to think a moment longer—to weigh up the various possibilities rapidly and deliberately—before making what at first sight appears to be the obviously correct lead or return. These exponents have been amply rewarded for their extra care because they are the players who consistently carry off the trophies and acquire reputations as ranking players. The reader must not assume that I am advocating that he should go into a wearisome huddle every time it is his turn to play, but I do seriously suggest that he should train himself to analyze each particular situation.

"Let us consider the following simple situation. South has contracted for three no trump. Your partner, West, has led the three of spades and you can see:

NORTH.
♠ 7 6 5
♥ 8 4
♦ Q J 7 3
♣ A K 10 6

WEST.
♠ 3

EAST.
♠ A 2

♦ 10 5 2
♣ 9 7 5 3

SOUTH.

"Dummy plays the five and you win with the ace, declarer dropping the four. You finger the deuce and are about to return this hopeless card, when you are advised to pause a moment and to make a rapid analysis somewhat on the following lines: 'If my partner's lead is honest, South has four spades. West's holding is not K-Q-J-x or K-Q-10-x—it is likely to be much weaker. I see no future for us in this suit. Clubs are hopeless and diamonds discouraging. If there is a weak spot, it is in hearts.' Your meditation having reached this point in a few seconds, you remove your finger from the deuce of spades and you play the queen of hearts instead. And so defeat the contract! Declarer's hand is:

♠ K J 10 4 ♥ K 7 6 ♦ A K 8 ♣ Q 4 2 and, as will be seen at a glance, any lead other than a heart at this juncture gives him 10 tricks.

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 diam'd	Double
Pass	2 clubs	Pass	2 no tr'p
Pass	3 no tr'p	Pass	Pass
Pass

West opens the diamond nine. Which side would you rather take—the East-West hands, to defeat the contract, or the North-South hands, to fulfill it?

Answer: You should choose the East-West hands and defeat the contract, against declarer's best play. To do so, however, East must not put a diamond honor on West's nine, whether or not dummy's jack is played. If East does put up an honor, declarer lets him hold the trick. Now, declarer still has two diamond stoppers, and regardless of the defense, cannot be stopped from bringing home three club tricks, two spades, two diamonds, and two hearts.

But if East ducks the first trick, declarer must win, and now West retains a diamond. Declarer cannot take nine tricks until he clears the club suit; when he loses to West's club king, West returns his diamond four. Now East plays an honor, knocking out diamond ace. When declarer attacks the heart suit, East takes his ace and runs diamond tricks.

"Let us now consider a rather more difficult play. Altho this defense is not so apparent as the foregoing, it is one which should be made by every player who devotes just that little more thought to the situation which is given by the players I have in mind.

"Again, North-South have reached three no trump, and, again, your partner leads the three of spades. You are confronted with the following:

NORTH.
♠ Q 9 7 6

"You win with the ace and now, because you have been trained, your finger does not wander to the deuce of spades. At a glance, you see that that return would be hopeless. Where, then, shall you turn for salvation? Hearts? Clubs? Diamonds? Ah! If your partner has a quick entry, say in hearts or clubs, the lead of a small diamond now will set up four tricks in that suit. Accordingly, you lead the six of diamonds and declarer may huddle and squirm as long and as painfully as he will but he will make no more than eight tricks, for his holding is:

♠ K J 5 ♥ A K J ♦ 9 4 3 ♣ A 10 9 6

"To conclude this homily, I will quote an example of scintillating defensive play by Waldemar von Zedtwitz—a play which will be remembered and quoted for a long time.

"Mr. Von Zedtwitz, sitting East, and his partner were silent, while North-South reached six spades on academic lines.

"Nine times out of ten, the combined holdings of North and South would yield 12 tricks without any difficulty but, on this 10th occasion, the naughty Imp of Distribution saw fit to hand East all four missing trumps, one of which must develop into a winner, and to place in each hand a losing club.

"The ten of hearts was led and declarer won the king. He played the ace of spades and the bad news was out. But South was also a great player and he espied one chance of stealing a trick and accordingly set the stage for it. He led the deuce of diamonds to dummy's ace and returned the three of clubs, winning with the king. East here sensed danger and dropped the jack. He was relieved to receive encouragement from West, who played the ten, thus undertaking to protect the third round of that suit. South next led the seven of diamonds and ruffed in dummy with the five of spades. Dummy played ace of hearts and followed with the seven of hearts which declarer ruffed with the two of spades. South then concluded his preparations for his coup by playing the king of diamonds and discarding the four of clubs from dummy.

"The following position had been reached.

"Declarer now led the jack of diamonds and ruffed with the queen of spades, hoping that East would discard a club. If he had done so, South intended to lead the ace of clubs and another, forcing East to waste a trump and to lead his J-9 of spades into his divided tenace of K-4 and 10-6 of spades. But Mr. Von Zedtwitz had given that 'little more' thought to the situation and he underruffed with the eight of spades.

"South still had a faint hope of success and led the five of clubs from dummy but the man who had produced that eight of spades was not going to be thrown into the lead with the queen of clubs and that card was unhesitatingly played, so that the next club lead was won by West and the awkward trump tenace situation was skillfully avoided.

"The little more—and how much it is!

Milliners Are Threatened and Hats Are Sane

By Bettina Bedwell.

Milliners of the world this last year have been looking a man-sized menace straight in the eye. An epidemic of hatlessness has swept thru the civilized centers of the western world. Bare-headed women may be seen anywhere one goes, and their number is increasing. The millinery industry is faced with possible extinction if it keeps on growing, this wave of going around hatless. It is a good deal more serious than the stockingless vogue that frightened the hosiery manufacturers to death several years ago, because there's a spirit of revenge behind it.

The clever boys and girls who design our hats, who make millinery fashions, have in recent years grown too smart. They've foisted on a gullible public hats that hadn't, for their purpose, any beautifying or kindness to the wearer but, on the contrary, seemed intended to make women ridiculous. And they did the job only too well.

For a while this kind of millinery was accepted under the label of "crazy." Women thought it was smart to look crazy, but there must have been too many mirrors around, or too many men spoke up and said their piece about such millinery goingson. Women have revolted, and their answer to the milliners is: "Give us becoming hats, or we'll go bare-headed."

Failure to respond to millinery designed to turn even a beauty into something to laugh at was strikingly evident in the reception to an incident in the new Garbo film, "Ninotchka." When Garbo, who still personifies grade A glamor to millions of women, puts a particularly grotesque imitation of the Eiffel Tower on her beautiful head and goes to meet the man with whom she's in love, the film intention is to make her more glamorous. What actually happened was a roar of laughter from the audience, in which the feminine notes exceeded the masculine. Feminine gullibility seems to have been about exhausted. The sales resistance to this kind of hat appears to have been made of solid concrete.

Milliners, aware of this state of affairs, are doing some effective things about the hatless peril this new season. I have seen the new millinery collections, and there is a general aim to make hats becoming, even flattering, which is about the best news in years.

A striking feature of many of the new hats is the normal, head-fitting crown which replaces the towering, tormented crowns that have disfigured our heads so long. Another is the brim that flatters a face. Sailors are a big feature of spring millinery styles, and most of them have brims that are softened by softly shirred and ruffled material, or that are twisted into graceful, becoming lines.

Many of the new hats come down over the back of the head, doing away with the unflattering exposure of a large expanse of more or less sightly hair at the back. These hats usually are small toque and bonnet shapes, and many of them are made of fabric combined with the finest and silkiest of straw braid. They are designed for immediate wear and undoubtedly will be worn later with suits and spring dresses as well.

Millinery colors for spring are more becoming. The hard, purply pinks and screaming reds of recent seasons are replaced by flattering colors, and the color chart is very big to allow plenty of personal choice. Flowered, plaid and striped fabrics are important in the spring millinery styles.

One sports bonnet is a sample of the printed millinery fashion. John-Frederics makes this model of gay-colored plaid madras. It is very light and uncumbersome, and a positive lure against going bareheaded, since it holds the hair neatly back, but has no top. It is pinned together at the back with a big gold safety pin and may be rolled up and put in a pocket. A plaid bag matches it.

• • •

From Lilly Dache, and potently bidding against hatlessness, is a feathery-light, draped toque of silver-striped green organza, brought to a graceful knot at the nape of the neck, imitating hair, and held by big silver hairpins.

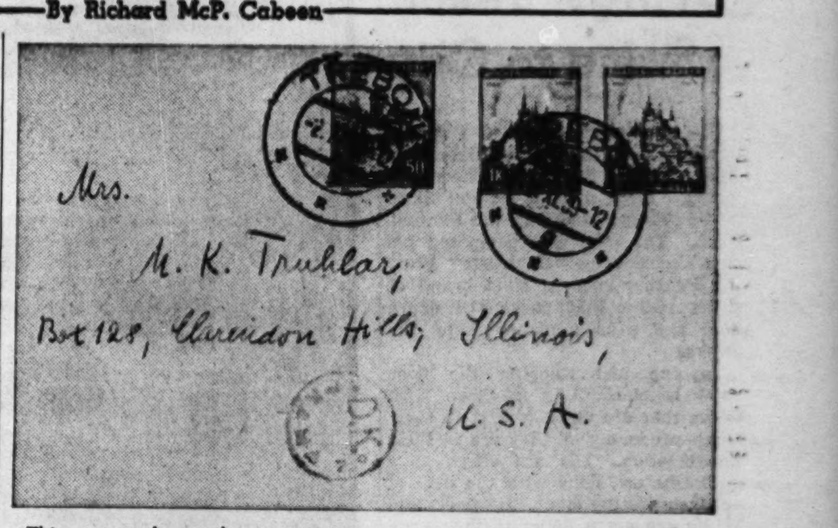
Another John-Frederics hat, one that throws all of the crazy and grotesque millinery standards into the dust-bin, comes out for girlish sweetness. It is made of lemon yellow glass batiste, and trimmed with red ribbon streamers.

Lilly Dache's sailor made of gray straw braid is becomingly trimmed with big gray and violet silk flowers and green silk stems and leaves that are twisted around the crown.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover shows the stamps now in use in portions of Czecho-Slovakia. They bear the German names of the states of Bohemia and Moravia at the top with the Czech names at the bottom. The cover was lent by M. K. Truhlar of Clarendon Hills.

The general principles of electric eye perforation have been explained in a previous column. It is well known among collectors that the marginal blocks showing the vertical dashes are the surest identification of stamps perforated by the electric eye machines, but it may not be so well known that it is possible to identify single unusued copies if they have the original gum. The electric eye perforating machines were equipped with a gum breaking device which differed from that used for any other stamps. A gum breaker breaks up the thin layer of dry glue on the back of the stamps and was designed to prevent curling of the stamps.

These gum breakers are of the herringbone type with the markings spaced .21 inch or 3 mm., measured at right angles to the breaker lines. The breaker lines on the lefthand panes slant down from left to right at an angle of 2 degrees. The breaker lines on the right hand panes are reversed and slant upward from left to right at the same angle.

Four types of marginal markings were made for this perforater but the plates bearing the fourth type were never used as the Presidential issue replaced the 1923 design before the plates had been put to press. The first type of markings appears only on plates 21149 and 21150. In this type the plate numbers are found only on the left margins of the left panes, being omitted from the right margins of the right panes to remove any possibility of their affecting the operation of the electric eye. The number is located opposite stamp No. 1 in the upper left pane and opposite stamp No. 91 in the lower left pane. The vertical dashes which control the vertical perforations are located in the center of the gutter between panes. There are 41 vertical dashes in the length of the plate and 40 full spaces and two half spaces. Both the dashes and the spaces measure approximately one-fourth inch in length. The 21st or center dash is located across the center line of the horizontal gutter and panes cut normally will show a half dash at this point and there is a half space at the other end of the vertical gutter. Except for minor variations the vertical dashes are alike in the three types of plates made for the electric eye perforation.

The horizontal dash which controls the horizontal perforations is located on the right hand sheet margin, opposite the center of the horizontal gutter. It is ½ inch long and .06 of an inch thick and extends outward from a point lining up with the outer frame lines of stamp No. 100 in the upper right pane and No. 10 in the lower right pane.

The second type of plate markings differs in this horizontal line, the single solid line of color being replaced by a closely spaced series of vertical dashes which occupy exactly the same space as the horizontal line. The plate numbers of type two plates, 21307 and 21368, are located opposite the third stamp from the corners, and occur on both margins. A selector switch inserted in the circuit cuts out the operating ray as it passes the plate number and thus avoids any confusion of signals from this source.

In the third type of plate the horizontal dash again became a solid line but of half the width in use in type 1. This type became the standard for electric eye perforation and 22 plates starting with numbers 21399 and 21402 were made.

The fourth type of markings to control the horizontal perforations was shifted to the left margin of the plate. The machine to operate with these markings has been perfected and will be the subject of a future article.

Dollars remaining on Dec. 15 were: Philadelphia mint, 1921 and 1928, Peace design; Denver mint, 1921, Morgan type, 1922, 1923, 1926, and 1927, Peace type, and San Francisco mint, 1922, 1923, 1925, and 1928, Peace type.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

Off shades of white for the woodwork of your home and your accessories of wood are much in vogue as 1940 gets under way. Any woodwork painted or enameled one of these off shades will be given a pleasing change of face, and you can have almost any tone you wish, a phantom touch of color to the white to blend with some particular wall tone, or such off-white shades as bone or egg-shell white, chalk or antique white, or oyster, flesh, alabaster, metallic or cream white. There's no black magic to the mixing of these off-shade white tones. Just a matter of knowing what shade you want and mixing proper colors-in-oil with flat paints or shimmering enamels.

If you can use some extra heat in some radiator-heated room, place a reflector between radiator and wall, and in this way the radiant heat otherwise wasted is reflected back into the room. You can use any bright metal as a reflector. A metal which retains its brightness is preferable. Aluminum foil will retain its brightness and is much used now for such purposes. Or paint a heavy cardboard with 2 coats of aluminum paint and that will produce results—for a season, or as long as the aluminum paint remains bright. Have your reflector the size of the radiator and let it go to the floor.

A Winter's Tale

By Eleanor Jewett

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There was a garden that was lost,
The snow was deep and white the frost;

The garden wandered in despair,
No soft bed for it anywhere.

Then when it thought its search in vain
It chanced upon my window pane

And quickly stretched itself to lie
Facing once more the sun and sky.

I saw each flower that I knew,
Roses and ferns and tall trees, too;

I saw a garden path and more,
A castle with an open door.

I saw that garden sweet and fair
As clearly as tho June were there.

Jimmy Dorsey Brings Sweet Swing to City

Given a running start by a record breaking New Year's eve celebration, Jimmy Dorsey is well launched on a month's reign over the Hotel Sherman's swing paradise in the Panther room. The man who composed his own theme song "Contrasts" gives the Panther room a solid brand of sweet swing that packs the dance floor and wins applause from the diners.

Topping and stopping the floor show is Mardoni, a magician with tricks that are as successful in their laugh producing as they are in their mystification. His ace effect is a guillotine act, done with the help of an unsuspecting diner. Robberts and White are again doing their impression of dance caricatures. From the Dorsey crew come beautiful Helen O'Connell, who goes vocally wacky over a "Wubba Dolly," and Bob Eberly, baritone romanticist, who does the emceeing as well.

Almost unheralded, Frank Fay has come to town, wrapped the night life crowd up and tucked it safely away in his pocket. Fay made his Chicago café debut at the Colony club just before New Year's, and will close Thursday night. His humor is intelligent, and as clean and crisp as a newly laundered dress shirt. Veteran Nick Copeland is a resounding hit as Fay's doorman stooge, and a nameless but lovely young lady provides the glamorous accompaniment to Fay's funniest skit.

Another newcomer to the Colony show is Edna Sedgwick, who can get more graceful taps into a routine than Maitre Bill Gunz can get patrons into the Colony's enlarged dining room. Gali Gali, the amiable magician, continues to prove that the Hindu's quicker than the eye. Cæsar and Rosita do some sinuous Latin dances.

Zavier Cugat's orchestra opens Friday night.

Ted Weems has brought big name music—the rhythmic, tuneful kind that entices dancers and pleases diners — back to the Edgewater Beach hotel's Marine dining room. Romantic songs, sung by marvelous Marvel Maxwell and Perry Como, the whistling and comedy of Elmo Tanner, and the superb foolery of Red Ingle provide entertainment variety in abundance.

The Marine room floor show is stolen by the Dorothy Dorben dancers, who get, however, keen competition from the Duffins, a dance duo, the feminine half of which also does an acrobatic single of surprising suppleness.

Pinky Tomlin, Oklahoma accent and all, has made his first venture as a band maestro east of California, and the verdict of the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room crowds is definitely affirmative. Backed by a well balanced group of musicians, Tomlin scores neatly both as a personality and as an entertainer. Singing his own "Object of My Affections" and the newer "I Did It, and I'm Glad," the bespectacled maestro is the top act in the floor show.

Bernice Stone, beautiful and elastic acrobatic dancer, proves to be a very attractive second to Pinky. Maurice and Maryea are gracefully competent in their ballroom routines. The Stroud Twins also are in the show.

Ralph "Cookie" Cook will be haunting Harry's New Yorker for six months more, according to his new contract. Offsetting the Cook ghoulline plays will be the dancing darlings of Winnie Hoveler's line, recipients also of an extended billing. The New Year show is topped by the forthright ballads of Lil Barnes. Louise Shannon, tap dancer, Florenza, exotic dancer, and Dmitri and Frances, ballroom team, complete the show.

Orrin Tucker and Bonnie Baker came into the Empire room of the Palmer House Thursday as co-stars, Bonnie's singing of "Oh, Johnny" having elevated the diminutive songstress to a long deserved star billing. Roger Sessions' Concerto for Violin and Orchestra will be given its first Chicago performance on the Illinois Symphony orchestra's program in the Blackstone theater tomorrow night. Izler Solomon will conduct and the soloist will be Robert Gross, concertmaster of the Colorado Springs Symphony and a soloist with the Illinois Symphony last season. Sessions is one of the major contemporary American composers, ranking with such figures as Aaron Copland and Roy Harris. From 1926 to 1932 he held at different times Guggenheim, Carnegie, and American Academy in Rome fellowships. Besides composing and taking an active part in the functions of several societies for contemporary music he is now teaching at Princeton university. During the last week he came to Chicago to be present at the rehearsals of his work.

Next Sunday night the Arts club will have the privilege of presenting Elsie Houston, soprano, in her first Chicago recital. Miss Houston is a Brazilian, altho she can trace her ancestry back to the United States' Gen. Sam Houston. A few years ago she brought to Paris some exotic folk songs and primitive chants which she had gathered in her native land and created a furore. In France she added the songs of such distinguished contemporaries as Stravinsky, Poulenc, and Milhaud to her répertoire, and when she later brought these and her Brazilian material to New York she repeated her Parisian success. Those who have heard Miss Houston either in person or on recordings can avow that her re-creation of a voodoo chant with the aid of a single drum is as exciting as it is beautiful.

Zerline Metzger has arranged Offenbach's opera, "The Tales of Hoffmann," for presentation in the Auditorium recital hall on the afternoon of Jan. 14 and the evening of Jan. 23.

Hans Muenzer has replaced Herman Felber as violinist of the Russian Trio for the balance of the season. At its next concert on Jan. 16 at the Arts club the ensemble will give the first performance of Thorwald Otterstrom's transcription of Bach's Sonata in G minor for cello and piano. The rest of the program will be devoted to the Rachmaninoff trio.

Recordings

Dorothy Maynor, the much publicized colored soprano who successfully auditioned last summer for Serge Koussevitzky and who recently gave a New York recital, has made for Victor a recording of two Schubert songs—"Ave Maria" and "Gretchen at the Spinning Wheel." The voice has a beautiful fresh quality, but the interpretations lack point and forcefulness. There is something tentative about phrasings and about the preparation of climaxes.

If your old Caruso recordings are in such a warped and scratched condition that hearing them brings more sorrow than satisfaction, you will be happy to know that Victor is continuing to re-record the great tenor's old releases and to work a wonderful metamorphosis on them. Their flaws, due to their great age and the inferior reproducing apparatus of 20 and 25 years ago, have been practically eliminated. A re-recording has recently been made of arias from "The Queen of Sheba" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Other notable single discs now available include recordings of Schubert, Franz, and Bohm by Kirsten Flagstad and Elizabeth Schumann, Italian songs of Respighi and Rossini by Donald Dickson, and light orchestral pieces ["Danube Waves" and Auber's "Bronze Horse" overture] by the Boston Pops and the London Philharmonic orchestras. The Auber overture, played by the London orchestra under Constant Lambert's direction, is a frisky item indeed.

Society Bids Farewell to the 1930s and Greets '40s

By Cousin Eve

MANY millions of "Happy New Years" were wished over last week-end, and innumerable toasts featuring this idea:

"Good-by to the Dirty Thirties—Life begins in Forty."

The nicest wish come true for the year's end was across the Atlantic when Herman Gade rented his white elephant at Mesnil-St.-Denis to royalty. The new tenants of the former Norwegian minister at Rio (with Chicago background) are ex-King Zog of Albania and his lovely half-American wife, Queen Geraldine.

They lost the throne of their rocky mountain kingdom last spring when a spearhead of militant Italians appeared in what seemed to be a push-over. King Zog arrived in Paris with Queen Geraldine and his three vivacious sisters in October. They had 150 pieces of luggage and the new son and heir, who had been cradled in trains, boats, and motors since his birth.

King Zog is a Mohammedan and an upstanding, very good looking man who will add color to the Paris scene when it settles again to normalcy. A sister of the late Charles R. Crane, who was an authority on the Balkans, was telling me New Year's day that her brother went safely across Albania years ago when it wasn't being done. Another man who tried it has been in a hospital in Berlin ever since.

Mesnil-St.-Denis is 40 minutes from Paris by motor and 10 from Versailles. The château is circled by high walls, moats, and what was once a drawbridge. There are stout round towers, a stable court, and a picturesque farm court with beautiful steep-roofed farm buildings. Also a pigeonnier with a clock face upon it that time has made harmless. The château was built in the early fifteenth century by one Habert de Mortemar, and that charming woman of the great world, Mme. de Sevigne, wrote of it in her celebrated "Lettres" to her daughter, the Marquise de Grignan. She spoke of the wonderful pastry cook and what fun it was to wander in the woods and gardens.

There is a portrait over the fireplace of the center salon of Comte de Mortemar, a nice, beefy looking nobleman. Underneath is a quotation picked out in Gothic letters, "Those who are in love conjure dreams for themselves."

The stone stairs are deeply grooved by cruel time, so that one picks one's way aloft. Guests are slept in a cozy wing facing the farm court and also in various sunny rooms giving (Continued on Page 2.)

Right: Miss Ann Elizabeth Hall has a personal interest in the Architects' ball, to be given Friday night, for her father, Gilbert Phelps Hall, is an architect. Miss Hall will impersonate Diana.

Miss Lela Ellis, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Ellis, will wear the flowing, graceful robes of a Grecian maiden at the Architects' ball, to be held at the Trianon ballroom.

Debutante Elizabeth Stenson in the colorful costume she will wear to the party to which the architects are "Calling Out the Gods." The proceeds will be used to create an endowment fund for architectural scholarships.

Mrs. Mario Braggiotti, the former Mary Melville Clow, will be Hebe, cupbearer to the gods, at the architects' revel. She has been spending the winter in Lake Forest.

Miss Byrd Littlefield, debutante daughter of the Calvin G. Littlefields, will be Savitri, a Hindu goddess, at the ball. Nathaniel A. Owings is general chairman of the large committee planning the party.

into the gardens. The house is steam heated and full of noble baths, and an old chapel has been made over into a sumptuous banquet hall, full of armor, tapestry, and massive pewter platters. The duke of Windsor wanted Mesnil-St.-Denis. But he required a swimming pool to be dug in the formal garden, new made tennis courts, and the terrifically heavy Brazilian tables, chests, and chairs to be removed. To move the Brazilian furniture made of carved iron wood was on a par with moving the house itself.

So having turned over the keys to King Zog, Herman Gade is now upon his travels by motor in south France, en route to Portugal.

There has been plenty going forward in Chicago to push in the New Year, things gay, things charming, things social, and matters clubby. The men [may heaven bless them] disappeared on New Year's day in the usual mysterious manner to the Chicago club [where terrapin was eaten and bridge was played] and to the University club, where huge buffets all around the Gothic banquet hall groaned and groaned with festal eats.

In Lake Forest Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field were hosts Monday to 125 guests at a holiday luncheon, where speeches and music, and songs and toasts, lasted well after 5 o'clock. Then many of the guests traveled across town to the Lawrence Dunlap Smith's in Onwentsia avenue, where they were introducing a daughter.

In Chicago Mrs. Silas Strawn had a quite large luncheon in honor of Mrs. William J. Calhoun of Peking, who leaves in a few weeks now for her artfully arranged clump of 18th century temples in the Manchu capital. The luncheon table had curious and beautiful pewter ornaments down the center. The plates used were old Chinese porcelains, the goblets were of milk glass, and the cups and finger bowls of dreamlike opalescence and shape. As an added treat for the Chinophiles, a tall enameled rack was brought to the living room after luncheon, and Mrs. Strawn proceeded to drag out the magnificent silk mandarin coats and embroideries which lie folded in two Chinese highboys. As the light fell upon these treasures, many of them heavy with gold and silver thread, there were groans of delight at the thought that such things are.

The Casino was another club to celebrate New Year's eve. With a dinner and dance, members sped 1940 in to the music of Newton Perry's orchestra. If Newton Perry does everything in life as well as he leads his 10 man band, his future is assured. I hear his share of profits goes to his musical studies.

His parents, I. Newton and Pauline Brewster Perry, have reason to be proud of their only son, as they are. The Casino party, the A. B. Dick Blackstone ball, and the Loyal Davis tea dance were brightened by this young and vibrant music that made the heart beat strong, and the feet start cavorting.

The Albert Blake Dick ball for Helen Dick was the loveliest private dance, and easily the most elaborate of recent years. A marvelous Persian peaked tent of striped white and silver brocade enfolded the ballroom, and two giant cornucopias spilled pink and silver balloons from on high. A young girl in ecstasy at the snowy whiteness of it all, called it "an ice cream ball." The Perry orchestra and another gave marvelous music and supper was served upstairs in the gallery all night long. Beautifully decked little silvery tables stood ready, and the menu was unlimited.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dick were of the youngest set, with perhaps 60 of their own friends. The so-called "young marrieds" were not asked, and the young debs were one and all in fluffy whirls of rose or white tulle.

The Casino was alive with young dancers at an afternoon debut where Nancy, daughter of Dr. Loyal Davis, was introduced. Seldom has this beautiful private club looked as chic. Dr. and Mrs. Davis received in the loggia with their bud, among bouquets and baskets of winter roses. The debutante was fresh as a rose herself in white gauze frosted in silver.

The oval ballroom beyond was dusky, but light glanced from red cellophane bows knotted carelessly on slim silver pillars. And light danced from diamante top hats and walking sticks, criss-crossed on other pillars. A young man, Marc Leeds, did this decor, and it suited the tempo of the dance, its holiday mood, the music of Perry's merry men, beating so lustily the tom-toms, that one heard their throb in the street. So young was this party and so carefree the dancers, that my neighbor, a lovely in middle thirties, sighed deeply, and yearned to begin life all over again. The music was really great, the musicians in coats of royal blue, and Maestro Perry himself leading in business suit and everyday tie. No hotsy-totsy wear for him. Round the walls at the tea tables were leaders of society and the professions. The Arthur Meekers were there, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunham, the Walter Kirks, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, the Orville Taylors, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Mark Trude, and on in the Fountain room Dr. and Mrs. Franklyn Snyder, the George Pollocks, Dr. and Mrs. Walter D. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cummings, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Pollock.

I don't know which eggnog festival was the gayest—the Saturday party of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yoe Freeman or the Monday celebration of Mr. and Mrs. William Stanton Monroe. They were both marvelous parties. There were wood fires with the delicious smell of wood smoke, pine boughs, and holly wreaths in both houses. There was eggnog aplenty in silver bowls and fruit cakes provided by each accomplished hostess; plus little hot mince pies. And beaten biscuit, chez Mrs. Freeman, who was Esther Dodge of Virginia. Whereas chez les Monroe, the atmosphere was definitely Chinesey. Their apartment has panels of old Chinese paintings, bronzes, lovely pieces of pottery on set-in wall shelves of glass with indirect lighting, to set off the sheen and the fineness of the exhibits.

The Monroe invitation was a combination New Year's card. On it were etched a long English table with punch bowl, candles, and coffee urn, a roaring log fire and above this little verse: "We invite you to our eggnog party Jan. 1, 1940."

Mrs. Calhoun was receiving with her family the great number of merrymakers who poured in. At the Freemans' the guests were largely those men and women who make up the roster of the Assemblies.

It was there that we heard that Emily Ryerson Sherfesee had passed away, the former Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, adored by all. As one of her family said, "Aunt Emily died in the most exciting place on the map—Montevideo." Mrs. Sherfesee rounded the globe last year with her husband and her sister, Miss Sophie Borie of Philadelphia. But returning to Cap Ferrat, on the French Riviera, where she had a marvelous home set like a black enamel box over the sea, the family decided to keep moving and headed for South America. They spent two autumn months at Rio.

Somerset Maugham was an habitué of the Sherfesee house at Cap Ferrat, also fascinating Princess Ottobone, and a dozen more who keep the Riviera in a state of social upheaval with their pranks and witticisms.

The Arts club came out of its autumnal somnolence with a Tuesday tea, a very lively tea. I wouldn't say that "everybody" was there, but many balletomanes from the Russian ballet were. You could pick them out by their pinched, delicate little faces showing the strain of their profession. And these lovely girls attracted the crowd. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, president of the Arts club, made me think of a firefly, so much did she flit among groups, a slim black figure with an aureole of silver spangles on top and a long veil.

There was a long tea table with fruit cake and hot mulled wine, also coffee and pound cake. Au centre a "conversation piece" imagined by Suzette Hamill, pears with pieces of the humble rhubarb plant sticking up as importantly as if they were camelias.

I think I like it better stewed, however, with all due respect to the talented younger set of the Arts club. The men who appeared at the behest of Mrs. Goodspeed to make it interesting for the young members of the ballet were Baron Gabor Bessenyey of Hungary, Durand Smith, Charles S. Dewey Jr., Capt. William Waters, Giovanni Cardelli, and Harold Bodman, who, with Mrs. Bodman, has lately come from Florence, Italy.

The woman's committee, working with Mrs. John Alden Carpenter for the future of grand opera in Chicago, took tea with Mrs. Richard T. Crane last week. This Gothic house at the corner of Lake Shore drive and North avenue is one of the show houses of Chicago. Its stone interior is modeled after the English style and might have been there 1,000 years. Huge logs burned in the stone fireplace and tea was passed before the large group got down to work. Mrs. Carpenter presided; Mrs. Crane read a report of the last meeting and the day's receipts added $9,000 to the opera fund. Mrs. Jacob Baur read out the names of those loyal Chicagoans who might become members of the Foundation fund, and the committee chose among themselves the best prospects. There used to be in the old days [B. C. or before the crash] 3,000 guarantors for the Chicago grand opera who never batted an eyelash.

One of the things I liked best over the holidays was a Della Robbia wreath, hanging on a friend's outer door. It came from Neenah, Wis., and was a mixture of small fruits, gourds, twigs, and sprays of pine, fir, mistletoe, of silvery thistles. Little oranges, limes, lemons, and apples woven in kept their color under a light coating of shellac, and were enchanting. Centuries ago in Italy the Della Robbias were artists in pottery and Andrea designed these fruity wreaths with which to frame his blue and white terra cotta bambinos, famous among treasures of Florence. In California the Boys Republic first took up the making of the Della Robbia wreaths. In the fall they came in with fruits of forest, orchard, and field for the weaving of them; there are lotus pods, teasels, small cones, jacaranda pods, magnolia leaves, bays, and yellow dates in the making of these lovely things. The front door wreath had been kept a year. Indoors was a fresh one, just come from Neenah, and the luncheon guests were thrilled with the odor of limes and lemons, of pine and little apples that wafted out to greet them.

If Gloves "Run" When Laundered, Here Is Tip

If your winter gloves "run" when laundered, work very quickly and wash in lukewarm water. A good idea is to draw a pattern of the glove by tracing around it with a pencil on paper before laundering. Then the glove can be pulled out to reach its original size and shape. The same suggestion works for small sweaters or woolen garments which shrink easily.

Chill New Year Winds Fail to Daunt Miami

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. Chill winds which visited Dixie during the week failed to cool the enthusiasm of thousands of visitors who witnessed events of the Orange bowl festival, with the three day horse show of social importance as women riders and youthful equestriennes gave a good account of their horsemanship. The Iglehearts and their son Edgar occupied a box Wednesday night.

The marine pageant and fireworks display lacked nothing to make it all its planners had hoped. Enthusiastic applause attested the pleasure of spectators who lined the shores of Biscayne bay and the County causeway, Tuesday night, following a New Year's day so filled with events that the winter colony found a new definition for the term "Social Whirl." Morning racing at Tropical Park cleared the afternoon for the Orange bowl football classic, which brought out the largest crowd of sports spectators ever to assemble in the beautiful stadium. For the first time since its enlargement it was filled to capacity.

The Harry L. Vaughns were among hosts at the big game. Thomas Howell was a guest at luncheon at Tropical Park, following the races, when Leo Edwards entertained for him and the Toronto Charles Generals, who had been guests on the Howell yacht, Thalia, until they took a house for the season in Miami Beach. The group occupied a box at the afternoon game. The Vaughns held New Year open house as a sort of house warming for their new home on West 60th street.

Hialeah Park will open Wednesday and for 46 days fashions and horses will vie for attention. Opening day at America's most beautiful racing track, always a high spot on the social calendar, will find many from Chicagoland entertaining at luncheon in the luxuriously appointed clubhouse and later in their boxes. P. A. B. Widener, Jockey club president; Mrs. Widener and his father, Joseph E. Widener, board chairman, internationally known patron of the turf and the arts, will entertain a large party from Palm Beach at luncheon on the terrace and later from the president's box on the upper floor of the clubhouse, will watch inaugural racing.

Many Chicago friends will be in the boxes reserved by Warren Wright, Charles A. McCulloch, Mrs. Horatio Gilbert, Peter T. Potts, Thomas M. Howell, John Hertz, Harry L. Vaughn, and the Edgar A. Iglehearts of Evansville.

The Wrights, the McCullochs, and the Joseph Stehlins were among the patrons of the exhibitions of paintings opened Thursday night at the Miami Beach art center, following a reception.

Outstanding traditional event of the past week was the Biscayne Bay Yacht club's annual flag raising ceremony at high noon on New Year's day, with a reception for members following the impressive breaking out of the colors, when all the boats in the bay were dressed to the last pennant in their lockers. The recently organized Islanders' club has opened its new clubhouse on Collins avenue in Surfside.

The aviation ball last night closed the week which has exhausted adjectives, superlatives, energy, and endurance, with no rest in sight as the colony now settles down to 99 days of fishing following a marine pageant today when hundreds of boats will ply the waters of the ship channel, inaugurating the metropolitan Miami fishing tournament.

Many of Washington's diplomats found it necessary to attend the all-American air maneuvers and, with their wives, who also found a trip to Florida just now desirable, formed an interesting addition to the Aviation ball and other air meet events. More than 300 "society flyers" flew their own planes to Miami for the event and were obliged to "park" their planes on overflow space hospitably provided by adjoining airports.

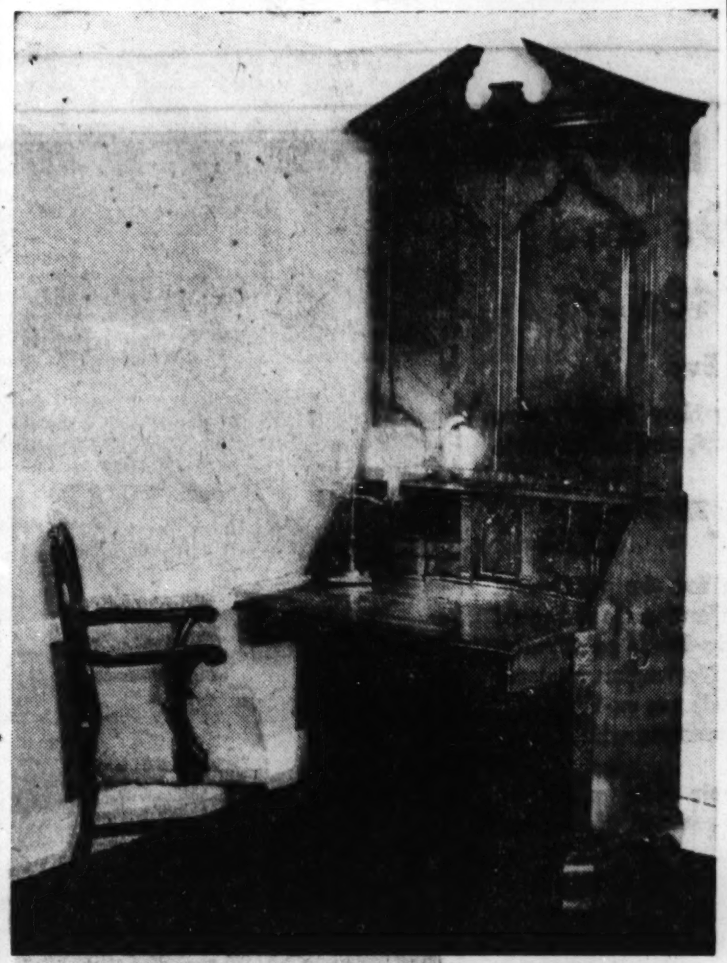
Tennis, bridge, and backgammon will get under way seriously now. Mrs. Emily Battelle, here with her mother, Mrs. A. C. Battelle, won bridge honors last week, and Miss Helen Haskell, another Chicago girl, was runner-up in tennis singles among the young unmarried set this week. Miss Haskell is a guest of the Salt Lake City George Steiners.

Miss Jane Wiley and Miss Billie Daniels of Chicago were elected vice president and treasurer, respectively, at the National Student Pan-American convention held here last week. Mrs. J. D. Young, national director, came from Chicago to attend.

The George W. Griffiths, new members of the Surf club, will arrive Jan. 27 to occupy a club suite thru March, coming in time for the first of the annual series of Saturday night gala dinner-dances, the most elaborately planned events in the south. Arthur Armstrong of Chicago has been a frequent visitor to the club with Ross Beason Jr. during the holidays. The Howard K. Daltons of Chicago were among guests honored with a luncheon given by their host, Fred A. Poor, Thursday at the Bath club, of which Mr. Poor is president. The Frederick J. Fisher yacht, Nakhoda, at anchor on the causeway, is flying the owner's pennant, the Fishers having arrived New Year's day.

IN 18th CENTURY STYLE



Typical of many pieces of furniture which will be exhibited in the winter home furnishings market is this distinguished copy of an 18th century English secretary desk, photographed at the Merchandise Mart. It is made of mahogany.

Winter Shows of Furniture Point Trends

By Edith Weigle.

Tomorrow sees the opening of the winter furniture and home furnishings markets which will be held until Jan. 20 at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart here and at various showrooms in Grand Rapids.

It is expected that between 10,000 and 11,000 retail dealers and buyers will attend this semiannual showing of new designs.

From the American Furniture Mart comes word that news will be made in several interesting finishes on 1940 furniture. Mahogany will feature a new "oxblood" color, "a deep burgundy tone which has an entirely new feeling." Used on modern pieces, it opens a new avenue in decorative treatment. At the opposite end of the color range, a bleached tint which is a gray mauve resembling rosewood will be used on walnut furniture of modern lines. Oak is being done in a light finish also, which tends toward a rich golden brown, while maple will be seen in a number of colors from champagne and creamy-beige to brown.

The Merchandise mart predicts great popularity for American adaptations of 18th century English and French furniture styles, which are given a modern feeling by the elimination of ornamentation.

Both markets here will emphasize colonial and 19th century reproductions of furniture styles of the old south. This trend is partly due to ever increasing zest for American designs and partly to the movie of "Gone with the Wind," which is throwing the limelight on handsome interiors of southern antebellum homes.

Canopied [tester] beds, sewing stands, chairs that are copies of the old Belter models, and aristocratic little sofas and love seats are among the home furnishings inspired by mansions in Natchez, New Orleans, and Charleston. Brocades and damasks and striped satins will be featured as upholsteries.

In the modern field the winter market will exhibit many space saving items. At the Merchandise Mart one manufacturer has eliminated sideboard and china cabinet in a dining room grouping, using instead a single unit which combines server, china cabinet, and storage cabinet.

Modern interchangeable pieces both in living and dining room furniture promise to be as popular in 1940 as they were last year.

The photograph today, taken in one of the many displays of furniture manufacturers at the Merchandise Mart, shows a handsome, tall secretary desk. Just beneath the cabinet top are two sliding candle trays, characteristic of an 18th century desk, as are the brass handles at the side of the desk, which were called "bails."

Jewish Club Is to Honor Mrs. Solomon

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, the octogenarian who, with a single exception, personifies probably more than any other living Chicagoan the contributions of women to the city's social and civic welfare, will be the special guest of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, at a luncheon tomorrow at the Standard club. The party will celebrate Mrs. Solomon's 82d birthday.

This veteran leader, still keen of mind and eye and erect of carriage, who does not look within 20 years of her calendar age, has her roots far back in Chicago's history, since she is a member of the well known Greenebaum family. She herself, for more than 60 years, has been outstanding among those women who have interested themselves in the welfare of their less privileged fellow citizens.

Tomorrow a few of the events which have made her life significant will be brought to the council's 2,700 members in a dramatic presentation, "Days of Her Years." Mrs. Benjamin I. Greenebaum, Mrs. Solomon's sister-in-law, has prepared the play from material to be published in the autobiography which Mrs. Solomon now is writing. More than that is not to be revealed, either to Mrs. Solomon or to council members, until tomorrow.

The only other bit of news disclosed concerning this party is that prominent representatives of other organizations with which Mrs. Solomon has been identified will speak of her work as a pioneer leader. Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, president of the Chicago section, will be toastmistress.

Mrs. Solomon's career embraces virtually the entire span of club activities in Chicago, for she joined the Chicago Woman's club in 1877 shortly after it was organized, and is the only survivor of the earliest group of members.

At the time of the World's Fair of 1893 Mrs. Charles Henrotin, fellow member of the Chicago Woman's club, asked Mrs. Solomon to organize the participation of Jewish women in the Parliament of Religions held in connection with the exposition.

Finding that no national organization of Jewish women existed, and recognizing the need for such an organization, Mrs. Solomon soon afterward formed the National Council of Jewish Women.

From the mother section in Chicago the council has grown to a membership of 65,000 in 250 leading cities of the United States and Canada. A six point program of service for the foreign born, social welfare, legislation, peace, religion, and education has been developed, always under the leadership of Mrs. Solomon, who still is active in the Chicago section and in the national organization, of which she is honorary president.

• • •

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, that other octogenarian Chicagoan who for more than half a century has personified the civic conscience of Chicago's women in action, has been invited to take part in the President's day program tomorrow afternoon at the Woman's City club. Mrs. Bowen, however, will not be able to accept the invitation, for her daily office hours at Hull House, of which she is president, demand most of her time and strength.

Her close friend, Mrs. Benjamin F. Langworthy, will summarize the most significant achievements of her own and Mrs. Bowen's administrations as president of the Woman's City club. Other former presidents who also will speak are Miss Sophonisba P. Breckinridge, Miss Harriet Vittum, Mrs. Murry Nelson, Mrs. Mark P. Mears, and Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher.

Another gay birthday party will mark the 17th birthday of the Friends of Drama next Wednesday noon at the Palmer House. Dr. Franklin Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, and Mrs. Snyder; Mrs. Edward Halton, president of the University guild, and members of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," and "Easy Virtue" companies will be guests. Elaine Dahlgren and Paul Mallory will sing. Mrs. Lew Saratt and all members who have been in the club for 16 years will receive with Mrs. C. K. Anderson, chairman of the breakfast. Afterward the entire party will attend the matinée performance of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." Mrs. Rosetta M. Lukey heads the Friends of Drama.

BETHROTHAL ANNOUNCED

The women who organized the Willing Helpers for Crippled Children 12 years ago will be special guests at a Founders' day meeting at 1 o'clock Wednesday at the Spalding School for Crippled Children. This organization of 300 women, headed by Mrs. Frank Balata, aids the handicapped children at the school.

The American Daughters of Sweden, 300 strong, will celebrate their founding 14 years ago this month with a birthday party Tuesday evening at the Bismarck hotel. Mrs. Hedwig Melinder, a board member ever since joining the club shortly after its founding, and now president, will outline its activities during those years. She will recall how the club gave a reception for Crown Princess Louise of Sweden when she first visited Chicago in 1926, and gave a luncheon for the princess when she returned in 1938.

Mrs. Hedwig Melinder.

The awarding of a scholarship to a freshman girl at the University of Chicago each year but one since 1931, and numerous other philanthropic activities of this club, which primarily is a cultural organization, also will be recalled. Last year the Daughters sponsored Jussi Björling's concert at the Civic Opera house and raised $1,000 for the Swedish Historical museum at Philadelphia, Pa. This year members again are selling tickets to the Swedish tenor's concert Jan. 21 at the Civic Opera house in order to raise funds for the Finnish Red Cross. Mrs. Ruth Mannow Olsson, former president, is directing this fund raising venture.

Mrs. Violet Young Edson will give scenes from "Gone with the Wind" in costume Tuesday evening, and Robert Christopherson, 16 year old violinist, who has won three contests in the national high school competitions, will play. There will be a birthday cake.

• • •

The Lake View Musical society will start the new year with one of its infrequent evening concerts at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Chicago Woman's club. Ada Paggi, mezzo soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, and Pearl Gran and Margaret Smith, duo pianists, will give a program. Mrs. Hiram B. Kadish, president, has invited Amy Neill, Mae Doelling Schmidt, Dr. Albert Nolte, Dr. Shirley Gandell, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Reuter, Ebba Sundstrom, Leo Sowerby, and Phyllis Fergus Hoyt as special guests.

MARRIED

Mrs. Robert R. Carlson, whose marriage to the son of Mrs. Otto Carlson took place last November. She is the former Miss Jane Elizabeth Bowman, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur M. Bowman. The services were read by the bride's father in the North Park Covenant church.

Another of the Sunday twilight teas which have been a particularly pleasing innovation this season for members of the Chicago Woman's club and their friends will take place this afternoon. Mrs. Florence Ward will speak, and the Toujour Bon ensemble, composed of Lorraine Lucas, soprano; Mildred De La, pianist; Duilio Pucci, tenor; Luigi Pupillo and Rafael Garcia, violinists, will play. Betty Lou Gerson, Frank Behrens, Barbara Luddy, and Les Tremayne, all radio artists, will be guests.

• • •

A luncheon that will extend into the evening is the novel event in store for the Association of '93ers of the World's Columbian Exposition Tuesday at 19 South La Salle street. Mrs. May M. Gibson, who was official photographer for Chicago's first world's fair and now heads this organization of persons associated with or interested in that historic event, has planned this marathon luncheon in order that those employed during the day also may attend the reunion. Slides of the fair and reminiscences will be in order, with all sorts of entertainment for good measure.

Also out of the ordinary will be the Indian Council Fire's meeting at 3:30 o'clock today at 32 West Randolph street. A team of Indian men will compete with a team of Indian women in a "True or False" contest. The meeting will be open to the public.

Alumnae of Rosary College Foreign Branch to Meet

The young women who have studied at Rosary college's foreign branch, the Institut des Hautes Etudes, Villa des Fougeres, at Fribourg, Switzerland, recently have organized a club. This afternoon the group will meet at 3 o'clock at the River Forest college to choose a name and ratify a constitution. Sister Mary Evelyn, O. S. D., president of Rosary college, already has been made honorary president, and Mrs. Stephen Hart of River Forest is president. Mrs. John King Bruun is recording secretary and Miss Helen E. Rigney, corresponding secretary. In 1917 two Dominican sisters from St. Clara's college, Sinsinawa, Wis., took over the school, and in 1925 the first Rosary college junior studied there, officially inaugurating the college's foreign study plan. The purpose of the club will be to promote foreign study. Current events will be discussed at meetings, which will be conducted largely in French.

Junior Jarvis Hunts Hold a LodgeWarming

By Lolita Linn.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

In the early days of Arizona, when newcomers were a matter of intense interest, and social events were few and far between, it was taken for granted that a bride and groom, as soon as the new house was in order and the wedding gifts arranged, would gather the neighbors from miles around to attend a housewarming. Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Hunt Jr. [Florence Grace Gardner], who were married recently in Chicago, revived this pleasant custom on New Year's afternoon at the opening for the season of Arcadia lodge, their desert resort outside Phoenix.

Arcadia Lodge is not really a new house. It was built eight years ago as a winter home by Jarvis Hunt Sr., well known architect, some of whose creations are 900 Lake Shore Drive and the Lake Shore Athletic club in Chicago and the Union station in Kansas City.

Last year Jarvis Jr., with his father as architect, added guest cottages, a great dining room [which was the scene last winter of some of Phoenix's gayest parties], and a cocktail lounge [an intimate room which is very much on the cozy side since Mrs. Hunt Jr. has added colorful draperies and potted red geraniums. By day the dining room is dominated by a great window looking out on Camelback mountain, and by night by a huge platform fireplace, reminiscent of the time when all the activities of the pioneer home centered around the open fire.

Among the friends and neighbors who gathered at Arcadia Lodge to welcome Mrs. Hunt to Arizona were Mrs. Harold McCormick, who came with Dr. and Mrs. Louis B. Baldwin of Phoenix; the Burridge Butlers of Hinsdale and Mrs. Butler's sister, Mrs. Helen W. Bartlett; Miss Nora Carney of Lake Forest; Miss Mary Louise Anderson of Chicago; the Walter Bimsons, formerly of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wayland and Mr. and Mrs. George Ashforth of Phoenix; Mr. Ashforth's mother, Mrs. Albert Ashforth of New York City; Robert T. Evans and his mother, Mrs. Jessie Benton Evans, from nearby Jokake inn; Miss Lilias S. Bill and Miss Virginia Melody of Highland Park; Dr. A. J. Chandler, Robert Foehl, and Chuck Abbott from the San Marcos at Chandler; Mr. and Mrs. Barry Goldwater [Peggy Johnson of Chicago], and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goldwater of Phoenix; Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Horace G. Newhall of Winnetka; Mrs. Walter Baldwin of Highland Park, and the Patrick Valentines Jr. of Southampton, N. Y., and Chicago.

New Year's guests of Mrs. William Wrigley were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stringfellow of Sierra Madre, Cal. The Francis Neilsons arrived just at the close of the year to spend the winter at the Arizona Biltmore.

It is good fun to be a looker-on at a party at Camelback inn, three year old desert resort outside of Phoenix, for guests always feel perfectly free to dress as they please. The result is most interesting, as we noted again at the gay New Year's eve party given at the inn. Western outfits, such as that worn by George Gillespie, who showed up with Mrs. Gillespie [Kay Thorne of Chicago] for the supper and late dancing, relieve the formality of conventional evening dress. And, of course, the cowboys can be depended on for brilliant splashes of color, with their bright shirts, jeweled belts, and jaunty ties. Running off the square dances on New Year's eve were Edward Makem and Everett Cheatem, Camelback cowboys.

Guests of Camelback inn during New Year's included Wallace Brown Cook of Chicago and his son, John Brown Cook. Coach Robert Zuppke, who is spending a month at Camelback inn, was not at the New Year's eve party. He was combining business with pleasure by scouting Southern California, which plays the University of Illinois next fall.

There was some pretty exhibition tennis at Jokake inn on Tuesday. The players, members of the British Wightman cup team, were Mary Hardwick, who recently defeated Helen Wills Moody; Valerie Scott, who has beaten Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, and Nina Brown, English and Scandinavian woman's doubles co-champion. After the exhibition matches Jokake inn gave a tea for their three attractive guests. Miss Scott and her fellow players were in this country when England declared war, and their plans for the winter are most uncertain. However, they were leaving after the tea Tuesday, by motor, and expected to play tennis in Palm Beach on Saturday. We tried to explain to them how far it is across Texas, but we could see that they regarded our story as just one more example of Yankee exaggeration.

Monte Vista at Wickenburg is unique among the guest ranches in this part of Arizona, as it is a real cattle ranch. Bob White, the owner, has 1,000 acres of patented land, and leases thousands of acres more which is reserved by the government. Guests have the fun of working cattle and watching the spring and fall roundups.

It is always interesting to note how many people come to spend the winter in Arizona and remain to become full fledged ranchers. A guest of Monte Vista for several years, Harvey A. Smith of St. Paul, this year opened the newest and most luxurious guest ranch at Wickenburg. It's name is the Sombrero, and the picture window in its living room frames the many colored peak which marks the site of the famed Vulture gold mine. Mr. and Mrs. Smith [Virginia Booth of Rochester, N. Y.] spent many hours on horseback scouring the countryside for the perfect spot on which to place their ranch.

Fashion Hand-Outs of Gayety and Color

New this year are the many pastel and high colored "baby boxing gloves," nothing more than a soft suede mitten pulled in around the wrist with a thong of the leather ending in tassels, such as the model shown, No. 3. These come in old gold, pale pink, several shades of blue, white, raspberry red, and black, and are attractively priced around the $2 limit.

Another new arrival is the traffic light mittens, the stop and go duet of white angora, one hand with green thumb and finger tip, the other hand with a red thumb and red finger tip. These are pictured No. 4. These are for casual tweeds, wool street outfits, and spectator sports costumes. Another pair of spellbinders is No. 5, the combine of angora, featuring horizontal stripes in a defiantly brilliant color contrast. These can be seen for blocks, but do a grand job of enlivening an otherwise dull and dark costume.

Knitted yarn mittens are really beauties, perfect, smooth, and picturesque pairs for contrast with suits, winter coats, fur jackets, and street as well as spectator sports clothes. Many of them are embroidered with tiny flowers or sentimental designs of bleeding

Seeking a Job? Give Grooming Its Due Care

For a copy of the mimeographed sheet entitled "Office Etiquet," send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Helen Bartlett, etiquet editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

As recent articles in the DAILY TRIBUNE have pointed out, a young woman seeking a job should pay a great deal of attention to her grooming. The visual impression, it seems, holds a great deal of weight with prospective employers and personnel departments. More weight than it ought to be allowed, one might think, when presumably what an employer wants is somebody to do a good, full day's work. But employers argue, in return, that a girl's appearance, neatness, care in grooming, and taste in clothes are a definite reflection of that girl's disposition, training, education and general good judgment, and that if she dresses appropriately, and keeps her clothes clean and well pressed, it is a safe wager that her work will show the same characteristics . . . neat, careful work done with good taste and judgment.

Naturally, one's qualifications, such as experience, efficiency, accuracy, and capabilities for doing the work are considered by the company that is willing to pay out its earnings to those it places on its pay roll. But just keep in mind the fact that the record of one's past achievements and sheer mechanical ability will not "land" the job alone. Look to the straightness of your heels, the cleanliness of your fingerpalls and hands, the seams in your stockings [no runs, of course], the whiteness of your cuffs and collar, the evenness of your hemline, the simplicity and suitability of your attire, and a dozen of the other little items that go to make up the well groomed young woman, such as makeup and coiffure.

Getting the job is one thing, and holding it is another. We'll just take it for granted that you are able to do the work in a satisfactory manner. But again, besides the actual completion of the work, your job depends upon your personal behavior, your conduct in the office, and the observance of office etiquet. On your knowledge of business manners hinges your ability to get along agreeably with your associates, take orders gracefully and respectfully from your superiors, courteous treatment to all, whether they be members of the firm or customers.

• • •

There is more on this subject of office etiquet than we are allowed space for at the present time in our Sunday column, such as telephone etiquet, introductions, attire, and similar topics. We have prepared a little printed sheet entitled "Office Etiquet" for those of you who feel you would like to go more deeply into the subject. Write for it. Just inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request, and we'll be happy to talk it all over with you by sending a copy which you can peruse at your leisure and by which you may make changes in your habits if you find there is room for improvement.

Chicagoans at Club Opening in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

The opening of the Beach club [Bradley's] on Friday night was a season milestone. Many Chicagoans were among the distinguished crowd. Mrs. Paul Healy gave a luncheon there on Saturday.

The first tombola luncheon was held Wednesday at the Everglades club with 250 in attendance.

Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock gave a luncheon on Thursday at Casa Alejandro. Mrs. James E. Baum entertained on Wednesday with a small dinner at her home on the ocean front.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Boysen of Chicago, who have been spending several weeks in Fort Lauderdale and Miami, were in Palm Beach early this week calling upon Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Le Ray Berdeau.

Several of the Chicago colony attended a large tea Wednesday afternoon given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Worswick of London at Lake Ridge, their Ocean boulevard home, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. [Chip] Robert of Washington and Atlanta.

• • •

Mrs. Ross J. Beatty, who is at present in Washington, is expected here in a few days. Mr. Beatty will also be down shortly, while John Beatty is expected Feb. 1.

Mrs. William Bode is expected soon for a season's stay at the Breakers. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stour will arrive about Jan. 10. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Morse arrived from Chicago late in the week. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Malcolm were among the Chicagoans attending the Orange bowl football game at Miami on Monday.

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury is at El Mirasol for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Davies have opened Mar-a-lago. With both of these huge Ocean boulevard mansions occupied concurrently for the first time in several years, it seems like old times to seasoned resorters.

A meeting and tea were held on Friday at the home of Mrs. Barclay Warburton of Philadelphia, to organize a group to aid French soldiers and war orphans. This organization will be a branch of one which in Europe is headed by the duchess of Windsor and Lady Mendl, and in New York by Mrs. Harrison Williams. Mrs. Ector O. Munn of Palm Beach and New York is treasurer of the New York branch.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, November 7, 1891.

Dear Julia: I have been busy all day helping the dressmaker who has come to make me a new evening gown, which I think is quite pretty. It has puffed sleeves, a collar that comes up well in the back and opens to show the throat; puffed short sleeves and short paniers opening over the embroidered skirt. A long train in the back, of course. I felt I must have a new gown for the opera season, which opens next week.

Emma Eames Story.

We are looking forward to this musical treat with unusual interest this year, for the company assembled by Maurice Grau and Henry E. Abbey is said to be exceptionally fine. Altho we shall not have the divine Patti, we are told that opera will be better than ever. You see, her price for singing is so high that it has left little to pay other singers, and thus we have had inferior people in the other rôles. This year the salaries are more nearly equal and we hear there will be excellent singers in all parts. The magnificent looking De Reszke brothers will be great drawing cards. Albani, Lili Lehman, and Scalchi will compensate for Patti. Then there is Marie Van Zandt, who has sung her way into European hearts. The opera "Lakmé" was written for her and she scored a great triumph in it. If I don't hear another soul I feel I must hear Emma Eames, the Boston girl who has such a reputation. Her romance, culminating in her marriage only three months ago, to Julian Story, gives her an aura of glamor. Her young husband, you know, is a son of W. W. Story, the English sculptor and writer.

The great social event of the week has been the marriage of Miss Margaret Allan Pinkerton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pinkerton, to Mr. William C. Pullman. The west side was especially interested in this marriage, for the Pinkertons have long been identified with the exclusive Ashland boulevard neighborhood. But they have many friends on the north and south sides, too, so that the Third Presbyterian church, where the marriage was celebrated, was filled, on the evening of Nov. 4—guests in evening clothes, for the most part, which gave color and sparkle to the assembly.

As the first notes of the Lohengrin march sounded the procession entered, led by Dr. Withrow, the beloved minister, in clerical garb, prayer book in hand. After him walked the bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, Mead Moore. Then the ushers, two and two. The bridesmaids carried chrysanthemums of different colors, and a lovely sight they made. Miss Belle Pinkerton was maid of honor, and after her walked the bride, charming in her wedding gown of silk, with a bodice all of duchesse point lace. I have never seen such a perfect gown. Every one was commenting on it. The little flower girls were Pinkie Chalmers and Helen Stewart, cousins of the bride and groom—adorable little creatures. It was like a fairy tale in its lavishness and taste.

We were invited to the Ashland boulevard home of the Pinkertons for the reception and saw the presents. Besides those which were shown we heard that the bride's father had given her a completely furnished house, 504 West Adams street, as a wedding gift. The bridegroom's parents gave them a grand piano. What more could a bride wish for? By contrast, it recalled my own wedding gifts. In 1859, the year I was married, we didn't do things on such a magnificent scale, but we have much more wealth in our great city now than in the fifties.

The new Mrs. Pullman deserves her happiness. A great favorite in society, she is a niece of Mrs. William J. Chalmers, the pretty young matron you met at my house. I saw Mrs. Chalmers at the reception and thought her one of the most gracious and attractive persons there.

And now, with love, I must say good night.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Pasadena Back to Normal and Routine Whirl

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

It takes an easterner to make a southern Californian really appreciate this town's annual New Year's day tournament of roses! The natives are so used to having flowers bloom abundantly in open fields all winter long that they miss part of the thrill of seeing literally acres of flower heads encrusting the tournament floats, of seeing long stemmed roses by the tens of thousands nodding from these moving "gardens."

New Year's came again and passed in a blaze of glory while more than a million persons looked on. Eighty thousand of them went on to the Rose bowl in the afternoon to watch the traditional East-West game.

In the official reviewing stand, Coach Fielding H. Yost of Michigan was a guest with Mrs. Yost [who incidentally hails from Tennessee and had a double interest in the day]. Amos Alonzo Stagg, grizzled grand old man of football, was also present and the crowd massed near the stand saw them as a tournament official introduced the dignitaries at the microphone. The California and Tennessee governors were there, and presidents of the contesting universities. The army, the navy, and the marines were there—Admiral J. O. Richardson having the place of honor. Vice Admiral Charles P. Snyder, Maj. Gen. C. H. Lyman of the marine corps, and Maj. Gen. Jacob Fickel of the army were there, too. The gold braid, the distinguished looking officers, and the smartly dressed wives drew considerable attention.

The parade had a distinctly patriotic flavor and many floats employed the Stars and Stripes draped in graceful folds of flowers. Each floral emblem brought the service set to its feet.

Speaking of flowers, the infield at Santa Anita is abloom again in colorful patterns and presented a spectacle for racing fans who jammed the Turf club and grandstand last Saturday.

New Art Shows to Get Year Off to a Good Start

By Eleanor Jewett.

The new year is off to a good start with the opening in its first few days of several exhibitions. The Arts cinb, Wrigley tower, has one of the most interesting of the shows in an exhibit of sculpture by painters and a review of the paintings of Amedée Ozenfant. The exhibition opened last Tuesday and will run some three weeks.

New Year's day saw the opening at the Drake hotel of an exhibit of oil paintings, charcoal and crayon drawings by Richard R. Epperly, sponsored by the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts. There is a pleasant variety of subject matter in his canvases. Mr. Epperly is well known for the charm of his painting and he intersperses pattern with people in his landscapes with delightful effect.

Among the most pleasing items in the show is the group of portraits in charcoal. Mr. Epperly uses the medium cleverly and subtly and is particularly apt at getting likenesses. His drawings of various types of people and people of differing race are well worth studying. In fact the exhibit is one of the nicest small shows in town just now. It will continue to Jan. 31.

Recent paintings by Richard Aberle Florsheim make up the new exhibition at the Quest Art galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, an exhibition which opened Friday to continue thru Jan. 19. Mr. Florsheim, it will be remembered, is the gifted young North Shore painter whose "Don Quixote" was purchased by the French government last summer to hang in one of the famous museums in Paris.

A Christmas card from Louis Kronberg gave the delightful news of a prospective showing of his recent paintings in a Chicago gallery in January. According to the card, the exhibit will be held in the Tretykov galleries and will open Jan. 10. Louis Kronberg was last seen here at the Carson Pirie Scott galleries a year or two ago.

The 16th Annual Hoosier Salon will open in the Marshall Field galleries Saturday evening, Jan. 27, and continue thru Feb. 10. The jury of selection is meeting Jan. 22. On the jury are Randolph Brooks, Richard Chase, C. Lynn Coy, Jeffrey Grant, Benjamin Kanne, Beatrice Levy, and two lay members. The "feature" room will again be devoted to landscapes. That subject proved so popular last winter no one had the desire to change it.

Dudley Crafts Watson is lecturing tomorrow at Fullerton hall, Art institute, and it is in the cards that something like 1,000 persons will hear the lecture. It promises to be a particularly interesting talk. Mr. Watson is discussing Italian Renaissance and Rochelle's has been requested to do an Italian Renaissance living room for the occasion. Several very fine hand carved pieces of furniture are being placed in the room and an antique Aubusson rug. An early Italian war tapestry, valued at $1,400, makes a striking note on the wall. The room is most interesting and very lovely, and in cold cash [if figures interest you] has a value in the neighborhood of $9,000. More than the value in money, however, is the value in beauty. It is extremely difficult to get good examples of Italian Renaissance; the setup for the lecture is nearly perfect.

The closing date for the Italian Masterpieces now on view at the Art institute is Jan. 9. A great many thousands of persons have seen the paintings and sculpture. Mrs. Myrthel S. Fuller, 130 Callon avenue, Evanston, was the 100,000th visitor and as a result was given a beautiful reproduction of Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair," handsomely framed. This may be taken as meaning it is better to be a late than an early visitor to the exhibit, but at the present moment if you wait to be the 500,000th visitor [for whom there may or may not be a prize, we have been left in ignorance] you may miss the exhibit altogether. Which would be a vast pity as it is one of the art shows of a lifetime. From Chicago, the paintings go into safe keeping until it is wise to transport them across the sea; once back in their own country they will never be seen outside of it again, Italy having recently passed a law to that effect.

A most entertaining little book has been written by Faber Birren, who is an authority on color. The book is "Character Analysis Through Color" and intrigues the reader at once with this captious question and reply on the cover: "What is your favorite color? Answer honestly and this book will reveal the secrets of your personality." Mr. Birren is sending it out under a nom de plume, because its contents are light and his work in color is eminently practical and serious. Nevertheless, popular minded as it is, this little volume gives a great deal of information and is as much fun as any book of its kind I have seen. We read character by handwriting, stars, cards, etc., why not thru color preference? Martin Lang [sh! Mr. Birren] has done a fascinating piece of work. His book supplies entertainment and perhaps a lead to your personality. It may help you to a job or a lifemate. Whatever it does, it will keep a blue hour from your door and give you a least 60 minutes of unadulterated gold in fun.

"Character Analysis Through Color" is published by the Crimson Press, Gorham avenue, Westport, Conn.

At the annual meeting of the Chicago No Jury Society of Artists, Orval Caldwell was elected president; Macenta Barton, vice president; Edith Heilemann, secretary; Magda Heuermann, treasurer. Among the directors for this year are Julia Thecla, Ethel Crouch Brown, Frances Badger, Winifred Pleimling, and John A. Clinton.

One of the most famous portrait galleries in the country is that at the Saddle and Sirloin club, Union Stock Yards, where portraits of 235 men hang, men who have rendered distinguished service to American agriculture and the live stock industry. The nine recent additions to the gallery are seven portraits by Othmar Hoffler and two by Joseph Allworthy, who, perhaps, is better known in Chicago for his still life painting than his portraits.

Something of the technique which Mr. Allworthy employs for his still life hovers over his portraits. One feels it in their smooth finish. The portraits by Othmar Hoffler are dynamic and alive. Mr. Hoffler has already earned an enviable reputation as a portrait painter; these last portraits will enrich that reputation. They are very fine.

Accidental Deaths.

Falls in the home caused more deaths in 11 months in one state than did automobile accidents, according to that state's department of health.

GROSS' "MY FRIEND—HENRY"

This living likeness of Henry Colby, by Oskar Gross, is one of the finest portraits to have been shown at the Chicago Galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, in 1939. It was recently completed by Mr. Gross and exhibited in the galleries' member exhibition, which was one of the holiday triumphs of this Christmas.

NEW YEAR'S BRIDE

Mrs. Carroll Dean Murphy Jr., the former Miss Dorothy Jenkins, was a New Year's day bride. She and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy of Winnetka were married in the Winnetka Congregational church. They will live in Evanston. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Jenkins of 2438 Greenleaf avenue.

President of B. M. Z. Club Will Retire

Mrs. Joseph Lewis will retire tomorrow after 20 years as president of the B. M. Z. Woman's club. Mrs. Samuel Hokin, recording secretary, has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Lewis.

A quarter of a century ago Mrs. Lewis, then just out of college, came to Chicago from her native Tennessee. A visit to the Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged at 1648 South Albany avenue interested her in the welfare of the men and women cared for there. She joined the B. M. Z. Woman's club, which had been formed a few years earlier, in 1912, thru the amalgamation of three auxiliaries of the institution.

• • •

In 1920 Mrs. Lewis was elected president. During her years in office the club has more than doubled its membership and now numbers between 900 and 1,000. It contributes to the upkeep and the beautification of the home, and has modernized the 40 year old structure, at one time contributing $10,000 toward its reconstruction.

A solarium and hospital equipment are among the club's gifts to the home, and furnishings, linens, clothing, and other physical needs of the 175 residents are supplied regularly. A special committee gives a party for the old people every month, and every Friday evening they have a Sabbath "treat." Another committee gives surgical aid and makes bandages.

A junior group provides the old people small luxuries and necessities. By the arrangement of the club a rabbi comes several times a week to study with the scholarly minded at the home.

The Chicago chapter of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, will organize its 13th annual tithe campaign for funds at a series of luncheons Tuesday in various parts of the city. Proceeds of the campaign will be contributed to Hadassah's vast medical and social service program in Palestine and to its work thru Youth Aliyah to establish some 5,500 refugee children from central Europe in Palestine.

Following are places and programs for the district luncheons: South side district, Covenant club; speaker, Avis Clamitz Shulman; singer, Esther Corn. Albany Park district, Hamilton hotel; speaker, Mrs. Bertha R. Rissman; singer, Ilamay Handel. North side, Belmont hotel; speaker, Judge Harry M. Fisher; singer, Mrs. Max Arkin. Austin-Lawndale, Midwest Athletic club; speaker, Mrs. Harry Berkman; singer, Wilbert Liebling. West suburban, Columbus Park Recreation center; speaker, Mrs. James H. Olshan; singer, Mrs. Herman Karel. Northwest, Atereth Zion congregation; speaker, Rabbi Gunther Plaut; singer, Mrs. Louis Edidin.

• • •

The Willing Workers Woman's club will close a three month earning fund drive with a dinner-dance this evening at the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman. Every member present will have earned her share of the $5,000 which is the objective of the drive. The organization aids sufferers from tuberculosis.

Wagner, Mrs. Jacob Kleiman, Mrs. Samuel Wodika, Mrs. Edwin Weinberger, Mrs. Joseph King, Mrs. Max Schwartz, Mrs. Leo Stone, and Mrs. Rudolph Munzer head committees on arrangements. Mrs. Harry King is president.

The annual dinner-dance of the American Ladies' Aid society will be held next Sunday at Colossimo's. Mrs. B. B. Shapiro and Mrs. Louis Lenoff are general chairmen, and Mrs. Harry Burg is program chairman. Proceeds will further the organization's philanthropies. Mrs. George Cohen is president.

The newly formed Hias Men's club will hold its first meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Stevens hotel. Those interested are invited to write to Dr. Maurice R. Udell at Hias headquarters, 1214 South Clinton street.

The Chicago Lawndale B'nai B'rith Women's auxiliary, No. 179, will celebrate its third birthday anniversary at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Midwest Athletic club. Dr. John A. Lapp, author and educator, will speak, and Helen Golden will sing. Sidney D. Deutsch and other members of Lawndale lodge will be guests. Since it was organized with 235 members in 1937 the auxiliary has grown to more than 900 and has contributed generously to B'nai B'rith philanthropies. Mrs. A. R. Schneider is president.

The Drobniner Relief society, which aids the Jews of Drobnin, Poland, will hold its annual installation at 2 o'clock today at the Douglas Park auditorium. Max Finkelstein of Indiana Harbor will install Joseph Winogrond as president.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

This Port Has Good Harbor, Not Much Else

By Mason Warner.

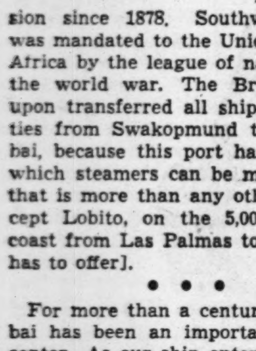
WALFISCHBAI, SOUTH WEST AFRICA.

Monotonous and seemingly endless has been my journey down the west coast of Africa. It is a four day voyage from Luanda, Angola, to Walfischbai, in sight of a drab, dreary, desert shoreline for nearly a thousand miles.

Walfischbai has a good, natural, deep harbor, but when you say that you have summed up all there is to say for this seaport. From the pier the keenest traveler can see nothing to invite close inspection. There are only 1,200 natives and about 600 whites living in the town. It is in a wilderness of sand, surrounded by sterile desert and bare dunes, from which the wind whirls fine particles that blind and choke to an annoying degree.

• • •

When Southwest Africa was a German colony the Germans made Swakopmund, 20 miles up the coast, their port, and managed to carry on the landing of merchandise in a shallow harbor with no docks. The colony of Walfischbai, a tiny fragment of land, has been a British possession since 1878. Southwest Africa was mandated to the Union of South Africa by the league of nations after the world war. The British thereupon transferred all shipping activities from Swakopmund to Walfischbai, because this port has a pier at which steamers can be moored [and that is more than any other port except Lobito, on the 5,000 miles of coast from Las Palmas to Capetown, has to offer].



• • •

For more than a century Walfischbai has been an important whaling center. As our ship entered the harbor we passed a fleet of 33 whaling ships at anchor, awaiting the opening of the season. The ships were uniform in appearance, painted a dull red, less than 50 feet long, and equipped with oil burning engines. The mother ship, or "whale factory," for boiling the oils, was being reconditioned in dry dock at Capetown.

Each of the 33 ships carried a Norwegian crew of 12 to 14 men—"All sailors, no rubbish!" our captain exclaimed, with a slight trace of envy in his tone. Whalers earn good wages. The captain of each boat is also the gunner and handles the harpoon gun, and will make from $3,500 to $5,000 on a four month cruise.

• • •

Just to illustrate the vagaries of seasickness, I mention the fact that we had as a passenger a Norwegian whaler captain on his way to rejoin his fleet, and he was the sickest man on the ship. "The first time," he said, "after 28 years at sea." The other passengers inclined to queasiness seemed to derive some comfort from the big fellow's suffering with nausea and headaches. I know too little of psychology to explain the source of their satisfaction over his sorry plight.

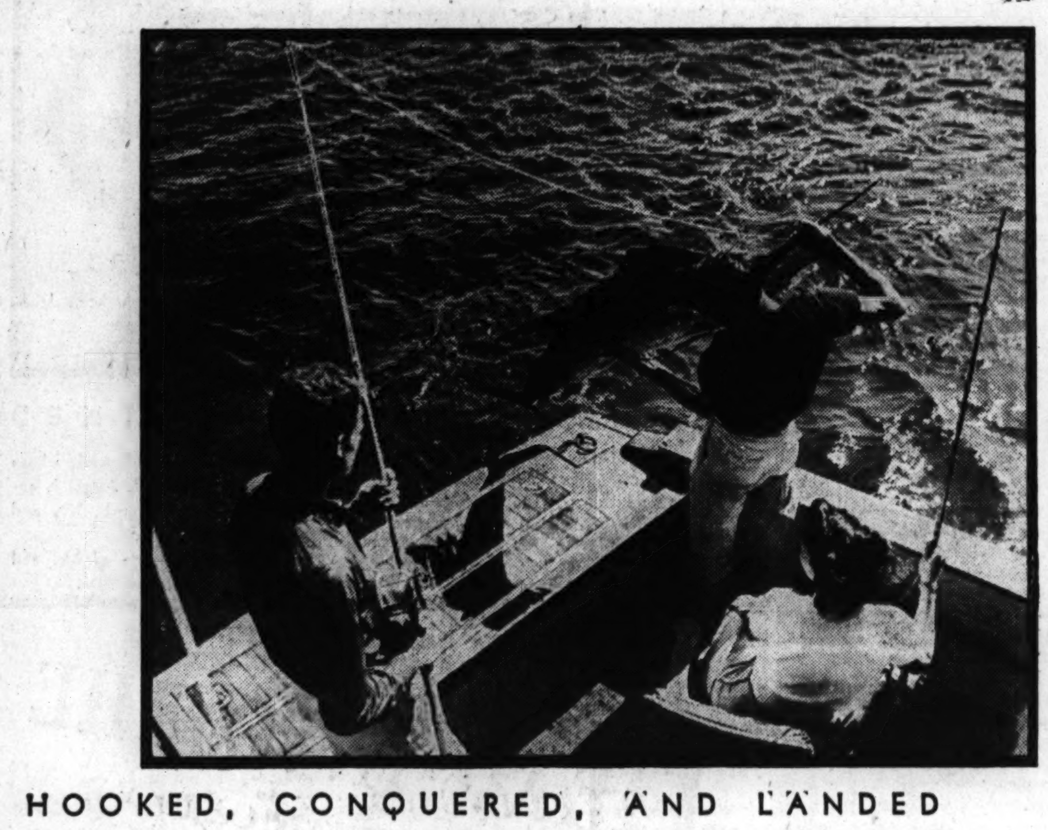
Why whales were so plentiful on the west coast of Africa is explained by the annual migrations which the giants of the sea make from the antarctic waters. They follow the cold Benguela current to the Congo and other rivers affording the "sweet" [fresh] water that brings death to barnacles gathered on the bodies of the whales and frees them from these parasitic pests.

There is a dispute as to the origin of the name Walfischbai. The British say it is of German origin and means simply "whale fish bay." The Germans assert the correct name is Welwitsch Bay, derived from welwitschia miribilis, a strange desert plant found in this vicinity.

• • •

Of course there is a main street in Walfischbai, but only one side of it boasts any buildings, and except for two weird looking hotels they are limited to one story construction. The street and the railroad tracks are built on man-made ridges four feet higher than the surrounding sand. All the dwellings and shops not on the main street are elevated on posts or piles to escape the floods which overflow the town's area when the mountain streams pour their waters down during the rainy season.

Government officials, traders, importers, exporters, and bankers live in Swakopmund. The former port is a much more attractive town, with a fine bathing beach and some claims as a seaside resort. Some pleasing homes survive as vestiges of the German occupation. "Swakopmund is really a fine little city," said a friendly banker. Yet Walfischbai, where business concentrates, is well nigh uninhabitable.



HOOKED, CONQUERED, AND LANDED

This 7½ foot sailfish, typical of the 3,000 brought to boat near West Palm Beach each year, put up a half hour fight before being hauled aboard.

The Voice of the Traveler

MUCH ABOUT MEXICO.

Green Lake, Wis., Jan. 2.—To the Travel Editor: I have been asked so many times about the spots most to my liking on the various trips I have made to Mexico that I feel these notes will be the best way to answer the questions.

I have tried to make it short, but there is so much to tell that it would take volumes.

No trouble at all with the Mexican customs office if you try to be helpful—much more apt to have trouble with our own in coming out.

Before you leave Laredo, Tex., go to the Mexican Automobile association office and join for the length of your stay. Insure your car with them. They will give you much needed information and are courtesy itself. The association takes care of any accident, if you have one, and you save yourself untold annoyance. The car of one of my friends burned up south of Monterrey and in 24 hours the company had paid in full.

From Valles on is the most beautiful part of your drive. Fill up with gas at Tamazunchale. If late, get lunch at camp just before you cross the river into the town. If early, you will probably go on to Jalapa for lunch down in the town—fair—but best along the road. Do not buy gas here. Zimapan is next place to buy it. Buy again at gas and curio station about 100 miles from Mexico City.

You will want to go to Toluca on market day. On to Moralia, and then to Patzcuaro. Do not miss this trip. Back to Mexico City—you will go to Puebla, Tehuacan, Fortin, and Orizaba. Stay over night at Fortin and buy gardenias. Then to Cuernavaca, 50 miles south of Mexico City. A lot to see there, and good golfing. Then to Taxco, and from there to Acapulco. The bathing beach there is perfect—the water like velvet. Most men say that when you have fished at Acapulco there is no fishing anywhere else that satisfies.

If I have worn you out you may now start back home. ALICE W. DERING.

PRICES TOO HIGH?

Jefferson, Wis., Dec. 30.—To the Travel Editor: I have been reading Anson Brown's articles on his trip thru Mexico. He speaks of the reasonable food and hotel room prices in Mexico City and Acapulco. Now I have obtained a booklet telling of a trip into Mexico and put out by an oil company, and hotel room charges listed in it seem very high. I am wondering if they only list the highest class ones, or what is the reason for this contradiction of Mr. Brown's statements? HAROLD A. STENGEL.

THE PERSONAL ANGLE.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—To the Travel Editor: One of the most enjoyable articles I have ever read in your section was the one on Gallup, N. M., by Mae Blacker Freeman, in your Dec. 13 issue. The personal angle from which this story was written made it so much more interesting than the usual travel article. I look forward to reading more of the same kind. It's just what we travel enthusiasts want. JEAN FARNSWORTH.

How Did Stones Get That Way? Visitors Wonder

MEXICO CITY.—The prodigies of Mexican temple building have always interested tourists. Visitors are particularly intrigued by the question of how the ancient people, who had no beasts of burden, managed to transport the great stones with which they built their temples on the tops of hills or on plains many miles from stone quarries.

The statue of the rain god Tlaloc, of enormous proportions and cut from one slab, dominates a valley from a hilltop in which there is no trace of the stone from which the figure was carved.

A short expedition from Mexico City to Texcoco, and thence to Xuexotla, may be made to see the phenomenon whose mystery has never been explained. Tourists, after walking from the village to the site of the statue, with its strange face and carved trappings, marvel at how the natives transported the image to this section, and wonder why they should have done it.

Tlaloc still stares out across the valley, watching his own rain clouds sail by and fade to vapor against the peaks of Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl, just as he has done for centuries.

Snow Brings Action in the North Woods

With the snow ranging in depth from 10 to 24 inches and temperatures on the fringe of zero, winter sports areas in northern Wisconsin and upper Michigan went into action last week. Skiing and skating conditions were reported to be good and growing better.

Ironwood, Mich., had 24 inches of snow. Phelps, Wis., had 18 inches, Land o' Lakes 17 inches, and Ishpeming, Mich., 10 inches.

Travelogue.

"Fascinating Florida" is the subject of the travelogue to be given at the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday. This is a natural color movie, showing flowers, deep sea fishing, formal and cypress gardens, Silver Springs, and St. Augustine. Dr. H. Eugene Wells will talk on the scenic beauties of Florida.

''FORE,'' NOT ''FIRE''

In St. Petersburg this winter the battles are being fought with golf balls on five sportive courses.

Hawaiian Highways Are Unmarred by Billboards

HONOLULU.—The visitor to Hawaii has many surprises awaiting him. Not the least is the complete absence of outdoor advertising. The erection of billboards and other forms of advertising along the highways of the islands is forbidden by law. The last billboard disappeared in 1926.

A Yankee Looks at a Bullfight in Mexico City

By Anson Brown.

MEXICO CITY. Americans are enthusiastic for everything from ice hockey to Chinese checkers, but the Mexican, with his Latin temperament, clings to one national sport, bullfighting. Month after month the slaughter goes on, Sunday after Sunday the bulls are tormented and killed while the Mexicans scream out their "Bravos!" and American women depart from the place white as a sheet. But it is all worth seeing—if you think you can take it.

The interlude in Mexico is ending, and on the manana I shall start for home; so let's take this final day and put a climax on the climax. I have now seen this national sport as portrayed on a brilliant Sunday afternoon, and the interpretation to follow is necessarily that of a Yankee, not of a Mexican.

• • •

From the outside the arena looks like a football stadium. Promoters are selling pop and souvenirs, scalping tickets, and jamming thru the gates.

With a friend I stood in line at the ticket window and soon had difficulties with my poor Spanish. The ticket seller kept saying "El sol?" and then would ask "El sombre?" I finally shoved a few pesos at him, he smiled, and gave us our tickets. But what and where is el sombre?

We did not find out until we were led to our seats. Across from us the bleachers were in the sun. El sol, of course! Then we were sitting in the sombre, or shade, and the sombre tickets were more expensive, as shady things generally are!

The arena was like a flower pot. We sat almost on the rim, with rows of color circling away from us on either side and dropping below in ripples of a kaleidoscopic whirlpool. The shawl of each senorita was a bit different than that of her neighbor's; the vivid shirts of the men splashed more globs of bright hues in that mad assemblage. The floor of the arena was of smooth yellow sand being constantly worked by a group of attendants walking back and forth and pulling the prongless wooden rakes.

• • •

An Englishman and his wife sat alongside us. Both turned to look when they heard the Yankee accents. How did we get there? Where were we from? They knew a man named Smith in Chicago. The young English wife was excited and thrilled. "Reahlly, you know, it's very exciting," she exclaimed. How exciting it actually would be we were soon to learn.

The band played, then the trumpets called, and the parade of the matadors, the toreadors, the picadors started the show. The British wife cheered, and the husband quieted her because people were smiling at them. Then came a quietness. The fight would commence now.

The hush was deadly as a door opened on the far side of the ring. Two toreadors waited in the center of the arena. For a moment nothing happened. The black cavity behind the opening revealed nothing. The silence still persisted as thousands of eyes watched for the entrance of the bull. When a roar went up we saw a surly black mass of beast run blinking into the sunlight.

• • •

Again and again the roar of the crowd. The bull seemed to be suddenly and passionately infuriated. He spotted one of the toreadors and hurricaned across the sand. Dust arose behind him as he closed the gap. The man stood his ground, holding the cape at arm's length and defying the snorting rush. With only a short sidestep he evaded the charge as the bull swept the cape under his outstretched arm.

Man and bull both wheeled. Another charge, another sidestep, and the angry animal rushed by. The crowd cheered wildly. This toreador knew how to fight.

Slowly but skillfully the Latin worked the bull over to the edge and to a protecting opening in the surrounding highboard fence. The bull's snorts of fury could be heard thruout the arena. He rushed at the cape repeatedly, only to find void where the man had been. The animal pawed the sand, tossed his head up and down, and repeated his onslaughts. At length the man sought safety behind the protecting backboard, and a new toreador took up the game.

The British wife tore her beach hat to shreds and hid her eyes at each attack. Her husband laughed. We were all excited. We could see nothing gory or awful about a bullfight. But I soon changed my tune.

Other fighters entered the ring and took over the game from the toreadors. These men carried banderillo sticks instead of capes. Each stick was equipped with sharply barbed hooks on the end, so that, once they entered the bull's flesh, they could not easily be shaken loose. One at a time the men would walk to the bull. Each one went as near as he dared, with the stick held high above his head. Then he would charge straight for the animal that, tho panting and a bit worn, was still fighting mad. And even as the beast lowered his head for another charge the man was there.

Faster than the eye could see the barbed rods flashed over the horns and sunk into the back near the spine. Then the man was away, and the bull, now engrossed by the pain in his flesh, threw his huge body around like a wild bronco. Deep crimson began to flow over his shiny, perspiring black hide. Applause from the audience. The English lady groaned. This time her husband did not laugh at her.

• • •

Two more men then, four more torturous rods, and the beast below us bellowed and cried. He was like an animal of the sea harpooned six times. The yellow sand began to turn red. The British wife buried her head in her lap.

Next came the fat, pompous picadors riding in on their padded, blindfolded horses. They carried long lances, with the sharp ends glistening in the sun. The bull, suddenly, miraculously, renewed in energy, spotted the nearest horse and charged. With a thud the bull struck and slowly buffeted the blind steed across the ring while the picador gouged the bull with the sharp end of his lance. He pushed in the flashing steel with all his might until the bull backed away and bellowed anew. The crowd went wild.

Another picador baited the bull. The beast charged with such suddenness that both man and horse went over. A scream went up from the arena sides. The Englishwoman looked up in time to see what had happened. Her face was ashen as her husband led her out. She could not even say good-by.

• • •

Finally the picadors were thru and the main fighter of the day strolled into the ring. He was the lone matador who was to do the killing.

The bull was ready. He spotted the man and put the last ounce of muscle into his feet. He was an angry torpedo charging across the ring. The man did not even have to sidestep. He merely moved his cape, and the animal went bellowing by. There was no doubt that the matador was good. There were grace and precision in his every movement. The bull swung around and, head down, charged again. At each onslaught he was fast. Always the man was a bit faster. The crowd gasped and applauded. A sudden sidestep of the Latin, and the bull would find nothing.

Again and again it took place. Slowly the black body and the bulging muscles began to weaken. The bull stopped and looked. His panting tongue dripped blood, his body heaved, his head was lowered in fatigue. The man had been waiting for this moment. From under his cape he took his long, slender sword. For a moment he paused a short distance in front of the animal, his sword extended at shoulder height, his left arm held out behind him. Slowly his feet closed together and he went up on his toes.

• • •

The bull breathed out rage, but the man was too quick. One swift advance, one jab of the arm, and the steel passed between the horns, entered the body at the shoulders. The bull made not a sound—merely sunk to its knees and rolled over.

This, then, is another Mexico—the fighting, gory, lusty side of it.

If you wish some good color movies for your camera, don't miss an afternoon in the bull ring.

St. Augustine's Villa Is Replica of Alhambra Castle

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—Ornate furnishings and valuable antiques from all points of the world are on display at the Villa Zorayda, replica of the Alhambra castle of Granada, Spain.

Lending its Moorish architectural lines to a city already steeped in the atmosphere of old Spain, the villa was the first concrete building erected in St. Augustine. It was built about 1885. [The majority of old structures in St. Augustine are built of coquina rock, seashell formation.]

Tiled walls and a red and yellow Spanish trim add color to the building, in keeping with the characteristics of Moorish castles. No two windows are of like design.

Tiles centuries old, brought from the Alhambra and from the Sultan Saleem mosque in Egypt in the 12th century, also can be seen.

Mission Trails Turn Pages of Early History

By Mary S. Hogue.

It is fascinating to follow the "trail of the padres," or "mission trails," beginning with the first mission founded at San Diego. The interest in the ancient and dilapidated buildings increases with each year. Today a thousand persons visit them where 10 saw them 25 years ago. Twenty years from now hundreds of thousands will stand and absorb their beauty as they listen to some part of their history.

When New England was burning witches, and the south was dancing the minuet, and New York was founding an aristocracy out of Dutch burghers, California was inhabited by a few Indian tribes, so stupid that they rarely knew one another's language, so lethargic that they rarely ever fought. At the time of the coming of the padres they were miserable and wretched, dressed mostly in rabbit skins. They lived in filthy little hovels. Their food was of the simplest kind; whatever they caught they ate, from grasshoppers, lizards, and snakes to deer and bears.

• • •

But the Indians were not entirely lacking in initiative and industry. They had provided themselves with cooking utensils, made of wood and earthenware; bows and arrows, instruments for making baskets, etc. They had no form of worship, no religion—only a love of nature, as is shown by their dances, imitations of animals and birds.

Under the care and supervision of the padres, the savages developed into skilled laborers, blacksmiths, carpenters, tailors, weavers, experts in leather tanning. They were not taught to read and write, but were trained by the Franciscan fathers. These missionaries received their inspiration from St. Francis, who left his father's home in 1206 to devote himself to a life of poverty and to the service of the poor and the sick. His influence spread throughout the world. From Spain into Mexico and California came the padres to carry on in this new field. Their leader was Junipero Serra.

• • •

In selecting sites for their missions the padres had an eye for beauty. All the buildings were placed on fertile ground, amid scenes of natural charm. The architecture, the same in each structure, was a style that has had a wide influence upon modern trends. Its chief features were:

1. Solid and massive walls, piers, and buttresses. 2. Arched corridors. 3. Curved pedimented gables. 4. Terraced towers, surmounted by a lantern. 5. Pierced campanile, in tower or wall. 6. Broad, unbroken mural masses. 7. Wide, overhanging eaves. 8. Long, low, sloping roofs, covered with red clay tiles. 9. Patio or inner court.

Each mission was built in the form of a hollow square, the church, representing the fachada, with the priests' quarters and the houses for the Indians forming the wings. The quarters had a wide colonnade or cloisters, covered with red tile made by the Indians. The interior was the patio or inner court, with a fountain in the center, and a garden. The adobe walls were solid and massive, 6, 8, or 10 feet in thickness. This was for the purpose of counteracting the earthquakes. Windows were arched.

• • •

The interior decorations were designs and ornaments. The padres tried to reproduce from memory the things with which they had been familiar in their early days in Catalonia, Cantabria, Mallorca, Valencia, and the results were not so good. Had they used the same originality in the interior as they did in their structures, they would have given decorations as much admired as their architecture. The colors used in the decorations were prepared and blended by the Indians. The yellows were extracted from poppies, blues from night shade, red from stones and shells picked up from the beaches.

The decorations in several of the missions have been retouched, but in many of them the designs are still clear and bright.

• • •

Following are the outstanding features of the 10 missions founded by Junipero Serra in the course of his 13 years' work with the Indians:

San Diego [1769] has little left to show what it was years ago. The fachada of the church remains and has been braced; there are portions of the old well, and the wall around the gardens. Some olive trees are standing. Beams from the church and old olive mill, stirrups and hollow iron cannon balls are among the relics.

San Carlos [1770] for many years after its abandonment as a mission in 1845 was left uncared for. The bodies of Serra, his successor, Lausen, and two other missionaries were buried there. After the tile roof fell in rains and storms brought sand enough for a growth of grass and weeds, and soon the graves could not be located. In 1884 the building was partially restored and rededicated. The old pulpit remains; it is a small structure of wood, with a sounding board above. It rests upon a solid stone pedestal. In the presidio of Monterey, six miles from San Carlos, are many valuable Indian relics.

San Antonio's third mission was founded in 1771. Only the remains of the old wall are standing. In 1904 the California Historic Landworks league undertook the preservation of San Antonio, but little has been accomplished.

• • •

And every note of every bell
San Gabriel! San Gabriel!
In the tower that is left the tale to tell
Gabriel, the Archangel.

The four bells remain as they were when the mission was repaired after the earthquake in 1812. Again, in 1886, many repairs were made, windows in the missions enlarged, new ceiling put in. There are the remains of five brick buildings at the rear of the church, where soap making and tallow rendering were carried on. There are, too, a few portions of an old cactus hedge. This cactus served two purposes: It offered protection from enemies and roaming bands of horses and cattle, and its fruit was prized by the Indians.

San Louis Obispo [1772] has been rebuilt twice, was destroyed by fire twice. It was these calamities that led the padres to attempt the making of tiles. It was not long before tile was used as a roof on all the missions. This mission has been restored to such an extent that it has no resemblance to its original self. The adobe walls are covered with painted wood, and shingles replace the tile roofs. There remain the three bells in the original belfry.

• • •

San Francisco de Asia [1776]. A cemetery and monument, along with the old mission, stand as a grand memorial of the past. Here were buried the Indians, soldiers and settlers, Spanish and Mexicans, the priests and, later, the Americanos. It is all neglected and uncared for. A mass of myrtle and ivy has covered the graves and the walks. Rose bushes, untrimmed and untrained, are still blooming; pepper and cypress trees wave gracefully over the graves of high and low, known and unknown. On some of the old stones are carved names that stand out in the history of California. At one of the entrances to the church is an inscription to the first governor of California. Farther along is a brown stone monument erected by members of the fire company to Casey, who was hung by the vigilantes in May, 1856.

• • •

San Juan Capistrano [1776] is probably the finest of all. It was built in the form of a Roman cross, 90 feet wide and 180 feet long. It is made of quarried stone, arched roof of same material, with a lofty tower adorning its fachada. The arched corridors are covered with a profusion of scarlet bougainvillæa. Many years ago there was a good library at San Juan. Books were in old leather, sheepskin and parchment binding, some tied with leather thongs, all in Latin or Spanish. There are many ruins of the old aqueducts, some of brick, others of wood, supported across ravines, which carried the water needed to irrigate the 80 acres of orchard, vineyard, and gardens that were inclosed with an adobe wall. This is proof of the tireless industry of the priests and the Indians under their care and supervision.

Santa Clara [1776] is now the site of the University of Santa Clara. The old vineyard is now a garden, and many olive trees remain standing. Of the three bells, two still call the faithful to worship. One was broken and had to be recast in San Francisco. The altar rail of the restored church was made from the beams of the mission. These beams were of redwood, from the Santa Cruz mountains, and are the earliest specimens of redwood used for lumber in California.

San Buenaventura [1782] was one of the most prosperous and had one of the largest populations. In 1802 it had fine herds of cattle and rich fields of grain. Its gardens and orchards were visions of wealth and beauty. It has little left of the past. In 1893 the church was renovated and modernized. The spirit of commercialism now pervades the town.

• • •

Santa Barbara [1786] is the largest and best preserved of them all. It is now the Franciscan headquarters on the Pacific coast and is noted for its beautiful gardens. The cemetery, entered from the church, contains the bodies of 4,000 Indians as well as many whites. In the bell tower are two bells made in 1818. One is fastened to its beam with rawhide thongs, the other with an iron framework. This building, which has never been abandoned and abused as have the others, is kept up entirely by donations from visitors and tourists to the Franciscan missionary who is its custodian.

Santa Barbara was the last mission founded by Junipero Serra. He died at San Carlos at the age of 70. Lausen, his successor, established 11 others, completing a chain of 21.

Miami's Fishing Tournament to Draw 140,000

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—The final chapter of Miami's new year celebration will be written tomorrow, when 250 boats, yachts, fishing craft, and "anything that floats" join in a marine parade.

This pageant will mark the opening of the fifth annual $10,000 open fishing tournament, which will attract close to 140,000 participants between Jan. 7 and April 14.

Headed by the professionals, who call themselves "the world's greatest big fishing guides," the flotilla will be saluted by flag decorated yachts and liners in the city's basin as they parade out along the five mile county causeway into the gulf stream.

For catching record speciments of big game fish on rod and reel, sportsmen will be awarded trophies, citations, and tackle. Among the approved list of species which may be submitted for competition are pompano, sailfish, marlin, tarpon, mackerel, tuna, bonita, amberjack, barracuda, mako, and channel basss.

STEAMERS—PLANES

An Attraction That Comes Only with Age

By Frederic Babcock.

The state of Chicago's weather last week brought back memories of—and yearnings for—Havana, with its sun splashed Malecon, its flower decked patios, and its open air night life.

But the Cuban capital's appeal to the northerner does not lie merely in its climate. It has the attraction that comes only with age.

Americans who imagine they have to go to the old world to brush up against relics of ancient times do not know their Havana. That city was in its prime long before cities in the United States were even dreamed of.

• • •

La Fuerza, the oldest structure there, was built in 1538. The foundations of the cathedral were laid in the days of Oliver Cromwell. Morro castle dates back to the time of Shakespeare. Havana was a hundred years old before the first houses were built in New York City. On the day the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth rock there were, lounging in the Plaza de Armas, young men whose grandfathers had lounged in the same place.

For the most part this square looks the same today as it did in the sixteenth century. Other parts of Havana have gone modern, but enough is left to preserve the atmosphere of antiquity. The city claims to be the oldest in the western hemisphere, and that claim is granted, provided one forget- the Inca cities that have crumbled into the dust of the Andes.

• • •

If the visitor has time to take a trip thru the interior of Cuba, he can drive along the splendid highway between Havana and Santiago, or visit the 300 year old La Merced church at Camaguey, or get glimpses of palm thatched bohios [farmers' dwellings] that have changed little since the arrival of Christopher Columbus.

If the visitor doesn't care for castles and cathedrals, but prefers rum and rhumba, he can find them, too. And this winter, more than ever before, the newcomers are learning about the fishing possibilities. Giant tarpon, marlin, swordfish, dolphin, dogtooth mackerel, kingfish, and a dozen other varieties are to be found directly off Morro castle. Seven hundred varieties inhabit the surrounding depths. In the interior, the lakes and streams have been stocked with trout, black bass, and other species, imported as fingerlings from the United States, protected for several years, and now looking hungrily at whatever bait is offered them.

FAR FROM THE SCENES OF ICE AND SNOW

Pamphlet Tells What to Wear on Winter Holiday

If you are an unseasoned traveler, and the problem of what and how many clothes to take on a winter vacation is a serious one with you, write for the mimeographed pamphlet, "Vacation Wardrobes." Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request, and address your letter to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Included in these suggestions of what your traveling wardrobe should include is a chart giving the average temperatures at leading winter resorts in January and February.

Indiana Parks Open for Winter Sports

Four Indiana state parks are open this winter for hiking, horseback riding, tobogganing, and skiing, Bert Vanderwarf, head of the Chicago Motor club touring bureau, said yesterday.

The four are Pokagon, McCormick's Creek, Spring Mill, and Clifty Falls. The inn at Turkey Run has been closed for repairs.

"Pokagon, near Angola in northern Indiana, usually has the most snow and offers the maximum in skiing and tobogganing to be found in Hoosier parks," Mr. Vanderwarf said. "The others, in the central and southern sections of the state, specialize in organized hikes thru the woods, followed by hot suppers and group games around an open fire in the evenings."

Strange Plants Shown at Fair

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 6.—Tropical fruits, flowering plants, and palms are to be shown at the annual Pinellas County Agricultural fair, which opens next Tuesday.

Among the strangely shaped and flavored fruits to be seen are the avocado, banana, egg fruit, fig, guava, kumquat, mango, papaya, and citrus of many varieties. Floral displays will include the yellow alamanda, red and purple bougainvillae, red hibiscus and poinsettia, flame vine, and oleander of many shades. All of the thirty varieties of palm which grow in this latitude will be included in the horticultural exhibits.

Tennis Champions Meet at Orlando

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 6.—Play in the 13th annual Florida tennis championships will begin here Monday on courts of the Orlando Tennis club, with Bobby Riggs, the nation's top ranking amateur, seeking the title now held by Wayne Sabin. Among the other players will be Hal Surface of Kansas City, Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, and Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore.

Resort Tries to Find Reason for Record Business

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 6.—Amateur psychologists are coming forward with a variety of explanations for a Miami Beach season that got started six weeks ahead of time and is now close to the highest point in this city's history.

Halting of trans-Atlantic travel cannot account for all of the thousands of persons who have arrived here ahead of schedule. Economic optimism is a contributing factor. Determination to make the most of America's security and Florida's climate is regarded by the experts as a natural reaction from the bleak news from other countries.

Living quarters, including accommodations offered by 47 new hotels and 69 new apartment houses, are being engaged far in advance of expectations.

Twenty-five per cent increase in patronage over last year is the estimate of the hotels, and 35 per cent for the apartment houses.

Travel Agents to Dance.

The Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, will hold its annual dinner-dance Saturday evening, Jan. 20, at the Knickerbocker hotel. Guests are expected from New York, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Detroit.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

ESCORTED TOURS

A Journey to Kul-Kul-Kan by Moonlight

By Rutherford Charlton.

The long road grew narrower and rougher as we journeyed into the center of the peninsula of Yucatan on our way to the ruined city of Chichen Itza. Our car swooped over the abrupt hills and down into the hollows like a sloop sailing heavy seas. Earlier in the journey an occasional church or hacienda had been seen along the way, but as we neared the ruins even these far flung outposts of civilization disappeared. Thatched huts were the only visible signs of human habitation.

Suddenly, after we had rounded a bend in the road, an exclamation by the driver drew our attention. There, straight ahead at the end of the road, was El Castillo, the temple on the great pyramid of Kul-Kul-Kan, rising in majestic mystery out of the jungle.

• • •

In Chichen we obtained comfortable accommodations at Doña Victoria's abode walled hostelry and prepared to begin our exploration of the ruins. Our guide failed to appear. Growing impatient, I went in search of him. For the first time I found myself completely without recourse to any one who could speak English. Now if ever I would have to sink or swim with my schoolday knowledge of Spanish. I found the good doña in the kitchen, preparing the noonday meal, and managed to convey to her the idea of the object of my quest. "Llama Carlos," she said imperturbably.

I went out and shouted the name about the clearing. Almost immediately an alert appearing young man emerged from one of the huts. He was brown skinned, barefooted, and struggling into a shirt as he approached our cottage. We were appalled to find that he did not speak a word of our language. But, as there was nothing else to do, we decided to make the best of it, and started on our exploration with the smiling Carlos in the lead.

• • •

At the top of a low hill we came upon a large rectangular building, the middle section of which was crumbling away. This section evidently had been built long before the two wings, which were still in good condition. "Akab Dzib," said Carlos. That was Mayan for "the House of Dark Writing."

As our eyes became accustomed to the gloom of the interior we found, over the inside doorway, the lintel that bore the occult inscription from which the edifice got its name. In another dark chamber Carlos pointed out the red imprint of a human hand—equally mysterious as to significance and origin—which formed a weird border across the upper part of the walls.

By this time we had discovered, to our delight, that, while Carlos did not speak English, he did speak Spanish so slowly and clearly that we were able to converse with him on simple matters in his own tongue. It was surprising how quickly half forgotten words and phrases came back under the pressure of necessity.

• • •

All thru the ruined city we wandered, marveling at the size and beauty of the pyramids and temples, and the profusion of intricate carving to be found even on the least of the structures. Still more amazing was the fact that the 20 ton stones found in some of these buildings had been quarried, shaped, carved, and moved into place by men who had no metal tools and who are supposed to have been without wheels or pulleys of any kind.

The caracol, or observatory thru which these Mayan scientists made their astronomical observations, and thus evolved their system for measuring elapsed time, still stands, partly demolished, but nevertheless a fine monument to the intellectual power of the Mayan race.

In this connection we learned that 52 years are supposed to have comprised the Maya-Toltec cycle and that, while the Mayan year consisted of 365 days, it was divided into 18 20 day months, with the five leftover days known as "days of misfortune."

• • •

Following a partially restored passageway into the center of the pyramid of El Castillo, we entered a recently discovered inner temple. Instead of destroying this temple of an earlier period, the Mayan builders constructed their pyramid over and around it, hiding and preserving its beauties thru the ages. Jewels of turquoise, jade, and coral were discovered in a stone cache in one of the corridors, and strikingly sculptured figures were found on the walls of the chambers.

At the end of a long climb thru a narrow, black passageway we came upon a ferocious looking red leopard with eyes and spots of inlaid jade, tusks of polished flint, a jade incrusted tail, and a turquoise disc set in his back. It was hard to realize that this remarkably sculptured animal had been glaring into the blackness for a dozen centuries and might have continued thus for a dozen more had not the long sealed corridors been discovered and cleared by the archæologists. In this same chamber the flickering light of the guide's lantern pushed back the oppressive dark sufficiently to disclose two lines of human bones inlaid in eerie adornment in the south wall.

• • •

Out in the fresh air once more, we continued our exploration. Pushing on in single file along the paths that connected the different buildings, we visited in turn the Market, the Tomb of the High Priest, the House of the Deer, the Nunnery—where the girls for the sacrifices may have been kept—and the Ball Court. All these places were named thru sheer conjecture, by reason of some physical characteristic, for the true names and purposes of the structures will remain a secret until the key to the Mayan hieroglyphics can be found.

Of all these the Ball Court was the most fascinating. Two walls approximately 10 feet thick, 15 feet high, and 500 feet long had been built to enclose a rectangular playing field running the length of the walls and 120 feet wide. Carved stone rings, placed so that a ball could pass thru them horizontally, extended from each wall at a height of about 10 feet. A reviewing stand with broad stone terraces, backed by a section of wall, and the whole structure detached from the sidewalls, marked each end of the court. These two structures are known as the North and South Thrones.

Acting on Carlos' suggestion, we stood on these terraces, separated by the 500 foot length of the court, and found that the most softly spoken sentence was distinctly heard and understood at the other end of the court. This phenomenon was probably due to an accident of construction, but it is interesting to speculate on the likelihood of the clever Mayan workmen knowing enough of the science of acoustics to provide easy means of communication between the royalty in the boxes at each end of the field. Midway between the two stands, and directly under one of the stone rings, it was possible to stand with one's back to the side wall and, by directing the voice toward the other wall, receive a veritable chorus of echoes in answer. Some sharp-eared persons claimed to have heard as many as nine repetitions of a spoken word.

From the Ball Court we followed Carlos along the overgrown Sacred Way to the Sacred Well. In doing so we saw several bright colored birds, along with a big green iguana lizard, which stared at us arrogantly for a moment before disappearing into the jungle.

• • •

A thousand years separated that sunny afternoon from the days when priests threw the maidens into the Cenote Sagrado [Well of Sacrifice] to appease certain gods, but the place still had a sinister air about it. The nearby temple was completely ruined, but the well, 150 feet wide and 75 feet from the rim to the surface of the evil looking black water, appeared to be unchanged. The grisly history of this cenote was substantiated many years ago, when a dredging experiment resulted in the discovery of several skeletons and a great number of little bells with the clappers torn out—mute evidence of the savage rites carried on there.

As the sun dropped abruptly into the western jungle we made our way back to the clearing, where the cooking fires in front of the native huts were already causing strange shadows to dance on the white walls of Doña Victoria's casa de huespedes. We banished the fatigue and dust of the day with cooling showers, and entered the dining room. Earlier in the day, when we first became aware of an increasing thirst, Carlos had gayly assured us that ice was frequently brought from Merida by motor truck, and that we could have iced mineral water or cold beer with the evening meal if we so desired.

I had smiled away my thirst all the rest of the hot day in anticipation of some cooling beverage at nightfall. But inquiry at the dinner table disclosed the fact that the all powerful sun had done away with the remaining small supply of ice that very afternoon. The warm beer had the flavor of soapsuds, and the tepid agua mineral tasted like medicine. It took quite a bit of will power not to partake of the bottle of cool, clear well water with which each table was supplied, but we were not sure of it, and stuck to the less tasteful but presumably safe beverages.

At the next table a local gentleman took a large mouthful of water from the carafe and, after swishing it around in his mouth for a few seconds, turned his head toward the dining room door and expelled the stream in that general direction. He did this not out of distrust of the water, which he later drank freely, but because it was considered good form to wash out one's mouth before eating.

In the course of the meal a tremendous spider made its appearance on the wall in back of us and a pair of rodents frolicked along the ridgepole of the thatched roof. No one showed any disposition to remove them; so we concluded that they were merely local color, as were the two movie villain San Blas Indians playing dominoes for keeps at a table over in the corner.

Returning to our white walled cottage, we lighted the single candle provided us and tried to read. The flickering light cast strange shadows, seemingly bringing to life the mural paintings of a warrior in full regalia and a sly looking priest regarding one another from opposite walls. Reading was impossible, but as I glanced thru the window and saw a full moon rising over the clearing an exciting idea came to me. We would see if the dead city could come to life under the spell of moonlight!

A few minutes later we were picking our way down the shadow-dappled road and across the field toward the pyramid of Kul-Kul-Kan. Under the peaceful chorus of night sounds we moved quietly and with care in order not to disturb any of nature's watchmen in the form of big snakes. Several little horses regarded us drowsily as we crossed their pasture, and two or three goats took a few startled steps at our approach. There was no other disturbance, and soon we found ourselves toiling up the steep sides of the pyramid toward the temple, standing remotely on the crest.

• • •

The 91 steps, the sum of which on four sides of the pyramid represented the 365 days of the Mayan year, were evidently built for tiny Mayan feet, for they were no more than high narrow ledges. This forced us to climb on all fours at times to keep from rolling down the steep declivity in places where the rock had crumbled. As we approached the top we heard the witching cries of the owls as they swooped thru the gaping black doorways of the temple. But when we gained the summit and flung ourselves down at the foot of the serpent columns at the north door, the owls' voices were stilled and only the ghostly flapping of their wings was audible.

After a short breathing spell we rose and picked our way around on the disintegrating terrace outside the temple to the southwest corner of the pyramid. There, spread out below, was a scene that for sheer unearthly effect exceeded all bounds.

• • •

The great buildings of the dead city rose like silver islands out of the black sea of jungle. To the south and west in the cleared and restored area stood the Temple of Warriors in almost original splendor. We stood in the dark doorway of El Castillo and gazed at the miraculous beauty of the pagan temple below as the moon outlined its white walls and columns.

In our imagination, we saw a strange figure appear between the huge stone serpent heads guarding the entrance to the temple. Its queer trappings and ornate headdress, similar to those in the murals of the high priests, threw grotesque shadows on the alabaster walls. Lesser figures appeared, with few trappings and no headdress, and they bore a struggling prisoner. A rhythmic chant welled out from within the temples; the air became heavy with exotic incense, and more high priests appeared.

A victim, unclothed except for a loin cloth, was brought forth and taken in charge by two of the lesser priests, who skilfully stretched him out on a small altar, the priests at the head pulling the sacrifice's arms down and back so as to expand the chest completely, and the other holding the feet securely. The altar was an undulating segment of the Plumed Serpent, so carved that the reptile leered down upon the upturned face of its prey.

The tempo of the chanting quickened, and the voices grew shrill as the highest and most ornately garbed of all the priests strode to the front and took his place at the side of the altar. Gazing into the face of the victim, he raised a highly polished, razor-sharp stone cleaver in his left hand. Smoke from sacrificial fires on altars within the temple swirled thru the doorway. The lips of the high priest moved in some sort of incantation known only to himself. Suddenly the chanting stopped, and for the space of a few seconds a deadly stillness possessed the scene. The priest, with one tremendously hard and skilful blow, laid the victim's chest completely open. Within the same second, by a lightning motion of the right hand, he tore the still beating heart out and threw it in the face of the Plumed Serpent. Whirling around, he kicked the body from the altar with sufficient force to send it rolling and flopping down the steep stairs, leaving spreading dark stains on the white stone to mark its course.

The chanting rose in a savage crescendo, and then subsided. The smoke screened the face of the temple momentarily, and when it cleared away the priests were gone. Once more the ancient structure stood serene and peaceful in the soft tropical moonlight, and the drama just enacted became nothing more than a half-effaced scene painted on an inner wall of the Temple of Warriors.
